The largest crowd of the National Hockey League season paid tribute Sunday night to hockey's newest super-star.

If there was any doubt about Gordie Howe's status before, the big rightwinger from Floral, Sask., silenced any detractors Sunday with the show he put on for 16,518 fans at Chicago.

Undoubtedly a large proportion of the crowd came to see the 24-year-old sharpshooter make another try for the 200th goal of his career, after failing to make it in two previous tries.

It took Howe a minute and four seconds to convert Ted Lindsay's pass into No. 200, becoming the 25th man in NHL history and the eighth now active to accomplish the feat.

Howe then yielded the spotlight to team-mate Tony Leswick, who rattled in two goals in 40 seconds. But early in the third frame Gordie put the finishing touches on Detroit's 4-1 victory over the Hawks with his second goal of the night.

Within Reach

That left him with 16 games in which to get the 10 goals he needs to break the one-season record of 50 set by Montreal's Maurice Richard eight years ago. That mark was set in a 50-game schedule—as against the present 70—but against lower-calibre wartime competition.

Also within easy reach is the total-point record of 86 for a single season, set by Gordie himself two years ago, and equalled last season. He needs 13 points to improve on that mark.

The only break the Wings gave the partisan feelings of the Chicago crowd Sunday was in allowing Bill Mosienko to score the goal that averted a shutout.

The victory enabled the Wings to increase their NHL lead to four points over the second-place Montreal Canadiens, who battled Toronto Maple Leafs to a rugged 2-2 Saturday and took a 1-0 beating from the Bruins in Boston the next night.

The Bruin victory coupled with a 5-4 victory over New York Rangers Saturday, enabled Boston to leap-frog Chicago into third place. The Leafs, picking on the Rangers for a 2-1 victory in New York Sunday, elbowed the unhappy Hawks down another notch and claimed the fourth rung. The three clubs are single points apart.

The Leafs and Canadiens slugged it out with abandon, earning 66 minutes in penalties. Bobby Hassard and Sid Smith of the Leafs and Butch Bouchard and Dick Gamble of the Habitants looked after the scoring.

Boston's Fleming Mackell came within a second of equalling an NHL mark when he scored the first goal against New York just nine seconds after the opening whistle. The Bruins rattled hom[illegible] more against Leo Reise's [illegible] in the free-scoring [illegible] Toppazzini, Ed Sandf[illegible]aycoe and John McIntyr[illegible] the mark.

The Rangers spent the rest of the game climbing uphill. A tally by Wally Hergesheimer and two by Ed Kullman narrowed the gap, but that was all.

Nesty Gets Two

Leaf rookie Eric Nesterenko provided most of the bright spots in a drab game at New York Sunday as he accounted for both Toronto goals. Reise was the lone Ranger marksmen.

Milt Schmidt tipped in a long shot by defenceman Bill Quackenbush at the half-way mark of a goaltenders' battle for Boston's lone goal against the Canadiens.

The Montrealers fired 31 shots at Sugar Jim Henry, who marked up his seventh shutout of the season. Canadiens' Gerry McNeil turned aside 23 Boston drives.

Holguin Takes Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Tony Holguin hit golf's glory road Sunday as he romped in with a three-under par 68 to win the $10,000 Texas Open with a 72-hole total of 264.

A native of San Antonio, he waged a glittering duel with Doug Ford of Harrison, N.Y., Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., and Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., holding a stroke lead most of the way.

Ford wound up with a 67 for 265 and second place while Boros and Worsham, shooting 67 and 66 respectively, tied for third with 266.

Canadians Win Track Events

Murray Cockburn of Bloordale College, Toronto, won the prep-school 880-yard run and finished a close second in the prep 440-yard run.

The other Canadian winner was Chuck Tobias of Humberside Collegiate, Toronto, who captured the prep-school mile race in 4:40.6. The 18-year-old Tobias led all the way.

Lawrenceville, N.J. prep won the prep section of the meet with 21 points. Bloordale was in seventh place with nine.

Mercurys Win Senior A Top Position, Indians, Dutchies, Redmen Also 'In'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Final placings in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series was established during the week-end, with Owen Sound Mercurys leading the seven-team loop.

Five games are to be played this week to finish out the 169-game schedule, but they will not affect the present standings.

The four leading teams begin the semi-finals next week-end. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Stratford Indians start their best-of-seven series Saturday. The series between Brantford Redmen and the Mercurys will get under way Monday, Feb. 23. The two winners will play a best-of-seven final for the OHA championship. The titleholder will then meet the winner of the Northern Ontario Senior A southern group, starting March 30. That winner then faces the titlist of the Eastern Canada Senior loop, starting April 11.

The Mercurys clinched first place Saturday night by whipping the fifth-place Chatham Maroons 13-4. The win gave them 67 points. They have two more games on tap. Tonight they meet the last-place Hamilton Tigers and Tuesday they play at Kitchener.

Stratford was assured of second place despite a 6-3 defeat suffered Saturday at the hands of the Dutchmen. The Indians now have 62 points, three more than the third-place Dutchies with 59 points. But the Dutchmen, with only one more game scheduled, cannot move out of third place. Brantford Redmen were idle during the week-end but with their 50 points and two more games to go against Hamilton on Tuesday and Thursday they are assured of fourth and the last playoff spot. Chatham is in fifth place, with 43 points, and has one more game to play with Stratford Wednesday.

The third game Saturday saw Sarnia Sailors defeat Hamilton 5-4 and finish their season in sixth place with 41 points.

The Tigers are rounding out a disastrous season. They have won only two of 45 games and have two more to go.

First place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group was assured last week for Sudbury Wolves, but the fight continues for second spot in the four-team loop. North Bay Trappers Saturday moved into a second-place tie with Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds by defeating the hounds 3-2. But Sunday they missed a chance to take over sole possession by suffering a 5-4 defeat from the last-place Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians.

The Hounds have the better chance of sniping second place with two games on hand, against the Wolves Tuesday and the Trappers Wednesday. The Wolves and Indians round out the season Wednesday.

Glen Roys Enhance Playoff Chances With 2-0 Shutout Over Stouffville

Parisi's Sterling Performance Features Well-Deserved Win; Doran, DeGray Hit the Twine

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

In an outstanding display of offensive and defensive hockey the Glen Roys shut out the Stouffville Clippers 2-0 in a fast senior "B" contest here Saturday night.

The win hoisted the Glens into a two-way tie for top spot in the eastern section of the group with the Kingston Goodyears. Both teams have 26 points. The Peterborough Petes trail with 23.

The Glens were full value for the victory which considerably enhanced their chances for a play-off berth. They meet the Petes in Peterborough tonight and take on the Orillia Pontiacs here next Saturday in the schedule wind-up.

A victory tonight will put them "in" and also out in front in the section standing. Kingston has one game left with the Petes next Friday, but should the Glens win tonight it means elimination for the Peterborough crew. A Peterborough victory over Kingston Friday will give the Glens first place in the final standing, providing they take tonight's game.

Slewish at First

Nearly 1,500 fans saw the Glens match the Clippers stride for stride and check for check in a somewhat lethargic scoreless first period. Play speeded up in the last two chapters and developed into a battle of the goalkeepers. The Glens checked like fiends going both ways and both teams bore in to the goalmouth before letting their shots go.

It was a cleanly played affair with referees Stan Scrutton and Art Casterton of Kingston handing out ten sentences, six of them going to the Clippers. Stark of the visitors became irked at a third period minor penalty and pushed one of the officials to draw the only misconduct sentence of the game.

Penalties cost the Clippers one goal at least, "Red" Doran's marker in the second period being scored when the Clippers were two men short.

If there are any gold keys to the city being handed out for a "performance above and beyond the call of duty" they should give Tony Parisi, Glen goalie, at least a half-dozen of the baubles.

Parisi came up with a sensational performance especially in the third period when the desperate Clippers drove in on him clean to the doorstep. He tossed aside everything resembling pucks that they threw at time, some of the stops bordering on the impossible.

His jubilant mates nearly "mobbed" the dark-haired youngster after the siren shrilled the "cease fire." They back-slapped him dizzy on the way to the dressing room.

And Blake Eatough in the Clippers nets likewise came up with a sparkling performance. Time after time he robbed incoming Glen attackers with a sterling exhibition of puck-stopping. Twice he practically picked the puck off the stick of a foeman scant feet outside the goal-line. May as well toss Eatough a couple of those keys while you are at it.

Had The Edge

Territorially Glens had the edge throughout the pastime, but the Clippers were always dangerous and their three-man attacks usually carried them close in, only to have hard-checking Glen defence plus Parisi thwart all their efforts.

The first period was nothing to write home about with both teams playing cautious hockey. Desjardins and Mills drew minor penalties and the teams skated off for the rest with nothing chalked up on the scoreboard.

"Red" Doran drew a tripping penalty early in the second period and the Clippers' Mills missed by inches. Peter Jones broke away in the clear and his shot blazed past the goal post with an inch to spare. Chard got the gate and the Glens poured on the pressure. Wardhaugh and MacDonald clicked the post and the latter player was outguessed by Eatough on a lone drive. Parisi blew the puck off N. Bangay's stick a few inches out from the line.

Gibson drew a tripping penalty and Bell followd seconds later for elbowing. Then Glens led by "Red" Doran blasted in to the attack. Vern Goyer ripped down centre flanked with MacDonald and Doran. The big fella slipped the puck to MacDonald who passed it back to the coach and Doran's blistering slap-shot hit the hemp behind Eatough for the first score of the game.

Minutes later Sammy Mulholland got the gate but the Glens solid back-checking and general defence work held the driving Clippers off the score-sheet.

Picture Goal

The teams maintained the fast tempo in the third period with the Glens matching speed for speed and holding an edge. Ted DeGray fired the insurance marker past Eatough after twelve minutes of play on a beautiful passing effort with Peter Jones. The Red-Ted-Red" line swept in and Jones fired a rink-wide pass across the goal mouth as DeGray swept in. His blazing drive whizzed past Eatough and the game was won there and then. Previous to this Stark had drawn a minor penalty and was sitting out the misconduct when the winning goal was scored.

The Clippers born of desperation sent attack after attack at the Glens net but Parisi drew the plaudits of the crowd time and again with his work in the net. The Glens watching for every opportunity tore away on several forays but Eatough was too good for them. Time ran out and the Glens skated off with a well-deserved victory under their collective belts.

No Favorite In 10-Rink Schoolboy Spiel

SASKATOON (CP) — If there was a favorite in the 10-rink field it was being kept a secret as the provincial representatives prepared to open the Canadian high school curling championship here today.

The ice, five sheets in the hockey arena here, will be strange to all competitors in the four-day round-robin event that ends on Thursday night.

"This could be one of the closest races we've had for the championship," said Ken Watson of Winnipeg, chairman.

Watson and several other officials watched the young rinks in practice rounds and said they thought it might be one of the best-matched fields since the Canadian school championship became official in 1949.

Because he eliminated the two-time champion Saskatoon Tech rink this year, Dennie Cochrane's Regina Scott Collegiate foursome is being mentioned frequently as the one to watch. However, the Reginans defeated a much different Saskatoon rink from the one that won the Sifton trophy at Nelson in 1951 and again at Moncton in 1952.

A procession from the Bessborough hotel through downtown Saskatoon to the arena, led by the Saskatoon Light Infantry pipe band at least let everyone know the young curlers were on the way to start their championship matches. Inside the gaily decorated rink there were opening ceremonies before the first draw, which will drop five rinks from the unbeaten class.

The first draw Manitoba met Nova Scotia and the defending province, Saskatchewan, took on Northern Ontario. Quebec was against New Brunswick, Ontario against British Columbia and Prince Edward Island against Alberta.

Former Austrian Olympic Skier Takes Honors

TEMISKAMING, Que. (CP)—A former Austrian Olympic performer and the younger half of a crack Owen Sound brother team emerged with Class 1 combined laurels in the Ontario Senior skiing championships held here during the week-end.

Karl Martitsch, living in Sault Ste. Marie since he came to Canada from Austria, captured the jumping and cross-country events to take Nordic combined honors handily.

Ripping off a dazzling second run to walk off with the slalom, Jim Georgas of Owen Sound finished third in the downhill to annex the Alpine title.

Temiskaming's Sid Ringrose salvaged the only skiing glory for the home town crew, making two fine runs to earn a clear-cut decision in the downhill.

Student skiers from the University of Toronto won both combined and individual championships in Class 2. P. A. Bowen was top man in the Alpine, taking convincing wins in both downhill and slalom. Wally Schwenger was best in Class 2 jumping and finished fifth in the cross country.

Jean Guy Pharand of Temiskaming raced off with the Class 2 cross country, bettering by five minutes the time set by Martitsch. Pharand's time for the gruelling 10-mile run was 1 hour, 22 minutes, 51 seconds.

Canuck Ladies Ski Winners

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Canadian women Saturday won the annual Canada-United States ski tournament and took the Kate Smith Trophy from the U.S. for the 11th time in 17 years.

The Canadians amased 1,337.84 points to 1,285.63 scored by the American team. Ten skiers from each country competed, with only the top seven scores on each side figuring in the result.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

England's first Olympic championship was assured 17 years ago today when Canada edged the United States 1-0 at Garmisch-Partenkirchen. The English team, strengthened by six Canadians, previously had beaten Canada 1-0 and played a scoreless tie with the Americans. In the final standing Canada was second, the U.S. third.

MARMORA

Marmora H.S. Bows to Tweed

TWEED.—In Marmora on Friday, Tweed high school defeated Marmora 7-5 in a Centre Hastings high school league game. It was Tweed's third win in five games as they tied Marmora 5-5 in their previous encounter. Tweed have one game left and need only a tie to earn them a play-off berth.

Tweed gained a 2-1 lead in the first period with Larkin's scoring twice from MacMillan. In the middle frame Tweed pushed their lead to 5-2 as MacMillan potted Larkins' pass, Woodcock converted Thompson's rebound to a goal and Larkins scored on a break-away.

In last period Marmora came back hard but Larkins and Woodcock matched Marmora's goals in the first ten minutes and the home team could cut only one goal off the Tweed lead in the last few minutes. The final score was 7-5.

Don LeSage played a good game in the Tweed nets. He was given good support by P. LeSage, Curry and McGrath on defence while Larkins, MacMillan, Thompson and Woodcock led the forwards. T. Brooks and Hickey led the home towners.

The referees were Jones and Hunter.

Junior A 'Small Fry' Enjoying Selves, Knock Off Leaders as Sked Closes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The small fry of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series are having themselves a time, at the expense of the big boys, as the schedule draws to a close.

Sunday the cellar-dwelling Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts delighted a sellout crowd of 13,132 fans in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, by swatting the third-place Toronto St. Michael's 2-1.

In Windsor, the eighth-place Spitfires defeated Quebec Citadelles 5-0 in a junior interlocking game that saw a total of 138 minutes in penalties handed out.

Marlies Lose

The leaders of the Ontario and Quebec loops, Toronto Marlboros and Montreal Canadiens, met Sunday and the Canadiens won 4-2.

Action in the OHA Junior A series Saturday saw Oshawa Generals down Guelph Biltmores 6-5 and St. Michael's defeat Galt Black Hawks 3-1 in overtime.

Kitchener's victory Sunday came on goals by Ken and Harry Collins. Jack Caffery scored for St. Mikes.

In the first half of the Gardens' double-header Henri Richard paced Montreal Canadiens with two goals. Guy Rousseau and Yvon Chasles scored the others. Gerry James and Billy Harris counted for the Marlies.

Windsor's penalty-studded game (34 minors, four majors and five misconducts) was Dennis Riggin's fourth shutout of the season. It was Quebec's third straight loss on their current Ontario tour. The Windsor goals went to Bob Brown with two, Joe Zorica, Ed Louttit and Ted Reid.

St. Mikes' win Saturday night was credited to overtime goals by Jim Logan and Ted Toppazzini who also scored Toronto's first goal. Hec Lalonde tallied for Galt.

Soccer on March Says OFA Prexy At Annual Confab

"Soccer is definitely on the march,' said Arthur Arnold of Hamilton, president of the Ontario Football Association, at the annual general meeting of the OFA at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto, Saturday.

1952 was a successful year for soccer in Ontario and the finances of the provincial body were shown to be on a firm basis. Operations over the past year netted over $2,600 profit. The majority of this sum was derived from the two tour games featuring Tottenham Hotspur from London. The second game between the Spurs and Manchester United resulted in a record gate of 25,321. This is a record for any soccer game played on the North American continent. The meeting evidenced its wisdom in setting up a target of $10,000 for a reserve fund to be built up during the good years.

The year showed an increase of 19 clubs and an increase of 259 registered players. Applications for membership were accepted from Sault Ste. Marie and the South Western Ontario League. North Bay were reported as organizing a district association.

There was some improvement in the minor soccer situation. Minor soccer was reported to be in operation in Toronto, Hamilton, Belleville and Chatham, with other districts beginning to take some interest. It was decided to set up a minor football association for Ontario to promote the game throughout the province. A meeting to implement this will be called in the near future. It was strongly stressed at the meeting that all districts should start promoting minor soccer for therein lies the future of the game.

It was decided to introduce a uniform transfer rule for the province. No player may transfer from one club to another after Sept. 1st. in any year.

The election of officers for 1953 resulted in Arthur Arnold of Hamilton being returned to office as president; R. T. Sleeman, of Toronto got the nod for the job of vice-president; Bill Simpson of Toronto was re-elected to the post of secretary-treasurer. Harry Brockbank of Toronto, Bill Cook of Hamilton and W. A. Lomas of Windsor, are the three council members for this year.

At the official banquet put on for the delegates and guests, Controller Shannon, Toronto brought greetings from that city on behalf of Mayor Lamport. He promised that the city council would endeavor to have further ground improvements made on city grounds used for soccer.

A recommendation was made for forwarding to the Football Association of Canada, to endeavor to have the Dominion Cup competition put on a sounder financial basis at the same time increasing its prestige across Canada.

The following district associations were represented: Toronto, Hamilton, Essex County, Sudbury, Bay of Quinte, London, Chatham, Kingston, Peterborough, National Soccer League, Eastern Ontario Football League.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No telling what kind of a bridge holding you will get in a bridge game or tournament. As a matter of fact, you get so after a while that nothing surprises you any more.

♥ A K 7 6 5 2
♦ 9
♣ 9 8 7 5 2

WEST
♥ 8 4
♣ Q J 10 4 3

EAST
♠ Q 9 7 5 4 2
♥ Q
♦ K 8 6 5 4
♣ 6

SOUTH
♠ J 10 9 3
♦ A 3
♣ A K

The bidding goes like this:

South	North
1 S	3 H
3 S	4 H
4 NT	5 H
6 H	Pass

Some players do not believe in an immediate jump response when lacking support or a good fit in the suit bid by partner. In such pairs, north did not jump on the first round.

Consequently, while they reached a small slam in due time, it was not with the feeling that a grand slam was there. This was due to the fact that they did not show enough tricks in north.

At the tables where the jump was immediate, grand slam looked promising right from the start. And some of them bid seven as soon as they exchanged their information about aces and kings.

You see, when north jumps at once he promises six tricks with two sure tricks among them. And in answer to four no-trump, a reply of five hearts is convention signal for one ace and one king.

If north has only one ace and only one king among six tricks, where are his other four tricks? They must be in queens or short suits or a combination of both.

If the other four tricks are all queens, a grand slam is there. If the other four tricks are short suits, a grand slam is there, if the north king is in hearts. And you can almost see it.

American League Baseball Schedule Is Announced

CHICAGO (AP)—The American League's 1953 baseball schedule—bulging with 224 night games, eight more than last season—was announced today.

After-dark contests make up nearly one-sixth of the total of 1,232 games to be played by the eight clubs.

The champion New York Yankees go to Washington for the 1953 pre-opener Monday, April 13, with the full league going to bat the next day.

Home sites will shift April 16.

The all-star game is set for Tuesday, July 14, with Boston Braves as the host club. The American League winds up its campaign Sunday, Sept. 27

Of the 224 night games scheduled this season, 50 are on tap at Washington to top the list.

Stampeders Win First in Nine

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders scored their first victory in nine games Saturday night by trampling the leading Saskatoon Quakers 7-0 in a Western Hockey League game.

Vancouver Canucks divided two games, losing 2-1 to New Westminster Royals Saturday night, then edging Seattle Bombers 7-6 Sunday.

Tacoma Rockets downed Victoria Cougars 5-4 in the other Saturday fixture. Doug Adams fired two goals for the Rockets, Wingie Johnson, Wayne Brown and Doc Halderson netting the others. Colin Kilburn and Jim Fairburn each sank a pair for Victoria.

Bobo, Randy Meet in London

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sid Flaherty, manager of Carl (Bobo) Olsen, San Francisco middleweight announced Saturday he has agreed to an Olsen-Randy Turpin fight in London June 9.

Blanket Finish Features Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Mal Whitfield had to sprint like a deer in the final lap Saturday night to overtake young Ollie Sax of Penn State and win the 600-yard run of the United States Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships in 1:10.4 at Madison Square Garden.

The finish was virtually a blanket one among Whitfield, Sax and Reggie Pearman of the New York Pioneer Club. All were caught in the same time, although Sax got second place.

The N.Y. Grand Street boys quartet smashed the world indoor sprint medley record when they flashed over the 1,070 yards in 1:52 flat.

Area G Wins N. Electric Hockey Title, Trophy

Area G are the 1952-53 champions of the Northern Electric Interdepartmental hockey league. They won the title over the week-end when they defeated the Machine Shop team 6-3 in the fourth game of the best-of-five titular series. With the title the Areas also annexed the Shop Management Trophy.

The new champions won the game in the second period when they rammed home four goals in a row without a return from the Shoppers after they had spotted them a goal in the first period.

Machine Shop roared back in the third period to come within striking distance with two quick counters but the Areas forged back to the attacks and matched the Shoppers tallies to skate off with the victory and the championship.

Six penalties were handed out by Referee Vern Goyer. F. Jones was the linesman.

The teams

Machine Shop—H. Wardhaugh, J. Wardhaugh, Day, Woods, Rosetti, Clark, Wetherall, Lapp.

STIRLING

Students' Council Sponsors 'At Home'

Stirling — The annual "At Home" sponsored by Stirling High School students' council was once again enjoyed by a large crowd of townspeople graduates and students in spite of inclement weather on Wednesday evening.

Music which was supplied by the Modernaires, and directed by Mr. Cam Walsh of Belleville proved pleasing to all those present many of whom commented on its rhythm and excellent choice of numbers.

Guests Welcomed

The incoming guests were welcomed by a receiving line composed of principal J. L. Good and Mrs. Good, honorary president of the Students' Council, Dr. Ralph Vandervoort and Mrs. Vandervoort, Mr. Ray Hermiston and Miss Grace Carleton, president and secretary of the Students' Council.

The decorating committee was composed of Ray Hermiston, Enid Coombs, Lorne Jenkins, Ruth Leonard, Jack Haggerty, Carl Hubel, Marie Sine and Ronald Woodbeck. This committee was given capable assistance by Miss Winnifred Hay and other talented students in the school in designing a decorative scheme in keeping with the approaching coronation of Queen Elizabeth II. The outstanding results achieved by this group amazed those present, not only because of the enormous amount of detailed work involved, but also in view of the color pageantry balances and atmosphere achieved.

Regal Splendor

Regal splendor was simulated realistically through the clever use of wall murals depicting the coronation procession and the Royal regalia including the crown and the crown jewels.

At the south end of the gym the fine Karsh portrait of Elizabeth dominated the scheme of things while balance of design was attained by a large replica of St. Edward's crown on the north wall.

Above all this a canopied ceiling of purple and gold paper created a colorful but regal atmosphere. Incorporated in this ceiling were the Red Ensign of Canada, the Union Jack, and the crosses of St. Patrick, St. Andrew and St. George.

At midnight tasty refreshments prepared under the capable supervision of Miss Laura Lee, and her committee were served. This committee consisted of Miss Grace Carleton, convener, Mary Robb, Ruth Mumby and Janet Ann Good.

Much credit is due this group for carrying out the serving of the repast in such an efficient manner.

Card Party

The usual Monday night card party, sponsored by the Stirling Women's Institute, was held in the community hall with eight tables in play, resulting in the following winners: ladies' high, Mrs. Ed. Heasman; men's high, Charles Barnard; ladies' low, Mrs. Louis Rodgers; men's low, Mrs. J. Donohoe playing as a man; travelling loan hand, Chas. Barnard. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Foster, Miss Spry, Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Tullock.

All seemed to enjoy the social get-together and expressed the friendliness that prevailed.

Trinity Church Choirs Enjoy Turkey Supper

Madoc — A fine gesture on the part of Messrs. W. E. Connor and C. I. Ross made it possible for the members of Trinity United Church choir and Trinity junior choir to enjoy a bountiful turkey supper in the school room of the church on Wednesday evening, with about 60 partaking.

Thanks to the donors of the turkeys, Messrs Connor and Ross, were voiced by Mrs. Jackson on behalf of the church choir and by Master Jim Howse, on behalf of the junior choir.

C. I. Ross, acting as chairman, called on several who gave short, impromptu speeches. Rev J. F. Lane added his appreciation to the members of the choir and their leaders, Iver Hughes and Mrs. B. McCoy.

After the tables were cleared games were enjoyed by the boys and girls under the direction of Mr. Lane and Mr. Hughes.

Previous to her wedding, Miss Ruth Danford was a guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Marian Mahoney, who entertained 22 girl friends of the bride-to-be. Games and contests provided the evening entertainment: Miss Danford was escorted to a seat of honor and. Miss Peggy Derry read an address, conveying the good wishes of her friends. Miss Danford thanked the girls for their good wishes and gifts. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Rural Girls' Club

On Saturday afternoon, Mrs. George Allore opened her home for a tea by the Madoc Rural Girls' Club. Previous to the tea the girls held a meeting to make final arrangements to attend Achievement Day at Stirling on February 21st. Their sewing project had been completed and was on display and was greatly admired. The tea was well attended by the mothers and interested members of the Institute. Mrs. Stanley Franks and Mrs. Ernest Devolin, the leaders, presided over the tea table while members of the club served refreshments. The tea was a fitting climax to the series of eight meetings and the leaders and the 11 members are to be congratulated on their work.

West, reminded the club of the 100th. anniversary of St. Peter's, which is being planned for the autumn and a discussion followed on ways and means to help on this occassion in the history of the church. Second Man On The Ticket

By Edwin Lanham

I took Ginny's arm. As we passed through the door, I saw Clyde talking with Melvin Fisher, the mayor of Hydetown and the Governor's old enemy. Ginny called out, "Hello, Mel," and waved as we went out.

In the car on the way to town I asked, "Why the big conference with Melvin Fisher, do you suppose?"

"How should I know?"

"You know so much," I said.

Ginny smiled. "Well, I can guess. You see, Clyde doesn't think Mrs. Warburton is sick at all."

• • •

Later, with two pint bottles between us, and we were going back on the highway, I turned to Ginny. "Why don't we go somewhere else?"

She studied my face. "You mean not back to the casino."

"They'll be happy together," I said.

"No, definitely we must go back," she said.

"We can give one pint to a waiter to take to them, and we can keep the other," I said. "How about it, Ginny? We haven't seen much of each other. Let's go someplace where we can talk."

I turned back onto U. S. 1, toward the glow of neon lights, bright in the autumn night. As I drove slowly toward the casino she said softly, "I'm sorry, Roy, I'd love to go off with you somewhere, but you know I can't. I have a date with Clyde."

"He has Lucy."

She said thoughtfully. "She's very pretty."

"Yes," I said.

I let that pass. I could not tell her that Lucy Strawn's dress belonged to Ruth Warburton's expensive wardrobe; it would seem a bit ghoulish to Ginny for Lucy to be wearing Ruth's dress. I nosed the car into the parking area, and as she started to open the door I put my hand on her shoulder and said. "Wait a minute."

She met my eyes for an instant. "They'll be waiting for us, Roy."

"Why should I worry you, Roy"

She smiled faintly and made no move to get out of the car. I leaned forward and tried to kiss her, but there was only a brushing of her lips as she drew back.

"Ginny," I said, "I want to get you out of Hydetown."

CHAPTER XXIX

Ginny's blue eyes opened wide. "What off odd way to put it, Roy. What do you mean by that?"

"I mean you shouldn't be shut up in a little town like this," I said. "You ought to get out and see something of the world, and the world ought to see something of you."

"All right," said Ginny. "But how?"

"I thought you might like a good job in Washington," I said, watching her expression.

"Oh," she said, and her face told me nothing. "A job."

"In Washington," I said. "A responsible job with the Vice President of the United States. If the Governor is elected I can get it for you Ginny. I've already asked him about it."

"Yes," she said in a practical tone, "but do you think he'll be elected?"

"Dont you?"

"I don't follow politics much Roy." She moved her shoulders slightly. "But Clyde says he hasn't much chance."

"Clyde can we wrong," I said.

"What kind of job, Roy?"

"Secretary to the Governor."

"But I don't know shorthand."

"Can you type?"

"Yes. I learned in high school. But I'm pretty rusty." She gave me a quick glance. "Isn't Miss Strawn the Governor's secretary?

"He has several secretaries," I said. "A press secretary, a personal secretary. I'm sort of a secretary myself."

"We'd be working in the same office, then?" She smiled at me.

"We can do the town, you and I," I said, and took her hand.

"I have to think it over, Roy," she said. "After all, how much would the governor pay me?"

I said the first figure that came into my head. "Ninety dollars a week."

Her eyebrows went up. "That's pretty good for a secretary who can only type, isn't it?"

"It's confidential work, Ginny," I explained. "In Washington a man has to be careful, and his employees must be discreet. But I told the Governor you knew when to keep quiet."

"So I'd be paid so much for typing," said Ginny, "and so much for being quiet. Is that it?"

"In a why, yes," I said. "What's your answer."

"It would be fine, Roy. Provided he's elected."

"Ginny there's one thing more."

"Yes?"

"Naturally I can get you the job if the Governor is elected, and only if nothing is done to hinder his election. You see what I mean?"

"Oh, yes, I see what you mean. I told you I'd think it over."

"Ginny, I want more than that. Just tell me now that you'll keep your mouth shut, and everything is set."

Smiling, she reached out and patted my hand. "Roy," she murmured, "you worry so much."

She slipped out of the car and started away. I picked up one of the pints and shoved it under my coat before I followed, but I caught her before she reached the circle of light at the entrance.

"I think you try to worry me," I told her. "You seem to get a kick out of it.

She giggled and said "Of course I do." This time when I tried to kiss her she did not resist.

Hand in hand we returned to the casino, and I thought with content that everything was all right again. The Governor was safe and there was nothing Clyde could do now. Lucy Strawn and Clyde were dancing.

Clyde sat down opposite Ginny and pushed his face across the table toward her. "See," he said. "I have got a mouse."

"Sweetie, it's such a little one," Ginny said soothingly.

"Warburton's going to pay for this, Roy," Clyde said.

I asked Lucy to dance. I told her everything was settled, that I was sure Ginny would take the job, that I could guarantee Ginny would keep silent. The kiss I felt, had been a promise.

Lucy said "Clyde is up to something, Roy. I don't know what it is, but he borrowed all my change and made a long-distance call. He was in the booth a long time and when he came out he looked very satisfied.

"Clyde doesn't worry me any more," I said.

Lucy gave me a speculative glance that travelled over my face like a beam of light.

• • •

When the musicians took a break Lucy and Ginny met each other's eyes, reached for their handbags, and with the remarkable telepathy of women in a public place, got to their feet without a word and started for the powder room. Clyde slouched back in his seat and his big hand went around his glass.

"That little country dumpling is quite a dish," he said.

"Yes, I noticed it."

"But she's hard to figure out." he said. "Someg irls are born with know-how, and she's one of them. I'm wondering what you did to button her up."

I shrugged and said. "I don't follow you, Clyde."

"Let's not talk in circles, Roy."

"I don't understand you."

He grinned "You wouldn't even admit Nov. 4 was Election Day, would you? But you know what I'm talking about, and you know why I'm in Hydetown, and I know why you're in Hydetown." His eyes gave me a sharp scrutiny. "It's why Governor Warburton is here a day ahead of schedule."

"Pneumonia wasn't on the schedule."

"Oh, don't give me that!"

"And to tell you the truth," I added. "I don't know what you're getting at. I've wondered all along why you attached yourself to the Governor's campaign. I understand Melvin Fisher sent for you."

"In a manner of speaking," he said, and picked up his glass. "You know who sent for me, Roy. It was our little village belle."

CHAPTER XXX

I had not known it. I had only known that the telegram Clyde received had been signed by Melvin Fisher. But Ginny must have told Fisher that Miss Hattie had a story to tell.

"You got here ahead of me," Clyde went on. "You slipped in here and buttoned her up."

I shrugged.

"Mrs. Warburton tipped me off," he went on. "Why should she fake pneumonia? To get the Governor in Hydetown a day ahead of schedule. That's why. And why should he be here a day ahead of schedule? Because he was already here, that's why. And why was he already here—"

The girls returned then, and Lucy said, "Oh, let your eye alone, Clyde. It looks all right."

I was already on my feet, saying to Ginny, "How about a dance?" She put down her handbag and we moved to the dance floor. The music was loud. I put my lips close to her ear and whispered, "So it was you who sent for Clyde McDonald."

She drew her head back quickly.

"It was Mel Fisher, Ginny said. "Oh, I suppose in a way I was responsible. I happened to mention to him that Miss Hattie was so mad at the Governor she was planning to tell something pretty terrible about him, and the first thing I knew Mel called me up and told me Clyde was coming to Hydetown."

"But you arranged for Clyde to stay at your house and talk to Miss Hattie."

"No, that was Mel, too. It was his idea." She smiled at me. "But anyhow, Aunt Hattie changed her mind, and Clyde was furious. Have you ever seen a fat man mad, Roy?" She whistled softly. "He was mad at me, too, because I said it was up to Aunt Hattie to tell him, not me."

When the music stopped I felt that a reminder was necessary and said, "Ginny, we're going to have lots of fun in Washington."

"I'm looking forward to it, Roy," Her hand squeezed mine.

I felt that everything was under control, and back at the table I called the waiter and ordered more setups. He had hardly left the table when Ginny said in an unaffected conversational tone, "Clyde, where's a good place to live in Washington?"

• • •

My mouth dropped open. It was a thunderbolt. Clyde said, "Who's going to live in Washington? Not Roy. Not Governor Warburton."

"Oh, yes we are," I said.

"I am too," Ginny said.

The Piedmont Sextet had resumed its music, and I jumped to my feet. "Ginny, let's dance."

"Not this time," Clyde cried. "She's my date." He said it with determination, and got up from his seat in a surge that nearly lost him his balance. He took a firm hold on Ginny's wrist, and his eyes gleamed with a bright light.

I met Ginny's mischievous eyes. She had done it deliberately I was sure, and her faint, sly smile was confirmation. Clyde asked, "What is this about your going to Washington, Ginny?"

"Oh, did he?" Clyde scowled at me. "Ginny, I didn't know you wanted a job. I can get you a better one than he can."

"Not with the Vice President of the United States," I said. I was angry. Ginny had put the whole thing on the auction block and was encouraging bids.

1 Dead, 2 Hurt As Speeding Car Hits Roadblock

Police Set Up Barrier In 100-Mile-an-Hour Chase

TORONTO (CP)—A small coupe, chased by police at speeds close to 100 miles an hour, early today crashed into the side of a 22-ton transport used by provincial police as a roadblock on the Queen Elizabeth Way at suburban Port Credit, killing one man and severely injuring two others.

Robert Getty, 22, of Toronto, died on admittance to hospital. His brother, William Arthur Getty, 27, of Toronto was severely injured, while Eldon Rhyno, 2, of suburban East York, owner of the car, is in serious condition.

The three men were boyhood friends in Timmins. Only Rhyno was married and was reported to have been on his way to pick up his wife in Toronto when the accident occurred. Police believe the three were speeding to keep the appointment.

The chase began when the eastbound car sped past a provincial police cruiser at 70 miles an hour near Oakville, 20 miles west of here. A radio call to Port Credit set up a road block there, officers commandeering 22-ton refrigerator transport and setting it across the two lanes, well lighted with fuses.

Without slackening speed, the car bore down on the roadblock and hit the rear dual wheels, disintegrating into a mass of crumpled metal. The three men were found inside the twisted wreckage.

Constables chasing the car said they hit speeds of from 95 to 105 miles an hour and the car still pulled away from them. One officer said he thought the car had been "souped up" for high speeds.

The impact of the car drove the truck 15 feet, bending the heavy dual wheel framing.

The car was so badly wrecked tow trucks could not tow it away, but were forced to drag it to the side of the road. The speedometer was jammed at 85 miles an hour.

Mrs. Rhyno said today she had talked with her husband at the hospital and had told him about Bob Getty being dead.

Honor Lacking Among Thieves At Air Station

The money disappeared the night the accounts office was robbed. Three men were sentenced last month for stealing $8,000 from the office, but police said $9,000 actually was missing.

Police said today they have discovered that one of the men stuffed $1,000 into a pocket during the robbery and said nothing to his companions. A statement taken from Jacques Barbro of Sudbury, one of the three convicted, provided the information, they said.

Roosevelt, Truman Not 'Betrayers Of Humanity' —Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said in the Commons Monday night that history will write the judgment of former presidents Roosevelt and Truman of the United States and it will not be a verdict of "betrayers of humanity."

Mr. Pearson made the observation during an external affairs debate in reply to criticisms of the two U.S. presidents by spokesmen for the Social Credit party. Solon Low, Social Credit leader, previously had said that when history was written they would be judged as "betrayers of humanity."

He also referred to an article written by Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod) which previously drew criticism from Liberal speakers. In it Mr. Hansell referred to the United Nations as a "socialist-communist" organization bent on world government.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Hansell had said he would withdraw statements which were proved wrong. He hoped Mr. Hansell would "admit that some of those statements are demonstrably inaccurate."

Earlier in the debate Mr. Hansell said Social Crediters wish the UN organization every success but "if there is intrigue in high places those forces should be exposed."

No Hope of Settlement

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Daley told the Ontario Legislature Monday there is no hope of a settlement in the strike of some 140 employees of the Durham Furniture Company at Durham.

Replying to a question by Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver, Mr. Daley said he has tried unsuccessfully to persuade the disputing parties to reach an agreement.

He said the company has hired 116 persons outside the union, and won't agree to take back the employees who went on strike. The union refuses to discuss a settlement unless the company first agrees to take back the striking workers.

The Durham local of the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL) called the strike July 21 to enforce contract demands.

Loan Company Agent Is Jailed On Threat Charge

KITCHENER(CP) — Witnesses said in court Monday that William G. Weiss of Windsor, a finance company employee who formerly lived here, threatened to accuse a couple of theft as a means of obtaining additional security for a loan. He was sentenced to three months definite and three months indeterminate.

His lawyer said later the conviction will be appealed.

Magistrate R. P. Locke said in imposing sentence the jail term should serve as a warning to other finance companies that they cannot put illegal pressure on persons who owe money.

CANADA GIVEN ASSURANCE ON U.S. FAR EAST POLICY

Pearson Answers Many Opposition Queries

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government "regrets" the United States move in turning loose the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa but has received "reasonable" assurances on general U. S. policy in the Far East.

External Affairs Minister Pearson gave this report to the Commons Monday night in an external affairs review, answering various opposition claims that:

The U. S. action in lifting its 7th fleet's "neutralization" of Formosa could be the first of steps leading to general war in the Far East;

The external affairs minister, also president of the United Nations general assembly, said the "that the U. S. government found it necessary to take this action."

No Condemnation

"We are not condemning them for it," he added. "But we regret that they found it necessary to take this action, the military advantages of which might be neutralized by the political disadvantages."

Mr. Pearson, scheduled to conclude a four-day debate on external affairs today, also told members that the government has expressed "concern" to the U. S over the action, though he emphasized that this was not to be construed as a "protest."

Mr. Dulles had told him, he said, that some of the fears read into the U. S. Formosan action — and other actions — were not justified. The U. S. wanted to take advantage of any situation that would give it and the United Nations the initiative to keep enemies of the UN off balance.

Dealing with the general world situation, Mr. Pearson said there is no cause for either optimism or despair.

Letters Disclose Auditor-General Critical of System

OTTAWA (CP)—Correspondence tabled in the Commons Monday for J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) disclosed that a year ago the auditor-general criticized the army's system of pay accounting.

A letter, dated Feb. 11, 1952, was sent by Auditor-General Watson Sellar to Defence Minister Claxton. It expressed concern over the state of army pay accounting. Mr. Claxton replied Feb. 12, 1952, that immediate steps would be taken to correct the situation.

In his letter, Mr. Sellar said an audit survey had disclosed:

1. Postings of ledgers were inaccurate and were very much in arrears.
2. The system of filing was not satisfactory and contributed to the delay in posting.
3. The unit was not exercising its internal audit functions.
4. Deductions from pay on account of assigned pay, pension contributions and income tax, as recorded in ledgers, were not verified or balanced with the amounts recovered from personnel.
5. Deductions from pay on account of pension contributions and income tax were remitted some months in arrears; this would cause financial complications at the fiscal year-end.
6. Because the pay ledgers were not current, the payment of benefits accruing to discharged personnel was in arrears; this also would cause financial complications at the year-end.

Londoner Wins 109,000 Pounds In Fluke Double in Soccer Pools

LONDON (Reuters) — Jack Coulton, 41-year-old London insurance clerk, went to work as usual today after hearing he had won £109,000 in a fluke double win in two of Britain's enormous soccer pools for a total bet of 12 shillings.

From the results of last Saturday's professional soccer games, Coulton knew he had won a lot of money. He didn't know how much until today.

But he still went to his office, because it is short-staffed owing to the current flu epidemic.

"I don't know what I'll do with it," he said today.

But one of the first things he probably will do is to pay off the mortage on his house, where he lives with his wife and six-year-old daughter, Jane. He put a down payment on the house last year, out of another £500 he won "on the pools."

Last week, Coulton picked out eight of the 58-odd soccer games he figured might end as draws, and entered two of the big competitions. All eight draws came up and he won £75,000 in one and £34,000 in the other.

Another £75,000 was won by a Southampton man, who preferred to remain anonymous.

Gambling winnings are classed as "capital gains" which are untaxed in Britain.

Latest CF-100 Jet Fighters Go Into Volume Production After $100 Million Expenditure

OTTAWA (CP) — The latest model of the Canadian-developed CF-100 jet fighter will go into volume production this summer after an expenditure of roughly $100,000,000, Defence Production Minister Howe reported to the Commons Monday.

The rocket-firing, radar-equipped mark IV model is the fourth CF-100 type to be developed, Mr. Howe said, and it "appears" it will be better than anything in its class of long-range all-weather fighters.

He conceded, however, that there had been a series of problems and delays.

Development costs had been "heavy;" only 10 planes had been delivered more than two years after the first production order, and there had been delays and, for a time, overstaffing at the A. V. Roe plant which makes the CF-100 at Malton, Ont.

The program to make the CF-100 and its Orenda jet engine "now is in good shape," Mr. Howe said. The A. V. Roe Company had done as well as could be expected in such a pioneering venture.

Production of a third type developed earlier now is in progress, he said, but will stop at 70 planes. This is the mark III. Five different versions of the Orenda engine have been developed and two more being developed would be able to match similar engines of other countries.

Mr. Howe's statement, in reply to a series of questions by E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops), indicated that roughly $100,000,000 has been spent so far on development and production of the plane and engine —Canada's first attempt at designing, developing and producing its own fighter.

One reason for delay was the discovery late in 1951 of "a failure in the ring connecting the fuselage to the front spar." Another reason was an increase in the plane's weight by about 50 per cent.

The Orenda engine was delayed eight months by a shortage of steel to complete the plant. The mark III CF-100 was delayed four to six months. Delivery dates of the new mark IV would be determined by deliveries of the U. S.-built air-to-air rocket weapons system.

The mark IV would be armed to .50-calibre machine guns and air-to-air rockets and radar. The rockets are believed to be guided missiles.

Mr. Howe said development of the control system for firing the mark IV armament is not yet ready however.

The minister also mentioned that Canada is sudying new conceps and designs for more modern fighers, but said that military security forbids him to say more.

12 Members of Arab-Asian Block in U.N. Said Against Helping U.S. in Korean War

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —Twelve members of the Arab-Asian bloc in the United Nations are reported to have decided to reject any request from the United States or the UN for troops or supplies for the Korean war. None of the 12 is furnishing anything now.

Diplomatic sources said this was the outcome of private Arab-Asian talks on what to do in the UN Assembly reconvening next Tuesday.

Countries reported planning to refuse any appeal for troops and supplies are Afghanistan, Burma, Egypt, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Liberia, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen.

India is said to have indicated she will not extend her help beyond the medical unit she has in Korea. Of the 15 countries which met last week, the Philippines and Thailand are the only two with troops in Korea. They expect to continue sending them. Ethiopia, which sometimes acts with the bloc, also has troops in Korea.

Assembly delegates, meanwhile, waited for President Eisenhower's administration to pass along some word of its plans on Korea.

There have been reports that Eisenhower will serve notice on UN members that the U. S. wants more help from its Allies in Korea. There also are indications that the U. S. is considering a request to the UN to widen its embargo on trade with Red China.

The UN embargo approved in 1951 reduced the flow of supplies to the Red Chinese to some extent but western diplomats said it is not nearly enough.

During an Arab - Asian caucus last week, it was reported Indonesia's ambassador L. N. Palar said his country is losing $400,000,000 a year because of trade restrictions with Red China.

Diplomatic sources reporting the discussion said Palar pointed to a report of the collective measures committee of the UN saying that trade losses suffered by under-developed countries through UN demembers.

New Gun Issued

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department said Monday a new type of machine gun has been issued for trials in Korea.

In a reply tabled in the Commons for Lt.-Col. Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East), the department said the Canadian troops in Korea are using the Sten submachine gun.

It added:

"While not entirely satisfactory, it is regarded as being as satisfactory as other available types."

The "more recent type" submachine gun has been issued for trals only and not for operational use.

Off the Wagon, Into the Tub

MASON CITY, Ia. (AP) — The police dispatcher answered the telephone and heard a woman say:

"There's a man in my bathtub. There's no water in the tub—just a man."

He couldn't explain why he had gone to this woman's home —she was a stranger to him and he to her — to take a "bath."

Smith was fined $10 on a charge of intoxication.

Protest Changes In Criminal Law 'Against Labor'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Congress of Labor charged today that one section of a proposed new Criminal Code gives 'hostile" employers and provincial governments "a weapon which could be used against labor . . ."

The 370,000-member labor group made the charge in a brief prepared for presentation to a Commons committee studying the proposed new code. The measure already has passed the Senate.

The congress objected to sections in the new code dealing with committing a public mischief, breach of contract and picketing.

The brief noted that the mischief section provides that anyone commits mischief "who wilfully . . . renders property dangerous, useless, inoperative or ineffective." Maximum penalty for endangering life would be life imprisonment, or in other cases 14 years.

"What strike does not do this and do it wilfully?" the brief asked. "Consequently, if a union member goes out on a perfectly legal strike and even for the most cogent reasons, he exposes himself to prosecution and heavy penalties under this section."

The brief said the presence of the provision "opens the door to abuse which Parliament cannot control since the administration of justice in the province is beyond the Dominion jurisdiction . . ."

NEW HELMETS

SEOUL (AP) — American soldiers in Korea are being asked to surrender a treasured trophy—the battered steel helmet. Research is under way on a new lightweight nylon helmet and toward possible improvements in a light, more effective steel helmet. The researchers seek helmets which have been hit by any type of missile.

CIVIL SERVANTS PAID $700,000 WHILE OFF WORK

Average Salary $2,778 Tabled Report Shows

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario taxpayers last year paid about $700,000 in salaries to civil servants while they were off work.

This was disclosed in a report tabled Monday in the Ontario Legislature by Provincial Secretary Welsh. It showed absenteeism among civil servants averaged 6½ days for each employee.

This represented a half-day decrease from the previous year, but the total loss was about $50,000 higher because of higher salaries.

The report recommended incorporation of the cost-of-living bonus into salaries. It said this would aid retiring employees since pensions are calculated on basic salary only.

The average salary during the period covered by the report, ending March 31, 1952, was $2,778. This included the cost-of-living bonus, which rose during the year from $300 to $420.

Servants Increase

The number of civil servants increased by 1,166 to 1,712. There were 4,024 persons hired and 2,858 left the service.

During the one-hour session opposition members criticized the government for its handling of provincial aid to the European flood relief campaign.

Premier Frost said the province is waiting until the exact needs of the flooded countries are known before taking further action.

"I can't see people donating their hard-earned money unless the province makes a substantial contribution 'first,'" said Opposition leader Farquhar Oliver. "I would like to stress the importance of the province setting an example.

Arthur J. Reaume (L—Essex North) said Ontario, with the largest population of any province, should make the "most generous" contribution.

Series of Breaks, Holdup Bring $2,500 to Thieves

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Thieves took more than $2,500 during the week-end in a series of breaks and a holdup here and in nearby Harrow, police said Monday.

Thieves used a company truck to haul away about $1,500 worth of tires, car batteries, an adding machine and a typewriter from the Imperial Oil Company here. The theft, which apparently happened early Sunday, was discovered after an employee spotted the company truck parked on a downtown street and notified police.

Safecrackers who entered the Harrow municipal building netted about $945 from two safes.

A masked gunman robbed two persons of $120 when he entered their grocery store in downtown Windsor after closing time Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ash said the man, who wore a handkerchief over the lower part of his face, fled on foot.

Revelry Reigns in New Orleans For Gay Finale of Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The simmering kettle of revelry in "the city that care forgot" boils over today as Rex, lord of misrule, reigns over New Orleans.

Hundreds of thousands will jam the streets for the climax of Mardi Gras carnival season.

The merrymakers will be dressed as clowns, pirates, gorillas, flappers and other outlandish characters.

Stores and banks are closed as the city gives its last and biggest roar before Lent starts Wednesday.

Cathedral bells will ring at midnight and the devout will begin the 40 days of fasting and penance.

Rex, head man of all the kings that have ruled New Orleans for the last 10 days, will ride his regal float through historic St. Charles and Canal streets.

But another king will take the spotlight briefly before Rex and Comus close down the show.

As Zulu and his early-morning parade wave through downtown streets, he will toss out the traditional coconuts, taking care that no one is injured.

The torchlight parade of Comus ends the carnival for most people, but for the socially prominent, the climax is yet to come.

Grand balls will be staged by both Rex and Comus. At midnight the two kings toast each other to signify the end of the carnival season and the religious theme will take its place.

President Is Not Considering Either Blockade, Embargo

Possibly Under Study By Other Government Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today that he personally is not giving consideration at this time to the question of either an embargo or a blockade of Red China. His press-conference statement left open the possibility that they are under study by other government officials.

The matter of possible new moves against the Chinese Communists was brought up several times in this first meeting Eisenhower has had with reporters since taking office.

On the first occasion, the President was asked whether he was giving any consideration to imposition of either an embargo or a naval blockade of Red China.

He replied the matter had not been discussed with him, except—as he put it—in the newspapers.

A few minutes later, a reporter brought up the subject again, saying he wanted to make sure he understood the President.

Did the president mean that neither a blockade nor an embargo had been discussed at all? the reporter asked.

Eisenhower said such steps had not been brought up officially, to him.

Seeking clarification, a reporter asked whether the situation was that Eisenhower personally had given no consideration to such action.

Then he went on to say he supposed the subject had been under consideration in several departments of government. He did not specify the departments.

Terrorists Burn, Slash to Death 10 More Africans

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Mau Mau terrorists slashed and burned to death 10 more Africans in the Kikuyu reserves during the last 24 hours, police announced Monday night. Twelve terrorists were killed in the same period.

Police opened fire Monday on an armed gang of Africans in the Fort Hall area, one of the Mau Mau hotbeds, killing nine and wounding one. Three other Mau Mau men were killed by police fire Sunday night.

The secret society of the Mau Mau—"The Hidden Ones"—is sworn to drive out the white man. The Mau Mau attacks natives who oppose the society and support the British rule in Kenya.

In the Fort Hall reserve 20 terrorists surrounded a sub-headman's hut and set it afire. They cremated the tribal leader and three of his home guards in the flaming hut.

A few miles away another gang of about 30 Africans carrying clubs two home guards from a hut and and knives dragged a headman and hacked the three of them to death. Then they caught another Kikuyu leader trying to flee his hut, and cut him to pieces.

Other terrorists killed a Turkana tribesman and a woman at a European farm at Ngobit, between Nyeri and Thomson's Falls, Sunday night.

Acts 'Snooze' When 'Sneeze' Really Meant

NORTH BAY, Ont., (CP) — The difference between an "ee" and an "oo" won Arthur Turgeon, 19, dismissal on a charge of careless driving.

Police charged that Turgeon, whose English is limited, pantomimed "snooze" when asked why the truck he was driving left the road, skipped 30 feet through the air and landed in the ditch.

Defence counsel conceded that Turgeon's acting could have been better but what he meant was sneeze, not snooze.

Magistrate M. G. Gould accepted the sneeze version, which he said, did not warrant conviction on a careless driving charge.

Grant Further Execution Stay

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Court of Appeals today granted a stay of execution to March 30 to atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenburg to permit them to petition the Supreme Court for a review of their case.

Their execution originally was set for Jan. 14 but a stay was granted pending a presidential decision on an appeal for clemency. President Eisenhower rejected the appeal last Wednesday and a new execution date of the week of March 9 had been set only Monday.

The Supreme Court has twice refused previously to review the case.

Aside from these last-ditch legal efforts, Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberg appeared to have one other possibility of escaping the chair. That is to talk freely concerning the whole plot to send atomic bomb secrets to Soviet Russia. They were convicted of conspiracy to transmit atomic secrets to Russia.

So far, they have insisted they are innocent and have nothing to talk about.

R.C.A.F. Command Band Thrills Large Audience In Varied Concert at Collegiate

By EUGENE LANG

Large throngs of lovers of band music were present last evening in the Collegiate Auditorium to hear the renowned R.C.A.F. Training Command Band of Toronto under the leadership of Flying Officer Clifford Hunt. This group of instrumentalists comprise one of Canada's foremost bands, worthy to rank with the finest concert bands anywhere. The Training Command Band have appeared in Belleville before, and add to their audience hundreds more upon each appearance. They have toured practically the entire Dominion of Canada and many sections of the U.S.A., giving forth on each occasion with the best in music, be it classical, operatic or contemporary in idiom. This band is a decided asset to the musical life of Canada, and have left their telltale trademark of satisfaction and pleasure to thousands upon thousands of listeners wherever they have performed.

The band is made up of the following instrumentalists: 12 clarinets, two flutes, two oboes, two bassoons, four trombones, six trumpets, two euphoniums, three basses, three French horns, two saxophones, and a battery of three percussion. With this instrumental body, and all members being of a highly trained musicianship, the music that pours forth is that of skill, precision, and inspired feeling under one as capable as their leader, F/O Clifford Hunt.

Varied Program Chosen

The program chosen for last night's performance was one that could please the most exacting of tastes, be it that of the scholar, the dilettante, or the layman; for the simple reason that it contained those elements necessary for the complete musical enjoyment of all, regardless of personal preferences. Since space and words are inadequate to fully comment on each selection played it is only necessary to list the various musical contributions that the band presented to their highly receptive audience.

"O Canada".

1. Coronation March—"Crown Imperial" by William Walton, originally composed for the Coronation of George VI.
2. "Pavanne" from the Second American Symphonette—Morton Gould.
3. "Trischt-Trascht Polka" ("Chit-Chat Polka") — Johann Strauss Jr.
4. "Valse Triste" —Jean Sibelius.
5. "La Coquette" — Herman Belstead. This number featured Musician Kenneth Moore (cornet) as soloist.
6. Encore by Musician Kenneth Moore (cornet) — "Because" — Guy D'Hardelot.
7. "Suite Gothique" — Boellmann. (Originally written for organ.) Transcribed for concert band (three movements only) by Musician Ed Sullivan of the Training Command Band.
8. Overture to "The Italian Women in Algiers" — Giacomo Rossini.

Intermission

9. "March and Scherzo" from "The Love of the Three Oranges" — S. Prokofieff.
10. "Star Gazing" — Gerry Hoelke (Musician of the Northwestern Air Command Band of the R.C.A.F., Edmonton, Alberta.)
11. Three tenor solos by Musician Tom Magee — (a) "Homing"; (b) "Kitty My Love, Will You Marry Me;" (c) "Songs My Mother Taught Me" — Dvorak.
12. Overture to "The Magic Flute" — —Mozart.
1. A medley of tunes and melodies from "Show Boat" — Jerome Kern (arr. by Guy Jones).

Three Outstanding

If any three numbers were to be selected as representative of the ban's capability at virtuosity and versatility they would be (1) — "Star Gazing — Hoelke — a modern venture changing from Ravellian harmonies to the rhythmic pulsations and musings of Stan Kenton. (2) "Marrh and Scherzo" from "The Love of the Three Oranges" — Prokofieff — Instrumental coloring and painting of a varied tonal portrayal. (3) "Overture to The Magic Flute — Mozart — Here woodwind and brass choirs were given full exemplification of their technical proficiency combined with full bodied sonorities of the entire band.

(Note: Cymbals and bass drum could very well be dispensed with in this number for a better effect).

All in all, a very satisfying musical bill of fare for all those who were in attendance. We hope that the Soroptimist Club of Belleville, the sponsors of last evening's enjoyable musical treat will see fit to bring this excellent R.C.A.F. Band to Belleville again in the not too distant future. The Soroptimist Club, as in the past, are to be commended for their choice in musical entertainment for Belleville and surrounding district.

After the concert the RCAF Training Command Band was entertained by the Soroptimist Club at a reception at Lattimer's Town Room.

Nickel-Copper Mining Option Taken on R.E. Bonter Property At Marmora by Sudbury Firm

The big mining companies are showing a continued interest in the mineral possibilities of the Marmora area where already one firm has started over-cropping operations to get at large deposits of iron ore.

It was learned today that the East Rim Nickel Mines, of Sudbury, have optioned property north of Marmora and drilling operations are expected to commence in the near future.

Confirms Deal

This was confirmed by Richard E. Bonter, of Marmora, who said he had optioned timberland property ten miles north of the village to the Sudbury firm, who were interested in nickel and copper deposits.

He declined to comment further on the company's plans other than to say that further information would undoubtedly be available later.

According to Mr. Bonter the presence of nickel ore on the family's property was discovered 45 years ago. From that time development of the ore had been sought by his father.

Some years ago Consolidated Smelting took an option on the property and did some drilling. However, the option was allowed to lapse when the company felt the deposits were not of sufficient value to start mining operations. The property now under option is rough timberland which was cut over years ago. There are no buildings on the property.

Third Development

This is the third mineral development in the immediate Marmora area and the fourth within a 35-mile radius of Belleville in the past two years.

First development was by Bethlehem Steel which has now started extensive iron over-cropping operations two miles east of Marmora.

Since that time there has been a discovery of iron ore a few miles away in the Campbellford area and again in the Wellington area Prince Edward County, where drilling operations are now in progress.

More recently there was a report of the discovery of uranium ore in the Bancroft area.

Planning Committee Asked To Recommend on Application For Station on N. Front St.

The city council planning committee will be asked to make a recommendation with respect to the application of the British American Oil Company for a building permit to construct a service station on North Front Street.

This was decided by council Monday afternoon when at their regular meeting the issue again came up for discussion following a formal request by the applicant's solicitor that the permit be issued.

Council even received a telegram from the oil company stating that a mandamus would be sought to force issuing of the permit.

Robert McCulloch, solicitor for Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Langton, owners of the property on which the service station is proposed to be erected, formally requested that council issue the permit.

Some Residents Approve

He pointed out that the Municipal Board last week had turned down the city's new zoning by-law and there was actually no by-law in existence. He said the original request for the service station permit had been made last November with no action by council. The majority of property owners in the immediate area approved of the service station and had signed a petition to this effect.

Several councillors took exception to the telegram from the oil company stating steps would be taken to force issuance of the permit.

First councillor to speak in this vein was Ald. Wilbur Countryman, who said if council backed down before such a threat it "would be heading into trouble."

"Let us find out if the oil company can do anything. If they can get the permit legally, okay," he said.

Only Want Action

Kenneth R. Ross, solicitor for the oil company, said the telegram had been forwarded for one purpose only — to get action. "There was no thought of trying to push council around or of trying to influence its members," he said.

"Then was it necessary to send us a telegram telling us what was going to happen if the permit was not issued?" asked Alderman Countryman.

Alderman Duffy tabled a motion calling for the permit to be issued to the oil company. He did so, he noted, "only to bring the matter to a head."

Alderman Temple as chairman of the traffic committee, said he opposed the service station for several reasons. One was from a traffic standpoint. He pointed out that North Front Street was narrow and would one day be a main artery leading to the new four-lane highway to be built north of the city. Plans called for grading North Front Street hill and if this was done the proposed service station would be at the bottom of the grade.

Takes Opposite View

He pointed out that the planning board was trying to do a job for the betterment of the city. "If we granted a permit for this service station could we refuse permits for gas stations in other parts of the city?" he asked.

"It would mean that property owners would have no protection. Council should 'sit tight'," he recommended.

Ald. Gerald Hyde took the opposite view. He said if he lived in the North Front Street area he would be "overjoyed" if a service station was built in the area. It would mean property would be worth more money for commercial purposes, he said.

Alderman Asks Question

Alderman Reid wanted to know if council was obligated to issue the permit. He pointed out that if a permit for one service station was granted, all such applications would have to be dealt with in the same way.

The question of whether the city's old building by-law was still valid as asked by Alderman Argue who wanted to know if under it a service station would be permitted in the North Front Street area [illegible] was told by City Solicitor A. [illegible]ingle that under the old by-law a service station could be built in the area.

Now residents in the North Front street block concerned seemed to favor the area being commercial. Alderman Keegan noted that 13 of 15 property owners in the block concerned favored the area being commercial.

"Then if the area is going to be changed to commercial instead of of residential there is no sense holding up the permit," observed Alderman Thomas.

Says Mandamus Justified

Alderman McNevin said in his opinion the telegram threatening a mandamus was perfectly justified. He called for action, noting that council had taken no action on the matter for months.

Alderman Argue suggested the planning committee should bring in a recommendation.

"Would that be any guarantee against the matter again being on the merry-go-round in council?" asked Ald., Bradford. "Why are we reluctant to bring the matter to a head."

"I take exception to that," returned Alderman Argue. "I might point out we work on the committee system in Council and any recommendation should come from them."

Alderman Tice said council had tried to write a fair and straight zoning by-law. If under the old by-law a service station could be built on North Front Street he was asked why not make the whole area commercial.

Mayor Supports Amendment

Mayor Haig said he would support the amendment calling on the planning committee to make a recommendation, but pointed out if there was to be any change in the city's new by-law the residents should be informed.

He said the North Front street issue had been confused with result that no one knew how many were for or against the service station or changing the district into a commercial area.

The application of Imperial Oil for permission to install gasoline pumps at Lingham and Victoria streets was also referred to the planning committee.

Ed. Kellaway protested against the proposed closing of a laneway at the north end of Pinnacle street. He said closing the laneway would be detrimental to his property.

Laneway Built On

City Solicitor Pringle intimated that possibly Mr. Kellaway did not understand which laneway was proposed to be closed. He pointed out that the laneway in question was already builth on and its closing would effect no one. The existing lane between Pinnacle and Front at this point would possibly never be closed.

Mr. J. J. Morch, Morley Smith, J. Tatham and Col. P. H. Wills were named as representatives from the Yacht Club to the special Victoria Park committee. The Parks Board still has to name representatives to the committee.

New Rate Schedule

A new schedule of rates for stands on the inside market was approved by council. In the future the per diem rate will be 40 cents per day for stands instead of the $1 which had been charged since the first of the year.

Alderman Countryman said the property committee had received a delegation requesting a lowering of fees.

Council approved an amount of $480 as payment for painting the interior of the market building.

A petition carrying 18 names of service station operators opposing early closing of gas stations was received. Two weeks ago a petition from operators asked for an early closing by-law. Eight of the operators had signed both petitions, it was pointed out.

Don Kingdon, secretary manager of the Chamber of Commerce, was named secretary of the industrial commission at a salary of $60 per month.

Many Inquiries

Under inquiries Alderman Hyde wanted to know whether the policy of public works employees cleaning blocked sewers was to leave basements in a dirty condition. Public works chairman Don Thomas said he would have to know more details of the incident in question before answering.

Alderman Keegan asked about trees being cut on Victoria Ave. He was assured that only diseased trees or trees hampering a driveway were removed and then only on instructions from the tree committee.

Two readings were given to a by-law calling for collection of garbage from local factories. In the past full garbage collection taxes had been paid by industries but the garbage was not collected.

D.S.T. By-law Passed

The daylight saving by-law was passed with one amendment calling for clocks to be turned ahead at 2:01 a.m. on the morning of April 26th instead of 12:01.

In the future fire insurance adjusters and agents will not be notified by the fire department of fire losses.

Alderman Duffy as chairman of the fire committee said this action was being taken as result of complaints that some agents in the past had not received equal favors.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market trading slowed slightly today after an opening burst of activity over a wide list of issues. Forenoon prices held firm.

Low-priced mining issues attracted a little less interest as uranium and Bathurst area base metals moved indecisively.

Golds and western oils held firm with small advances on the exchange indexes but base metals lost about half an index point. Industrials weakened.

Inspiration, a holding company, was a standout among the actively traded mining issues. It followed Monday's sharp gains with an advance of 26 cents in a turnover of 173,000 shares. Among the uraniums, Gunnar, Chimo and New Delhi lost pennies.

Two asbestos issues were leaders of the base metals. United Asbestos added 25 cents and Dominion Asbestos 15 cents. Higher-priced issues weakened. Normetal, Chromium, Steep Rock and Pend Oreille showed small losses.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 9-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Monday's noon rate was 97 23-32. Pound sterling $2.75½ agaist $2.75¾.

Shriners Hold Enjoyable Party

With upwards of 150 members and guests in attendance the Ladies' Night party at the Shrine Club was another feather in the social cap of president D. L. Storey and his fezzed clubmen.

It was a grand party with the entertainment being of topflight variety and thoroughly enjoyed by the large attendance.

Two youthful adagio dancers and contortionists who have been featured at the Canadian National Exhibition headlined an enjoyable program. The ubiquitous Ernie Bruce man of all instruments and top-flight entertainer also staged an outstanding performance as did a lady accordionist.

Refreshments at eleven o'clock rounded out an enjoyable evening.

Carr's Admirals Back in Third Place in Loop

TRENTON. (Special.) —Carr's Admirals the team that has been up and down more than the proverbial pumphandle, jumped back into third place in the south division of the Trent Valley League here last night by winning a four pointer from Point Anne. The score was Admirals 9, Point Anne 2.

And it looks like the Admirals will finish in third place providing they don't lose too badly to Wellington in Wellington tonight.

The storm came after the lull and all the scoring in the second period. Trenton defenceman Bill Turland and E. Maracle tangled. Both were sent to the penalty box. Turland talked back to the referee and drew a 10 minute misconduct penalty whereupon he grabbed a board from the penalty box and threw it out on the ice. The referee then resorted to drastic measures putting Turland out of the game on a match misconduct charge.

The scoring was even at the end of the first period and Point Anne showed no signs of weakening. In the second the Admirals led by Jones, Beale, Scott and Turland, bagged seven goals while flabbergasted Pointmen churned about their goalie Twa who was so busy that he sometimes took on the appearance of an octupus at a Saturday night fish fry.

E. Maracle sank both Point Anne goals, one in the first period and the other in the third.

Referees G. McFaul and Dan Cowley had their hands full in the third quelling a situation that produced a dozen penalties including a barrel of trouble that heaped on Turland.

The teams:

Point Anne — Goal, Twa; defence, R. Hull, sr., O'Brien; centre R. Hull, jr.; wings, E. Maracle, L. Maracle; alternates, Logue, Carr, Whalen, W. Goyer, Tinney, Hunter, DeRushie.

Summary
First Period

Point Anne — E. Maracle (DeRushie) 12.50
Trenton — Istead (Leavey) 19.37
Penalties: Turland, Hill.

Second Period

Trenton — Leavey (Black) 8.40
Trenton — Istead (Scott) 13.22
Trenton — Jones (Scott) 17.28
Trenton — Scott (Beale) 17.34
Trenton — Turland 19.21
Trenton — Turland 19.59
Penalties: Tinney.

Third Period

Trenton — Jones (Turland) .40
Point Anne — E. Maracle (O'Brien) 19.50

Penalties: Turland, 2 min., major, 10 minutes misconduct and match misconduct; E. Maracle, minor and major; DeMille, Beale, Jones, Whalen, O'Brien, L. Maracle.

Will Effect Movement

Great Britain's recent decision to buy 5,000,000 pounds of cheese from Canada will effect the movement of a large quantity in the Trenton Cold Storage here for the last six months. A carload of Ontario cheddar is now being loaded for shipment to the east coast.

Between February 18 and 26 the S.S. Beaverburn leaves St. John, New Brunswick, with a cargo of cheese, part of it produced in the Quinte district.

He told what was expected of the C.W.L. as good league members, living up to their motto, "For God and Canada." "We must have love for God and love for one another and in this way we would be doing the utmost for Canada."

Various diocesan officers addressed the assembly including convener on publicity and magazine, Mrs. J. E. Boyd, of Belleville, and Mrs. Slaven of Picton convener of welfare.

Norman O. Hipel, Former Cabinet Minister, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Norman O. Hipel, who started out as a carpenter at 16 and became a minister in Mitchell Hepburn's Ontario cabinet, died Monday. He would have been 63 next month.

Dr. Julian Loudon, coroner, said the cause of death was coronary thrombosis. Mr. Hipel had been attending a meeting in the University of Toronto's forestry building.

The Preston contractor and lumber merchant was elected to the Ontario legislature for South Waterloo in 1930 and served until 1943. He was successively speaker of the House, minister of labor, minister of lands and forests and provincial secretary.

Born six miles north of Preston, Mr. Hipel formed his own barn building and skating rink construction firm and later went into the lumber business. His first interest in politics was at Preston where he served as alderman, reeve and mayor.

He was speaker of the legislature from 1934 to 1938 and then was appointed minister of labor, a post he held until 1941. An opponent of excessive working hours, he claimed they resulted in a fall in production, poor workmanship and greater wear and tear on machines. He also opposed high-pressure efficiency experts, believing that many workers would be burned out at 40.

From 1941 to 1942, he was minister of lands and forests. He became best known for his work in this field. He reorganized the department and was a staunch advocate of conservation.

He was provincial secretary in 1942 and 1943 and in the latter year was named second deputy to Premier Conant.

He thought of returning to politics in 1945 after a bush accident the previous winter, but doctor's orders forbade it.

Mr. Hipel was elected president of the Ontario Liberal Association in 1947 and the following year was a candidate in the provincial election. He was defeated.

In 1950, he contested the Liberal leadership, but lost to Walter Thompson.

He was a member of the United Church and the Independent Order of Foresters.

Mr. Hipel is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter all of Presten.

WAIT AND SEE IS WISE POLICY

Belleville school authorities have shown a commendable degree of caution in leaving the controversial question of water fluoridation strictly alone for the time being. While a number of Ontario communities are engaged in heated pro and con arguments over this contentious dental hygiene measure, local school and health authorities have been content to wait and see.

In view of the extreme views which have been advanced by two schools of thought in respect to the efficacy of fluorine in the prevention of tooth decay the local attitude is the common sense one. There is a great deal of evidence that fluoridation of water is a factor — probably a very important one—in dental hygiene. But it is as yet far from being the kind of evidence which is acceptable to scientific minds as proof of a definite preventive agency.

Less than a year ago the Honorable Dr. Mackinnon Phillips, Ontario Minister of Health, incurred the displeasure of the more enthusiastic proponents of fluoridation when he warned municipal health authorities against hurrying into a program, which would prove costly in many centres, until more conclusive results have been gained. He stressed that the Ontario Department of Health has been carrying out careful investigations in conjunction with dental authorities for some time. Recently, following a favorable joint report on fluoridation by dental experts, the minister gave an approving nod but he warned that full effects were not yet established.

Dr. Phillips emphasized that not only had the results of studies here been as yet insufficient to be regarded as conclusive but that they tallied very closely with the findings of American investigators. The proper scientific tests must extend over a period that would cover case histories of youngsters subjected to fluoridated water from infancy up to 10 or 12 years of age to provide the evidence required.

In the light of the temper of arguments which have arisen in some centres it is altogether likely that the Health Minister may feel called upon soon to make another statement on this subject. Meanwhile some outstanding dental authorities have been foremost in urging municipal officials not to regard fluorine as a miracle chemical. It is admitted that there is evidence that fluorides in the drinking water of a community tend to improve dental health among the young. Great stress is placed, however, on the facts that faulty diet and neglect of oral hygiene are still the first enemies of teeth.

Education in dental health, especially in the field of diet, is a slow process. Some recent surveys have shown that eating habits among children, for which parents are to blame, reveal such a preponderance of fermentable carbohydrates in the normal diet (candy, cakes, biscuits, white flour products, etc.) that some degree of decay is inevitable in spite of the most thorough oral hygiene. Dental authorities agree that fluoridating water does not immunize teeth so that the all-important factor of diet can be ignored.

So while it has yet to be determined how great a factor fluorine may be in dental health it would appear to be wise on the part of any municipality to avoid adoption of a costly fluoridation program.

BRITAIN PROVIDES THE ANSWER

Never given an easy passage when they have come before Parliament in the past, estimates for the CBC can be expected to produce the liveliest sort of debate during the current session.

There have already been concerted protests from private radio against proposed new regulations to dictate the percentage of programs of Canadian origin to be presented by private stations. There is sure to be criticism of the CBC's television services launched in Ontario and Quebec late last year.

For a long time the case for the CBC has been bolstered by its supporters being able to point to the British Broadcasting Corporation example of an absolute monopoly in both radio and television. Whenever the question of freedom of information has arisen it has always been argued that no such threat is likely to arise or Britain, the most zealous champion of fundamental freedoms, would not tolerate such a system.

Now we find that the wind has been taken out of the CBC's sails. The Churchill Government has broken the BBC monopoly. Television in Britain is to be opened to private enterprise and it is indicated that this change in policy will be extended also to radio.

The official statement on the decision of the government to alter its policy is one which we may be sure will be given conspicuous attention in Ottawa when the House gets into its annual CBC debate. It was put in these words:

"Supporters of exclusive BBC authority have come out in favor of a monopoly of what the British people should be allowed to hear and see. That is only a short step from establishment of a monopoly of what they should be allowed to read and say."

This is not only the complete answer to the CBC's latest proposals to extend its control over private radio; it is a neat summation of the whole argument against arbitrary powers vested in the CBC.

GETTING OLD

I must be getting older
For today it seems to me
That the winters are much colder
Than in youth they used to be.
And I do not find the pleasure
In a real fall of snow
That was heaped up in the measure
For a boy of long ago.

I remember how my father
Used to sit and long for spring
In the days when I would rather
Skate or go tobogganing;
Then the rugged joys of winter
Used to thrill me as a kid,
But I've got where I begin ter
Feel the way my father did.

Yes, I've got where I begin ter
Long for pleasant days and warm,
For the rough old blasts of winter
Send the shivers down my form.
And I'm past the joys of skating
And I suffer from the cold,
Which are signs beyond debating
That I must be getting old.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 17, 1933

Although the Belleville juniors staged a belated and hectic third period rally to play a three to three tie game after being three counters down in the final period, they were eliminated from the Junior O.H.A. race by the Queen's Juniors by the score of 7 to 4 on the round. To Don Thomas, the stellar net custodian for Queen's, goes the bulk of the credit for his team's victory, as he turned in one of the smartest and cleverest exhibitions of goal tending seen in this city for a long time. "Tarzan" Rigby, the locals' big blonde left defenceman, scored the three goals for his team, all being in the final period on individual efforts. Rigby was one of the big factors in Belleville's cause as was his defence mate, Bob Thompson, who also played his best game of the season. No blame for the defeat can be laid at the door of the defence as they worked themselves into exhaustion during the tilt. Roy Covert, at centre, was by far the best of Manager Pender's forwards, while Cy Barriage was just starting to get used to his new position when he was knocked cold by Smith. Jimmie McGuire also worked well on this line. The following composed the Belleville team: Goal, Sinfield; defence, Rigby and Thompson; centre, Covert; wings, Barriage and McGuire; subs., Gregg, Harvey, Morgan and Hogan. Referee, Jerry Deniord, Toronto.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A GREAT ARTIST

Some thirty years ago I paused to look into the window of an art store in my town. There was a painting in the window that intrigued me. It was called "The Lonely Road." I went in and asked the dealer the name of the artist. He said his name was Everett Higgins. I saw several other paintings by this artist but the one that first attracted my attention kept growing on me. I finally decided to buy it and paid a small deposit.

It took me several months before I could pay the full price and take the painting to my home as a happy possession. Later I bought several other paintings by this artist, and all these years they have given me great happiness. I sought out the artist and he became my friend, and I have seen his star rise and his art appreciated. Many of the great galleries of America now have examples of his work, and many have been the prizes that he has gained.

Recently notice of an exhibition of the works of Eugene Higgins came to my desk, and I went to see them displayed in an art gallery in New York City. I was pleased and thrilled at the growth and beauty of each separate painting. I saw much of the feeling and spiritual power of such masters as Millet and Legros in the work of Higgings. Peasants, pioneers, emigrants, unfortunates, in bold masses — all compositions of great beauty and sincerity.

As I looked upon the work of my friend I could not help but think of the examples of so-called art that are being sold and peddled as art under the title of "modern." Art, to my notion, is life, feeling, beauty. It's something that the artist conceives within his heart. It's something that keeps living, stirring the emotions, feeding the soul. That's what Eugene Higgins' paintings have always done to me. The toil and struggle of the great artist himself are felt in everything he has ever done. I salute a great American artist!

To Defeat Coffee Rust

(Winnipeg Free Press.)

There is a note of reassurance in the outcome of a world-wide search by two U.S. government plant scientists for a rust-resistant coffee plant. These scientists have returned to the United States after a 36,000-mile journey. They found what they were looking for in South India.

Th coffee rust is described as capable of destroying the billion-dollar coffee industry in South America. The rust is not now present in the Western Hemisphere, but the possibility of its spreading into South America from overseas is not ruled out.

Rust virtually wiped out the coffee industry in the Eastern Hemisphere in the late years of the 19th century and the early years of the 20th. In Canada, as well as in the United States, the berries of the main coffee species of Brazil and Colombia are preferred, and these plants are all susceptible to the feared rust.

The resistant hybrids that were located in South India will now be multiplied as an offset to the rust menace.

Two Canny Young Canadians

(By H. L. MacPHERSON in the Windsor Star.)

This is the story of a cycle, of how bread cast on the waters, so to speak, comes back to you.

Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Limited, already served here by a huge plant, is spending a further $17,000,000 on extensions. The hard core of Chrysler is the Dodge organization acquired in the Twenties. As the final link in the cycle, the Dodge enterprise got its start in Windsor.

If the Dodge brothers, John and Horace, hadn't made a modest nest-egg in Windsor about the turn of the century, today's good news might not have been possible. But enough of that.

They were a pair of monkey-wrench mechanics from Port Huron, those Dodge boys, and they came here to build a ball-bearing bicycle. It must have been a pretty good bicycle they created, because it's still being made, as the well known C.C.M.

• • •

The Canada Cycle and Motor Company made the Dodge boys an offer for their business, and they accepted. It yielded them a net profit of $7,500.

With this stake the two Dodges crossed the river to Detroit and set up a machine shop. There were teasing possibilities in the Detroit air those days. Lights burned late in many a shed and basement as tinkers toyed with their conceptions of a horseless carriage.

It wasn't long before Dodge Brothers, as Horace and John called their business, had an order from R. E. Olds for Oldsmobile transmissions. They were on their way.

Later, in 1903, a man named Henry Ford came into their orbit. He was a middle-aged chap, several times a failure, but he had a new idea for a self-propelled vehicle. Ford offered the Dodges an engine and chassis contract. It looked better than their transmission business. They took it.

They were canny young men, though, and Ford's credit wasn't the best. So through dickering they obtained various assurances of payment. One of them didn't look too promising, but was better than nothing. It consisted of 100 shares of Ford stock.

• • •

As it turned out, the Dodges never had to worry about Ford's credit after that. What subsequently concerned them was that he was making so much more money than they were, although they were producing the most important part of his car.

That settled it. In mid-1913 they gave Ford a year's notice of cancellation of his engine-chassis contract. They'd make their own car a more expensive one.

"Think," cracked John, "of all the Ford owners that would like to own an automobile."

M. M. Musselman, who relates this incident in his "Get a Horse!" says Ford boiled at its impertinence.

The Dodge name for workmanship already was such that the new car caught on immediately.

But what of those 100 shares? They were a gold mine. Nothing less than a gold mine. In 16 years they paid the Dodges $4,000,000 in dividends. And when at the end of that time the shares were sold to Ford, they paid the Dodge brothers $12,500,000 each.

• • •

They were a closely-knit, durable pair, those Dodges, and they amassed money at a fantastic rate. After they died in the early Twenties, their widows sold the family holdings for a sum placed between $146,000,000 and $166,000,000.

The $7,500 picked up in Windsor was parlayed to an impressive total in 25 short, teeming years. The Dodge children, with their costly amours, haven't been able to spend it all since, but they're trying. Only the other day Horace, Jr., settled with an ex-wife for $750,000 and incidental benefits, including a $120,000 home and two cars.

After a period of drift the Dodge automotive business passed into the hands of Walter P. Chrysler, who revived it and in time established a Chrysler branch in Windsor, by taking over the Maxwell plant. Which brings this tale back to where it started.

When Mr. King Went on Strike

(By B. K. Sandwell in The Financial Post)

Bruce Hutchinson in his "Incredible Canadian" places Mr. King on the staff of the Mail and Empire at the time of his investigation of the sweated labor situation in post office uniforms, which led to his being called in to start the Department of Labor. I am assured by fellow-students of King's and mine who were then in journalism that this is an error, and that the future prime minister was actually on the Globe. The biographer makes no reference to the famous story of the Toronto students' strike of 1895, King's share in which has been the subject of some controversy.

In that strike I was a loyal member of the rank and file of the strikers, at no great sacrifice because attendance at lectures was not then compulsory at any rate in honor courses, and many of the professors sympathized with the strike and did what they could to be helpful.

At its outbreak King was among the more conspicuous figures, chief of whom were the magnificent T. Hamar Greenwood and a power in the London "City", and James A. Tucker, the brilliant but ill-fated journalist who died a few years later after being for a time the real editor of Saturday Night under the frequently absent editor-owner E. E. Sheppard. King withdrew from the front lines after the first couple of days, but, I have never believed the story that he "scabbed" on the strike by returning to lectures.

Mr. Hutchison is right in suggesting that there were several much more brilliant personages than King in the student body at the time. About King however there hung already a sort of aura of destiny, which to me was inexplicable by anything in his personality or performance, and which probably emmated from his own absolute conviction that he had what in religious circles is designated a call."

40-Year Hobby Wins Acclaim

(Time Magazine.)

Dutch Sea Captain Jan Drent, now 59, never imagined that learned astronomers would ever take serious note of his lifetime hobby. While studying navigation at the Kweek School voor de Zeevaart (a merchant marine academy), he heard about the zodiacal light, a faint, wedgeshaped glow that reaches into the sky near the plane of the earth's orbit. It is best seen in the tropics just after dusk or just before dawn. Astronomers now believe that it is sunlight reflected from small particles revolving around the sun like miniature planets, but in Drent's youth the experts disagreed about nearly all details. So when he put to sea in 1910, he resolved to do some observing on his own.

For nearly 40 years, Drent sailed the world's seas on the ships of the Nederland Line. At night he watched the faint glow in the sky and came to know it intimately. He made detailed notes and grew so interested that he took two years off to study physics and astronomy at the Sorbonne. Back at sea with his new knowledge and the title of Licencie es Sciences, he began an intensive study of the zodiacal light. He plotted its hazy outline against the wheeling stars and kept records of its position, which changes with the seasons.

World War II did little to interrupt the astronomer-captain's hobby; bombs and torpedoes, in fact, appeared to avoid his ships. In the harbor of Trincomalee, Ceylon, Japanese airplanes sank two neighboring ships; U-boats in the West Indies knocked off three ships sailing close at hand. But nothing happened to any of Captain Drent's commands, and nothing interfered [illegible] his astronomical studies. [illegible] wartime blackout was actually a help: it allowed the captain's eyes to adjust to darkness, the better to observe the zodiacal light.

In 1948 Captain Drent retired and went to live in West Los Angeles with his wife and three children. He enrolled last semester in a course in geophysics conducted by Professor Robert E. Holzer at the University of California. Rather bashfully he told Dr. Holzer about the hobby that he had followed for so many years at sea, and Holzer permitted him to give a seminar talk on the zodiacal light.

The captain's two-hour address, packed with profuse detail, impressed even the crustiest professionals in the room. Said Dr. Holzer, "This is probably the most complete and reliable set of visual data which has been obtained on the zodiacal light." Forty years of watching the sky from ships' bridges had at last paid off.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

HOW MUCH C-O IN YOUR BLOOD?

Ideally a person living where the air is not polluted should have no carbon monoxide in his blood. In fact most persons in cities, towns or villages, and now even rural dwellers, are exposed to atmosphere polluted with carbon monoxide from one source or another, and their blood, on chemical test, shows 1.5% saturation with C-O — or, if they happen to be smokers, 3 to 4% saturation with C-O.

It is difficult to judge whether this is a sufficient asphyxia anoxia, restriction of oxygen supply to cells, tissues and organs to account for any chronic or minor ailments that people so readily ascribe to "nerves," "fatigue" and the like.

Since there is no criterion of health, no dividing line between health and disease, this question of carbon monoxide asphyxia or anoxia takes us again into the borderland.

Take for instance any number of persons who pass every test and have excellent health and expectancy of life. In ten, twenty, thirty years some of them will be developing or will have developed one disease or another—C V D, diabetes, tuberculosis, cancer or whatnot—but meanwhile they'll wander aimlessly in the borderland, for no physician can determine precisely the day or the month when cardiovascular degeneration, diabetes, tuberculsosis or cancer begins. We may talk about pre-cancerous, pre-tuberculous or pre-diabetic states, but the shadowy borderland between health and disease is even wider today than ever.

How many Americans today have optimal nutrition? Only a minority—most Americans suffer from calcium, phosphorus iodin, thiamin, riboflavin and D deficiency throughout life.

There is a wide borderland between what doctors and laymen consider fair health (not complaining, not taking treatment) and such nutritional deficiency disease as beri beri, pellagra or scurvy. Even so, it is no longer good practice to ignore the complaints of the many who present milder manifestations of nutritional deficiency, or to withhold preventive or corrective treatment until they are disabled and have the classical signs and symptoms of full-fledged scurvy, pellagra or beri beri.

It can do no harm, at any rate, for any one with these complaints to consider chronic carbon monoxide anoxia a possible explanation and to take steps to avoid further exposure:

Frequent throbbing headache with sense of pressure in frontal region; vertigo; weakness and tremulousness in legs, sometimes even disturbing the gait and making observers think one's a little drunk; palpitation.

The red cell count exceeds 5,000,000 and the hemoglobin estimate exceeds 100 in most cases of chronic C-O anoxia—that is, the blood contains more red corpuscles and more iron coloring matter than the blood of most healthy persons.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When we are bothered with the thought of the Russians launching war on us, there is one thought that ought to give us some comfort. And that is: with what timidity the Russian rulers must face the risk fo letting their armies out from behind the Iron Curtain.

That is the wrong word for it. It is the Iron Fence, not the Iron Curtain. It is a safe guess that the Communists spend far more time and energy preventing their own people from getting out of their country, than on keeping strangers out. We have all the evidence of the extreme caution exercised, even down at the U.N. and other Russian contacts with the rest of the world, as far as permitting their personnel to mix and mingle with our communities in normal living. They bring a little of their Iron Fence over with them, and keep their personnel, rigidly watched, in back of it.

With what misgivings must the Kremlin view the risks of letting their armies loose, and more or less out of their accustomed control, in strange and interesting parts of the world? Since they periodically purge out their generals, how do they feel about generals on the loose?

This problem, the problem of letting millions of their people free from behind the Iron Fence, is doubtless the explanation of the desperate efforts the Communists have been making for years to establish some sort of a Communist set-up in other lands. It isn't purely ideological. Their missionary zeal is not entirely due to the evangelism of a new political faith. It is probably military to a considerable extent. It would be nice to have a welcoming party for their troops and generals both, ready to knock off, in the best home tradition, any of them who might be inclined to look with delighted astonishment at what they find in these Wall Street capitalist nations.

That no such welcoming committee should exist is the chief concern of the soldiers and police whose professional duty it is to guard us from evil.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MADE IN THE IMAGE OF GOD

One of the correspondents who is a violent disbeliever in the teachings of religion and a proud defender of atheism, writes me as follows: "I was kidding a neighbor woman once about her religious superstitions, and she said, 'You can't be like the animals; you have to believe something'."

Of course she was right. There are certain centres in the brain so much higher than anything the lower animals have and so much more sensitive that they make possible for us a life the animals can never have. These higher brain centres are the nexus by which the abstract world of will, purpose, and idealism is transformed into action, behavior patterns of living. The low animals at their best are almost nothing compared with the vast possibilities men have. Men can plan to build. They can reflect upon their experience. They can aspire. Best of all, they can in faith raise their eyes toward Heaven and commune with an unseen God.

The animals have no God save that the unseen Father watches in kindness over them, so that not a sparrow falls without His noting it. But they appear to know nothing of this overarching care and love.

We are given the capacity to know and the revelation of the truths we need to know. We sink down to a level far below what God intended should be ours if we do not look up and raise holy hands in adoration and praise.

Although deafness is a serious educational handicap, it is not insurmountable from a vocational point of view and virtually all such handicapped persons can find gainful employment, Joseph Demeza, superintendent and principal of the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville, told the Rotary Club at the regular weekly luncheon meeting held Monday at the Quinte Hotel.

"The loss of hearing," Mr. Demeza said, "is a far greater educational handicap than the loss of sight." At the same time, he continued, deafness is vastly misunderstood by the general public. Children who are deaf are not necessarily dumb—their vocal organs are normal. But they do not speak because they do not hear. Since they do not hear they have no pattern to imitate and no device to know what their voice sounds like.

Non-verbal intelligence tests show that deaf children have I.Q.'s which are average. Their capacity for learning is also average.

Has No Vocabulary

"When the normal child enters kindergarten it has a vocabulary of about 2,000 words," Mr. Demeza explained. "The deaf child at that age usually has no vocabulary at all. It follows, then, that the process of teaching the deaf child is a laborious process. The work is painstaking, slow—but rewarding."

"Deafness comes in several classifications," the speaker said. Sometimes the child has already learned to speak before he loses his hearing through injury or illness.

"The school here," he said, "is not an institution or a welfare agency. Although it is a residential school, this situation is made necessary because of the small number of deaf children throughout the province. About one child in one thousand in elementary school can come under the classification of "deaf."

Any child five years old, who has normal mental ability to make progress in school if he were not handicapped by deafness and whose parents live in Ontario is eligible to attend the school here, Mr. Demeza said.

Not Cost For Attending

It costs a handicapped child nothing to attend the school, except clothing and transportation (even transportation is subsidized in many instances) and $10 a year for incidental expenses. All teachers are qualified as public school teachers and take special courses of from one to three years duration. The trend in schools for deaf now is toward a lower admission age and more homelike living conditions.

Mr. Demeza described a year he spent training in Europe to prepare himself for his present position. During that time, he studied school conditions and methods throughout the British Isles, Denmark, Sweden, Holland and France.

There are 1,600 deaf students attending special schools in Canada at the present time, the speaker concluded.

Mr. Demeza was introduced by Fred Wilson and thanked by Frank Murray.

Four Sets of Twin Heifer Calves Born in 15 Months

With the price of milking cows and beef remaining at a comparatively high level, the milking herd of Garfield Cooney, R. R. 6 Belleville, is doing all right by its owner.

In the past 15 months Mr. Cooney's herd of Holsteins has presented him with four sets of twin heifer calves. The calves were born to four different cows of a herd of 30.

The reproduction record of Mr. Cooney's herd is considered all the more remarkable in the light of past performances. In 12 years of farming only one other set of twin calves were born. Both calves were bulls.

Communicable Diseases Take Sharp Climb in '52 Over '51

The incidence of communicable diseases took a sharp climb in 1952 over the rate in 1951. Last year saw 399 communicable diseases being reported to the local health department against only 118 during the previous year. This information was noted in the annual report of the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. A. M. Breuls.

In 1952, the number included 122 cases of chickenpox; eight cases of measles; 207 cases of German measles; 42 cases of mumps; six cases of venereal disease; one case of poliomyelitis; 19 cases of tuberculosis and one case of whooping cough. In 1951 there were 13 cases of polio and 75 cases of influenza.

Another interesting contrast is the number of live births and the total number of deaths. Throughout last year, 516 live births were recorded, while in the previous year, 496 live births were recorded. However, 178 persons died in 1951 and 1952, 158 persons died. Infant deaths for the past year numbered 17 and stillbirths were listed at eight.

At the weekly immunization clinic, 1,092 primary inoculations were begun and a total of 1,341 reinforcing doses were given. Attendance at these clinics was 1,679, at the child health clinics it was 521 and 1,059 tuberculin tests were given during the year.

Dr. Breuls made 18 visits to milk producers and took 103 samples of raw milk from 55 producers. The M.O.H. also made 25 visits to the five milk distributors in the city and took 96 samples of pasteurized milk.

Under the supervision of the health department, 505 field nursing visits were made to newborn infants, 885 visits were made to other infants, 217 to pre-school children, 83 to school children and 17 to adults. Prenatal visits by the nursing staff numbered 37 and 456 postnatal visits were conducted. A total of 154 visits were made to patients ill with tuberculosis, 645 to other unclassified illness and 772 families were given service.

Nursing hours spent in the schools numbered 1,900½ hours. 779¼ hours were spent in the office; 1,168½ hours in the home; 823 in clinics and 162¼ hours were spent on other nursing activities.

Routine chest X-ray of food-handlers in the city brought to light a case of early active pulmonary tuberculosis. The patient was subsequently admitted to a sanatorium. In conjunction with the child health clinics, a dental education program for parents with infants and preschool children was established. It was reported, five local dentists were hired to attend the clinics and offer advice on dental hygiene and to conduct an inspection service.

Sanitary inspection continued throughout the year, operating on a part time basis. However, it is planned in 1953, to hire a full time sanitary inspector. The dental education program will be modified to take advantage of parental interest in the child's teeth at the pre-school roundup. This will involve a concentration of clinics in the fall and spring.

Issue Overscribed

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott announced Monday that a $300,000,000 government bond issue was "heavily over-subscribed" within two hours after the books opened.

Sale of the bonds started at 9 a.m. and the books were closed at 11 a.m.

The issue included two series of bonds. The first, totalling $100,000,000 and bearing two per cent interest, will become due July 1, 1954; the second, totalling $200,000,000 and bearing interest of 2¼ per cent, will become due July 1, 1955.

Proceeds from the new loan along with cash from the treasury will be used to pay $325,000,000 of three-year bonds maturing March 1.

CAN NEVER DRIVE AGAIN

TORONTO (CP)—A driver's licence was cancelled Monday for life and its owner sentenced to 30 days at hard labor. George A. Morris was convicted of driving with his licence under suspension and leaving the scene of an accident. He was also fined $50 or an additional 10 days. Court was told Morris has several driving convictions.

Butter Stock Is Sufficient To Meet Needs

—Gardiner

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Monday the government's stock of 29,000,000 pounds of butter will be sufficient to meet Canada's butter needs until the new production season opens in the spring.

Mr. Gardiner said in the Commons that government butter will sell at 62 cents a pound wholesale in Quebec and Ontario. The only condition will be that the wholesalers must "make immediate delivery to retailers and that the mark-up for cutting, wrapping and distributing would be fair and reasonable."

The 62-cent price also applies in the Maritimes. In the West the government's selling price is: Manitoba, 59¾ cents; Saskatchewan, 59; Alberta 59½; British Columbia, 61½.

Mr. Gardiner did not say when or in what quantities the government butter would be released. He has recently been pressed by the trade to release some of the government stocks to avoid a shortage traders said was threatened in Canada.

Mr. Gardiner said the point of low production has already been reached in Canada and fresh supplies now will increase from week to week.

"For this reason and because of the availability of government stocks of stored butter, consumers can be assured of ample supplies at 62 cents wholesale for solids," the minister said.

Draft Extension Causes Mutiny In Some Garrisons

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Denmark's extension of the draft term from 12 to 18 months stirred up mutinous actions in several scattered garrisons of the Danish Army Monday.

More than 80 soldiers who mutinied and started to march on Copenhagen to voice their protests were turned back by the fire-eating speech of their general who met them in the middle of the road.

Later, 400 men marched from their Haderslev garrison, in southern Jutland, toward Copenhagen. However, this mutiny was quelled by officers and civil and military police who put road blocks in front of the marchers and halted them only five miles north of Haderslev. The garrison is at least 120 miles from Copenhagen, which is on the island of Sjaelland.

The officers persuaded most of the marchers to return voluntarily to Haderslev. But some of the men tried to escape into nearby fields. They were caught by the officers and hauled back to camp in military trucks.

At the same time 200 men went on a hunger strikeat Aarhus, farther north in Jutland, protesting against the extension of their military service.

Letters from Mexico

By Arnold Meyers

Tehuantepec, Hotel Oasis
January 21, 1953

Dear Mother and Dad:

At the time of writing I am still in Tehuantepec, and having the finest time of my life. There are two other Americans staying here Jack Conway and Bob ———. A woman artist of Russian birth eats here; we four always eat together, and the laughs we have are really terrific.

The Tehuanos people are wonderfully kind, patient and thoughtful. They belong to the large Zapotec race of Indians; have exceptionally fine figures, which the men are never afraid to show. They are somewhat languid, of a happy-go-lucky temperament; always good humored, like and respect their women.

Warm Mornings

When we get up in the morning, it is always warm; I go across the open-to-the-sky patio to the open air eating place. The flies buzz about like mad, always giving you a fair fight for your meal—who is going to get to it first, you or the flies. I always make sure it is I, first. The little red hen struts across the patio followed by her brood of chirping chicks. I have never seen such a well-trained hen—no droppings.

Here comes big Helena, the sole waitress, fat, short and stupid. This morning I'll order chocolate (choc-o-la-tay) that'll put her in a quandary for weeks. When Jack, the ex-G.I. gives his order its just too funny for words! "Oh, El-ay-g-g-na" he calls, and sits there bolt upright, grinning expectantly. "Si, Senor, que tenrei usted?" (What will you have?)

Likes Well Done and Over

"What's on the menu?" "Bif-stik, huenos, inchilados, cafe con leche" (beef steak, eggs, coffee with milk). "Bif-stik not again—bif-stik for breakfast; bif-stik for dinner; bif-stik for supper; so after much substitution, Helena smiles happily and floats off to the kitchen. After a time, back she comes with the precious morsels, which Jack proceeds to inspect, not knowing what to expect. "Helena!" Estas no diez minuteos" take them back—so help me, if they don't come back well done this time. . . . This as a sample of what goes on at meal-time.

George, the hotel owner, is a youngish man, a nice person; he has taken us several places. One night we went to a circus and it was very good. He also owns a rancho (a plantation) and has offered to take us out when he goes.

He also paints and draws; his drawings are remarkably good; has had no training whatsoever. I have two or three small sketches that he did on the spur of the moment in illustrating something to me.

He was saying that I ought to go to Minatitlan on the way to Coatzacoalcos where the women natives wear a peculiar garb, being naked from the waist up. When a stranger approaches their village, they run and hide in their huts.

Russian Artist

I must talk about Iah, the woman artist. She has been living in Paris; in fact, had a home there. For the last two years she has been in Mexico, and has travelled all over the world. Hence, she is able to tell me of many things that I should, otherwise, not know about. She insists that I take the bus through the jungle to Coatzacoalcos and then up the coast to Vera Cruz, and thence to Orizaza and Mexico D.F. (ditto federal). She declares it to be one of the most beautiful trips in the world. She thinks my drawings are exceptionally fine and my paintings too. Frankly, they have improved enormously in feeling and content since visiting Tehuantepec.

Not Greatly Impressed

I have not yet seen her work, but am going over this afternoon. I met one man who said, "Isn't it most unusual to see a woman travelling all over Mexico completely alone like that?" It is unusual, and she is an unusual person. She has a definite Russian accent. . . . have been over to see her work, but am not terribly impressed. Off hand, I would say that she lacks good drawing, although she has but a portion of her work here. It is more or less in the modern idiom with a strong Mexican influence. She paid me a real compliment the other day: "You are a true artist. You paint with your emotions."

There was another Canadian family here. Did I tell you before? The man said they simply could not stand the mountains. He was sick half the time. They want to go back along the Gulf coast. They rented a flat at Salina Cruez—a few miles from here—and think it is great. They pay only 30 pesos per week — $3.30. Imagine that!

Marvellous Ocean

The ocean at Salina Cruez is marvellous. There is a huge long breakwater separating the harbor from the sea. Most people bathe on the south side of it, but I usually take the other side, because I can sunbathe there with impunity. Many of the young boys up to 10 or 12 go in naked, even here. Personally, I think it is a fine thing. I am building up quite a nice coat of tan.

I wish you could see those huge waves come crashing down on the beach and against the huge boulders along the breakwater. I could watch them for hours. To go out into one of these waves is quite a challenge. You have to brace yourself. The experienced natives dive head first into them.

Many Photographs

I have so many photographs that it amazes me. I must have more than a dozen rolls already. They tell me that some one does developing here. After asking some one who knows, I'll try it. But there is no danger in keeping undeveloped films here as in the dry season there is very little moisture.

Have not gone to Mexico City yet, probably will leave for there at the end of January by way of Coatzacoalcos and Vera Cruz and Orizala. Am enjoying myself so much here that I find it terribly hard to think of going to the plateau again. If I have to go back when the snow is still flying it is going to be terrible.

It was announced that next month's program would be "Boys' Night".

Presto Music Club

A brief meeting was held with Loretta McDougal presiding. After some discussion, it was decided to change the meeting night from the second Tuesday of the month to the second Monday. This will take effect next month when the meeting will be held in March.

Upon conclusion of the business portion of the evening, Dr. Arthur Locke convened a musical program. Two young guests, Evangeline Reilly and Peter Smith attended the meeting and their piano numbers were much appreciated. It is certain that if these young people continue their studies they will be heard from in the near future.

Program

Evangeline played "Moles Dance" by Newton and "Allegro Vivace" — by Kuhlau. Peter's numbers were "Solfeggietto" — by C. P. E. Bach and "Sonatino" by Kuhlau.

The remainder of the program was by members as follows:

Vocal solo — Margaret Hillis, "Shepherd's Cradle Song" by Somerville; banjo solo — Wilma Houston, "Romance" by A. Rubenstein; violin solo — H. Brown, "Adoration", by Borowski and "Sarabanda" by Couperin; violin solo — Dr. Locke, "Beceuse" from "Jocelyn" by Goddard.

S. Alec Gordon played the piano accompaniments for the vocalists and violinists.

After the program, tasty refreshments were served by hostesses Myrtle Houston, Helen Cooke and Bessie Wright.

The location of the next meeting will be announced later.

Prayers were given for Her Majesty, the Queen, and for all those in authority over us, by Mrs. J. Cooke; for homes and families around the world, by Mrs. C. Hayes; for increased private and family prayer, by Mrs. C. Fuzzen; for followers of Christ around the world, by Miss Luella Morton; for non-Christians everywhere, by Mrs. H. Ingram, and for peace by Miss Frances Reid.

Mrs. M. Burleigh presided at the piano for the hymns, and during the offertory rendered, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" with variations.

Following the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. F. Burley, Mrs. L. Domosly, Miss D. Peirce and Mrs. J. Cooke.

Belleville W.T.F. Holds Valentine Party

The February meeting of the Belleville Women Teachers' Federation was held on Wednesday in the form of a Valentine party. Valentine fortunes read during the dinner, were thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

Following the dinner the president, Mrs. Jean Sczerba, conducted the business meeting. It was announced that education week would be held in March. Delegates to attend the Physical Education workshop at Peterborough, late this month, were chosen.

The program for the evening was then conducted by the teachers on the staff of Queen Elizabeth School. Games and contests in keeping with Valentine's day added greatly to the enjoyment of everyone present. Then followed a sing-song led by Miss Evelyn Emerson.

Woman Takes Housard Desk In Legislature

TORONTO (CP)—A blue-eyed blonde made history Monday when she took her place at the Hansard reporters' desk in the Ontario Legislature.

Mrs. Jo Wilde, 27-year-old shorthand expert, became the first woman in the 151-year history of Ontario Parliaments to record the proceedings of the Legislature for Hansard. Premier Frost said she probably is the first woman in Canada to occupy the position.

Mrs. Wilde, who is also a housewife with a 5½-year-old son attending school, said it marked the realization of her greatest ambition.

She has been a shorthand reporter for 10 years, and covered court proceedings in Toronto and Hamilton before joining the Hansard staff. Until her elevation to a reporter, she worked in the Hansard office transcribing notes and reporting committee meetings.

Premier Frost said in the House it was an example of how Ontario has taken the lead in "the emancipation of women."

A large number of members and visitors from the district chapters were present in the Masonic Temple Friday evening, when Mrs. Evelyn Hadley, district deputy Grand Matron, inspected Minerva Chapter.

The degrees of the Order were conferred on Dr. and Mrs. William Beattie. Mrs. Beattie's mother was present from Kingston to see her daughter initiated.

Mrs. Archie Jordan and Mrs. Charles Barnett were the conveners for the refreshments which were served by the group in charge of the month.

Dancing brought an enjoyable close to the evening.

Albert College W.G. Enjoys Demonstration Of Floral Arranging

The regular meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held in the Ladies' parlor of Bridge Street Church on Friday, with the president, Mrs. A. May, in the chair.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Wilbur Sherry, who first read a poem beginning: "O Worship the Lord in the Beauty of Holiness," followed by the reading of the "Parable of the Talents," from Matthew 25.

After this she read the story of an artist who was making a stained glass window for a church. He had painted a number of pieces of glass to form the figure of Christ, but one of the pieces was lost. It was a tiny piece and was swept up in some dust, unnoticed by the artist. Small and insignificant as it was, the picture could not be finished without it.

Finally a ray of sunshine, falling on a dark corner of the room brought forth an answering gleam of light. The artist saw the bright spot in the corner and found the lost piece of glass. It became the eye of the Savior.

Mrs. Bert Houston sang a love song in honor of St. Valentine's Day. She was accompanied by Mrs. T. K. Franklin. Her solo was much enjoyed.

Guest Speaker

Miss Helen Sulman introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mr. William Jardine who brought flowers with him and demonstrated different flower arrangements which were most effective and which delighted his audience.

Miss Ivy Dickens moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Jardine for the pleasure he had given the members of the Guild and their guests.

After the meeting closed, tea was served by the social committee.

THWART JAIL BREAK

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)—Guards thwarted a jail break at the city jail Saturday night after eight prisoners broke down a main cell-block door. Guards and police officers rushed the prisoners as they broke through the door into the main corridor and forced them back into the cell-block. No one was injured.

Many Reports Given Members At Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in St. Michael's High School, John Street, with Mrs. E. Boyd presiding. The Very Reverend Dean Garvin, director, was present. The usual reports followed. Membership is now 513. Mrs. E. Logan gave a report of the afternoon tea held at the rectory. She thanked everyone who helped in any way. This was one of the most successful held by the subdivision. The marathon bridge is proving to be a fine source of revenue with a tidy sum already turned in.

Mrs. Carr-Braint reported on the euchre parties being held every other Tuesday at the K. of C. It was decided to have bridge also, as several people had been inquiring if bridge wee played on Tuesday night. Mrs. W. J. Doyle, convener of citizenship, requests all councillors of the league to meet with her on Wednesday, after benediction, in the rear of the church to receive instructions regarding the registration of every member of the Catholic Women's League Belleville for emergency voluntary aid. It is imperative that this be done at once as National Head Office must have this information compiled in March.

Mrs. L. Quinn, convener of the draw on the $100 bond requests that members sell as many books as possible as a prize will be given to the one selling the most tickets.

Mrs. J. C. Baker made 37 visits to patients at Belleville General Hospital last month. Mrs. C. Philbin is visitor this month. Correspondence was read from various diocesan conveners including the magazine convener, Mrs. J. E. Boyd. Every member of the league should be a subscriber to this the only National League publication. Very Rev. L. B. Garvin outlined the Lenten regulations and recommended daily attendance at Mass.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. F. Cunningham and her committee. Mrs. L. Quinn is hostess for next meeting.

There is no "overnight cure" for irregularity

But there is a simple, natural answer to the common problem of irregularity due to lack of bulk

There are men and women (perhaps you're one of them) who won't let "nature take its course".

THEY TRY TO SUBSTITUTE UNNATURAL "FORCING ACTION" FOR THE NATURAL REGULARITY WHICH SENSIBLE DAILY HABITS AND SUFFICIENT BULK IN THE DIET COULD PROBABLY MAINTAIN.

Many fall into the habit of using laxatives in a way laxative makers never intended. They take "big doses" willy-nilly without even reading the directions on the label.

Naturally, such overdosing—with products intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage—exerts upon the delicate digestive system an unnatural strain.

There's nothing wrong, of course, with taking laxatives occasionally. If you feel you have to take a laxative, just be sure you take it wisely—in an accurate, recommended dose.

BUT THERE IS A WAY TO AVOID TAKING DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES AND TO PLACE YOUR DEPENDENCE ON NATURE, IF LACK OF BULK IN THE DIET IS YOUR TROUBLE.

• • •

In many natural foods—such as certain vegetables, fruits, and grains—nature grows abundant natural bulk which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic process of elimination.

In no other natural food is natural bulk so ideally found as in the outer layers of the whole wheat kernel, known generally as bran.

Bran is nature's "laxative food instead of a medicine". When properly processed and shredded, whole wheat bran yields smooth natural bulk that the digestive system can handle in a natural way.

The Kellogg Company has made whole wheat bran into a delicious breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN PERFORMS NATURALLY WHAT DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES DO CHEMICALLY. IT HELPS CLEAR THE INTESTINES OF WASTE IN A NATURAL WAY. IT PROVIDES SOFT NATURAL BULK FOR EASY NATURAL ACTION.

There is no stomach upset, no churning, no after-effect except the feeling of satisfaction and fulfillment that comes with natural, normal elimination.

• • •

To obtain lasting relief, of course, Kellogg's All-Bran must be eaten regularly. You can have it for breakfast every morning secure in the knowledge that it isn't habit-forming.

More than one million servings of Kellogg's All-Bran are consumed each day. This popularity of itself is proof that this natural laxative cereal lives up to what we say about it.

But even better proof comes from thousands of satisfied All-Bran users. They write of their own free will to tell us what natural relief they receive from eating Kellogg's All-Bran daily and drinking plenty of water.

EAT KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN EVERY MORNING FOR BREAKFAST FOR 10 DAYS. THEN, IF YOU'RE NOT COMPLETELY SATISFIED, SEND THE EMPTY CARTON TO THE KELLOGG COMPANY, LONDON, ONTARIO—AND GET DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK.

Remember—Kellogg's All-Bran has helped millions. Why not you?

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's in love with him—he does not want to "go steady"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a college student, but a few years older than the normal age for girls to be attending college. Therefore most of my classmates are younger than myself. So I felt it was very good luck when I met a young veteran of my own age who was attending this same school.

For two months we dated off and on, but lately he has been taking me out only once a week. He tells me he is crazy about me, but says he doesn't want to get serious or go steady, although he doesn't date other girls. He was once engaged, but that was two years ago, and I'm sure he is not thinking about that girl any more, as she has married.

I have fallen head over heels for this fellow and am therefore very miserable about the whole thing. Do you think I should stop going out with him entirely and try to get over him as soon as possible, or should I take the occasional date he offers and hope that his attitude will change?—N.

Dear N.:

If you are really deeply interested in this young man, then it seems to me it would be very foolish for you to stop going out with him. At the same time, and under circumstances as you describe, it would be equally foolish for you not to go out with anyone else whenever you can. This is not only because you do not want him to get the idea you are all wrapped up in him and can't bear to go out unless he asks you, but it's also for the purpose of providing yourself with other friends so that you won't be left high and dry if this chap should stop inviting you out entirely.

Your best plan is to take the attitude that he is just another friend, accept his invitation for dates when he invites you—unless you already have something on hand, in which case, don't break any date for him—and take every opportunity that comes along to have good times with others.

If there is any chance that the young man is going to get really interested in you, he'll be much more likely to do it if he sees that you are a happy girl with many friends. In fact, if you make yourself into that kind of girl, he may very well become eager to see you oftener.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married five years, and it seems that I will never be able to have any children. I am 24 and my husband is 26.

We would like to know if you could tell us how we could get a war baby from Germany. We have heard that there are babies over there whose fathers were American servicemen, and who need homes. We have a new home almost completed, and we are very, very happy except that we want and need children. These fatherless babies need us, and we need them. M. G. H.

Dear M.G.H.:

Much as I sympathize with you, I am afraid it's not as easy as it might seem to get one of these "war babies" for adoption. There would be a great many complications in the way that might be impossible to overcome, and it is not really a practical idea.

If you want to adopt a child, the best way to go about it is to apply to one of the authorized child adoption agencies. Every large city has at least one such agency, either as a part of the local government or privately run, and although you live in a smaller city, it is possible that there may be one right in your own community. Ask at one of the hospitals in your own town if they know of any agency of this sort. Almost certainly they will be able to give you some information on the matter.

I suggest that you might also write a letter to the National Florence Crittenton Mission, Alexandria, Virginia, and ask if they can give you information on where you might find a baby to adopt. This organization conducts homes for unwed mothers throughout the country, and many of the babies are given up for adoption.

It will take a great deal of time, effort and patience on your part to find a baby you can adopt, as there are a great many people who have the same idea these days. In fact, it has been said that there are more couples who want to adopt children than there are children to adopt.

Let me give you one final word of warning, however, and that is, do not on any account make any informal arrangement with anyone, but work only through an officially recognized adoptive agency. It is illegal for any unauthorized person to offer babies for adoption, and you might find yourselves in trouble if you dealt with any but authorized people.

Low-Calorie-Count Recipes Particularly for Diabetic Patients

By Mary Moore

My intention, when I sat down to write this lead for the column today, was to address it to our readers who have diabetes or who have diabetic patients to cook for. But the mail arrived and one of the letters was from Mrs. A. who said: "We are a group of women who are starting an afternoon get—together to do our mending and as we are all trying to lose a few pounds were wondering if you have a recipe for a low-calorie cookie or cake that we could have with our tea.. . ."—Mrs. M.A.

You will find 2 low-calorie-count cookie recipes and a recipe for a low-calorie-count cake here, so the reducers can be in on this too.

Please be warned. You cannot fool around with these recipes. In the beginning you have to be prepared to follow the instructions to the letter. (Dear me—whatever makes me doubt that you would not!)

CINNAMON COOKIES

(Approx. 32 cal. per cookie.)

Cream 5 tablespoons soft shortening. Sift together 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon baking powder. Blend this thoroughly into the creamed shortening. Mix together 2 teaspoons vanilla and 1 tablespoon of milk or fruit juice or coffee and dissolve in this small mixture of liquids 12 sucaryl tablets or add to it 1 1-2 teaspoon sucaryl solution (this latter is a liquid form of sucaryl which may now be bought at your drug store). Stir this into the first mixture well. Sprinkle 1 teaspoon cinnamon over the dough and knead it just enough to give the dough a mottled appearance. Pick up small pieces of dough in the hands and roll between palms into balls. Arrange on lightly buttered cookie pan. Flatten the cookies with a fork moistened in cold water. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 12 or 14 minutes or until edges are tinged with gold.

ORANGE SLICES

(Approx. 29 cal. per cookie.)

In 1-4 cup fresh orange juice and 1 teaspoon vanilla dissolve 14 sucaryl tablets or add 1 3-4 teaspoons sucaryl solution (see note in above recipe). Cream 1-4 cup shortening thoroughly. Sift together 1 cup sifted flour, 1-4 teaspoon each salt and baking powder and sift it over the creamed shortening. Blend in thoroughly. Add 1 tablespoon grated orange rind and if desired 1 scant teaspoon anise seed or 1-4 cup finely chopped walnuts. (If walnuts are added calorie-count per cookie is 36.) Knead dough in bowl then shape into roll about 2 inches in diameter. Wrap in wax paper and chill in refrigerator until very firm. With sharp knife cut into 1-8 inch slices and bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 12 minutes.

LOW-CALORIE SPONGE CAKE

(8 servings—1 serving 169 cal.)

Beat 2 eggs until very light, then beat into them 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Measure 1-2 cup skim milk and add to it 1 tablespoon butter or margarine and either 24 sucaryl tablets or 1 tablespoon butter or margarine and either 24 sucaryl tablets or 1 tablespoon sucaryl solution (see note in first recipe) and heat to just below boiling point. Stir. Beat into first mixture. Sift enriched flour and measure 1 cup and sift it with 1 1-4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder over mixture in bowl. (If single-acting baking powder is used increase it to 2 1-2 teaspoons.) Beat batter. Bake at once in greased square cake pan about 8x8x2 inches or 2 buttered 7-inch layer cake tins at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 25 or 30 minutes.

When cake is cool frost with

SPONGE CAKE TOPPING

Chill 1 cup evaporated milk in freezing tray of refrigerator until tiny ice crystals form around edges. Chill your beater bowl and beater too. Beat the chilled milk in chilled bowl until it is stiff enough to hold its shape. Add 1-2 teaspoon suchryl solution (see note in first recipe) or 4 sucaryl tablets dissolved in 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat in. Use vanilla if sucaryl solution is used too. This topping deteriorates after first day in appearance, but tastes just as good as when fresh.

I will make extra copies of this, so if anyone wants it they may write to me in care of this paper but please enclose stamped self-addressed envelopes.

Fashion Flashes

FIRESIDE DREAMING is helped along by a pretty outfit consisting of a cardigan-neckline sweater blouse of black velvet, edged with embroidery of big mock jewel stones and silver thread. With it are tapered slacks in matching velvet.

GETTING MORE DRESSY each season, that's the glove story. Gray doeskin is used for a new glove, its cuff inset with an embroidered bracelet of colored stones and silver thread in a contoured floral design flanked by smaller motifs.

CHANGING FAST is the topper, with many new models in the advance showings. New is a three-quarter topcoat, very slim, its cardigan neckline without fastening and draped to stay in place. Full, bracelet-length sleeves have slit cuffs.

A RETURNING TRAVELLER brought with her a mighty useful handbag. A fine, big calfskin satchel with bellows gussets, it has a large panel of transparent mica at either side to hold maps and tickets.

SHIMMERING HATS are lovely, and; better still, many are packable. In the latter category is a head-hugging, peaked turban made entirely of pearlized sequins, with sapphire stone hatpins accenting the folds at the top of the crown in front.

Fiance objects, and should, to giving engagement ring "in public"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My "best girl" and I have just become engaged. She and I went to the jeweller's to buy the engagement ring, and it is being marked. Our engagement is to be announced soon at a party to be given by her mother and father at their home. Everything is rosy—except one thing. My fiancee is insisting that I wait and give her the engagement ring in front of all the guests at the announcement party. But I've never heard of such a thing, and neither has my family nor any of the friends I've asked. I think this should be a private affair. I certainly could not say the things I want to say to her (as I put the ring on her finger) before a lot of relatives and friends, most of whom I haven't even met yet. Barbara says she's written you several times in the past few years, and you've given her good advice, and so we've chosen you as referee. What do you say, Mrs. Beeckman?—Bob and Babs.

You are right, sir, in your point of view. This romantic ceremony of the giving-of-the-engagement ring should be held in private, just you and she together. I'm positive you'll be able to win your Barbara over to your point of view by intriguing her with the idea that, as you put the ring on her finger, you have something very special you want to say to her pretty ears only, not for "public speaking"!

Bride may wear white wedding dress and veil, even when groom has been married before

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter's engagement has just been announced. Her fiance is a widower, much older than she is. She has never been married before, and has, like most girls, dreamed of having a large church wedding and being dressed like a real bride—white wedding gown, wedding veil, and so forth. She and I would like to know if this is permissible.—Mother.

Yes. This is permissible, entirely proper. Since this is the bride's first marriage, she may wear a white wedding gown and bridal veil and have a large formal church wedding. The fact that the groom has been married before, and the fact that he is much older than she, does not affect these plans. Her dream of being "dressed like a real bride" can come true!

Wedding attendants may be either married or unmarried

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion we are having about my daughter's June wedding, will you please answer this: May the attendants at a wedding, either the bride's attendants or the groom's attendants, be married persons?—H. K.

Yes. Wedding attendants may be either married or unmarried.

Sleep and Sweet Forgetfulness

With the world in a state of confusion, it is not surprising that insomnia is on the increase. It would seem as if few medicine cabinets are considered equipped without sleeping pills. Elderly people look back to that wonderful era of tranquility before the First World War, pray that we can experience it again.

Wakefulness and restless nights are a menace to good looks as well as to health. Sleep is a preservative of youthful appearance and a rejuvenating influence. With nature making repairs during slumber, there is less chance of early wrinkles.

Some women seem to feel that sleep is a waste of time. They get to bed late, get up early. They prowl around the house at all hours. After a busy day, it is essential that the energy motors be recharged, the nervous system relaxed. One should awaken refreshed, with an up-and-at-'em feeling, ready for whatever the new day may bring. Habitual deficiency of sleep will undermine the strongest constitution.

A half hour of relaxation before crawling in between the sheets will often condition one for rest. Sometimes a warm bath will help one to relax. One should remain for five or ten minutes in the tub — eyes closed, muscles limp. After that have a brisk rubdown with a heavy towel to stir up sluggish blood streams.

Some time spent before the dressing table will help to pick one us. The face should be creamed, the hands anointed, the hair brushed and tucked under a wave cap. With many hard-working women, this is about the only time they find to be alone, to think things over. It should be a peaceful period. There is such a thing as being so tired you can't sleep.

Have a current of air in the bedroom. Covers should be just right, so that one is warm and comfortable, but not too warm. The mattress should be even and firm.

A few stretching exercises may encourage relaxation. Lie on your back in bed, hands at the sides, head thrown far back on the pillow. Stretch arms and fingers. Send the feet down to the footboard, then let the legs relax. Stretch your body as if you were trying to tear it apart at the mid-section, then go limp again.

Teen-agers seldom get as much sleep as they should, and no amount of scolding seems to do much good. With school work and social affairs, they need eight hours no less.

FOUNTAIN OF THE VIRGIN

An impression of The Fountain of the Virgin, which is the water supply today at Nazareth just as it was in the time of Joseph and Mary.

The Greatest Story Ever Told

By Fulton Oursler

CHAPTER I

THE MAN WHO WAITED

People in Nazareth said that Joseph was like his great ancestor, the favorite son of Jacob. It was true that the carpenter with his small golden beard, so different from his black-haired neighbors, was a dreamy, quiet-spoken man, looking more like a scholar than a craftsman.

With his great knotty hands Joseph could build a house or a fence, fashion a chair or a bench, hang a door, mend a wheel, build a new plow or yoke.

But Joseph with his prematurely bald head was called a visionary because he refrained from gambling with travellers of passing caravans; he avoided tavern women, and found his pleasure in good talk with a few neighbors. Among Nazarenes these were queer habits, for generally they were a rowdy lot.

This town lying hidden in the mountains was near a post on a busy trade route between Europe and Asia, so there was often excitement in the neighborhood, a tide flowing back and forth of camels and baled merchandise—fragrances, spicery, silks, wines and oils. The townsfolk got their news from those travellers. They were rough men, these merchants and camel drivers, and the people of the town were rough, too, ready to brawl, to gamble and haggle—ready for anything!

Late one afternoon Samuel of Cana stood on the threshold of Joseph's shop, at the end of the Street of the Coppersmith. The young merchant was tall and powerful against the fading light.

"The Lord be unto you," he said politely.

"And peace be with you, Samuel. Come in. Your chest of good Galilean oak and sycamore is finished and I am about to eat. Join me?"

"No, I have just eaten. But thank you."

The giant Samuel sprawled on the floor, while Joseph, forsaking chisel, adze, and saw, squatted on his bare heels and spread out bread and curds and a cup of milk.

A Cure for Loneliness

"Who fixed you such a dainty meal?" asked Samuel suspiciously.

"When a man is an orphan and has no wife, he must learn to do for himself."

"You are lonely, Joseph?"

"Sometimes."

Joseph chuckled. "I can guess!"

"No," Samuel cried vindictively. "I've long ago given up trying to make an adult out of you, Joseph. No amourettes, no little love affairs for you! Of course you don't know what you're missing, but my thoughts for your future were elsewhere."

"Where then?"

"Jerusalem!"

"Are there not enough carpenters in the big city?"

"Carpenters, bah! Joseph, don't you ever have a thought beyond your work?"

Joseph blinked self-consciously.

"Why, yes, Samuel, I think about many things that have nothing at all to do with my work."

"What, for instance?"

"Oh—the law."

"Bah! I and many like me are tired of being taught about the patriarchs and the judges and the prophets—the history of Israel. We are tired of more than that. We have had enough of being ruled by foreign powers; we are all slaves, run by Herod for the benefit of Rome, and what has Rome to do with us? We want to be free!"

"Oh," said Joseph. "That again! Better lower your voice, Samuel."

Spies and Collaborators

JOSEPH

The danger was real. Roman spies were everywhere. One learned not to speak ideas aloud. In the last century there had been a series of hapless rebellions in the land. Some of the best of the young men of the province, healthy and strong ones, enthusiastic ones, had perished in those feeble and foredoomed revolts—thousands of patriots dying for Israel during the one hundred years the Romans had held Israel.

Ah, Samuel could tell Joseph, conditions were getting much worse. Rich and powerful men of their own nation were collaborating with the invaders, fattening their fortunes by betraying their own people. How long must they endure slavery with treason thrown in? Did Joseph realize that in every village young men were once more plotting to throw the Romans out and make the people free? Why would Joseph not join?

Ever since Joseph could remember impetuous youths in Nazareth had been planning a secret, melodramatic resistance against the Romans, but it never came to anything more than talk.

"Don't you love your own country?" prodded Samuel reproachfully. "Aren't you one of us in spirit, at least?"

Joseph's smile was quizzical. Poor workmen that he was, he belonged to the house of David and his line ran back, all the way to Jacob who was of Isaac, who was of Abraham; and farther than that, even, to Seth who was of Adam, who was of God.

The smile deepened as he patted the knee of his impetuous friend. This revolutionist really did want to save Israel. But how? By uprising, by blood, by death. In the holy books prophets had promised salvation for their people. But salvation was to come, according to these ancient writers, when a messenger was born, the long-promised Messiah, who would lead the nation to peace. Joseph believed his books, therefore a good man must not turn to blood and death to hasten salvation. And Joseph was well aware that every son of the house of David was being watched.

News From Jerusalem

"But have you heard the news from Jerusalem?" demanded Samuel, impatient of books. "King Herod has murdered more of his family—he has already murdered one wife, as you remember—and every day of his life he kills our own innocent and helpless people, according to his whims. As a sensible man, how can you depend on promises made hundreds of years ago, when today—"

"When today," Joseph interrupted, "The God of Israel is still the same Lord. We must rely on him, and, Samuel, don't let me hear you say bah to that, for that would be blasphemy."

"Bah!" insisted Samuel fiercely. "Go and report me. Let them put me to death for blasphemy—I would rather die than live like a slave. Do you really mean that we should go on submitting to unspeakable Herod—and Rome—and do nothing?"

"The ruin of our people," Joseph retorted, "has always been to depart from faith and depend on their own powers. We know that a deliverer will come—and we've just got to wait."

"Do you think the Messiah is coming tomorrow—perhaps the next day?"

"Who knows?" asked Joseph simply.

"I would still like to know," persisted Samuel, "whether you expect to live to know the Messiah."

Joseph chuckled. What a fanciful idea!

"A workman like me know Him? What would a poor carpenter know about such great affairs? No, I look forward to a quiet life."

"And lonely, Joseph. You said so."

Joseph waggled a great forefinger amiably.

"Not at all. I do not expect to be lonely forever. Like any other man, I want a wife in my house. . . ."

"Well, I hope you find the girl of your heart, my friend."

Different From All Others

Joseph did not seem to be listening. His eyes were on the doorway; he was staring out into the street as if he were expecting some wonderful vision.

"I have already found her," he confided. "She is very young—and very different from all other women in the world." . . .

"Come out of your trance, Joseph, and tell me how this girl is so different."

"She is not as any of the others are; that is all I know how to tell you. Look, Samuel, she is coming toward us now."

Samuel strode to the doorway.

"Don't stare," admonished Joseph severely.

"Everything about her is more than ordinary," murmured Joseph, and there was a distant look in the blue eyes as if he were enraptured by the strains of music.

The shadowed street was almost empty as a girl came toward them down the narrow pavement. Dark hair framed the pale face above the light blue mantle and the intense blue eyes set so wide apart. She walked in grace.

"Joseph," said Samuel, lowering his voice, "there may be something in what you say. That girl is somehow different. Yes, she is. Can it be the expression? It is most unusual; it is, why . . .look. . .it has me stammering, man. . .Never have I seen such serenity on any face," he acknowledged. "It gives me, my friend, a strange sort of feeling."

Then Samuel shook himself and with forced heartiness turned into the shop again.

Shy But Unafraid

"No wonder you won't go with me to Jerusalem," he barked. "Tell me, has that maiden promised. . ."

Joseph sank dismally on the bench.

"I have never even spoken to her," he admitted.

With a boisterous laugh Samuel laid a hairy hand on the bald head.

"Shy as ever, Joseph, he teased. "You have to pluck up your courage, boy. Don't be losing time."

Joseph looked up with an air that gave a sudden strength to his face.

"I am not afraid," he said quietly.

Samuel snorted loudly. "You don't know her parents?"

"Not yet. They have just come here from Jerusalem."

"Have you never learned her name?"

"Her name?" Joseph looked up. "Oh yes, I know that."

"Tell me, then, before I go."

"Her name," said Joseph, "is Mary!"

Author of 'The Greatest Story Ever Told' Tells His Reasons For Writing Inspiring Narrative

By FULTON OURSLER

This is the story of Jesus.

It is a chronology of events from the betrothal of Mary and Joseph to the days after the Resurrection, and the episodes are taken from four Gospels. What is imaginative in the narrative is largely details to fill in chinks left open in the Bible accounts; nothing has been included that did not seem a reasonable assumption from the records.

In writing anew the wonderful life of Jesus, the author has had but one thought in mind, and that was to induce readers to go to the Gospels and hear the story at first hand. It was Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof, of a great Jewish temple in Pittsburgh, Pa., who said to me at dinner one evening that the unspoken scandal of our times was the hidden fact that Bible-reading had been largely given up in America.

Later, as I travelled around the country and talked to many different kinds of men and women—fellow passengers in pullman and day coach, stenographers, lecture committee chairmen—I made casual allusions in conversation to Biblical passages. I soon discovered that references which in my boyhood were cliches of front porch talk had no meaning whatever for these later companions. Even such obvious phrases as "Thirty pieces of silver" or "The talent buried in a napkin" or "The angel that troubled the waters" left many listeners with blank stares. Yet when I explained the meaning, their interest was clear; a sample from the great history invariably aroused the appetite for more.

These experiments helped me to come to a long-considered resolution. Ever since my first visit to Palestine in 1935 I had been tempted. A tour of Galilee, Samaria, Judea, and Transjordania had evoked in me a deep interest in Christianity which had filled me up when I was young. Now, after 25 years of contented agnosticism, I was stirred up again. I began to read various chronologies by which Catholic and Protestant theologians had sought to straighten out the apparent confusions and contradictions in the Gospels. This book follows none of the established time and sequence formulae but draws from several, in what seemed to the writer the most natural and probable line.

The book is not offered as an explanation or an interpretation. It is rather an attempt to tell, faithfully, just what the four Apostles, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, assert to have happened in those 33 years of the life of Jesus. It is further an effort to state the believing Christian's understanding of the meaning of those years. There is no intention here to rationalize or to hunt out a symbolism. While sometimes dramatized, the story is completely faithful to the literal statements of the text.

With much help and counsel I have told here the great story once more—the story of the greatest event in human history. For once upon a time and long ago it actually happened, according to the faith of true believers, among whom the author counts himself.

God, who had fashioned time and space in a clockwork of billions of suns and stars and moons, in the form of His Beloved Son became a human being like ourselves. On this microscopic midge of planet. He remained for 33 years. He became a real man and the only perfect one. While continuing to be the true God, He was born in a stable and lived as a working man and died on a cross.

He came to show us how to live, not for a few years but eternally. He explained truths that would make our souls joyous and free.

This is the story of Jesus—the greatest story ever told.

Dust Blizzards Similar to '30's Hit Mid-West

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Winds up to 80 miles an hour secured up black blizzards Sunday similar to the dustbowl blows of the 1930s in parts of Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado.

They swirled dust 12,000 to 13,000 feet high in western Kansas, smashed windows and pushed over trees in western Nebraska and tore down telephone and power lines in Colorado.

No loss of life was reported.

Whistling grit cut visibility practically to nil in the plains areas of the states and stopped or slowed highway travel.

Gales jamming through northern Colorado's Rockies pushed snow into road blocks and made travel hazardous on highways through three passes.

"It's the worst storm in a long time — probably since the 30s," Ted Clark, newspaper man at Holyoke in northeastern Colorado, told the Associated Press. The telephone report was interrupted at times as wind whipped lines together. He estimated gusts at 65 miles an hour.

Gusts of 80 miles an hour smashed the Sidney area of western Nebraska, pushing over trees, breaking windows, ripping off shingles and blowing down television aerials.

The north winds tore through western Kansas at from 40 to 60 miles an hour. The civil aeronautics authority reported the dust billows more than two miles high. Dodge City police set up a road block to stop traffic. Cars were ditched in the Great Bend area.

Comment on Case Brings Warning By Chief Justice

HALIFAX (CP) — Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley of Nova Scotia warned newspapers Saturday against commenting on a court sentence while the case is still pending.

He referred to the Nov. 28 issue of a Sydney weekly which carried editorial comment on a sentence imposed on Ralph Waldo Gregor, New Waterford bandleader found guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter in the death last July of his wife Olive.

The Crown appealed the seven-year sentence and the Supreme Court raised it to 15 years, finding the original punishment "inadequate."

Chief Justice Ilsley said the editorial appeared ten days after sentence was imposed "and of course before the time for appeal had passed.

"I should like to make it clear that any comment on a sentence should not be made while the case is still pending, otherwise it may be adjudged contempt of court. A case is still pending until the time for appeal has passed or until the appeal has been heard and judgment pronounced."

Theft of Tires Leads to Arrest, Loot Recovered

TILLSONBURG (CP)—Arrest of two men charged with stealing $400 worth of tires led to recovery by police here of between $3,000 and $4,000 worth of loot stolen from half a dozen Ontario centres, including Mayor Allan Lamport's home in Toronto.

Police indicated that other charges will be laid. Toronto detectives have been called in to assist in identifying some of the stolen articles.

Police recovered four or five refrigerators, household furniture, radios, electric clocks, and other articles believed stolen from Toronto, Hamilton, Sudbury and other Ontario points in a widespread series of thefts within the last month.

Communist Poland Trying To Build Fleet Second Only To Soviet Behind Iron Curtain

VIENNA (AP)—Under Moscow's direction, Communist Poland is straining great industrial effort to build up a merchant fleet second only to Russia's behind the Iron Curtain.

Poland also has begun a strategic project of inland waterways for commercial and military use that will link Russia with the coal and steel of East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Both developments have been disclosed in official announcements of the Polish government reaching here. They apparently are part of the Soviet Union's efforts to build up an integrated economic system behind the Iron Curtain that one day may seriously challenge the West's economic dominance.

Poland's growing fleet now is being used for trade between Russia, China, the "peoples democracies," South America, India and the Far East. It is reported to be moving Czech armaments to China via Portuguese Goa and Macau.

Of military importance, too, is the plan to build a canal connecting the Vistula and the Bug rivers and to widen the wild, unproductive Vistula from the Baltic to Warsaw, where a new inland port is being built.

The waterways will provide the means whereby Silesian coal and steel can be shipped to Russia.

Before 1938, Polish navigation was insignificant. At the end of the war, port installations were almost completely destroyed. What Polish shipping had escaped Russian and German confiscation was sunk or dispersed.

But now, along Poland's 300-mile Baltic sea coast, the Communists say a shipbuilding "revolution" is taking place, the first phase of which will be completed in 1956. The Communists claim ports have been repaired and expanded, wrecks have been salvaged and new ships are coming off the ways faster than ever in Poland's history.

Gydnia is the main headquarters of the Polish merchant fleet.

According to United Nations statistics, Poland ha.. 101,000 gross tons of shipping in 1938. By June, 1949, she had 43 ships with 161,312 gross tons. Nineteen of these ships were loaned by Russia.

In June, 1952, according to the United Nations, Poland was estimated to have increased her gross tonnage to 241,000. A Communist announcement said the new ships include ocean-going cargo and ore and coal carriers as well as smaller cargo ships for "Baltic traffic"—meaning traffic between East Europe and Russia's Baltic ports.

By 1956, Poland's optimistic plan calls for a "six-fold increase in the capacity of our fleet over prewar," said a recent government statement.

Behind the Baltic coastline, say the Communists, workers are extending the network of roads and rail lines connecting Stettin and other smaller ports with Gydnia and Danzig.

Diplomatic reports say thousands of workers also are engaged in building naval installations about which nothing appears in the controlled press. These installations will be of primary value to Russia's expanding Baltic fleet.

Youngest Son of Chiang Kai-Shek Once Buck Private in German Army

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—President Chiang Kai-shek's younger son, Wego, visiting the United States this month for a special orientation course, is a tough professional soldier, once a buck private in the German Army.

He speaks Chinese, German and English. He is a skilled horseman, an experienced hunter and knows how to fly a plane. He is a hard worker and a good mixer. Friends vouch for his sincerity when he says, "I love people."

Withdrawn to Formosa

Wego's units fought their last battle on the mainland at Shanghai, in 1949, then were withdrawn to Formosa for reorganization.

Wego told them to develop still further "the skill and will to kill, especially the will." Today that's the unofficial motto of the armored force.

Wego was born at Shanghai in 1916. In 1936, a year before hostilities started between China and Japan, he was sent to Germany where he enlisted in a mountain regiment as a private. It was at that time that he chose to call himself Wego instead of Wei-kuo.

He took part in the German march into Austria and the occupation of the Sudetenland. He quit the German Army in 1939 when the Axis was formed among Germany, Italy and Japan. China was fighting Japan.

Wego then paid his first visit to the U. S.. He attended an Air Corps tactical school, was graduated, then spent some weeks at an armored training center.

Called Home in 1940

At the end of 1940, he was called home for active service against Japan and commissioned a second lieutenant of the first division.

In service with two divisions, he was in action many times.

He was appointed chief of staff when the armored force command was activated at Nanking March 1, 1948. The next year he was made deputy commander. On March 1, 1950, in Formosa, he became commanding general.

Wego's father, Chiang Kai-shek, has never spoiled him. Wego never enjoyed special privileges during his Army training.

He is spoiling for a chance to go back in action against the Chinese Reds whom he hates fiercely.

"Never speak of ours being a civil war," he says.

"It's not a civil war. Chinese are not fighting Chinese. When a Chinese becomes a Communist, he ceases to be a Chinese."

Rugged North Setting for Gay Trappers' Festival at The Pas

THE PAS, Man. (CP) — The modern counterparts of dangerous Dan McGrew are gathering in this northern Manitoba town for the biggest blowout since old Dan breathed his last in the Malemute saloon.

The northern Manitoba trappers' festival, to run four days starting Tuesday, has all the color of a county fair combined with the excitement of a wild-west rodeo.

Four-Day Race

The race goes in four laps, run in four days. The mushers will travel from The Pas to Cranberry Portage, from there to Flin Flon, then back to The Pas, stopping again at Cranberry Portage.

First prize is $1,000 and a trophy. A second prize of $700 and a third of $400 plus prizes of $100 a day for the fastest laps provide further incentive for the racers.

The race will bring memories of other days to old-time winners like Bill Grayson of Island Falls and William (Shorty) Russick of Flin Flon who topped them all when the event went 200 miles across unbroken trails and a musher slept in a wind-protected snowbank, rested on the open trail and kept his energy up with tea or coffee.

The rollicking party offers a number of tests of skill and luck including a net-setting contest, a dog handling competition in which contestants do not use either their hands or a whip but guide the animals by voice alone, a fishing-through-the-ice contest and tea-boiling, trap-setting and rat-skinning contests.

Trappers Contests

The more athletic will be attracted to the greased pole climb in which the men, dressed in moccasins and parkas, must climb a slippery pine pole.

A torch light parade and grand opening ball will start the festival. Other evening activities include a vaudeville show, numerous modern and old time dances and on the final night, the queen's ball, which will feature the crowning of the Fur Queen of the North, from among numerous candidates of northern towns.

An Indian trading post will be set up in the town featuring beadwork, silkwork and leatherwork.

Army and RCAF detachments will provide artillery fireworks and flares and low formation and stunt flying.

Detroit Red Wings Defeat Chihawks 3-1 For Eighth Victory Of Season

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

All right, all right, all right. So the red-hot Peterborough Petes, who could have trimmed Detroit's Red Wings last night the way they were flying and sniping, shellacked the Glens 13-8 to turn this senior "B" dog-fight into a snarling, every-man-for-himself mad melange of hockey.

More important is what is happening and what is liable to happen before the curtain falls on one of the "sizzlingest" hockey dramas ever enacted in this neck of the woods.

Let's see what can happen before we draw attention to the committee room extras.

The way matters stand now the Glens and Kingston are tied with 26 points and following last night's victory the upsurging Petes have 25 dots. Kingston and Peterborough clash in a do-or-die struggle, the final game of the schedule, in Kingston Friday night, and on that game hinges the fate of each of the trio. A Kingston victory will eliminate the Petes, while a Petes' victory will toss the Liftlockers out in front with 27 points. Then Glens, who meet Orillia here Saturday night, can forge into top spot with 28 points and eliminate the Kingston team. All they have to do is whip Orillia.

But don't go away. This morning's despatches say that a Kingston protest of an Orillia player has been upheld by the OHA master-minds and the game must be replayed "if it affects the standing." That means if the Goodies are eliminated in section play they have another kick at the kitty through the replay.

If such is forthcoming and the Goodies whip Orillia, then the Petes are out providing the Glens win here next Saturday night. Then there's the possibility of tie games. But you take it from here. It all boils down to what happens in Kingston on Friday night, and the way the Petes are travelling, it should be a thriller-diller of a battle.

WEATHER FAIR!

Should any of you Florida-bound baseball addicts happen to linger a while in St. Petersburg, take a stroll along the Pass-a-Grill Beach on the city's outskirts, and you'll get a mighty important signature to add to your autograph albums.

Furthermore, if you talk kid's baseball, you'll have one of the best "listeners" that ever cocked an ear.

You can't miss him. He'll be dressed in a conservative blue serge suit with a high stiff collar and a "quiet" tie. He'll be seated in a beach-chair, with a large black umbrella shading him from the sun. Don't be afraid to walk up to him and talk to him. In fact if he sees you coming, you'll get the first greeting.

Ted, with brother Albert of Toronto, was spending a quiet vacation in the Florida holiday-spot when he spotted the dean of American baseball celebrities. He is the venerable Connie Mack, of Philadelphia Athletics fame, who yesterday had the honor of having the well known Shibe Park in Philly named after him.

The near-ninety boss of the Athletics was, like Ted, spending a quiet vacation in St. Petersburg. Every afternoon he sits in his beach-chair dressed in the famous "blue-serge". In the background hovers a Cadillac with uniformed chauffeur. When not busy talking "shop" or autographing baseball programs, pieces of paper and whatnot, Connie sits with eyes half closed, dreaming dreams of "one more pennant" before the Great Umpire calls the final third strike.

Ted and brother strolled past what seemed to be a sleeping celebrity. On the third passage, Connie opened his eyes and smiled. Ted and brother approached and were greeted with a cheery wave of the hand.

When Ted said he was interested in, and sponsored minor baseball, Mack's eyes lighted up. For anything he loves besides his Athletics is "kids' baseball." At one time he was "swamped" with some sixty youngsters waiting his autograph when an aide interposed, fearing the exertion might be too tiring. Connie waved him away, and completed the job for the happy youngsters.

He likes the chances of his Athletics this year. Eddie Robinson, he figures will do a good job. Jimmy Dykes is the "white-haired" boy in Connie' book, and maybe there was a wistful gleam in the old gentleman's eyes when he mentioned pennant.

Mr. Mack, says Ted, is still mentally brilliant. The mind that won nine pennants hasn't lost any of its baseball ability. He is friendly, affable and wears his crown of "celebrity" modestly.

Rounding out a "baseball" vacation, Ted visited Max Lanier's Diamond Club night-spot. Max, the stormy petrel of baseball, what with Mexican league and "banishment" to the Quebec league, operates a colorful night club in St. Petersburg, between pitching chores with the big loops.

And the proudest youngster in Belleville after his return to the city was Ted's son Steven, who was the recipient of an autographed menu of Max' place. While "Poppa" Ted was more or less interested in the price of steaks, chops, lobster thermidor, oysters, etc., young Stevy's eyes popped when he saw the back cover of the gold-and-black colored menu. On it were the autographs of the entire New York Giants' team from "The Lip" down to the water boy.

MOIRAS WIN!

Belleville Moiras took a stranglehold on the first-round intermediate "B" basketball series in Brockville last night, defeating the river-city team 60-51, to bring back a nine-point lead in the points-to-count series. The teams clash in the BCI gymnasium here tomorrow night in the second game of the series. Game gets under way at 8 o'clock and court fans should not miss a hoop thriller.

Gordie Howe Held Scoreless But Aids Record With Assist; Wings Score 3 in 24 Minutes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Detroit Red Wings could spend all their time playing Chicago Hawks the rest of the National Hockey League could take the winter off and wait for the play-offs.

The Wings have beaten the Black Hawks eight times in 11 meetings this season.

The Hawks, NHL doormat in past seasons, have had a good run for the money this year. They led the league for a spell, and even now, when they appear to have run out of steam in their current fifth-place spot, they can still make things rough for some of the glamor clubs in the circuit.

But whenever Detroit shows up, they have an unhappy habit of doing everything wrong.

Same Old Story

It was the same old story Monday night, as they visited the Wings, spotted them three goals in 24 minutes and spent the rest of the evening trying to catch up. Ex-Detroiter Jimmy McFadden cut the margin by one, but Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk held them off the rest of the way for a 3-1 setback.

That made it eight wins, two ties and a single loss for the Wings against their Chicago cousins for the season.

The Hawks kept a sharp eye on Gordie Howe, who tallied the 200th and 201st goals of his career at Chicago's expense Sunday. Big Gordie had 10 shots on Al Rollins, but the Hawk netminder stopped five and the others were wide of the mark.

Howe managed to pick up an assist on Ted Lindsay's first-period marker, running his point total to 75—just 11 short of the NHL record set in 1951 and equalled last year.

Glen Skov and Marty Pavelich drove home the other Detroit goals in the second period.

Everyone in the NHL takes a holiday tonight. The Wings move into Toronto for a date with the fourth-place Maple Leafs Wednesday while Boston Bruins visit New York Rangers.

STATISTICS FOR CAR OWNERS AND DRIVERS!!

Speeding, drinking and driving, driving on the wrong side of the road and ignoring the rights of others cause nearly 70% of all traffic deaths.

Under-25 drivers make up 15% of the driving public but are involved in 30% of all fatal accidents.

Three out of every 10 fatal accidents brought death to themselves or others, simply because they were driving too fast.

More than 80% of all accidents occur on perfectly dry highways.

Regina School Leads Junior Curling Spiel

SASKATOON (CP)—Regina Scott Collegiate got off on the right foot in defending the Canadian school curling championship for Saskatchewan, but the quartet had to do a little fancy dancing to get the right foot out.

Twice the Regina quartet skipped by Dennie Cochrane had to score two in the 10th and final ends to gain ties and force extra play.

Twice they came through with a pair of points on the extra ends for a 9-7 win over Northern Ontario and a 12-10 victory over British Columbia.

Nova Scotia and Alberta stayed with Saskatchewan with two wins apiece. Right behind are New Brunswick, Ontario, Manitoba and Northern Ontario with a win and a loss. Quebec, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island have lost twice.

The high school champions battling for the title won the last two years by Saskatoon play two games today, three Wednesday and wind up their round robin with a pair Thursday.

Nova Scotia beat Manitoba 12-8 and then edged Ontario 10-9 Monday. Alberta won 11-7 over Prince Edward Island and then came from behind to nick New Brunswick 8-7.

Manitoba, after losing to Nova Scotia, rallied in the second round to whip Quebec 9-5. Northern Ontario recovered from Saskatchewan's garrison finish to outscore Prince Edward Island 13-10.

New Brunswick, after winning 9-7 over Quebec, lost to Alberta. It was the same story for Ontario. Ontario beat British Columbia 19-9 but then was edged by Nova Scotia.

Brooklyn Gets Pitcher Russ Meyer In Four-Team Player-Swap Melee

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Hot-headed Russ Meyer, who won 13 games for Philadelphia last year, was traded to Brooklyn Monday as a series of swaps involving four clubs scrambled player-talent in half the National League.

Brooklyn, Boston and Philadelphia were the principals in a fast-moving game of "who owns Russ Meyer?" with Cincinnati later joining the party.

At one stage the Dodgers had announced a trade with Boston for Meyer while, as far as everybody knew, Meyer still belonged to the Phillies.

Finally Cleared

Here are the developments:

1. Brooklyn gets pitcher Meyer.
2. Philadelphia gets first baseman Earl Torgeson.
3. Boston gets first baseman Joe Adcock, shortstop Jim Pendleton and cash.
4. Cincinnati gets infielder Rocky Bridges and a Boston player to be announced later.

The result may well have an important bearing on the National League pennant race. Meyer's acquisition by Brooklyn, which has been looking for a regular starting pitcher since the World Series, could be an important move.

Meyer, 29, is a righthander with good stuff, although a little hard to control when his temper flares high. He has been a solid pitcher in the National League with a better than .500 lifetime record since he came up with Chicago in 1946. Last year he had a 13-14 season with the Phillies.

With Preacher Roe, Billy Loes, Carl Erskine, Joe Black and Meyer the Dodgers will be much stronger in pitching than they were a year ago.

The Phillies hope they picked up a long ball hitting first baseman in the 29-year-old Torgeson although the bespectacled veteran had a poor .230 season in 1952. He is a lefthanded hitter and can ride the ball out of the park on occasion.

Boston got a replacement for Torgeson from Cincinnati in Joe Adcock, a righthanded hitter who has a burning desire to play first base. The other new Bostonian is Pendleton, a 27-year-old Negro who hit [illegible] and clouted 11 homers for Montreal in 1952.

Cincinnati winds up with Bridges who has filled in around the infield for the Dodgers the last two years with great efficiency.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This is the last of two articles on the life and hockey works of one of the great figures of the game, Captain James T. Sutherland, founder of the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Whether the ancient city of Kingston was the scene of the first organized hockey ever played in Canada, this writer is not prepared to say. But there is little doubt but that one of the first organized hockey leagues of all times was that which, in 1888, engaged four teams, in the ancient Limestone City, including Queen's University and Royal Military College, a league that played its games on an outdoor rink surrounded by a low fence, with the spectators seated atop the great banks of snow piled around the playing surface. It was after this that Queen's University erected one of the earlier indoor rinks in Canada.

The city of Kingston then organized a team called the Frontenacs in honor of Count Frontenac, whose name the city originally bore. Jim Sutherland was selected to act as manager of the team and the records show that the Frontenacs wrote some of hockey's brightest pages down the years. Their greatest glory came when the juniors won the O.H.A. championship in 1911 and established scoring records that have never been even remotely approached.

Yes, indeed, those Frontenacs were a mighty force 41 years ago. With Jim Sutherland at the helm, they filled enemy nets with rubber and racked up as many as 32 goals in one game. Their combination attacks have never been surpassed, if equalled, and the greatest of them all was gallant Allan "Scotty" Davidson, who later deserted professional hockey to enlist in the Canadian armed forces of World War 1, and gave up his life in Flanders Field.

Jim Sutherland also marched away to war in 1916, the year that he became president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. He was then in his 46th year, but the will to serve was inherited from his Scottish ancestors and nothing could have deterred him from following that path of duty. And he did serve so well that he was recommended for the Order of the British Empire.

Hockey did not seem to be the same in Kingston with Jim Sutherland 'stick-handling' against the Germans on the Western Front, but it staged a remarkable recovery after he returned. Kingston then celebrated in a championship setting when the Frontenacs captured the O.H.A. intermediate title in 1919, with none other than the mighty Bill Cook, who became a star in the Western League and later with New York Rangers, the outstanding star of the series.

Mr. Sutherland, having planted the seed, now eagerly awaits that day when the International Hockey Hall of Fame will rise in all majesty in Kingston. When this has been accomplished it should be written high upon the walls that "unto this man who saw and believed, must go the accolade for tenacity in following a star on which no sun will ever go down."

Peterborough Petes Defeat Glen Roys 13-8 In Wide-Open Senior Game

Peterborough, Feb. 17 (Special) Downing Belleville Glens 13-8 here last night, the Petes kept right in the thick of the mad OHA senior "B" group scramble for a playoff berth. Their victory put them just half a game back of the tied Kingston and Belleville clubs with the schedule winding up this week. The Petes must win their last game in Kingston on Friday to catch a playoff spot.

More than 1,800 fans whooped it up at the hectic action in the wide-open fray. Though it wasn't the best of hockey, it was sizzling excitement all through, and quite a clean contest, each side drawing but five penalties. Petes led 5-4 in the first period and 8-7 going into the third. They were trailing 4-1 for a time in the first period, and again had to battle back from behind in the second, but they finished stronger for a 5-1 margin on scoring in the speedy third chukker.

Junior West returned to the Petes' lineup from the TVL and led them in scoring with five points, two goals and three assists Chum Fryia tallied three and aided on one, and Toodie Greenlaw scored a pair. Single markers were counted by Ted Collins, Don Floyd, Bill Crowly, Morley Spiker, Keith Montgomery and Dean Wasson. Gus Leonard and Montgomery each had two assists, with one apiece going to Roy Armstrong, Bert Hill, Crowley, Wasson, Freddy Mortimer and Greenlaw.

Scored Twice

For the losers, Vern Goyer, Jackie Wardhaugh and Brian Mulvihill each lit the lamp twice, as Peter Jones and Ted DeGray got a goal each. Keith MacDonald led in assists with three, Red Doran helping twice, and Mulvihill and Wardhaugh once each.

Jones got a quickie from Doran to open play but Fryia later got it back on a fast three-way play with Greenlaw and West. DeGray put the Glens up on Doran's pass and Wardhaugh lengthened the lead on a neat bit of combination with Mulvihill and MacDonald. This trio did it again seconds later, Mulvihill potting the puck to make it 4-1. Collins went off for interference, followed by Semark for boarding. The latter was still away when West tallied from Leonard and Fryia. Schreider later sat it out for tripping and Floyd scored in his absence from a faceoff pass from Mortimer in close. Bastedo went over for interference after Schreider returned, and again the Petes cashed in, West's long hot one fooling Parisi. The sides were at full strength when Fryia put the Ellis men in front with a nice marker on Leonard's pass.

Montgomery opened the even second stanza by serving a holding penalty and Schreider got the nod shortly for tripping. Both were back when Collins' shot went in off a Quinte player. Mulvihill pulled a solo to score, and with Armstrong penalized for charging, Goyer scored in close in a scramble. Armstrong drew another sentence for tripping, and again it was Goyer who scored on a screened shot before Army got back. However, Wasson tallied smartly on a breakaway with the B's pressing. Montgomery then put the homesters in front once more from West, his high shot being deflected in off the goalie's arm.

Early in Third

Fryia tallied early in the third frm Wasson and West on neat passing and quick finish. Leonard went over for lying on the puck, but no damage resulted. Greenlaw lengthened the locals lead when he backhanded home a corner passout from Montgomery. Belleville kept battling and Wardhaugh got their last one on a pass from MacDonald, going in a mile a minute. Spiker got that back fast from Crowley, and with Wardhaugh away for holding, Crowley added another with a great burst of speed on passups from Montgomery and Hill, with Wardhaugh back, the Petes wound up a high-scoring evening when Greenlaw cuffed in one more on Armstrong's pass.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Parisi, defence, Goyer and Schreider; centre, Doran; wings, DeGray and Jones; alternates, Wardhaugh, MacDonald, Mulvihill, Mulholland, Day, Desjardins, Semark and Bastedo.

Peterborough — Goal, Harding; defence, Armstrong and Montgomery; centre, Fryia; wings, West and Greenlaw; alternates, Mortimer, Floyd, Collins, Hill, Crowley, Spiker, Leonard and Wasson.

Referee, M. Walsh; linesman, B. Kingdon.

40 Out-of-Town Rinks Survive Spiel First Draw

TORONTO (CP)—Three Kingston rinks and two from Oshawa are among the 40 out-of-town survivors in the 28th annual bonspiel of the Ontario Curling Association.

A full draw of 128 rinks squared-off in the first draw of the 'spiel Monday. The 128 rinks include 68 out-of-town rinks, 57 city rinks and five from the United States.

Five draws were staged — 25 games to a draw—and when the last rock was thrown about midnight 128 games out of the 480 scheduled in the five-day bonspiel had been played.

Two rounds were played in the Royal York competition which had 128 starters. At the end of the two round 32 rinks, 17 from out-of-town and 15 Toronto clubs, were still in the running for the top award of the 'spiel.

The main casualty of the day was the defeat of Lou Ross' Agincourt rink, winner of the trophy in an extra-end game by Oshawa's D. Holden quartet.

Another Oshawa rink, skipped by J. A. Parkhill, defenders of the North American Life Trophy, took an easy 9-6 first round win from Toronto Granites' F. Bauckham to be a strong contender for the top award.

The three Kingston rinks, skipped by G. Wharrie, R. Ness and J. Sullivan, displayed good curling in the day's competition to emerge as winners in Royal York play.

The United States entries in the bonspiel are from Wilmette, Ill., Wauwatosa, Wis., and Schenectady N.Y. The Wilmette quartet, skipped by M. Tenyck, is the only American rink still in the running for the Royal York Trophy.

Losers in the first two rounds of the Royal York play dropped into competition for the Henry Birks and Sons Trophy. The first round of this event was played yesterday and of the 32 rinks remaining in play, 23 of them are from out-of-town.

Today's program is curtailed due to the Association's annual banquet. However, 75 games are scheduled, the third round of the Royal York, the second in the Birks, the first in the Seiberling and 11 first-round games in the North American Life.

CANUCKS DROP MANSON

VANCOUVER (CP)—Release of left-winger Ray Manson was announced Monday by Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League. Art Chapman, assistant general manager and coach, said Manson will join Tacoma Rockets on loan. Carl Kaiser of Saskatoon is joining the Canucks. Property of New York Rangers, Kaiser plays either left wing or defence.

Moiras Defeat Brockville Generals In First Game Basketball Playdown

By ED MacDONALD

After sixty minutes of hard fought, all out play, the Belleville Moiras last night emerged on top of a 60-51 count over Brockville Generals in a hoopball game played in Brockville.

This was the first of a home-and-home total points series in the Ontario intermediate B basketball playdowns, and victory did not come easily for the Belles. The Gens fought every inch of the way, but couldn't quite match the big scoring guns of the Belleville crew. Again it was Ed McClay who led the Moira sharpshooters by potting 25 points. He was fouled continuously, and at one point was forced to leave the floor after being speared by a stray elbow, but nonetheless big 'Mundy' managed to shake his shadows on enough occasion to make life miserable for the Generals. John Batchelor also displayed a fine shooting eye with 12 markers, and would have had more had he not fouled out in the third chapter.

No holds were barred throughout this fast and exciting contest and altogether, there were 51 fouls called by the watchful referees.

Grab Early Lead

The Belleville five jumped into the lead early in the first quarter and at half time were ahead 29-24. The Generals fought back in the second half and managed to draw even, but then wilted under the pressure of the Moira attack. Billings, Paul, Watson, and Valantgooed showed well for the eastern club, but their big scoring ace Bill Kyle was held in close check by John Hayman and managed but four points.

Brockville showed a good fast breaking attack, but their marksmen failed to find the mark on many occasions as the Belleville man-to-man defence closed in on them.

The second game of this series is to be played at the BCI gym on Wednesday night at eight bells sharp. The Moiras, although enjoying a 9-point edge going into this final contest, realize that it will be no walkover as the Brockville crew is a fighting, spirited aggregation and cannot be counted out until the final whistle.

The line-ups:

Belleville Moiras — McClay 25; Dowsett 8; Batchelor 12, Muirhead 6; Massey; Hayman 1; Soules 7; Garrow 1; Pappas.

Brockville Generals—B. Kyle 4; Paul 12; Murray 5; Watson 7; Billings 9; Foss 3; R. Kyle; Easter 4; Ferguson; Valantgooed 7; Easton.

Fielder Has 60 Points In American League

NEW YORK (CP)—Guyle Fielder of St. Louis Flyers increased his league-leading point-total to 60 in the American Hockey League last week with 19 goals and 41 assists to his credit.

Second place in scoring went to Kelly Burnett of Syracuse with 57 points. Lorne Ferguson of Hershey and Ike Hildebrand of Cleveland tied for third with 56 each. Cleveland's Eddie Olson and Bronco Horvath of Syracuse rounded out the top scorers with 54 points each.

Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh continued to reduce his goaltending average. He has permitted 114 goals in 49 games to set the pace for the netminders with an average of 2.33.

Mayer, Johnny Bower of Cleveland and Gordon Bell of Syracuse are tied in the shut-out department with five each.

O.H.A. Declares Senior B Game 'No Contest'

TORONTO (CP)—The first game of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior B best-of-seven semi-final series between Woodstock Athletics and Burlington Mohawks, Feb. 7, was declared no contest Monday night by a sub-committee of the OHA.

The game, won by Burlington, was protested by Woodstock on the grounds that the Mohawks had failed to dress six resident players as required.

The series, which was tied 2-2, now has the Athletics ahead 2-1. The protested game will be replayed as an eighth game in Woodstock if required to decide the series.

Randy Takes Easy Victory

LEICESTER, England (AP)—Randy Turpin, Britain's contender for the world middleweight boxing championship, outpointed Duggie Miller of South Africa in a 10-round bout Monday night.

The Leominster larruper took command from the start. He dropped Miller for two in the second round, for eight in the ninth, and had the South African on the canvas twice in the last round.

Exact weights were not announced but each had to make 163 pounds for the non-title fight.

O.H.A. Upholds Kingston Protest; Game With Orillia May be Replayed

TORONTO. (CP) — A protest by Kingston Goodyears against Orillia Pontiacs' use of veteran goal-tender Barney Clarke in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior B game at Orillia Feb. 7 was upheld Monday night by an O.H.A. sub-committee.

The game was ordered replayed if it affects the final standing. Kingston, Belleville and Peterborough now are battling for first place.

Not Sign Certificate

The protest was lodged because the Orillia team had failed to sign Clarke to a certificate before playing him against Kingston.

Orillia representatives said they were victims of circumstances. The game prior to the protested one, Orillia goaltender Dan Dewley disappeared and hasn't been seen since. The Pontiacs pulled Clarke out of the crowd in Oshawa to play that night.

The next game was the Kingston affair and their spare goaltender, Harv Reading turned up ill. Again Clarke was brought in.

Orillia also lost another protest. They questioned the eligibility of Percy Nicholls of Oshawa. The O.H.A. decided Nicholls was eligible, although he may never play again. The 36-year-old defenceman was severely injured three weeks ago and has been advised to give up the game.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Not all your grand slam hands can be bid with confidence. You may as well make up your mind to accept this as a fact. As in the case of the deal shown here:

SOUTH	NORTH
♥K 9	♥A Q J 8 5
♠A K Q J 2	♠10 9 6
♦A K	♦Q J 8 7 4
♣Q J 10 9	♣None

The bidding goes like this:

South	North
2 H	2 S
3 C	3 D
3 H	4 H
4 NT	5 C
6 H

South expects to go to a slam when he gets the encouraging dope from north followed by support for his suit. In answer to the four no-trump bid, five clubs shows an ace and denies having any kings.

Although opponents are thus known to have an ace and a king, anything less than a small slam is unthinkable. That is, with the bids that have come from the north hand.

However, nothing has told south that a grand slam is safe. He is not aware of the fact that north is void in clubs. So, if he takes a flier at a grand slam in hearts, it is nothing but a gamble.

With a void suit that south does not know about, north might be tempted to gamble for a grand slam in hearts. But he does not know that south has the ace and king of diamonds instead of clubs.

So, the bidding of a grand slam by north would also be a gamble. Unless, of course, north stopped to count the tricks and considered a grand slam a very possible contract.

The south opening two bid showed nine tricks. North has a count of six. The preponderance indicates that a grand slam is there. Which it is i- this case. But, I wouldn't gamble on it in the future.

Sport in Brief

MONTREAL (CP)—Armand Savoie of Montreal, Canadian lightweight champion, won a split 10-round decision Monday night over world lightweight champion Jimmy Carter in a non-title bout. Savoie weighed 138¾ and Carter 136¼.

Savoie made his strongest bid in the late rounds after a fairly close fight up to the eighth.

In that round the Canadian boy staggered Carter with lefts and rights and kept up his advantage in the ninth. In the final round he was trying repeatedly for a knockout. Carter appeared in trouble but quickly recovered.

There were no knockdowns.

Referee Johnny Gow and Judge Pepe Ouimet both scored Savoie the winner with five rounds, giving four to Carter and calling one even. Judge Leo Germain made it

Allie Reynolds May Quit Baseball At Peak of Brilliant Mound Career

By JOE REICHLER

MIAMI SPRINGS, Fla. (AP)—Allie Reynolds, at the very peak of a brilliant pitching career, disclosed today he may quit baseball at the end of this season.

The great New York Yankee righthander, in a suprising interview, frankly stated that baseball presented an unhealthy situation for him and added:

"I doubt if I'll come back, especially if we don't win the pennant."

Allie had his greatest season last year, leading the American League in earned run average (2.07) and strikeouts (1.60) ranking second in shutouts (6), and third in complete games (24), and in winning percentage (20-8-.714). He placed second to Bob Shantz in most valuable player balloting, with 183 points.

Told Yankees

The 34-year-old Reynolds, who capped his first 20-game winning season in 1952 with two world series triumphs over Brooklyn Dodgers, said he informed the Yankees of his intentions during a salary conflab last month.

"Baseball has presented an unhealthly situation for me," he said. "It has kept me away from my family for too long. I'm no youngster any more and the children are pretty well grown now. I'll be celebrating my 18th wedding anniversary next July. Since I've been in baseball I've spent very little time with my family. I feel I owe it to them to give up the game.

"Then, too, I can do much better away from baseball from a financial standpoint. I have a good business all set up, one that will enable me to make more money than I could make from baseball. The day I leave baseball I will step right into the oil business."

Reynolds, whose current salary dispute with the Yankees may have had something to do with his decision, was careful never to say that he would quit baseball positively, however.

"So many things can happen during a season," he said, "that that it would be foolish for me to say that I would quit for certain."

OHA Suspends Junior Player

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association executive subcommittee Monday night considered the case of 17-year-old Kent Douglas, a defenceman for Weston Dukes of the Junior B series.

After lengthy arguments the committee decided to suspend Douglas until the matter could be dealt with by the entire OHA executive, which meets March 6.

Last Friday Douglas was given a high-sticking penalty, a major for fighting, a misconduct for swearing and refusing to sit down in the penalty box and a match penalty for charging from the box at referees Eddie Hodgson and Bill Barry. Hodgson suffered a black eye and Barry a thick lip.

OSD Girls Win Basketball Games

(By E. HARRIS)

In exhibition basketball games, O.S.D. juniors defeated B.C.I. juniors 33-11, and their seniors defeated B.C.I. senior 20-7.

June Ramsbottom scored the B.C.I. juniors' first basket in the first two minutes of play. Myrtle Flett rallied for O.S.D. a few seconds later. At first the teams seemed fairly equal until O.S.D. showed what good team play, passing and guarding can produce. In the second quarter alone, they scored sixteen points. The last half was more even. B.C.I. put up a good resistance but O.S.D. still were superior.

For B.C.I., June Ramsbottom scored 4 points, Pat Rouland 4 points and Pauline Hall 3 points

Senior Game

In the senior game the B.C.I. girls were a better match for O.S.D. There were no baskets until the second quarter when Peggy DeLa Franier netted 2 points for O.S.D. The game speeded up in the second half. The ball was in shooting range several times but B.C.I. failed to score. The B.C.I. guards kept the ball in their hands and brought it well up the floor. But O.S.D. were too fast and won 20-7.

For B.C.I. Ann Bennett scored 3 points, Eva Hrachovec 2 points and Barb Bennett 2 points.

For O.S.D., Peggy DeLa Franier scored 13 points, Lula Cayer 6 points and Elaine Garnett 1 point.

Now Kullman Has His Say

NEW YORK (CP)—Eddie Kullman of New York Rangers, who so ably handles the job of checking Detroit's Gordie Howe and Montreal's Maurice (Rocket) Richard, has stepped into the debate over which is the better rightwinger.

"Richard is tougher to handle," Kullman says. "He can break faster, always does the unexpected. And he's all over the ice—on either wing or at centre ice. You never know where he's going to be—this way or that way, over the top of you or under you. He's much shiftier than Howe."

In 11 games on the Madison Square Garden ice this season, the blond, squat 29-year-old native of Winnipeg, who seldom scores himself, has kept Richard scoreless while Howe has only one goal. Away from New York, Howe has scored four times against the Rangers, Richard three.

"The records make out a good case for Howe," Kullman admits. "He must be the better player. But I still say Richard gives me a tougher time, and I doubt that Howe is as good as Richard was at his peak."

Mercs Defeat Tireless Tabbies To Extend Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Owen Sound Mercurys, already assured of top spot in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series when the schedule finishes Thursday, added a little insurance Monday night.

The Mercs stretched their lead to seven points by defeating the hapless Tigers 5-4 at Hamilton.

The Tabbies, largely made up of last season's junior B team, have won only two games this season but Monday night they threatened to win a third.

They came from behind twice to tie the count but Tommy Burlington scored for Owen Sound half way through the third period to give the Mercurys victory.

Other Owen Sound marksmen were Gillespie, McCallum, Hosking and Leckie. Hamilton scorers were McWhirter, Ritchie, Dunnette and Hammond.

Third-place Kitchener travels to Owen Sound tonight while fourth-place Brantford plays host to the Tabbies.

MARMORA

Lakefield Bows To Marmora 9-3

Marmora — Marmora won its postponed game with Lakefield here Saturday evening by the score of 9-3. Although there were 18 penalties in all issued, the game was not so rough as that would indicate. Eleven were issued the visitors and six of these came in the second period.

Wasson of Lakefield held up the game for several minutes as he entered an altercation started by another teammate with referee Bell over a goal disallowed their team. The game was halted until police intervention enabled its continuance after the Lakefield defenceman was given a match misconduct.

Jones led in points for the winer with two goals and an assist. Doran got two goals with singles being obtained by Loveless, Lavender, Mantle, Darrah and E. Trumble. Joblin for the losers got two goals unassisted and Fawcett also beat Killian for Lakefield's opening goal. Birch, Knox, Sabatino and P. Calberry were also outstanding for their team.

Due to short notice and limited publicity the attendance was down to about 280, and the ice was a little bit sticky. Teams:

Referees: R. Bell, R. Scriver.

AWAITING SUBWAY PLAN

MONTREAL (CP)—Plans for a subway for Montreal will be available shortly, Mayor Camillien Houde told the Canadian Club Monday. He placed the cost of the undertaking at $150,000. Mayor Houde said capital costs of improvements in the traffic situation, including the subway, would amount to $300,000,000, compared with the current city debt of slightly less than $200,000,000.

AT THE BELLE—If you had five daughters all unmarried what would you do? That is the problem facing Mrs. Bennet in the hilarious story "Pride and Prejudice" now playing at the Belle Theatre. Sir Laurence Olivier and Greer Garson play the leading roles in this gay presentation of the famous Jane Austen classic.

Movie Column

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Big-game hunting expeditions in East Africa, once almost exclusively out for trophies to hang over the smoking room fireplace, now are more and more "shooting" with cameras for science and fun.

About a quarter of all big game safaris fitted out in Nairobi, the Kenya capital, since the Second World War have been for photography alone.

Scientific organizations, museums and movie companies out for backgrounds of wild life now are often the biggest clients of East Africa's famous "white hunters," the professional game experts who organize and manage the expeditions in the field.

Once they stood by with heavy bore guns to cover a client if he muffed his shot at a charging beat. Now they do the same job for a man who could not hit a clay pipe in a shooting gallery but who is an artist with a camera.

Game, though still abundant, is becoming more difficult to find every year, the professional hunters say, partly because of the creeping progress of civilization into primitive Africa.

Game licences for visitors — costing £75 a year—now are closely controlled and the species and quantity of the game allowed to be killed is also strictly limited. Special licences have to be obtained for hunting and killing elephants and rhinoceros.

Costs of going on a big-game safari have increased about 50 per cent since the war. A safari for two persons with the services of a professional white hunter and 10 Africans to run the camp now costs about £1,000 for a month, normally the minimum period.

This includes the hire of tents transport, camping equipment, and the drivers, cooks, gunbearers and skinners among the African retinue. Rifles and ammunition are usually extra.

On a month's safari out of Nairobi, a party can meet more than 30 varieties of game, ranging from lions, buffalo, elephants and rhinoceros to a variety of monkeys and deer.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, FEB. 18, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Do a favor where you can. Thoughtful words from a conscientious mind, and you may be granted many unsought rewards possible under this Golden Rule practice.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Could be a better day perhaps, but many would not be fully satisfied were it so. You can improve day by the quality of work you put into it.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Now is special need for the reader smile, the encouraging word. Building good will is an obligation. Employ talents carefully.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Don't answer before you think; don't agree before you study all details carefully. A day for astuteness, but also good cheer.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—All the little things are building up to a whole picture now. And you should face the results of past efforts; many good, some disturbing. Be ready.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—If some matters are accomplished, don't rest on laurels, immediately work for further benefits. Keep on devising plans for improvements.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — There will be more than one way to achieve purposes, but herein lies the greatest need for care, forethought. And remember, good beginnings lead to even better conclusions.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Note how past errors occurred. Take time to review and revise plans where they can be improved. Haste makes waste and "nerves," too.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Be busy doing only what you should and what you can assist others. Be relaxed as you work for better health as well as gains.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Sometimes silence is best when we have most urge to speak. Again, we should speak when we don't. Seek a happy medium; it really matters.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Note Libra; your aspects very similar. And add a thought about future things which can be handled better if given a preview now.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Maybe it won't be wholly satisfying day, but it can be a true stepping stone to gains in near future. Will power and faith can determinine this.

YOU BORN TODAY in this Zodical Sign have a wealth of talents and latent abilities. Your biggest problem is putting them to daily use. You may prefer solitude for serious thinking which can lead to great results.

WIN UNION VOTE

WELLAND (CP)—The United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America (CIO) have won a representation vote over the Canadian Rubber Workers' Union at the General Tire plant here. BONARLAW
Rylestone Cheese Butter Company Has Good Year

Total cheese made was 235,645 pounds; total fat 88,317, with patrons receiving an average of 70.04 cents per pound fat. The average test was 3.18.

Cheese sold brought $71,154.46, the average price per pound being 30.19. The average price per cwt. for milk was $2.20. Dominion government premium totalled $3,436.62. Whey cream sales totalled $2,847.62.

It was expected that further payment for May and June cheese would be made later, although there will be nothing official on this until all cheese was disposed of.

President Charles Stewart conducted the meeting with Fred Barnum giving the secretary's report which showed a successful year.

Mr. Hector Arnold, vice-president of the Cheese Producers' Marketing Board, was present and gave an outline of the work the producers were doing and had done during the past. He stated that at present it looked as if the surplus cheese would be small, if any, as the 5,000,000 pounds purchased by Britain had helped the situation. A resolution, sponsored by Lindsay Anderson, asking the governments to pass legislation prohibiting oils to be used in dairy products was passed.

Short Addresses

Short addresses were given by Mr. McDonald, manager of the Bank of Montreal, Campbellford, and dairy instructor W. Moore and the cheesemaker, Murray Heath.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Heath for his faithful services as cheesemaker. He won several prizes for exhibition cheese and had over 99 per cent first grade cheese in the season's make.

Officers Elected

Officers elected were:

President, Charles Stewart: vice-president, Jack Watson; secretary, Fred Barnum; auditor, Mrs. Cora Reid; cheesemaker, Murray Heath; directors, Charles Stewart, Howard Finch, William Morton, Jack Watson and Percy Reid.

At the close Mr. McDonald and Mr. Heath treated all to pop, smokes and chocolate bars which were much enjoyed and appreciated.

REJECT FESTIVAL GRANT

STRATFORD (CP) — Stratford city council in a 4-3 vote Monday night turned down a $5,000 grant to the Stratford Shakespearean Festival Foundation. The grant had been recommended at a meeting of council's finance committee last week when spokesmen expressed the view that citizens could contribute voluntarily to the festival fund, but that a levy on the tax rate was a compulsory contribution.

It's All a Matter of Concentration

In Rome, Italy, Luigi D'oriano shows how he concentrates his power on a pretty ailing patient. D'oriano and Achille D'Angelo, Italy's top "magi," or better-known perhaps as sorcerers, were brought to court by the Italian Medical Association for what the association alleged to be abusive medical practices. The well-known "magi" claim they can heal by merely concentrating their eyes on the ailing body and waving their hands over the afflicted part. They are not taking the accusations without a protest and declare they can prove that what they do is no hocus pocus and not connected with medicine. — Central Press Canadian.

Eventual Successor to Pope Almost Certain to be Italian

By PATRICK CROSSE

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The eventual successor of Pope Pius XII as supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church is almost certain to be an Italian, according to experts who have studied the new composition of the college of cardinals.

The college was brought to its full strength of 70 for the first time in nearly 200 years at ceremonies held by the 76-year-old Pope in January.

For many years, Pius XII was said to be planning to transform the college, giving non-Italian cardinals an overwhelming majority.

This would have greatly increased the possibilities of a non-Italian pope. The last such Pope was a Dutchman, Adrian VI, who reigned briefly in 1522 and 1523.

But in his selection of 24 new cardinals Jan. 12 he did not promote the non-Italians to the critical point at which they alone could choose the next Pope.

In the list of some 262 popes, only about 35 have been non-Italians. Sixteen of these were French, five Syrian, four Greek, three German, two Spanish, two Portuguese, one Dutch, one English and one Dalmatian.

The majority of Italian Popes have been Romans, as is Pope Pius XII as supreme pontiff of the XII, scion of a family ennobled nearly 100 years ago by Pope Pius IX.

In the full college of cardinals as it now stands, the Italians number 26 against 44 foreigners. Two-thirds, plus one of all the Cardinals present at a conclave is the majority required for the election of a Pope.

In a conclave of all the present cardinals, at least four Italians would have to vote with all the foreign cardinals to obtain this majority.

But experience has shown that Italian cardinals usually vote together, not necessarily because of national feeling but because the Italian cardinals meet each other occasionally and those in Rome, engaged in helping the Pope in the central government of the church, know all the other cardinals.

Thus when the conclave meets, there is a nucleus of well-informed Italian cardinals from whom the foreign cardinals are often glad to take the lead.

Furthermore, even if the nationality of the Pope would be of little importance from an administrative point of view, it is always likely within the foreseeable future to have a certain political importance.

At the end of the war, for instance, there waspeculationhere on the chances of the next Pope being an American. International political developments since then, however, appear to have made this improbable.

From the political point of view, the non-Italian countries best placed to profer a candidate for the pontifical throne seem to be the small Catholic nations such as Belgium and Portugal, which cannot play a decisive role on the stage of world affairs.

But the cardinals of such countries have little chance of being known to all their colleagues.

Mrs. C. Minaker Celebrates 101st Birthday

Picton, Feb. 17 — "Early to bed and early to rise", is the motto which Mrs. Charles Minaker, 101 today, has followed all her life, and to which she attributes her longevity. "Be moderate in all things and keep interested in many things," is additional advice of this life-long resident of Picton.

"Today's observance of my birthday will be a quiet one. We had a real do when I was one hundred last year. It was really wonderful," she said.

Mrs. Minaker is remarkably smart for her years and enjoys the use of all her faculties. Until December, she resided alone in her Grove Street home, where she moved 53 years ago. As a result of a fall, she suffered a broken arm and spent two months in the local hospital. Now she is content to put aside household cares and enjoy the comforts of a rest home.

A member of the United Church, Mrs. Minaker continues to support it financially, as she also does the Women's Missionary Society. She enjoys radio programs and can read the newspapers without the aid of glasses. Mr. Minaker, who died 12 years ago, lived to be ninety-one.

Specialist Says 'Way of Life' May Hold Key to Escape Heart Diseases

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—Three words—way of life—may hold the key to help us escape heart diseases, says Dr. Paul D. White, prominent heart specialist of Boston.

Way of life includes the food we eat, the work and exercise we do and don't do and attitudes, he explaned in an interview.

All have changed radically in the last 30 to 40 years, during which heart and blood vessel diseases have become leading killers.

How much, Dr. White asks, has the change in our way of life brought about the rise in heart diseases?

He urges research to find out

There's good evidence that wealthy people suffer more from heart attacks, high blood pressure and hardening of arteries than those who have a different way of life, said Dr. White, Harvard University medical school professor and executive director of the National Heart Advisory Council.

More Exercise Needed

Today most of us do less physical work than formerly. We ride autos instead of walking or bicycling.

"We ought to study what this change means. It might be good for the hearts of men and women to do more of their own chores. They would get exercise, learn more humility—and save some money."

The tempo of life has changed, he continues. Would peace of mind, equanimity, patience, bring better chances for longer life and less debilitating disease?

Dr. White, who just won the first Albert Lasker award for distinguished achievement against cardiovascular diseases, urges study of people abroad whose way of life differs sharply inside the same countries.

One study of 1,000 agricultural workers in Brazil—persons 18 to 80 with a great number of them middle-aged—found not a single one with high blood pressure. But high blood pressure is fairly common among well-to-do persons who eat better and do much less physical work.

Another study finds more coronary heart disease among Jews coming to Israel from European countries than among Jews emigrating from the Middle East and North African areas. Why?

By enough of this type of research, we may find that our way of life is killing us with heart ailments, he said.

"Are we really civilized living this way? We have conquered many infectious diseases, and banished much malnutrition—but find all that replaced with cardiovascular diseases. Is that really civilized?"

Attempts to Convert Tribe To Christianity Almost in Vain

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Four members of the Saulteaux Indian tribe, one of the few remaining pagan tribes in North America, have returned to their reservations in east-central Saskatchewan following a visit to Prince Albert to attend the annual northern Saskatchewan trappers' convention.

The Saulteaux, or Saulteuers, number about 600 and live on four reservations with about 1,600 christianized members of the tribe.

Despite the fact they worship the sun and "Ksay Manitou" (good spirit), the Saulteaux fit into a normal Canadian life of trapping and farming. Many of them own their own tractors, trucks and other farm machinery.

The four delegates attending the convention needed no interpreter as did the Cree and Chipewyan Indians. They speak and understand English fairly well.

Although part of the linguistic stock of the Algonquins, the Saulteaux have their own dialect, unlike the Cree, Algonquin and Blackfoot dialects. Attempts to convert them to Christianity have been almost in vain.

Authorities say that despite the fact that a doctor is available to them, they call in their own medicine man when ill to do away with spirit)

Second Man On The Ticket

By Edwin Lanham

Clyde pulled her toward the dance floor but I caught her other wrist and said, "Ginny, stay here. You can't trust this guy."

Clyde's meaty hand pushed at me and I looked into his angry squinted eyes. He gave me a shove and my grip was torn loose from Ginny's arm. I reacted as Governor Warburton had, almost by reflex. I took a step backward with my right foot to regain my balance, then I took a step forward with my left foot and let fly with my left in a wild haymaker that caught Clyde on the forehead. It also caught him off balance. He staggered back, striking against a chair, and fell.

I was as surprised as Clyde, I stood staring down at him, and I was not particularly angry. In fact, I felt like laughing, and I did laugh when Lucy said, "Clyde now you've got mice, you rat."

There was a quick white flash of light, and a moment later I was thrown out of the Route One Casino. It was the heave-ho, metropolitan style. A squad of waiters appeared at my elbow and hustled me toward the door. There was another bright flash and I recognized the man with the camera —the photographer from Ego Magazine. He grinned at me as the waiters pushed me past. At the door, the manager met us, saying, "Has he paid his check?"

Two waiters held me while a third went to manufacture a check, and there by the door Lucy Strawn joined us and began a fierce and loyal argument with the manager. The fat man had hit me first. If anybody was thrown out, it should be the fat man. As this went on the Ego man took another photograph.

• • •

Lucy Strawn's pleas were rejected, on the theory that in case of a fight one contender should be eliminated and the other allowed to remain and spend his money. I paid my check and the waiters released me outside the door, where the Ego man stepped up to me and asked, "What was the argument, Mr. Mason?"

"Are you going to print that picture in Ego Magazine?"

"Sure. A little Warburton Day sideline." He grinned.

"With one of those cosmic captions?" Lucy asked. "Public strikes back at Clyde McDonald. How's that?"

"I'm trying to find out what started it all," the Ego man said. "It was a pretty thing, and I enjoyed it. But why?"

"A dispute over the check," Lucy said.

CHAPTER XXXI

"It was a private quarrel," I told the magazine photographer. "That's all. We just don't like each other, politically or personally. But say, may I have a print of that picture?"

"Sure, if you want it."

As I drove away Lucy asked. "A souvenir?"

"More than that," I said. "If Clyde prints in his column that the Governor took a poke at him, I'll produce the print and say I hit him, not the Governor. It's our protection."

"Very good," Lucy said. "Very good on that point. But otherwise, Roy, everything looks particularly snafu to me."

"She's not too bad, Roy," Lucy said softly. "She's simply not the ideal you made of her, that's all. I had a chat with her in the powder room. She was pretty excited about going to Washington, and she was somewhat excited about you, too. "She chuckled. "For that matter, she's also in a dither about Clyde McDonald."

• • •

I drove to the Mills house. It was a silent house. Only one light was burning downstairs, in the hall, and as we came under it Lucy looked at me and said with distaste, "You've had lipstick smeared all over your face all evening."

"Why didn't you tell me before?" I pulled out my handkerchief and dabbed at my mouth.

Her eyes were partly closed and there was a little curl of her full lips, the sarcastic twist that was so familiar. I felt again the surge of irritation that Lucy stimulated in me so often. She had that cocksure, confident, superior look about her, and the drooping of her lips and eyelids accentuated it.

It had never occurred to me before to kiss Lucy Strawn, but the depression, irritation and frustration I felt fused in an emotional impulse and I grabbed her rather roughly. Her palms shoved hard against my chest and her sharp voice said, "Stop it, Roy!"

I stopped, let my hands fall to my sides, and said, "I'm sorry, Lucy. When I get mad I seem to want to kiss somebody. I don't know why."

She gave me a level look and said, "I may be girlish, but I don't like to be kissed by a man who doesn't know why."

"I didn't mean that exactly," I said.

"Nor do I like being kissed in anger."

"I'm not angry at you, Lucy," I said. "I'm just angry." I shrugged. "At women, I guess. All women."

"Just don't take out your little disappointments on me, Roy," she said firmly. "And don't be so sickeningly sophomoric about it."

"Sophomoric!" I was stung.

"What else?" said Lucy. "Angry at women. It's like being angry at the theory of relativity. You don't know anything about either one. The truth is you're angry at just one woman."

"All right," I said. "I admit it. I'm angry at just one woman."

"Then don't take it out on me."

"I suppose I'm principally angry at myself," I said by way of making amends. "If I hadn't written that campaign biography we wouldn't be in this mess."

"Nobody blames you, Roy," she said.

"I blame myself," I said. "I don't suppose we ought to wake up the Governor for any more bad news. He needs a good night's sleep."

"Yes," she said, and sighed wearily.

I switched out the light. "We're friends again, aren't we?"

"Oh, naturally," she said. "I'll keep on listening to your troubles same as ever."

"I'm sorry if I inflict my troubles on you, Lucy," I said, feeling tense.

She turned on the stairs, a step ahead of me, and her face was level with mine. "Forget I said that, Ray," she said. "I didn't mean it that way. But it's been a depressing day. Here I was, dressed up like a million, and mostly sat around while you and Clyde chased around after that blonde."

"We both had a job to do."

"I know. You're right. You're entirely right." She smiled.

Her palm touched my cheek lightly, then she bent toward me and her lips met mine. It was a warm, tender, friendly kiss, casually bestowed. Or so it seemed. And it was casual, for the moment it took me to absorb its impact and react, then it was not casual in the least. Her feet came altogether off the steps and her arms were tight around my neck. I heard her whisper, "Roy," very softly, and it was not the familiar voice of Lucy Strawn, and it was not the Lucy Strawn I knew who lay warmly in my arms. And if I thought of anything at all I thought: Why had I never kissed Lucy Strawn before?

• • •

I looked up and saw Governor Warburton in his dressing gown, at the head of the stairs. He grinned and said, "Well, bless you, my children." I let Lucy down on the step beside me and the Governor came on down the stairs.

Lucy was blushing violently, and my face was hot. I said, "We thought you were asleep, Governor. We didn't want to wake you."

"That's understandable," he said, still smiling. "But it happens I was listening for you to come in, Roy. We received a telegram from Bill Evers. He's flying here, and his plane gets in at a quarter to midnight. I thought perhaps you could meet him."

"Yes," I said. "Sure."

The Governor's hands rested deep in the pockets of his dressing gown and he looked tired. "How did things go, Roy?" he asked.

"Not good, Governor."

"Yes, I expected that."

Lucy said softly. "The only good thing to report is that Roy struck another blow for your campaign, Governor. He clipped Clyde."

• • •

CHAPTER XXXII

"He definitely tried," Lucy said. "He had so much lipstick smeared on him, he looked like the Dying Gladiator."

"I can still detect a trace of it," the Governor said mildly. While Lucy blushed and I rubbed my mouth with my handkerchief, the Governor said to me, "Better go over to the airport and pick up Bill. We'll all sit down together and decide the best course."

I asked Lucy to go along and we went out to the car. When we were all settled, I put my arm around her.

"We've got an errand," she said reprovingly. 'Let's go."

"Now don't play hard to get." It was the sort of thing a man says when his emotions are functioning and his brain is not. I had not thought it an offensive reproach, but Lucy bristled.

"I know that would be contrary to your conception of me."

"Now, Lucy," I said. "I——"

"After all," she went on in the same tone, "a girl who's been around——"

"Honey, I didn't mean anything like that," I protested.

"Drive on," she said.

I drove away. I was angry because she had chosen to misunderstand. We were well out on the highway before I spoke. "Lucy, I thought we had a pretty good understanding of each other. I didn't expect you to take a conventional feminine attitude with me."

"What attitude did you expect?"

"Why the same as usual," I said. "Friendly, matter-of-fact, nonchalant. You know, sophisticated."

"Sophisticated!" Lucy said.

"Yes," I said. "Sophisticated. That's what you've led me to expect. I didn't think you'd get feminine about it."

"Roy," she said, "if you were a little more sophisticated you wouldn't be such an utter fool!"

• • •

We covered 40 miles to the airport in considerably less than an hour, and arrived before Bill's plane landed. I parked the car and we went to the lunchroom in the administration building for coffee. At the door Lucy stopped short.

Over her shoulder I saw honey-colored hair, shoulder length. Ginny Perkins was perched on a stool, alone at the lunch counter, stirring a cup of coffee. She turned her head, saw us, and her eyes got big.

ter, stirring a cup of coffee .She

"Ginny," I said, "you get around."

"I'm just a chauffeur," she said. "Just chauffeuring Clyde." She slipped down from her stool, and her eyes met Lucy's for an instant then she looked at me. "Roy, may I speak to you alone?"

"Yes, of course."

Lucy said tartly, "I'll find some other lunchroom."

"Please excuse us, Miss Strawn, Ginny said. "It will only be a moment." She touched my elbow and walked ahead of me out of the lunchroom. I caught up and asked, "Where's Clyde?"

"He's here somewhere asking about planes." She turned in the corridor and leaned against the tile wall. "He's pretty angry, Roy."

"He started it," I said.

"Roy," she said softly, "everything is a terrible mess, and it's entirely my fault. I don't know how to begin telling you all this. Clyde has been checking the hotels, and now he's looking around here at the airport to see if he can find someone who saw Governor Warburton come in last night."

I kept silent. The old man in the tourist camp had sharp eyes. If Clyde happened to stop in that tourist camp, with a picture of the Governor to compare with the man in cabin nine—

"I'm afraid I'm responsible for this," Ginny said, "I shouldn't have told him, I guess, but it slipped out. Honestly, Roy I don't want to make trouble."

"What did you tell him, Ginny?"

"Something Aunt Hattie said. This morning she remarked that Governor Warburton had not changed much since he left Hydetown, except to put on a little weight, and I asked her how she knew, since she hadn't seen him for 30 years. She said something about seeing his picture in the paper, and changed the subject, but I happened to mention it to Clyde and now he's convinced that the Governor came to Hydetown to see Aunt Hattie last night. You know, when we found you there."

"Yes, I know," I said. "That's a ridiculous notion."

• • •

"So Clyde is checking up," she went on. "Roy, I'm sorry I made such a mess of everything. Honestly, I just thought it would be fun, but it kept getting worse and worse. Now I'm caught in the middle and can't go through with it."

"With what?"

"With any of it," she said. "I can't take that job." She spread her hands helplessly. "Roy, I can't type a lick."

I blinked at her.

"Not even hunt and pick," Ginny said. "I never have held down any kind of job for long. I worked at the grocery store for a while, but I never could keep track of the stock and was always making silly mistakes. Now don't laugh."

"I'm not laughing, Ginny."

Abbott Predicts Surplus Of $47,816,000

Over Two Billion To Reduce Debt In Seven Years

Budget Being Presented Two Months Earlier Than Usual

(Details of Finance Minister Abbott's financial report to the House of Commons today appear on Page 3.)

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will end the current fiscal year with a surplus, the seventh in a row and the smallest.

Finance Minister Abbott, in an 86-page white paper tabled today in the Commons, estimated the surplus for the year ending March 31 at $47,816,000. The white paper is an economic review of the year's activities and precedes Mr. Abbott's budget speech Thursday night outlining taxation policies.

The surplus, subject to revision when final accounts are tabulated, compares with $248,034,000 last year and a record of $676,100,000 in 1948.

A surplus of $376,600,000 in 1947 broke a string of 17 consecutive deficits during the last war and the depression of the 1930s.

The seven surpluses have been used to reduce the national debt to $11,137,500,000 from a post-war peak of $13,421,400,000. The surpluses, totalling approximately $2,284,000,000, were almost equivalent to the increase in the debt during the first 3½ years of the Second World War.

Mr. Abbott said the 1952-53 figures in the white paper are based on nine months experience and three months estimated. Normally the figures are on 11 months actual and one month estimated.

Earlier Than Usual

This year the budget is being presented almost two months earlier than usual. This is in line with a government program aimed at ending the current session in time for parliamentarians and others to attend the Coronation June 2.

Mr. Abbott estimated revenues for the current year at an all-time high of $4,374,628,000, an increase of $393,719,000 over the previous peak of $3,980,909,000 a year ago.

Expenditures were estimated at $4,326,812,000 compared with $3,732,875,000 last year, below the record of $5,322,253,505 in 1944.

ONTARIO SPENDS $47.50 PER CAPITA ON LIQUOR IN '52

$42,069,681 in Profits Annual Report Shows

The annual report of the Ontario liquor control board, tabled in the Legislature Tuesday, disclosed an average of $47.50 was spent by every man, woman and child in the province to boost liquor sales to a high of $228,008,215, an increase of $18,000,000 over 1950-51. The net profit was $1,000,000 greater than the year before.

Almost the entire profit, $42,000,000, went to the provincial treasury. The balance was remitted to municipalities as their share of fees from licensed premises such as hotels and cocktail lounges.

The bulk of the profit, $31,376,805, came directly from sales. The rest was derived from permits and fees.

Although gross income from the board's operations increased more than eight per cent, the total gallonage of liquor sold was only 2-5 of one per cent higher than in the preceding year.

Outlets Increased

The liquor licence board reported the number of establishments licensed to sell liquor increased 38 during the year to reach 2,000. Toronto, with 519, has more than 25 per cent of the total. Hamilton has 201, Windsor 188, Ottawa 156 and London 100.

Provincial Secretary Arthur Welsh also tabled a report on the Niagara parks commission for the year ended Oct. 31, 1952.

The report said officials are concerned with encroachments on park land being made by road construction and hydro development.

A report on the 1951 operation of the hydro-electric power commission said power requirements during that year rose 11 per cent. Domestic and commercial consumers used a record amount of electricity.

Trenton Fliers Test Canada's New Rocket-Firing Jets At RCAF Ranges Near Consecon

TRENTON (CP)—The RCAF has successfully completed the first firing tests of its newest jet fighter, the Mark IV version of the CF-100, which carries 60 radar-aimed rockets.

The rocket power of the plane, designed and built at Malton by Avro Canada Limited, was demonstrated on the RCAF Consecon ranges, southwest of here. It has been reported that only one hit would be needed to bring down a bomber.

Automatic controls aim the rockets once the plane picks up its target and there is a high ratio of hits for the amount of ammunition expended.

The prototype is the only model of the Mark IV in existence, but it is expected to be in mass production by late summer.

RCAF authorities said the rocket load is the heaviest disclosed of any aircraft in the world. The Lockheed F-94C Starfire one of the newest all-weather interceptors of the United States Air Force, carries only 24 rockets.

Rocket capacity of the Canadian plane may be raised to 100. Engineers are remodelling the fuselage to permit a 40-rocket compartment between the plane's two engines.

The rockets themselves are so deadly that one is sufficient to tear a large hole in a plane.

Report U.S. Shunning Israel Appeal for Aid in Face Of Bitter Protests from Arabs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is reported turning a cold shoulder to Israel's urgent plea for aid while lining up limited military and economic help for Egypt.

The Eisenhower administration, it was learned, has decided to sidetrack Israel's bid, temporarily at least, in order to avoid antagonizing strategic Arab governments.

Seven Arab countries jointly told the state department Tuesday "any more help of any sort" might endanger the uneasy truce between Arabs and Jews in the Middle East.

The bitterly-worded Arab complaint said Israel was trying to "exploit" its diplomatic break with Russia to win special assistance from the U. S.

Arrangements are taking shape behind the scenes to pump some dollars aid and weapons shipments to Egypt. This move is viewed by U. S. officials as desirable in the next few weeks in order to encourage Egypt's strong man premier, Gen. Mohammed Naguib, to join the proposed Middle-East defence alliance against communism.

Egypt's membership is viewed as the key to the problem of countering Russia's designs on the Middle East.

If Egypt joins, other Arab countries now standing aloof are expected to come in too, translating paper plans into reality.

Israel applied to the U. S. for military aid about a year ago. After last week's diplomatic break with Moscow, however, Israeli officials again appealed publicly for American help on the grounds that Israel "alone of all the governments in the Near East" supported Western democracy.

Says UK Ready For Early Talks On Suez Troops

CAIRO (Reuters)—Prime Minister Mohamed Naguib said today that talks on the evacuation of British troops from the Suez canal zone will begin "within a few days."

Naguib said Egypt and Britain are agreed on the principle of British evacuation from the canal zone. He told an army audience in a garrison town:

"Within a few days Anglo-Egyptian talks will commence on the issue of evacuation of British troops from the Suez canal zone, a sacred right which Britain has actually recognized.

"There is perfect agreement upon the principle itself. The forthcoming talks will be confined to points of detail and the period during which evacuation may be carried out."

Britain has shown willingness to withdraw her garrison from the vital sea link, but only if the Egyptians join some Middle East defence bloc which would insure the canal's security. The Egyptian line has been that evacuations must come first.

Egypt has declared the evacuation of British troops from the canal zone as her next objective after the agreement with Britain on the future of the Sudan.

This agreement gives the Sudan self-government for three years followed by independence. Since it was signed, Britain and Egypt have clashed in their interpretation of the pact, Britain maintaining it leaves the Sudan free to associate with the Commonwealth later if it so desires.

Naguib claims that the choice is between union with Egypt or "complete independence," with no external links.

CANADA PLANNING TO GO INTO FIELD OF ATOMIC POWER

--Howe

Development Will Lead To Lower Power Costs

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada, a world leader in the peacetime application of atomic energy, is going into the field of atomic power.

Trade Minister Howe, the man who has guided Canada's atomic program from the start, told the Commons Tuesday:

"The time has come to undertake the development of atomic power in this country and discussions are going on as to ways and means of bringing about that development."

He predicted that at first it would be more expensive than hydro-electric power. But it would have a special initial value to areas where no hydro is available. He said he believed its development would eventually lead to lower power costs.

He indicated the government intends to give public and privately-owned power companies a hand in bringing it into being. They will be helped by Atomic Energy Ltd., the Crown-owned company which has charge of Canada's program of uranium and isotope production for medical and industrial uses.

Mr. Howe didn't predict how long it might take to harness the atom for power purposes. But he has said previously that Canada might be able to develop atomic power within five years.

Toronto Reporter Guilty of Theft Of Girl's Diary

KITCHENER (CP) — Angela Burke, 29, Toronto Daily Star reporter, today was convicted of stealing a diary owned by the girl victim in a shooting case. She was given suspended sentence.

Her lawyer said the verdict will be appealed.

Evidence was that Miss Burke took a dairy belonging to the late Marie Huras after receiving permission from the Huras girl's landlady to visit the girl's room and remove the diary, which was returned after examination.

Magistrate J. H. R. Kirkpatrick said that, on reviewing cases quoted to him, he found the landlady had no right to give Miss Burke permission to take the diary and that Miss Burke had no right to remove the diary from the girl's room.

The magistrate last week dismissed a charge of obstructing police and reserved judgment until today on the theft charge.

Lynda Watch, 3, Trapped In Room; $75,000 Damage

Two Families Homeless As Bargain Centre Gutted

A three-year-old girl living with her parents in a second floor apartment died of smoke fumes yesterday when fire of undetermined origin swept through the Belleville Bargain Centre on upper Front Street causing damage estimated at close to $75,000.

Killed by heavy smoke which trapped her in her room was Lynda Watch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Watch. She died in Belleville General Hospital despite a two-and-a-half hour effort by firemen to revive her.

The men's and women's wearing apparel store was completely gutted with floors of two overhead apartments falling through to the store. The household and personal possessions of two families were a complete loss.

Homeless are Mr. and Mrs. Watch and their two surviving children, Beverley 18 months and Donald 7, and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Carmichael and their three children, Margaret 7, Dennis 6, and Bonnie 3.

Broke Out in Rear of Store

When the fire broke out, presumably on the ground floor and at the rear of the store, it raced upward with lightning speed filling the upstairs apartments with dense smoke.

The alarm was spread by one of the store clerks who ran across the street to the old fire-hall from where Frank Lougheed, school guide, turned in the alarm to the Moira street fire-hall.

Actress Sues For $150,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Joan Miller sued NBC and others for $150,000 Tuesday charging they had used her name for the last year as that of a disreputable Nazi spy in a radio show, "Dangerous Assignment."

Miss Miller declared that in addition to her screen, radio and television acting, she performed "highly confidential and restricted work" for the U.S. office of war information during the Second World War. For this reason, she added, use of her name in the manner complained of was particularly injurious.

Neck to Ankle Armor for GI

IN KOREA (AP) — Some Allied soldiers in Korea soon may be sheathed in armor from neck to ankle.

Armored vests are standard. Armored shorts are being tested in combat. Armored leggings apparently are the next.

The latest item in the fast-developing body armor program is the nylon-armor leggings, which will be attached to the shorts.

None of the leggings have been sent to Korea, but are expected soon.

The armored vest weighs eight pounds and the shorts four pounds. Strauss said the leggings would add eight more for a total of 20 pounds.

Evidence Shows Reds Instigate Danish Mutiny

COPENHAGEN (AP) — A letter written on Communist party stationery was introduced in court today as evidence that the recent attempts of mutiny and hunger strikes in the Danish armed forces were instigated by the Reds.

The letter was found in the pocket of one of the demonstrating soldiers when he was searched after his arrest. Dated Feb. 16, the letter read:

"Comrade. As you have seen from the newspapers, great things have happened. I am coming to Haderslev and would appreciate very much to meet you so that both of us can talk things over. . It is important. . .(signed) Bent W. Nielsen."

Nielsen is a Communist youth movement leader.

The soldier in whose pocket the letter was found, Pte. Johannes Anderson, and Pte. Wilfred Noerholm appeared in court, charged with taking part in mutiny.

Three students who were arrested in Toender for distributing leaflets to soldiers admitted when questioned by police that they were Communist party members.

The leaflets called for demonstrations against extension of the military service term from 12 to 18 months.

$290,000 Estate

TORONTO (CP)—The estate of the elder John Laughlin, wealthy recluse who died Jan. 18 without a will, was estimated in Surrogate Court Tuesday at $290,000 in an application for administration of the estate.

The Guaranty Trust said in a letter to the registrar only the assessed value of the real estate, the greater portion of the estate, was given. It is expected the real value of the estate will be considerably higher than the estimate.

Premier Orders Hotels to Take Down Signs

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost has ordered hotels in the province to take down signs indicating approved accommodation, a spokesman for the department of travel and publicity said Tuesday.

He said Mr. Frost told the department the signs may leave the government vulnerable in case of fires or other disasters.

The spokesman said the premier's order to remove the signs, which carry one, two or three stars signifying the type of accommodation offered by hotels, motels and cabins, may be impossible to carry out without an amendment to the Tourists Establishments Act.

West Germany Will Sign For $5 Billion Debt

LONDON (AP)—West Germany and her foreign creditors are scheduled to sign an agreement Feb. 27 outlining terms for settling more than $5,500,000,000 worth of public and private German debts incurred since the First World War.

Completion of the agreement and plans for its signing were announced today by the foreign office. The accord was hammered out in two years of hard bargaining, supervised by a British-U.S.-French commission.

The announcement said the creditor countries agreed to take Germany's loss of territory since the Second World War into account in calculating her ability to pay. They also agreed to review the accord if and when East and West Germany are reunited.

The exact amount to be paid was not disclosed. The debts include obligations owed by Germans to governments, banks, bondholders and private firms of 19 countries including Canada.

Admit Niemoeller Had Secret Talks With Red Leaders

BERLIN (Reuters)—Church officials today admitted that Dr. Martin Niemoeller, head of the Protestant church in Hesse, West Germany, had had a "secret" meeting with the Communist East German premier, Otto Grotewohl, to discuss church-state relations.

They said the talk was supposedly secret but unofficial reports had leaked out.

Church officials today also said Johannes Hame, Evangelical University vicar of Halle, East Germany, has been unheard of for a week and is believed to have been arrested.

Hamel was last seen Thursday on his way to the local railroad station on an official trip. East German police searched his home the following night.

U.S. Govt. Lifts Price Controls From Butter, Milk, Dairy Products

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States government today lifted price controls from milk, butter, ice cream and other dairy products. Drugs, cosmetics, coal and most service charges, such as for auto, radio and television repairs, also were freed from controls.

Price Stabilizer Joseph Freehill said the items decontrolled in the new list affect about 10 per cent of the articles used in making up the cost of living index. He said the office of price stabilization still retains full control over about 13 per cent of the items and partial control over about 3.5 per cent.

Missing from the list was cigarettes and other tobacco products on which OPS had planned yesterday to lift controls. The agency decided overnight to substitute milk and dairy products and oleomargarine for the tobaccos.

This was the third major action in stripping off price curbs since President Eisenhower called for ending controls in an orderly manner by April 30.

Freehill estimated that more than $25,000,000,000 worth of goods and services based on an annual business volume was affected by today's action.

Indian Envoy to Moscow Reports Stalin Vigorous, Silent on Talks

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Indian Ambassador K. P. Menon, who had a 30-minute interview with Prime Minister Stalin Tuesday night, said today that his visit was "in the nature of a courtesy call."

He told correspondents the conversation was general.

Stalin looked "remarkably fit and full of physical and mental vigor," he said.

Menon declined to disclose anything about the subjects he discussed with Stalin. He declined to answer when asked whether he had discussed the question of a Korean armistice, as had been reported abroad.

He emphasized that the discussion was general, such as any head of a mission would have with the prime minister of a country where he served on his first visit to him.

Menon said the interview could be interpreted as a gesture of goodwill to India.

He did not think there was any connection between the interview and that which was given by Stalin Tuesday night to another Indian, Saifuddin Kitchlev, president of the All-India Peace Council.

Indian embassy circles do not think that the timing of the interviews is related to the forthcoming opening of the United Nations assembly or that deep diplomatic importance should be attached to them.

Kitchlev said his interview with Stalin was "a very satisfying conversation lasting over an hour."

"We had a frank, free talk with Stalin about burning questions of today and were satisfied, feeling that Stalin was all for peace and progress and not for war," he said.

Kitchlev declined to disclose details.

The Soviet press today said nothing about the content of the Kremlin interview and did not comment although the two announcements were given front page display.

Ted Reeve, Former Football Mentor, Player Tells of His Experiences

The over-six foot, over 200-pound, unsmiling man, standing behind the microphone at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday, gave his audience of more than 100 Kiwanians and guests, 20 minutes of almost solid laughter. Ted Reeve, former Queen's University football coach, great football player himself and more widely known for his sports column, "Sporting Extras", appearing in a Toronto paper, reminisced before his audience and almost brought down the house.

As guest speaker for the Madoc Kiwanis Club, which held its meeting in the Belleville centre along with the Belleville Club, Ted Reeve, in his own witty manner told his audience of his days as a football coach, his recollections as a player and his recollection of other players.

Comparing the characteristics of sport to desirable qualities in business, the former coach listed team spirit at the top of the order. "Support," he listed as the number two quality. "Endurance, adaptability and reserves," he said, "all play a vital part in both business and sport."

Speaks of Playing Days

Returning to his playing days, the speaker said, "I sat on the bench so long, I got so many splinters I was taking my rubdowns in the dressing room with furniture polish. When I acquainted my coach with this situation, he told me I was a good man all right, and it was too bad there wasn't another one like me. When I asked why he wanted another bench warmer, he said he could use us for book-ends."

Another example of Reeve humor was his story of the player who had played in the position of snapback so long the only way he can enjoy a game over television is go out in the hall and watch it through his legs.

Recalling the time he coached the Montreal Royals when they played Ottawa and were beaten 44-0 he said, "I sat at the farthest end of the bench and tried to look like the timekeeper." In another game, a cheerleader who had placed all his loose change on the team opposing Reeve, fainted as a decisive kick was made by his side. "When he came to," Reeve recalls, "his first question was whether or not the kick was good. When told it wasn't, the cheerleader passed out again. "He was just one faint ahead of me," quipped Reeve.

Introduced by Colonel T. B. Kenny, also of Toronto, Ted Reeve received a rousing hand from the gathering and official thanks for his visit offered by Aubrey Coe.

Cities Service Holds Clinic On Transmission

Cities Service Oil Co. Ltd. together with the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation of Canada Ltd., makers of the Oil Company's equipment, held a most successful full day's service clinic at Duffy's Service Station on Front Street.

Some twenty-five Cities Service dealers and service station operators from many points within a fifty-mile radius, received complete and detailed instruction on servicing the various makes of automatic transmissions. An interesting brief on this phase of service station work was presented by Mr. G. K. Ezeard, of the Company's head office at Toronto. This was followed by a technical explanation by W. Boynton of the Alemite Company.

Through the courtesy of several customers, different makes of cars of the automatic transmission type, were serviced, again under Mr. Boynton's supervision. The latest, and only recently government approved special equipment, was demonstrated and all present invited to participate in the actual service work. As a result of this school, Duffy's, as well as all the other dealers, are now well qualified to efficiently perform this highly specialized work.

Others present at this clinic were, Mr. Angus Duffy, the operator of the service station, Mr. Stan Hagerman, sales manager for Stewart Warner, Ralph Ketcheson, the latter's agent, as well as Mr. G. V. Hosang, the local manager for the Cities Service Oil Co. Ltd.

The position is again critical in the region south of Antwerp which comprises Bornhem and Hingene. The road from Niel to Bornham was cut off by the high tide.

24 at Meeting Of 'Y' Leaders Working on P.T.

A "get-acquainted" supper meeting of the physical education family of the YMCA was held last Monday at Lattimer's Town Room and was attended by 24 committee members, instructors, junior and senior leaders, all volunteer workers of the Physial Education Department of the local association.

Under the direction of J. Bryson Leslie, chaiman of the physison Leslie, chairman of the physigram included a sing-song, introductions, chairman's remarks—at which Mr. Leslie, on behalf of the committee and the board members of the YMCA, expressed his appreciation for the excellent work being done by all; an inspiring message by Archdeacon F. A. Smith, minister of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, who talked on "Service"; and another talk by Pete Beach, a former "Y" leader himself, whose topic was "What the Leader's Corps has meant to me."

The regular monthly meeting of the physical education committee followed. Reports of the program of the previous month were given; the renovation of a new weight-lifting and body-building room in the basement was discussed, and highlights of the physical education workshop, held in conjunction with the National Council annual meeting in Toronto, were reported by Physical Director Di Diamatides, who had attended it.

Salary Schedules at B.C.I. Increased $400 Across Board

Salary schedules for staff members at the Belleville Collegiate were increased a flat $400 across the board at a meeting of the Bay of Quine High School Area Board, held Tuesday evening.

Under the new schedule the maximum for the collegiate principal will be $6,600; department heads will have a maximum of $5,300 and $5,400; specialists, $5,200; non-specialists with honorary degrees, $5,100; and assistants, $5,000.

The new salary schedule will come into effect in September, 1953. Only four members of the collegiate staff had reached their maximums under the previous schedule.

Cost of living bonuses amounting to $225 for teachers with married status, and $150 for teachers with single status are also paid at the collegiate.

According to board members the new schedule brings salary maximums for the collegiate staff more in line with other high schools in the province. It was pointed out that salaries at Belleville were below most other schools between Toronto and Cornwall.

Report Complimentary

A verbal report from high school inspectors was received by board members. The report was complimentary to the school and to the staff who, inspectors said, were working under a disadvantage because of cramped student accommodation.

Holding of classes in the auditorium and in basement rooms as is necessary at the school due to inadequate accommodation is not conducive to good teaching, it was pointed out by the inspectors A few minor recommendations were made by the inspectors.

Mr. A. O. Drysdale, assistant superintendent at Canada Cement, was named chairman of the advisory vocational committee of the board. Last year, Mr. Drysdale represented the employers' interest on the committee.

Harold C. Seldon was named as board representative on the city council planning committee. Council had invited representation from the high school board on their planning committee.

The regular business of the board was laid over for a meeting to be held next week.

IN MEMORIAM

HARRISON. — In loving memory of our dear mother and father, Elsie and William Harrison, who passed away February 18th, 1952.

Oh what would we give to clasp their hands,
Their dear kind faces to see;
To hear their voices, to see their smiles,
That meant so much to us.
Their spirit has fled, their suffering o'er
At the fireside, they will join us no more.

—Lovingly remembered by Donald, Eugene and families. F18

HARRISON.—In ever loving memory of Bill and Elsie, who passed away suddenly, February 18th, 1952.

They are gone but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of them are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But, they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.

—Ever remembered by sister Myrtle, Archie and family. F18

HARRISON. — In loving memory of William and Elsie Harrison, who passed away one year ago today, February 18th, 1952:

More and more each day we miss them,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.

—Ever Remembered by brother and sister-in-law John and Libbie Collins. F18

HARRISON. — In loving memory of Bill and Elsie Harrison, who were so suddenly taken February 18th, 1952.

The blow was great, the shock severe
We little thought the end was near,
And only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
Loving and kind in all their ways
Upright and just to the end of their days.
Sincere and true in heart and mind

MURRAY. — In loving memory of my dear dad, John Murray, who passed away February 18th, 1947.

He is gone, but not forgotten,
As it dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er me,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.

—Always remembered by his daughter Marguerite. F18

SEELEY. — In loving memory of a dear son, James Seeley, who passed away February 12th, 1950.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Heavy speculative trading in a few low-priced mining issues today pumped new life into the "penny" mining market after lighter activity Tuesday. Prices generally weakened in forenoon trading.

Industrials and base metals lost about half a point each on the exchange indexes. Western oils were mixed and golds showed a minor gain.

Inspiration, a holding company, showed its third sharp gain in three days on reports from a columbium - tantalum - uranium property in Northern Ontario. It traded 194,000 shares to gain 85 cents at $3.70. Detta Red Lake moved almost 250,000 shares for a gain of 6½ cents at 40 cents.

Uranium issues were generally firm although some leaders slipped slightly from opening gains. Chimo added pennies. Bathurst - area issues were less active and slightly weaker.

In the industrials, manufacturing companies and utilities held firm although a list of small losses scattered in other groups depressed the index.

Weakness in higher-priced base metals turned the list lower. Golds held firm on gains in juniors.

11 Residents Of Dysart District Fined Over $500

REGINA (CP)—Eleven residents of Dysart district who broke into the home of their parish priest and threw him out last December have been fined a total of more than $500.

Rev. Daniel Maxim, pastor of the Romanian Greek Orthodox Church at Dysart for more than 30 years, said he was told by a faction of his congregation that they didn't want him any more.

On Dec. 6, 13 persons forced the back door of his house, forced him to give them the keys for the house and church. Father Maxim was thrown out and did not return until Jan. 27.

The dispute is believed centred on whether the head of the church should be in the United States or in Communist-dominated Romania.

Peter Dumba, the alleged ringleader, was fined $100 and costs and put under a $500 bond for two years.

Crime in Ontario On Decrease Legislature Told

TORONTO (CP)—An alarming increase in crime in Ontario following the Second World War may be on the wane.

A report of the department of reform institutions tabled Tuesday in the Ontario Legislature showed a slight decrease in crime last year. The report said it "is a hopeful sign the peak has been passed."

It noted that crime last year was still about twice as great as the annual average incidence during the war years, but only slightly higher than in 1939, the last pre-war year.

Convictions totalled 8.49 for each 1,000 of population, compared with 8.86 in the preceding year. Numerically, convictions totalled 40,486 compared with 40,743 in 1950-51. An increase in assaults and thefts was more than overcome by a drop in minor crimes, particularly liquor offences.

Youths between the ages of 16 and 20 continued to give the most trouble. Of 8,326 persons sent to jail during the period covered by the report, ending March 31, 1952, 1,022 of them were in the under-21 age group. Next highest was the 21-24 group, with 969.

More than half the number sent to jail were classified as "intemperate" or heavier-than-average drinkers. From an occupational standpoint laborers were the worst offenders; 4,938 persons in this category were given jail terms. Persons engaged in agriculture and the professions committed the least number of offences.

HARD ON FOXES

FOREST, Ont. (CP)—The Plympton Circle Fox Hunt Club in this Western Ontario community has bagged 40 foxes this winter. Four of the foxes were shot during one hunt in which 32 members took part.

Mechanical Hand Used to Count Money in Bank

OTTAWA (CP)—Twirling in the same way as you twiddle your thumbs, two mechanical fingers are bringing lightning speed to note-counting in the Bank of Canada.

Latest gadget born to the financial machine age, the tiny steel fingers can count about 500 bills in about 18 seconds—equal to the work of five human employees.

The electrically-driven machine was purchased by the bank from United Kingdom manufacturers for about $3,500. Only one other is believed to be in existence in Canada, working for a paper money manufacturer also in this capital.

A suction pump leads, through a rubber tube, to a flat piece of steel about the size of a razor blade. This steel finger with a hole in the centre is sliced so that the air passing through the hole is sucked into the tube.

Every time the flat finger touches a pain bill it tends to drag it away, just as you would by counting bills by licking your thumb. But just as the finger pulls the bill towards it, along comes another mechanical finger, about the size and shape of a small pencil, to push the bill back.

A record of the number of bills the machine counts is kept on a tiny dial, something like the mileage recorder in your automobile.

COMPENSATED PRISONER

VICTORIA (CP)—The British Columbia cabinet approved payment of $250 compensation to a Vancouver man imprisoned in the Oakalla jail who lost a finger in an accident in the prison's sheet metal shop. Prisoners are not covered by the Workmen's Compensation Act and the compensation was awarded by order-in-council.

Canadians Paid Over Billion In Personal Income Taxes; Citizens Earned $17 Billions

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians' personal income amounted to a record $17,146,000,000 in 1952, the government estimated today in a white paper tabled in the Commons preliminary to Thursday's budget.

Of the total, Finance Minister Abbott's white paper calculated, the earners spent $14,290,000,000 on goods and services, $1,318,000,000 on direct taxes — income, succession and miscellaneous — and saved $1,538,000,000.

Mr. Abbott's income levy took the biggest tax bite — $1,177,000,000.

The aggregate income figure — which includes family allowances, pensions and the like — compared with a previous high of $15,852,000,000 in 1951. In that year, consumer spending and taxes were lower at $13,234,000,000 and $1,027,000,000, respectively, but savings were up at $1,591,000,000.

In the previous two years, all categories were lower.

The eight-per-cent increase in personal income during 1952, the white paper said, occurred despite a substantial decline in farm income from its record 1951 level. Net farm income was shown as dropping to $1,877,000,000 from $2,174,000,000. Lower prices were the cause.

The increase in over-all personal income, the paper said, was almost wholly a gain in "real" income, since the consumer price index averaged only 2.5 per cent higher than in 1951.

The increase was due to steady expansion in salaries and wages and the start of old age security payments.

Longest Active Strike in Ont. History Ends

DURHAM (CP)—The longest active strike on record in Ontario has ended.

Employees of the Durham Furniture Company, who have been out on strike since last July, decided at a mass meeting Tuesday night to end the stoppage.

Officials of the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL) said the decision means the collapse of local 152 as an effective bargaining agent for the plant workers. Howard Reay, local vice-president, said the local will probably cease to function.

About 110 workers are affected. Some will return to work at the plant, while others seek work elsewhere.

Refused to Sign

The strike began when the company refused to sign a contract with the union. Picket lines were thrown around the plant and maintained for seven months.

The company, main industry in this town of 2,000 persons 30 miles south of Owen Sound, kept the plant closed for a time and then reopened with a handful of defections from the union ranks and some new employees.

At one stage of the struggle, the company threatened to move the industry to another community.

Early in the strike, the company refused to meet with Labor Minister Daley on the grounds that it had discharged the employees and was going out of business. While the strike lasted the firm lost much of its business.

End of the strike came a day after Mr. Daley said in the Legislature that his department had failed to bring about a settlement.

PICTON

Big Circulation Reported By Library Board

Picton — The greatest circulation of books in the history of Picton Public Library was reported by Miss Kathleen Keech, librarian, at the annual meeting yesterday. The total of 45,377 was 3,408 more than the biggest year since the service opened here 45 years ago.

A total of 2,821 borrowers are registered, and of these 923 are children. In the adult department, total circulation of 35,116 consisting of 26,767 fiction and 8,394 classes, was 3,614 more than the previous year. In the juvenile department, circulation of 10,261 included 8,023 fiction.

The library is also the centre of the film council which held 549 showings last year with a total attendance of 24,535. Saturday showings for children have an average attendance of 60.

The library has provided special service for Collegiate pupils since their library was destroyed by fire along with the school.

Farmers Urged To Go Off 'Gold Standard'

CORNWALL (CP) — Professor Ralph Campbell of the Ontario Agricultural College urged Canadian dairy farmers Tuesday to go off the "gold standard" of butterfat and pay more attention to skim milk prices.

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Ayrshire Cattle Club that too much attention has been paid to butterfat content of milk while other solids have been underestimated.

A change in the evaluation of skim milk might help overcome the dairy industry's problems due to the increasing use of vegetable oils.

"Most of the products in which vegetable oils can replace butterfat still require a skim milk base," Prof. Campbell said.

Russell Newton of Vankleek Hill was elected president to succeed A. Gushart of Hamilton. Dalton Jermey of Coldwater is vice-president, and directors elected are William Cable, Forest; Donald MacIntyre, Finch; Alex Sutherland, Paris and Rowan Stansell, Aylmer.

Democrat Calls Korean Policy Political 'Sham'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Melvin Price (Dem. Ill.) said today that proposals thus far advanced by President Eisenhower to break the Korean stalemate have been "a sham" and "little more than campaign politics."

He dismissed as "window dressing" the President's references to Korea in his state of the union message to Congress and called for a return to bipartisan political co-operation on foreign policy and security priblems.

Price, a member of the House of Representatives Armed services committee, wrapped up in a speech prepared for House delivery probably the most outspoken attack on the new Republican administration yet to be voiced by a Democrat in Congress.

Price said he was "dismayed" by plans announced thus far to fulfill Eisenhower's "implied promise" during the campaign to bring an early and honorable end to the Korean war.

Price said the two main points dealt with training of additional South Korean divisions, and ending use of the U. S. 7th fleet to keep Nationalist forces on Formosa.

Price said Eisenhower "should have learned" that the U. S. has been embarked "for well over two years now" on an intensive program of training South Koreans.

He added it was doubtful that Chiang's forces could raid the mainland from Formosa without substantial help — possibly including U. S. Navy and air support.

SARNIA (CP)—Civic officials, army officers and representatives of the federal and provincial governments joined with the members of Sarnia branch 62, Canadian Legion, in the official opening Tuesday of a $20,000 addition to the legion's Front street building. Committee Vetoes Production Of Full Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton got a preview of some of the damaging findings of the Currie report a month before he ordered the Currie investigation, the Commons defence committee was informed Tuesday.

E. B. Armstrong, assistant deputy minister of national defence, testified that the department's own chief auditor reported in March, 1952, that the system of accounting in the works services was not working properly, that "supervision is almost entirely lacking" and that both the quantity and quality of staff was inadequate. These flaws were later described in the Currie report.

The chief auditor, Arthur Kidd, also had said that "all possible has been or is being done to remedy the adverse conditions that exist."

It was a month later that Mr. Claxton asked George S. Currie, Montreal accountant, to make his own investigation of the works services. Mr. Armstrong said this decision arose from the fact that thefts had been discovered at Petawawa in the works detachment.

He began to testify after listening to members of the committee battle for several meetings while he waited to give evidence. The final obstacle was a fight concerning a Progressive Conservative motion for production of the full reports by Mr. Kidd and his staff—watchdogs of armed services accounting — on shortcomings in works services administration from 1950 to 1952.

The committee has been given a 43-page summary of "the substance" of those reports. The Conservative motion for production of the full reports was defeated on a 13 to 8 vote, with the Liberal members standing against members of the three parties in opposition.

In the debate, Conservative members argued that "digested" or "expurgated" summaries by "a department that is under fire" are not good enough and that it is the committee's right and duty to see the whole reports.

Liberal members took the line that the reports are privileged documents because they represent private advice given to a minister on a situation in his department.

Orders Pour In For All Kinds Of Flag Designs

St. Catharines, Ont. (CP)—This city is in the flag business—this year in a greater way than ever before.

Orders are pouring into a dyeing and finishing company plant here for thousands of flags, big and small. The company expects to take on more workers to get out the number required by firms and individuals all over the country for Canada's Coronation celebrations.

The flags are made in all sizes from about a foot across to giant banners measuring 18 by nine feet.

The company expects this year to double production over its peak year of 1952. In 1951 one large department store in an Ontario city ordered 800 large flags for store decoration when the then Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh visited Canada.

Flags are made of nylon, light in weight for domestic use and heavier to give the greater strength required by ships of the navy and the merchant marine.

Prime Minister St. Laurent has stamped the red ensign as Canada's official flag for the June celebrations. These and union jacks will be produced by the company in greatest quantity during the next few months.

OVER TWO

The estimated surplus of $47,816,000 for this year was more than five times greater than the surplus forecast by Mr. Abbott in his budget speech last year. At that time he anticipated only $9,000,000.

At Dec. 31—the last figure available—the surplus has climbed to $264,099,000. However, expenditures invariably are greater than revenues in the final months of the fiscal year.

Other Points in Paper

Other points in the white paper:

1. Defence expenditures, representing almost 45 per cent of government outlays, estimated at $1,939,137,000 compared with $1,446,453,000, an increase of $492,684,000.
2. A gross national production of $22,984,000,000 indicated for 1952 compared with $21,448,000,000 in 1951, an increase of $1,536,000,000.
3. Earnings of Canadians in 1952 estimated at $17,146,000,000 compared with $15,852,000,000 in 1951, an increase of $1,294,000,000.
4. Personal savings estimated at $1,538,000,000 compared with $1,591,000,000, a drop of $53,000,000.
5. Investment in plant, equipment and housing estimated at $4,138,000,000 an increase of $328,000,000.
6. Favorable balance on international payments estimated at $150,000,000 compared with a deficit of $524,000,000 in 1951.
7. Net farm income showed a decline of 12 per cent largely as a result of lower prices for livestock.

Public Debt Charges

Next to defence, public debt charges represented the largest government expense. The charges for 1952-53 were estimated at $460,900,000 compared with $531,000,000.

On the revenue side, the yield from personal income tax, including a two-per-cent levy for old age pensions was estimated at $1,233,000,000 compared with $975,776,000 a year ago, an increase of $257,224,000.

Corporation income tax, also including a two-per-cent pension levy, was estimated at $1,268,000,000 compared with $1,132,680,000, an increase of $136,320,000.

Yield Increased

Yield from indirect taxes, including customs and excise duties, excise and sales taxes was listed at $1,499,400,000, an increase of $43,600,000.

The levy for old age pensions dates back to Jan. 1, 1952, when the government inaugurated payment of pensions of $40 a month to Canadians 70 and over regardless of means.

A special funds was established and a two-per-cent tax was imposed on personal incomes, corporations and sales to finance the pensions. The taxes yielded $224,100,000 in the current year, leaving the fund with a deficit of approximately $100,000,000. The deficit was covered by temporary loans from the government.

Eskies Sign American Coach

EDMONTON (CP) — Darrell K. Royal, 28-year-old former Oklahoma University backfielder, has been signed to a three-year contract as coach of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Eskimo president Ken Montgomery, making the announcement today, said the club felt Royal fitted the situation better than anyone who had been considered.

Royal succeeds Frank Filchok, ousted last December in a contract dispute after leading Edmonton to its first Grey Cup final in 30 years. Filchok since has signed to coach Saskatchewan Roughriders.

PROPER OBJECTION RAISED

There has been a good deal of talk which would have us believe that the Social Crediters are likely to become a serious third party threat in the next federal election. It is talk based on much doubtful speculation but whatever chances of wider appeal the "funny-money" party might have in the federal field they were not enhanced by some remarks of Mr. Solon Low, Social Credit leader, in the House of Commons last week.

Quite apart from any unfavorable impression which might have been created in the United States his reference to the late Franklin Roosevelt and Mr. Truman as "the great betrayers of history" will be regarded by most Canadians as in extremely bad taste. Even those in this country who were not open admirers of either, or both, of the past presidents (and admirers of both are countless) must agree that External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson properly took issue with this statement when he spoke in the House on Monday.

Mr. Low's words, as reported in Hansard, were "... when the full history of these times is written, when all the facts have been brought to light, there will be many people who will say that the past two presidents of the United States have been the great betrayers of history. To be charitable, as I ought to be, I will say that some of those decisions made at Yalta and Potsdam, some of the secret understandings and agreements that were had with Stalin, may have been made in good faith; but the very best anyone can say is that they indicated a most serious lack of foresight and judgment on the part of these two presidents. It may be that they listened too much to unsound advice from men like Alger Hiss, but they will not on that account be able to escape the judgment of history."

In denouncing this utterance Mr. Pearson took occasion also to rebuke another Social Crediter, Rev. E G. Hansel, for having made reference, in a written article, to the United Nations as a "socialist-communist" organization bent on world government.

Statements of this kind hardly require serious refutation. They are not untypical of the reckless sort of language which marked the earlier years of Social Credit's entrance upon the political stage in Canada. The Social Crediters have gained some respectable prestige lately in the role of provincial politicians basking in the limelight of a great boom in the far west. But some of them are not content to let nature take its course and are again becoming seized with the delusion that they have been divinely called to lead the nation.

It will be recalled the stock-in-trade of slander that marked the utterances of some of the earlier prophets of the party led in one case at least to a jail term.

DUTCH WILL GET LAND BACK

It was a staggering blow that the invasion of the North Sea dealt the people of Holland. The worst since the Middle Ages, it struck just when the Dutch had begun to get back on their feet in the post-war struggle for recovery. Only a week before it occurred the Dutch had said they were strong enough to do without further economic aid from the U.S.

An assessment of the extent of damage and the problem of reclamation in Holland has been made by the U. S. News and World Report A great area of the country can grow nothing, produce no exports for years. About a million Hollanders are homeless. The death toll may be over 2,000.

At least three years of hard work will be necessary to get the worst-flooded part of the country back into production. But already some of the 375,000 acres which were under water have been drained. Other areas will take months. Dikes have first to be drained and the North Sea has then to be pumped out. Salt may be a big problem.

Dutch officials can only guess at the damage and the cost of repairs. There is no doubt that the total will exceed a billion dollars. That is a lot of money to the Dutch in these times. It is likely that defence spending will have to be reduced and the contribution to the European Army cut. Dutch trade will suffer. The flood means a decline in exports and the necessity to increase imports, with serious economic loss.

The first job after cleaning up the mess will be to repair the dikes. This has been the age-old first order of business for the Dutch in their eternal struggle with the sea. The destruction of wartime flooding gave the Dutch some recent experience, though on nowhere near the present scale.

Some remarkable reclamation feats were performed. Flooding of Walcheren Island late in the war opened 38,000 acres to the sea. Dutch engineers were ready and got busy on the job on V-E Day, May 8, 1945. Experts had estimated it would take seven to nine years before crops would grow on this land again. Actually, by January 1, 1946, the Walcheren Island dikes were repaired. By the end of 1948, nearly all the land on the island was producing crops. Instead of nine years the job was done in three.

North Sea gales and winter weather will hold back repairs. Work on the dikes can only be done at low tide. The rebuilding process is to use batteries of pumps which will force sand into the breaks in the dikes. Barges and concrete pontoons will be sunk to form a foundation for the new sea walls.

Once the dikes are repaired the job will be to pump the water back into the North Sea. Huge pumps are used for this operation. The next step is to restore the land and this treating process is a longer one if the salt has penetrated very deep.

Even with the benefit of post-war experience in new methods the job will take three years, or more, this time. But we may be sure the Dutch will get their land back.

If a man should register all his opinions upon love, politics, religion, learning, etc., beginning from his youth, and so go on to old age, what a bundle of inconsistencies and contradictions would appear at last.—Swift.

Inhuman Alarm

(Detroit Free Press)

A patent has been granted on an alarm clock that keeps an electric eye on the sleeper and forces him to get out of bed and stay out.

A photo-electric beam is aimed across the bed at such a level it is interrupted by the sleeper's recumbent form. Once the alarm bell is tripped, the case of the clock cannot be unlocked to shut it off for an hour.

The clanging stops, however, if the sleeper gets out of bed and lets the light beam through. If he jumps back into the bed, the beam again is interrupted and the alarm resumes.

The clock is run by electricity but the plug is screwed into the socket. By the time a screwdriver if found and applied, it is assumed the owner will be thoroughly awake and will give up.

Despite the inventor's efforts to make his gadget foolproof, there are several ways — happily — for a true alarm clock hater to solve the problem. The best way is to prevent the Chief-Getter-Upper in the house from buying such an infernal machine.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1953, Edgar A. Guest)

LUCK

What constitutes the thing called luck?
In it I fancy there is pluck,
And there is faith and there is skill;
It has a part of iron will;
It's born of dreams which brave men hold,
And comes to them if they are bold.
Luck is the joy which men deserve.
The rich reward of those who serve.

Luck flies to help and boost the man
Who bravely does the best he can;
It seldom benefits the base
Or raises high the commonplace,
It often is a friend in need,
Yet he is helpless here, indeed,
Who has no courage of his own
And must depend on luck alone.

If you have faith and, you will work,
If you will go where dangers lurk;
If you possess a dream and cling
To it in spite of everything;
If you are brave and wise and fair,
And have the grit to do and dare;
If you possess your share of pluck,
The chances are that you'll have luck.

Psychiatry And Warts

(Louisville Courier-Journal)

A doctor at the University of California is toying with the idea of psychiatry to cure warts. Wonders have been worked, he says, by mental suggestion. Anyhow, the warts disappear — sometimes

It strikes us, however, that the good doctor has a lot to learn from his colleagues of the barnyard school. A glance at our Kentucky book shows 112 ways of getting shed of warts, and practically every one preferable to a sojourn on an office couch. There are some that have us wishing for warts, just for the fun of their removal.

High on the list is the assurance that you can get rid of a wart by selling it to somebody. The ritual price is only a penny, but there's the consoling thought that this isn't an O.P.S. ceiling, and that a good "five per center" might wrangle something better for you.

We like, too, all those curdling prescriptions that deal with black cats and graveyard ceremonies in the dark of the moon. If it's exercise you want there's help in the mountain advice to walk backward in the moonlight to a stump full of water and stick your wart in it.

Then there's no end of things to rub 'em with, all sure fire — dishrags, poke root, horse hair, green mustard, goose quills, tobacco juice, dandelion greens, eggs (stolen from a neighbor's hen house), and endlessly on. You can kiss your wart and then a pretty girl, — and there we go, confessing our compulsion, and that California pesychiatrist watching us, too.

Spring In February

(Fergus News-Record)

At the south corner of our house is a big ungainly forsythia bush. Several times, we have thought of chopping it down. It seldom has any flowers. After a mild winter, there may be a few on the low branches, but that it all.

We supposed it was some variety that didn't bloom well. Never were we more mistaken. About two weeks ago, when the buds were swelling on a mild afternoon we cut half a dozen branches and put them in a big vase indoors. We didn't really expect much bloom, but thought that even green leaves would be cheerful in winter.

Now the branches are covered with yellow bells from end to end. It is like bringing rays of sunshine indoors in February. The flowers are there, all right, even if they die back before the ordinary springtime comes around. That bush isn't going to be cut down for a long time yet.

Too Much Cuteness

(Hamilton Spectator)

We are growing distinctly weary of this dismal business of subordinating the taste and solidity of food to cuteness and originality. We don't want our food cute. We want it edible. We maintain that any wife who would desecrate the breakfast table with the sausage-and-grapefruit concoction proposed in a recipe the other day should be force-fed with sardines dipped in molasses and furthermore that all wives who perpetrate those monstrous little sticky salads which look and taste like whipped cream on alfalfa should be put out to grass permanently.

Please pass the bicarbonate.

Caddies Vanishing

(Watertown Times)

The Royal and Ancient Golf club at St. Andrew's, Scotland, cradle of the game, is being desecrated by mechanical monsters We speak of two-wheeled carts now widely employed in place of caddies.

News from the R. and A. is that there are but a handful of human caddies left, a few old-stagers who not only carry bags, but also keep the "gentlemen" supplied with the right club for every shot. A good caddie, difficult as it may be for non-golfers to understand, can save a player strokes each round with descreet suggestions about distance, wind, terrain, and so forth. So proficient did some of them become that players accepted their choice of club without question and regarded them as oracles in all matters pertaining to the game.

Needless to say the scorn the half-dozen or so professional caddies entertain for caddie carts is monumental. One of their number, asked by the opponent of his player to remove the flag on a green so he could putt, retorted: "Get yer damned caddie-cart ta dae that fur ye."

Th caddie is becoming extinct in Scotland for a combination of reasons, all of which have something to do with money. First, there are fewer golfers today who can pay a caddie the fee he needs to live. Second, caddieing is not steady employment any more, and while one week may be flush with jobs, the next is likely to be lean. Third in importance is the decline of the profession is the British regulation on health insurance. A caddie is classed as self-employed and therefore must buy his own insurance stamp. faced with the necessity of gvling up half a week's wages for a stamp, and true to the Scottish tradition, many of the old timers have looked elsewhere for employment and caddied only on a part-time basis.

The decline of this noble profession is not peculiar to the R. and A. In this country the going price for a bag-totter ranges around $3, in return for which a player more often than not gets inattention, conversation and occasional inaccurate advice. Golfers in America commiserate with the R. and A.; we have great misfortunes in common.

Careless Weatherman

(Vancouver Sun)

The secret of Vancouver's generous rainfall this season has leaked out, perhaps with the announcement from Olympia that some reckless official down there has been secretly experimenting with a rain-making machine for all of two years.

This employee of the Washington state government, it seems, was set up with some complicated machinery early in 1951. He reports now that his operations definitely "added to the amount of precipitation."

What we want to know is what went wrong when an incantation designed to bring showers down on Sedro Woolley resulted in a comparative deluge in British Columbia.

American science, we admit, is a wonderful thing. But there is such a thing as being careless abou tit. And surely something slipped when thsi fellow's clouds got away from him and dumped their water on a neighborly and friendly state.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

REWARDS HERE AND NOW

There must be a great deal of satisfaction in conducting a business on the cash basis. You know exactly where you stand at the close of each day. No one to harass with bills, no lawyers' fees for collecting long overdue purchases. No complicated bookkeeping.

We can conduct our lives on somewhat the same basis. By living for the day alone, eliminating all worries, and never allowing ourselves to be "trapped by yesterday," we can hope for the morrow cleansed of all regrets. We can place the good and useful deeds of the day "on the line," retaining the satisfaction that thus always results from such a plan, indebted mostly to ourselves.

Our hope for rewards should be confined to our unselfish contribution to the making of a better world all about us in the distribution of cheer, hope, confidence and faith. Rewards that return here and now, thus making each day notable. We ought to pay attention to pleasurable things, inside happiness and distributed joy.

It is to the head of a great cash store that [illegible] the idea of the "pay as yo[illegible] in the handling of income taxes in the United States. This has resulted in the ease from worry and confusion that otherwise would be the result. We owe nothing in return for a kindness or a generous deed performed. We are already compensated in the satisfaction that immediately is ours.

Why should another be obligated to us for hrving rendered a service? Is it not enough to have done something that has enriched our own personal happiness? Why should we expect a reward for something already created within ourselves? A day filled with thankyous is something to fill each one of us with pride. These thankyous are like cash paid on the spot!

Heroism, in itself, is a reward. Never is it in competition with any ribbon or medal, no matter how coveted. All through life our own self-rewards add up to give lustre to character.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

GETTING THE SKIN WET

Is there danger in bathing children when they have a cold, if they have little or no fever and if the room is comfortably warm? I have always bathed them, but "Ben Told" it is dangerous. I have tried to sponge bathe them, but they love their tub bath... (Mrs. P. W.)

Frankly, Ma'am, people who believe any illness can be identified or explained as "a cold"—and their doctors—do not regard my views and teachings as sensible or sound. As a lady said the other day:

"I read your column daily. I consider you a screwball and crackpot about health. But your article of Nov. 19 showing how American home standards breed juvenile delinquency entitles you to an award for telling the clear truth..."

If they were my children I'd bathe them or let them bathe whenever they need a bath. If they prefer tub bath to sponge bath let 'em have fun. A shower bath is a lot more fun and, from the viewpoint of hygiene, the best of all.

A daily or weekly hot, cold or tepid sponge, shower or tub bath promotes comfort, but has little or nothing to do with health.

Three-fourths of the illness attended by physicians is due to the C R I (common respiratory infections) or their complications or sequels. If there is any precaution you can teach your children to take against such illness you want to know about it, don't you?

So far I have done admirably today. Haven't called readers any names.

But now I ask you, in the name of decency and public welfare won't you please, please call it cri (kree) when you are coming down with or indisposed by such illness and by such honesty give everyone within your spray range fair warning? Or would you rather be a blankety-blanked stinker and try to make those around you think your trouble is trivial and not communicable? That's the wicked American way.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Allergy My Eye

Sixteen year old daughter has cracks in corner of her mouth, caused, I believe by allergy... (G. H.)

Answer—More likely nuritional deficiency, especially riboflavin deficiency. Best food sources of reboflavin are milk, cheese, liver, plain wheat, eggs, broccoli, dried peas, spinach, greens of any kind.

Heredity

Is cancer heritable? My uncle and grandfather both died from it.

Answer—No. It occurs so frequently that few families escape it altogether for more than one generation.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An insurance man told me this story for truth. A man fell downstairs and broke his leg. The house in which he lived was one of those lodgings where all sorts of drifters, petty grafters, witlivers and petty crooks abide. Possibly the broken leg was the consequence of a scuffle or a fight.

At all events, a broken leg is a matter of expense in any kind of house. A doctor has to be called. There are hospital expenses to pay. And no income while the broken leg mends.

It was a nasty winter night out. The streets were covered with ice.

Some sharp-witted member of the menage had a bright idea. They carried the man with the broken leg out to their car. They drove him up to a well-to-do neighborhood. And selecting a nice-looking house, in front of which the pavement was covered with ice, they quietly drew up, lifted the injured man out and laid him on the pavement; ran their car a few yards farther along the street; and then dashed up to the door of the house selected, and rang the bell.

"A man has just fallen and hurt himself on your front walk," they informed the householder who answered the door. "We were just passing. Can we bring him in, out of the cold, and call a doctor?"

Naturally the householder agreed. The whole group came in, a doctor was summoned. The injured man declared that the householder was responsible for the ice on his walk. The good samaritans who had found him, a fairly tough lot, backed up the injured man. The householder, distressed and confused, assured them he would look after the doctor's bill, and see what he could do to help. The injured man was just developing the question of who was to look after him while he was out of work when two dear old ladies, who live across the road from the victim, telephoned to enquire what was going on. They said they had been, old-lady-like, looking out the window when they saw a car drive up and deposit a man on the sidewalk.

The citizen quietly called the police. And in a few minutes, the whole situation was cleared up. It generally pays to call the police in case of accidents on the street.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

Last winter at this time I wrote about the way in which the logs in the fireplace melt away over night, even though all flame has disappeared. The whole thing has so impressed me that I feel a few lines on it again this year will not be amiss.

At night when I turn out the light, there may still be a large log left on the andirons glowing in the darkness, but with no flames playing around it. In the morning when I come down stairs, the log has completely disintegrated except perhaps for the ends which were almost untouched by the fire. What has been going on of course has been a gradual eating out of the centre of the log by the hidden fires that without any visible flame are creeping through the wood. One could sit before the fireplace all night and not be conscious of anything taking place but in the morning the log would be eaten

All through my life I have

A9ll through my life I have been seeing sin and every variety of moral weakness doing just that to the lives of men, Chaps whom I can remember fifty years ago as robust, virile, promising young men have died early or have lived on to a pathetic, shuffling old age, their lives eaten out by bitterness, unbridled pleasures, or alcoholic indulgence. They came to the end of their lives with everything satisfactory and noble burned out of their natures.

The hidden fires are deep—and destructive.

Increase in Reading Habits Noted in Library Board Report

A decided increase in the reading habits of Belleville residents is noted in the annual report of the Corby Public Library which shows that book circulation for last year was up by over 16,000 books.

The report shows that adult reading was increased by 8,321, with the circulation in the boys' and girls' department being increased by a total of 7,749. Of this number the increase in juvenile books was 3,489. Total circulation was 103,677.

Over $6,000 worth of new books were added to the library shelves during the past year and thus the old complaint of "there never being any new books" is becoming weaker. Total adult books on the shelves is given as 18,288, with a circulation of 69,320. In the boys' and girls' library there are 6,255 books with a circulation of 36,437.

Given New Life

A large budget made possible by the city's appropriation being increased to 81c per capita, has given the library new life, according to the report submitted to the library board by Librarian Miss Olive Delaney. The library board was able to point with pride to extensions and improvements in the library service.

Opening of a branch library in the Queen Elizabeth School on MacDonald Ave. was noted as one of the greatest accomplishments of the year. This extension of the library service to residents of the above area had met with a satisfactory response. Co-operation of the public school board in allowing space in the school was appreciated.

Evidence of the increased use of the library was shown in the fact that 833 adult and 783 juvenile members were added to the library register during the year. At the branch library there are 193 boys and girls and 31 adults registered. Members registered at the main library can use their cards at the Queen Elizabeth School branch.

The reference library continued to see good use by members and with new titles added an attempt is made to keep this branch up-to-date.

Another department seeing heavy use is the film library operated in connection with the book library. Sixty local organizations belonged to the Belleville and District Film Council last year, the projector being booked for 283 meetings with 1171 films being circulated.

A music department is also operated and this proved fairly popular. From a "basic" collection 319 records were circulated. As the collection became larger it was felt its popularity would increase.

A special program making for increased library interest on the part of school children is carried on by library staff members. This includes a standing invitation for grade 4-8 classes being brought to the library by teachers for a book talk and instruction in library use. A story hour and film showing is held every Saturday while a summer reading contest helped to retain interest in reading during the summer months.

Book displays were effective in increasing circulation of books which were remaining on the shelves.

The library is seeing continued use as a meeting place for various organizations. Fifty-four such meetings were held during the year. Queen's tutorial classes were held in the library last year. Organizations using the library as a meeting place included the Arts and Crafts Club, the Stamp Club, Belleville and District Film Club, the Community Concert Association and the Camera Club.

A new venture was the organization of a "Great Books' Discussion Group." This group was organized in October and now has over 20 members.

Improvements Effected

Building improvements were effected during the year with the adult library being re-decorated. Staff changes during the year included Miss Wilma Durie, who came in March. The addition of a full time member had made a great difference.

Miss Kathleen Jones, senior assistant, resigned at the end of December and would be difficult to replace unless there was an upward trend in the salary schedule. Mr. Richard Philbin had been retained as caretaker following the death of George Graham.

The librarian expressed appreciation to the many library borrowers who donate magazines and books. The local Sales and Ad club had donated books on salesmanship and advertising.

Getting down to statistics it was shown there was a book stock of 24,543 at the end of the year, with 3,429 being added. Borrowers totalled 9,239. Total circulation in 1952 was 105,667. This compared with 89,597 in 1951 and 72,586 in 1950.

The financial statement showed receipts for the year as $20,801.33, including $15,732.63 appropriation from the city and $3,520.55 provincial grant. Desk receipts were $933.22.

On the expenditure side was an item of $6,870 for new books; $1,210 for repairs and re-decoration, $8,535.75 staff salaries with an extra item of $960 for janitor services.

Librarian, Staff, Board Praised By Speaker

"The city is to be congratulated on the high quality and purpose of its public library service as evidenced by Miss Olive Delaney and her staff and board," Marius Risley, Western Ontario and Western New York representative of the Great Books Foundation said at the fortnightly meeting of the Great Books discussion in the Corby Public Library Monday evening.

Mr. Risley led a seminar on discussion methods after last night's meeting. Discussion leaders present, who contributed several statements were Mr. Roy Macklem, inspector of public schools for South Hastings and Miss Joyce Watson.

Three comedies by Aristophanes were assigned reading for more than 17 local members of the group after which Mr. Risley conducted his critique on the discussion methods.

Commenting on the value of such organizations, Miss Delaney said, "We are happy to be part of a network of over 1,600 such discussion groups meeting in more than four countries." In the same vein of thought, Mr. Macklem added his statement. "This is a splendid liberal education in true parliamentary spirit," he said. "If there is a better program free, and continuing education for the meaningful citizen, I do not know what it is.

"Fresh Variable Winds," a short skit depicting child and adult emotions, was splendidly enacted Monday evening at Queen Victoria school under the direction of Mrs. G. A. Bradford, president of the Home and School Association.

Following the president's most cordial welcome to the assembled parents and guests, the usual business was transacted, with Mrs. Bristol's class winning the banner for the most parents present, a total of 16.

The guest speaker of the evening, Miss Isabel Laird, assistant professor of psychology, Queen's University, Kingston, who was introduced by the principal, Mr. E. S. Fairman, dealt at some length with the cause and effect of emotional tension in the home, as portrayed by the play.

Kindly Understanding

The play, which centred around the disappearance of the boy of the home for a day, depicted the lad's home-coming, chewing bubble gum, his weird story of being kidnapped by gangsters and his escape; his father's worry and reaction — whose parental relationship, up to the present, with his little son had been solely that of provider, leaving the responsibility of guidance to the mother, who, at this time was hospitalized. Thus, the management of the home was temporarily upon the shoulders of the aunt, whose kindly understanding of boys, large and small, saves the complete estrangement of father and son; bringing instead, a harmonious palship between father and son, based on mutual goodwill. In place of corporal punishment, an honest endeavor is made by the father to reach the child's viewpoint, and in so doing he becomes the object of his son's hero worship, not the young gangsters on the corner.

In contrast to this method of understanding, the opposite was illustrated by the mother and her little daughter, who heard nothing but peevish 'do's' and 'don'ts', depicting complete frustation of both mother and child. These parts were well done.

Look, Listen, Think

Miss Laird, following the close of the play, invited her audience to choose which of the two parents they would rather have as guests for one week, and which of the two children, giving reasons for the choice, also which of the three adults showed the best way, dealing with emotional displays. They were advised to look, listen and think.

The older adult of the play, the aunt, suggested that the little lad was acting as he did, not because of badness, but because he had a deep heart hunger, and needed instruction in the occupation of growing up.

Other important aspects were brought out, as childish tantrums, telling of falsehood, which, in many cases were not lies, but results of their lively imagination, very much as an adult writes a novel, with his imagination. Referring to the apparent lack of respect for parents. Miss Laird suggested the cause of this might be, in a great measure, due to the parents themselves.

The child is a born imitator; little ears hear much; they are keen observers and notice untruths, as are often spoken over the telephone; seen at movies and on television. They notice the respect given by one parent to the other, and base their own actions

Children have different emotional reactions according to their age; a three-year-old will act as a three-year-old; and a four-year-old as a four-year-old. To correct a child, one must understand these reaction periods. Punishment, an adult "letting go," is the result of worry or anger. One should never punish when under the influence of anger. Corerction should be impartial; a reason for punishment should be given. One usually gets back from children what is taught them. Politeness between parents breeds politeness in children. Children should early learn responsibility by doing little chores around the home, being made to realize that if they were not ready for an outing, the outing may be cancelled.

Those of the cast were: Julia Bradford, as the little girl; David Punchard as the errant boy; Mrs. Punchard, the little girl's mother; Gordon Thompson as the boy's father, and Mrs. M. Goldie as the understanding aunt.

Following the close of the meeting, tea was served.

Christ Church Contact Club Plans Activities

The recent meeting of the Christ Church Contact Club was held in the Parish Hall with a good representation of members present. The president, Florence Lennox, welcomed several new members.

Reporting on the results of the recent bridge and euchre party, and the rummage sale, the treasurer, Mary Fletcher, showed the success these ventures have proven to be.

After Catherine Roulet reported that the proposed number of layettes was almost completed, the discussion turned to future activities, mainly the possibility of a "Spring Tea", again this year. There were many suggestions for bringing new and original ideas to the tea and there was great enthusiasm in the volunteering for the many tasks that will be undertaken for it.

For next week's meeting, there will be one of the Contact Club's ever-popular auction sale nights, with auctioneer Dorothy Halbert, in charge. It is planned to curtail the business discursion, and as before, it was suggested that each member invite a guest if she wishes.

After the meeting, refreshments were served by Margaret Day, Grace Young and Dorothy Halbert.

Women's Activities

ST. MARGARET'S GUILD

The regular meeting of St. Margaret's Guild was opened by the vice-president, Mrs. R. Davis, who welcomed a new member, Mrs. R. Van Everdingen, to the group.

Mrs. C. James, head of the program committee, outlined some interesting plans for future meetings and social affairs, which should be enjoyed by all.

The remainder of the evening was spent in doing shell work on tally cards; and under committee head, Mrs. R. Clarke, future projects for the Guild were discussed.

The meeting closed with refreshments served by the hostesses, Mrs. L. Seymour and Mrs. C. McGuire.

Women's Hospital Aux. Plans Spring Fashion Show

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. Buchan presiding.

The Opportunity Shop reported a profit of $208 for January and February. At present the shop is only open on Saturdays but beginning in March it will be open every day with the exception of Wednesday afternoon. It was decided that the election of officers of the Opportunity Shop should coincide with that of the auxiliary as a whole and take place in September instead of February as heretofore.

A quantity of sewing for the hospital was turned in and further articles were given out by Mrs. Duesberry, the convener of sewing. She has requested that those interested in doing sewing place their names on her list.

Easter Baskets

Easter baskets will be distributed to ward patients as usual and Mrs. L. Wilson has been appointed chairman of the committee.

The Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital has invited the auxiliary to name a representative to sit in on board meetings and Mrs. John Buchan, the president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, has been appointed. She will be on the public relations committee.

Plans are well under way for the annual spring Fashion Show to be held at the Capitol Theatre, afternoon and evening, on Wednesday, March 4. A somewhat new presentation is being considered and an unusually good movie will be shown as well. It is anticipated the Fashion Show will be lovelier than ever. Mrs. George Faulkner is painting a gay and witty backdrop. The models are all members of the auxiliary.

Painting on Display

The Manly Macdonald painting to be drawn for at the Black and Gold Ball in April is at present on display in Leslie's Shoe Store window and after that will be in Eaton's window.

Miss Bearcroft, dietitian, demonstrated the Dri-Heat units for special diets which are now in use at the hospital. These were purchased by the auxiliary for $360 and are proving most satisfactory in that patients receive their meals piping hot.

Following the business meeting tea was served.

Crystal Chapter Elects Officers

Other speakers were: Prec. May, Prec. Thompson, Prec. McCabe and Prec. Reid.

Refreshments were served by the Belleville ladies and after a happy hour of friendly conversation the chapter closed.

Twins Celebrate Birthday Together 1st Time in 40 Years

On Saturday evening, an unusual surprise birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. This was the first time in 40 years they had celebrated this event together.

Both Mrs. Moore and Mr. Poste were the recipients of many fine gifts, cards and congratulations, and best wishes for many more birthdays to come.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Disapproves her son's choice of a wife

Curiously enough, the same [illegible] brought me a letter from a mother who was beside herself because her son wanted to marry a girl she felt was unworthy of him, and a letter from another mother identically distressed about her daughter's choice of a husband.

One letter will suffice to state this type of problem.

So, taking the first of the two mothers above, we have a widow with a daughter of 28, and a 25-year-old son who is causing her this dreadful worry. It seems that the young man met his girl while he was in the army. When he wrote home about her, and sent his mother pictures of her, she was pleased, she says, as she thought it time for him to get married anyhow.

After his discharge from service and his return home, his mother and sister observed a great change in him. Thin, nervous and moody, he thought of nothing but the girl, to whom he often wrote as much as twice a day, although she wrote never more than twice a week. The boy's mother herself wrote to the girl, sent her presents and invited her to come on a visit, but the invitation was never accepted.

Then the blow fell.

Through one of those mysterious coincidences—a friend knew a man who worked in the girl's office—word came to the boy's mother that the girl was "no good." The story was that she had had an illegitimate baby at the age of 18, which was before she met the woman's son. The fact that her family cares for the child, while the girl lives in an apartment of her own in another town, appears to increase the mother's doubts of her character. Though the girl has a business job, the son constantly sends her money and clothes, and apparently the mother believes that she is interested in the young man only for what she can get out of him.

The two are planning to be married next year. In the meantime, the son holds aloof from his family, the mother is "sick from worry," and the daughter, who is said to love her brother dearly, is "heartbroken".

Can Do Nothing

Probably the greatest tragedy about a situation like this is that there is almost nothing parents can do about it. For, following the usual pattern in these cases, the more the mother argues with her son, the more desperately she pleads with him, the more stubbornly he is likely to pursue his own course. After listening to this sort of story for many years, I have become convinced that the best weapon for a parent to employ against an unfortunate romantic attachment of a son or daughter, is silence. Not a grim silence nor a hostile silence nor the kind of silence by which the parent tries to make it clear that her child is dealing her a mortal blow. But the silence of patient and hopeful waiting for the infatuation to pass.

Of course, this mother should not take it for granted, on hearsay alone, that the girl actually is "no good". Rather, she should hold her mind open until she knows more about her.

If the girl will not come to see the mother, then possibly it might be suggested that the boy's sister accompany him sometime when he goes to see his fiancee. The sister could explain to her mother that she wants to know the girl he has chosen, and perhaps, if they become friends, she would be more willing to pay the boy's family a visit. Out of this, the sister might perhaps bring to the mother an entirely different and much more favorable, picture of the girl.

If the sister's meeting with the girl does not result this way, however, then the mother and daughter might get together in a little strategy to divert the boy's attention. Since he rarely goes out, the sister might plan some parties of young people at the house now and then, and use her utmost diplomacy to persuade her brother to help her with them. If, little by little, she can draw him into a social group, he may eventually become interested in some other young woman. It all depends on how wise and tactful the sister can be.

Such methods as these are far more likely to bring results than nagging, criticizing and pleading. If the sister and the mother handle themselves properly, it is not at all impossible that in time the boy may come to see things differently.

DIRECTIONS

Some friends in New York sent use a 7-oz. tin of Japanese cold water tuna. It had been brought by one of them, who is captain of a freighter, from Japan, because he knew that cold water tuna was so firm and delicious.

So since I wanted to do this much-travelled delicacy justice I cogitated for quite a few minutes and then strode to the kitchen.

EMEM'S TUNA CASSEROLE

is the result. I hope you like it as much as the four of us did.

First I hard-cooked 2 eggs and then put on to boil 4 oz. 1-2-inch wide ribbon noodles. Then I chopped finely 1 tablespoon onion and sauted it gently for 2 minutes in 3 tablespoons butter in the upper part of the double boiler but over low direct heat. Then I stirred in 3 tablespoons floor, transferred the pan to over boiling water and when all was smooth I stirred in 1 1-2 cups milk until thick. I added 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, 1-2 teaspoon salt and few grains pepper from the pepper grinder. When the eggs were hard and chilled and peeled I cut each into eighths crosswise. I added them and the drained not-quite-tender noodles to the sauce. I drained the excess oil from the can of tuna and carefully flaked it—leaving the pieces about 1-inch square. Notice how everything is left in large chunky bits in this. Stir in carefully, without breaking anything. Turn into buttered casserole and sprinkle top with 1-2 cups fine breadcrumbs mixed with 1 tablespoon melted butter. Sprinkle top with paprika. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes. If you care to make this dish richer add 1-2 cup grated old cheese to the breadcrumbs which you sprinkle over top.

Word of advice: This can of course be made with flaked tuna or salmon. I am going to try it with chicken next time, using chicken broth in place of milk.

LAYERED JELLY AND CHEESE DESSERT.

One package lemon jelly dessert, 1 3-4 cups boiling water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 3-oz. package cream cheese, 1-2 cup broken walnut meats. Dissolve the jelly dessert in the boiling water and add to it 1 tablespoon lemon juice and the salt. Chill. Combine the apple, sugar, dash of salt and remaining 1 tablespoon lemon juice. When jelly is slightly thickened, divide it in half and fold the apple mixture into one half. Turn this into mold and chill until firm. Place bowl containing remaining jelly in larger dish containing cracked ice or ice water and beat with rotary beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Cream the cream cheese until very soft then add about 1 tablespoon of the whipped jelly to it, then fold it into the whipped jelly with the nuts. Pour over firm first layer. Chill until firm. There are two ways of serving this: (1) Turn out of mold onto dessert plate and garnish prettily with fruits and rosettes of whipped cream; or (2) Cut into squares and serve on lettuce leaves and pass mayonnaise.

For the benefit of Mrs. J. A. P. I am going to give you another way of molding cheese with gelatine. This may be used alone or with fruit or as a centre layer between colored jelly dessert layers. Soak 2 tablespoons plain gelatin in 1-2 cup cold water. Dissolve it by stirring over hot water. Cream together 12 oz. (4 3-oz. packages) white cream cheese and 1-2 cup milk—adding the milk slowly to blend them as you cream. Add 1 cup grated mild cheddar cheese and 1 teaspoon salt and 1-2 teaspoon paprika. Add the gelatin. Whip until stiff 2 cups heavy cream and fold in. Pour into oiled 9-inch ring mold and chill. This is beautiful turned out on lettuce and garnished in centre with stoned and peeled grapes mixed with pineapple tidbits, and around outside edge with apricot halves, with green cherry in centre of each.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary is to be next month, and for some time my husband and I had planned to celebrate this occasion by having Open House for our relatives and friends. But do you thing it would be proper for us to do this, as my mother passed away just a month ago, and mother's brother, her twin, passed away ten days after she did? Do you think we would be rushing things by having Open House so soon after all this sorrow?—Z. S.

You must look into your heart and decide for yourself if "all this sorrow", so close to you and so very recent, will cast a shadow over your Open House celebration. The question as to whether or not you and your husband should carry out your plan to give this party is ot so much a question of propriety, as it is of your feelings of respect and reverence for your mother's memory. Also, if I were you, I would wonder what point of view the guests would have toward this plan.

If you feel that you must have some kind of celebration on the date of the anniversary, why not invite only those closest to you and your husband, perhaps only eight, to dine with you. Or postpone the celebration to a date some months hence and give your Open House then? Surely relatives and friends will understand, and will, believe, deeply respect your decision to postpone the celebration to a more fitting time.

Young widow's daughter may correctly be flower girl at mother's wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a young widow. My husband died three years ago. I am to be married again in two months, a small, simple wedding in the chapel of the church of which both my fiance and I are members. I have a 7-year-old daughter whom my husband-to-be plans to adopt after our marriage. He and I both very much want to have my little girl as my flower girl, my only attendant. I had planned this and she was thrilled. Then lately several of my friends have told me that this would not be proper.—Frances R.

It is entirely correct, and a very charming plan, too, for you to have your little daughter as your flower girl at your wedding, your only attendant. (I believe your friends were confused. . . that what they may have had in mind was that it is not considered proper for a child of a divorcee, marrying for a second time, to be an attendant at her mother's wedding. For obviously it is not in good taste for a child whose father is living to be an attendant to her mother when she marries another man.)

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After our large formal church wedding we are to have a large reception in the ballroom of my mother's club. We are to have a bridal table. Please tell me the correct seating for this table.—Vera S.

The bride and bridegroom sit side by side, the bride at the bridegroom's right. (Today they usually sit in the centre of one side of the table. This is not only an attractive idea, but practical, too, since this means that the bride's cake is directly in front of them, convenient for cutting.) At the right of the bride is the best man. At the left of the bridegroom is the maid (or matron) of honor. Then bridesmaids and ushers alternating around the table.

LOGY, LISTLESS, OUT OF LOVE WITH LIFE?

Not up to par? . . . you may suffer from an upset system. If you are constipated your food may not digest freely—gas may bloat up your stomach . . . all the fun and sparkle goes out of life. That's when you need Carter's Little Liver Pills. These mild vegetable pills bring you quick relief from constipation and so help promote the flow of digestive juices. Corsetieres are Good at Figures

There are few feminine shapes of such perfect contour that they are not improved by the wearing of a carefully selected, properly fitted foundation garment. Women are always conscious of figure defects, and a little harnessing of the right kind will camouflage most of them. A roll of flesh abaft the waistline throws the new frock out of form. Hips that take on the outline of the spreading chestnut tree can be battened down. The rounded back straightens under control. So it goes. Many teen-agers need support and restrain of bulges.

The plumptitudinous lady who hasn't the will power to avoid fattening foods, who can't bear to think of exercise, can find considerable consolation in a corset that works as a sort of flesh distributor. For her there are special designs, and the choice should be made by an experienced corsetiere. It is surprising how much interesting information these specialists can hand along to the cash customer — how to get into a foundation, how to determine length, the safest way of laundering them, and a lot more.

A heavy woman, whether a "stylish stout" or just plain fat, cannot hope to put up a presentable appearance without the aid of a foundation. Quivering flesh is anything but attractive, and should be kept under control. Not only will a suitable brassiere, girdle or corset minimize and redistribute weight, but comfort and strong support will contribute to a sense of well-being. Posture will be better, too. A corset is a constant reminder that one should shave erect carriage and as much lightness and grace of movement as possible. Support to the back, where muscles may have weakened, will help to avoid fatigue.

The broader of the species need stalwart fabrics, such as heavy cotton or the rayon-and-cotton brocades, with less elastic and more boning than the normal figure requires.

Pull-on girdles are not suited to the woman with a large midsection; they tend to push excess weight up around the waist. Girdles that fasten with hooks, lacings or zippers are suggested as ideal garments for the plump girls.

Always sit down when trying on a foundation, to make sure it does not cut at waist or thighs. Hook the hose supporters to the stockings to see whether they need adjusting.

The woman with a normal waist and large hips should select a girdle with an opening half way down the side, to prevent stretching the top of the garment when putting it on or taking it off.

PORTRAIT OF ZACHARY

An adaptation from the original painting of the Titian School, now at the Frick Art Reference Library. — (By courtesy of Frick Art Reference Library.)

CHAPTER II

THE BETROTHAL

For this night's negotiations Joseph had made great preparations. Thoroughly he cleansed himself and trimmed his beard and washed the sawdust out of the stiff tangles of his curls. Carrying a gift of Damascus sweets, he set off through the crowded Street of the Coppersmith.

Joseph was greeted at the door by Joachim. Inside were Anna, Mary's mother, and a strange woman he had never seen before. This was Elizabeth, kinswoman of the family.

Once, sometimes twice a year, they had a visit from Cousin Elizabeth, daughter of Anna's much older sister. Between Mary and Elizabeth there was a difference of more than forty years; it was like being cousin to your own grandmother. Most of these forty years the older cousin had been married to a country priest in a village not far from Jerusalem.

Cousin Zachary was even older than his wife; his back was so stiff that he found it hard to stoop over and trim his toenails. They were very poor, and the village of Ain Karim where Zachary labored in the synagogue was small and obscure. There he served the townspeople, married and circumcised them, advised and buried them—a busy and peaceful life. Elizabeth had arrived with news. Soon Zachary was to be pulled out of his obscurity. To any little village priest the honor might come. Now Zachary was called again, after years, as a priest of the line of Abia, if you please, to celebrate the sacrifice at the holy place, in the Temple of Jerusalem.

"You tell me this? Great news indeed!" Anna closed her eyes and remembered the glory and the magnificence of the great temple.

A Mission of Love

Joachim entered and cleared his throat.

"This is Joseph," the husband announced awkwardly. "He comes to tell you how much he loves our child."

Anna sank to the floor and crossed her legs and made a sad, low, crooning sound as if an adumbration of sorrow had fallen upon her.

"Mourning," exclaimed Joachim reproachfully. "There should be no sadness in all this."

Anna lifted a tear-stained face.

"I trust your judgment, beloved. I do not mean to make sadness. I am sure Joseph must be a fine young man because he has so touched Mary's heart that she is really foolish in her thoughts of him — beautiful, foolish thoughts of love and pretty dreams. I want Mary to have happiness. To know deep love and kindness and sweetness as we have always known it, Joachim. I am sure you know best."

"Then why is she crying?" he demanded of the universe.

"I don't know. I really don't know. We are an unusual family, Joachim; we have strange feelings at times—I have a fear like a pain in my heart that won't go away—as if our Mary will know too great a misery because of this. I don't know what I fear, Joachim. All I know is that something makes me deathly afraid."

She scrambled to her feet.

The Worry Vanishes

"There! I will have done with such feelings. Bring in the young man," she said in an altered voice.

The worry in her heart was lessened when Anna met Joseph for the first time. Such devotion as Anna had for her child carries with it a kind of prescience: she divined something warming and good and trustworthy in the awkwardness of the workman.

There was a certain ceremoniousness in the beginning of the interview: the drinking of a traditional cup of hospitality, and an embarrassed discussion of weather, of crops, and of burdensome taxes. Then they came to a complete stop, and after a silence Joseph said bluntly:

"I love your daughter Mary. I saw her on the first day you moved into this town. I have seen her every day since, except that sad time when she was ill with a cold and you kept her in bed."

"You knew about that?" gasped Anna.

Alone in the World

Joseph told them how he was the son of Jacob Heli, who had died long ago, and that the book of his generation carried his family back to Abraham.

"Mary is also of the house of David," nodded Anna.

Joseph further explained that the uncle who brought him up had been dead for three years; the suitor stood alone in the world, without aunt or uncle, brother or sister or cousin.

"I am lonely and I want Mary to be my wife. I have come to espouse her, if it will be your pleasure to have it so," he finished, a little frightened of the high-sounding words.

Anna and Joachim exchanged nods, and the mother walked with dignity to the door leading to the open roof.

"Mary!" she called.

And presently Mary, light blue mantle over her shoulders, came barefoot into the room and stood before Joseph. The father took the young man's hand and placed it in the hand of his daughter, and gave them his blessing.

The future bridegroom thanked the mother and father but kept looking at his promised one; so young and strong and dreamy was Mary that night.

"You are espoused," said Joachim.

"You are betrothed," said Anna.

"Peace be with you," said Joachim and Anna.

"And the Lord be with you," murmured Joseph and Mary.

Tomorrow all Nazareth would have the glad information. Why, thought Joseph, as he laid his other hand over hers, this is almost as official as being married. In this province of Gallilee, and indeed in all Palestine, once a couple were engaged, only the most serious circumstances could justify man or woman in breaking off.

At the Temple

Of course Joseph was invited to go along with the family to attend Cousin Zachary's proud occasion in the Temple.

The prospect was tremendously exciting. In all his life Joseph had never been more than ten miles outside the town of Nazareth and now, at last, he would behold the city and the Temple—a lifetime experience!

One brisk day in the Palestinian spring Mary and Anna mounted rented donkeys, and Joachim and Joseph, reins in hand, started off, leading them on foot, for the three-day journey to Jerusalem. It was a journey of contentment all the way, a time of long talk among the four.

Now they were entering the outer and lowest court of the Temple, first approach to the sanctuary where Cousin Zachary was to appear in his hour of glory, chief performer at the sacrifice just before sundown. Already thousands of worshippers filled the rectangle within the five gates of this mighty edifice with its courts and double galleries, its marble pillars fifty feet high, and its roof made of blood-red cedar from Lebanon.

Without delay Anna and Elizabeth and Mary proceeded to the Court of the Women, beyond which they might not go.

Annas, the Politician

And now Joseph had arrived at the very spot where David had built the altar and where Solomon had reared the wonderful Temple that had stood here for nearly 400 years until it was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar.

On one side of the high altar before them sat a short, watchful man with a goatlike beard, a priest in his early fifties who kept his eyes fixed on a small doorway. Suddenly Joseph heard an irreverent chuckle close to his left ear, and, turning, beheld the incorrigible and yet friendly face of Samuel, the merchant, the revolutionist. Samuel winked:

"That man you were watching is Annas! Famous and mighty Annas!"

Samuel, with a baleful glance up at the altar, explained that Annas was the High Priest of the Temple; then Joseph felt very much awed. But the gossip, shaking his head and still further lowering his voice, insisted that Annas was not a godly man at all but a mere politician.

"The important thing about Annas," whispered Samuel, "is that he is the political boss. It is Annas who bargains in secret with Herod and then come out and tells the people just what to do. His enemies say that he has betrayed his own people for years."

A powerful friend, an implacable enemy—that was Annas, the High Priest.

"I wonder," Joseph was thinking, "why I feel so afraid of this Annas?" He looked around, but Samuel had vanished.

A Special Prayer

"Ah," sighed Joachim, "there comes Cousin Zachary now. Joseph, look; that is he! Cousin Elizabeth must have sewn that wonderful robe for him!"

Of the thousands praying in the rectangular courts only Cousin Elizabeth knew of one special intention this old priest would be including in his prayer this afternoon. But Joseph could guess from what Mary had already told him. Zachary's faith was tenacious and humble; though he was past his threescore years and ten he still asked God dutifully every day that Elizabeth and he might have a child.

Now the priest turned and faced the congregation, then lifting the temple veil with his left hand, he disappeared into the tabernacle, the little holy place, wher minor priests came closest to the presence of God.

"Something Strange"

With bowed heads and closed eyes the crowd waited. For a long while there was no sound, not even a cough. Then, presently, Joachim opened one eye and glared at the altar. What was keeping Zachary within? No one was to be seen on the platform except the grim, observant figure of Annas. Zachary had already stayed much too long in the holy retreat. Something must be wrong. There was not much for him to do in there; the priest was to stand only for a moment in silent prayer. Then Zachary was meant to back out of the holy place, face the reverent multitude, and offer up the final prayer.

By now five minutes had gone by and there was still no sign of Zachary.

"Something is strange," Joachim murmured to Joseph.

Thousands of Canadians Plan to Attend Coronation

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A record number of Canadians is expected among the 800,000 overseas visitors British travel authorities hope to see this Coronation year.

Estimates of rank - and - file visitors from Canada range from 20,000 to 25,000—based on figures available for recent years and the heavy passenger bookings to date.

A lot of signs indicate Canada will lag behind Australia, even though her population of 14,500,000 exceeds Australia's by about 6,000,000.

Australia House, the Commonwealth nation's London centre, expects 30,000 visitors from Down Under. One travel agency, however, places the number at more than 50,000.

New Zealand and South Africa are expected to run about even. Travel booking agents and other sources indicate an influx between 8,000 and 9,000 from each country.

A rough comparative basis can be read from the visitor signatures at Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa houses last year. Australia House led with about 12,000.

All Don't Sign

Canada House guest book records about 9,000 signatures—"a heavy year"—while New Zealand House signatures totalled about 6,000 and South Africa signatures about 5,000.

The figures are far from comprehensive since many Commonwealth visitors never go near these homes-away-from-home when they visit London.

The Coronation accommodation committee, which handles 300 requests a day from all over the world and has handled more than 20,000 so far, says that in interest Canada and Australia citizens seem evenly divided. Correspondence indicates that New Zealand follows and South Africa trails slightly.

The United States, of course, will contribute the heaviest influx. More than half the queries are from the U. S.

A spokesman at Canada House, who declined to predict Canada's possible contribution, said he is not surprised that Australia, for one, may send more visitors than Canada.

Australians, he said, will outtravel Canadians any day in the week and especially where events such as coronations are concerned.

Canadian travel figures for the peak pre-coronration travel months of April and May are about 9,000 by sea and around 9,000 by air.

Totals Doubtful

These totals are compiled from bookings at the four main Canada-to-Britain travel lines—two by sea and two by air.

Canadian Pacific Steamships Ltd., and Cunard Lines, the sea carriers, had only a few first-class bookings left at last report. Loss of the CPS liner Empress of Canada is a heavy blow, of course.

Trans - Canada Air Lines and British Overseas Airways Corporation, the two air carriers, emphasize that while bookings have been heavy, and tentative estimate of total passengers is subject to revision. They say that schedules will be altered as demand dictates. The estimate of 9,000 is based on the average of one daily flight by each line in the peak tourist season last year. This year's average daily schedule actually is expected to be increased.

The air-and-sea total of 18,000 for April and May excluded coronation visitors who leave Canada earlier than that. It also excludes Canadians who leave from non-Canadian ports or who sail on non-scheduled carriers.

Many Girls Yearn to Be Coronation Year Debutantes

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Among Coronation problems for the staff of the Lord Chamberlain is an unusually large number of applications from those eligible to attend Buckingham Palace presentations and royal garden parties.

Apparently every young woman who has not yet been presented at court yearns to be a Coronation debutante. Many 17-year-old girls, who normally would wait until their 18th birthday, are among those applying for presentation.

During the next few months the Lord Chamberlain, the Earl of Scarbrough, will decide on the lucky ones. Crested invitations will go from his office in St. James's Palace, the red-brick building next to Marlborough House where Vincent Massey, now governor-general of Canada, attended last February's proclamation council on the accession of Elizabeth II.

Late for Canadians

Despite a crowded diary, the Queen has decided on a short Coronation "season." This will include three presentation parties and two garden parties, the last one July 23.

Most coveted date for those who can make it will be July 16, first presentation party after the Coronation. This has been allocated to Commonwealth and overseas debutantes, many of whom will have to turn it down.

Many Will Have Returned

Since July 16 is some six weeks after the Coronation ceremony June 2, many Canadians will have returned home. The alternative is a garden party May 28, an informal affair generally for mothers with married daughters. The first presentation parties March 25-26 are for British debutantes only.

A representative of Canada House said it is unfortunate the only presentation party open to Canadians should come so late. Decorations in Buckingham Palace make a formal party impracticable in May, and July 16 is the first date open to the Queen in a heavy post-Coronation schedule.

Garden parties don't always afford an exciting opportunity to see the Queen at close range. Guests cluster on the lawns of Buckingham Palace, generally numbering up to four figures. Although the Queen moves freely among her guests, she meets only those who happen to be in the right place at the right time. Only a special few are singled out for definite presentation.

Palace More Formal

At presentation parties, debutantes are called individually, move across the red-and-gold state ballroom and curtsy to the Queen at a raised dais.

Among Canadians now in London, hoping a crested invitation will drop through their letter box, are two sisters from Ottawa. Dorothy and Mary Wurtell came to London last September for the wedding of brother Douglas, who married an English girl. They decided to stay for the Coronation.

Women's Activities

FOXBORO W.M.S.

Foxboro — The February meeting of the Foxboro W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. I. F. Eggleton with 24 in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Tummon, gave the theme for the year, "The Means of Grace," following with a reading on "The New Year." The meeting was then in charge of Mrs. H. Stewart and Mrs. W. Hodgen, and the program as outlined in Missionary Monthly was followed. Mrs. Stewart gave the theme for February, which was the "Sacrament of the Lord's Supper." Records of the Lord's Supper as found in St. Mark and St. John were read by Mrs. George Priest and Mrs. H. Shetlor.

The leaders then gave papers on the Lord's Supper; what it constitutes, why it is commemorated, and what it should mean.

The study book on "Village Life in Africa," was in charge of the leaders; they told of life and work done in Africa. It was said that the Christian church is the only agency in all of Africa whose exclusive objective is the welfare of the African people, thus one should be thankful that he belongs to the Christian church.

The business was taken by the president. Mrs. Stewart gave a paper on "Christian Stewardship". Mrs. Priest reported the supply work: one quilt having been quilted. It was decided to donate something to aid a family whose home had recently been burned. World's Day of Prayer was discussed. It will be held in the United Church. A Mission Band dinner is to be held in the S.S. rooms the first Thursday in March. The Mission Band is to furnish the program, followed by the regular W.M.S. meeting when Mrs. Myers offered to take charge of the study book.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Juby on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance of members and visitors present.

The president, Mrs. K. R. Vivian, graciously welcomed all and opened the meeting in the usual manner, with Mrs. Harry Sine presiding at the piano. Mrs. Vivian gave a reading on 'Kindness,' Mrs. Charles Wood read the Scripture lesson, Acts 12, and Miss Winnifred Eckhardt read the lesson thoughts from the devotional leaflet.

Mrs. Damon Hinchey gave a reading on "Faith," and Mrs. Stanley MacDonald also gave a helpful reading. An appeal was read for help for the 'polio' fund, and a letter of thanks from the Hinchey family for the card of sympathy received at the time of their mother's death. A letter of thanks for Christmas cheer was read from Mrs. Ross Brand. Several also expressed thanks for cards they had received during the time of their illness.

Print Block

All the W.A. members are asked to donate a block of print in crazy work patterns of 18 inches square to be sewed on brown paper and brought to the next meeting.

Mrs. Damon Hinchey reported for the parsonage committee. New drapes are needed, also new linoleum for the hall. They were also asked to get what was needed with power to add to their number if they so wished.

A pot luck supper was arranged for Friday evening, the 27th., at 6.30 p.m.

Mrs. Ross Shetler kindly offered to show colored pictures of the Royal tour, following the supper.

After the meeting closed, refreshments and a social time were enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Melbourne and Miss Sara Stickney, on March 12.

EGGLETON W.M.S.-W.A.

The February meeting of the Eggleton W. M.S. and W.A. was held on Thursday afternoon last, at the home of Mrs. Clarence Fitchett with 12 ladies and six children present.

The president presided over the program, which had been prepared by Mrs. Bert Reide. The meeting opened with soft music followed by the call to worship.

Mrs. Warren Harlow read the Scripture lesson.

Readings were given by Mrs. Maurice Clancy and Mrs. Harry Clarke.

A solo by Mrs. M. Clancy was enjoyed.

Mrs. George Jervis gave a reading and Mrs. William McMullen read a poem.

The W.A. president took charge while plans were discussed for a box-social on February 27, at the home of Mrs. William McMullen. Mrs. Harold Chambers and Mrs. McMullen are to arrange the program for the evening.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Harlow with Mrs. Maurice Clancy preparing the program. A pot-luck dinner will be held at noon.

Mrs. Gordon Nelson read several letters.

Mrs. Bert Reide gave an interesting synopsis of Chapters III and IV from the study book.

After the meeting closed the hostess served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Women's Institute

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

Empey Hill — The regular monthly meeting of the Tyendinaga East Br. of the Women's Institute was held on Friday evening last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bell. A large number of members and their families and visitors, were present with the president, Miss Geraldine Mowers presiding.

The meeting opened in the usual way and various items of business were dealt with including sending donations of money to the following: To the building for the Blind, Kingston; The Research for Mental Health; The Flood Relief Fund for Western Europe.

The meeting was on "Community Activities and Public Relations" and Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, the district convener gave an interesting talk on that subject.

Mrs. Akey moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Mitchell.

The program was in charge of Mrs. G. Provins and opened with community singing with Mrs. Ernest Waddingham at the piano, followed by humorous reading by Mrs. Fred Keyworth, a reading, "Making Over the World," by Mrs. Grant Kimmerly, and "Valentine Customs" by Mrs. Frank Thompson; a duet by Mrs. R. Tucker and Mrs. Provins with Mrs. Akey at the piano.

Mrs. Garnet Dupre demonstrated the making of useful boxes. Contests were won by Mrs. Mitchell and Miss Mowers and by Mrs. Frank Hutchinson.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served by the hostess and members.

High-Jumping Scot

Alan Paterson, native of Scotland, competitor for Great Britain in the 1952 Olympics at Helsinki and now a resident of Montreal, will be eligible to represent Canada at the 1954 British Empire Games in Vancouver. Paterson, a chartered accountant, is one of the slickest high-jumpers in the world. He is taking treatment for a persistent ailment in his left leg from Bill Head, physiotherapist attached to the Montreal Forum. The injury dates back two or three years. Paterson doesn't recall just how it happened. — (CP Photo.)

One of Slickest High Jumpers In World Eligible to Represent CanadainBritishEmpireGames

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—When the 1954 British Empire games in Vancouver roll around, one of the slickest high jumpers in the world will be eligible to represent Canada.

He is Alan Paterson, native of Scotland, competitor for Great Britain in the 1952 Olympic games at Helsinki, Finland, and now a resident of Montreal. Paterson, a chartered accountant, is eligible to compete for Canada under a change made less than two years ago in the constitution of the British Empire and Commonwealth Games Federation—the all-Commonwealth body in general charge of the games.

Glad to Compete

Paterson first learned through The Canadian Press that he will be eligible to compete at Vancouver. "That's great," he said. "I'm really delighted."

He is worried now about a persistent ailment in his left leg. The injury dates back two or three years. He doesn't recall just how it happened.

Even before the last Olympic games, Paterson's father spotted something wrong at a glance and let his son know about it. "If you can't jump six feet five inches, then you're not right," said the father.

He has done no jumping since the Olympic games and hopes that treatment will correct the condition.

Games Regulations

The regulation concerning eligibility for B.E. games competition says:

"Each competitor must be a British subject or a citizen of a constituent part of the British Commonwealth. Those who have already competed in the British Empire and Commonwealth games for one country may represent another at the future celebration of the games with approval from the British Empire and Commonwealth Games Federation and permission from the British Empire and Commonwealth Associations of the two countries concerned.

"If an eligible competitor wishes to represent a country other than that of his birth he must have resided therein for at least six months immediately prior to the closing date of individual entries for the British Empire and Commonwealth games concerned."

Under the old regulation Paterson wouldn't be eligible. A score or so years ago Phil Edwards, a native of British Guiana and living in Canada, competed for Canada in the Olympic games. But he started competing in the B.E. games for his native country in 1930—at Hamilton, Ont.—and once competing for one Empire country couldn't compete for another.

Changes in the regulations were tentatively set at the 1950 games in Auckland, New Zealand. They were later confirmed at London and then at Helsinki.

Jack Davies of Montreal, honorary secretary of Canada's B.E. Games Association, was assured by British officials they would approve Paterson's eligibility for Canada.

Paterson didn't finish among the top performers at Helsinki but in 1951 he won the European championship with a jump of 6 feet 7½ inches. In the 1950 Empire games he jumped 6 feet 5 inches, placing second to John Winter of Australia, whose mark was 6 feet 6 inches.

Less fortunate, so far as eligibility is concerned, is Valdo Lillikas, the wiry little Estonia-born distance runner, who also lives in Montreal.

Although Lillikas lived in Britain for four years, he has been in Canada only since mid-summer of 1950.Five years' residence are necessary here before citizenship can be granted. Unless Lillikas' naturalization could be speeded up by some means, he won't be eligible to compete for Canada in 1954.

Lillikas holds the Canadian open record of 15:14.4 for 5,000 metres. He is also a topnotcher at six miles, one of the events at the Empire games. The Canadian native record for six miles—and 10,000 metres also—was set in 1932 by Cliff Bricker of Galt, Ont. His time of 31:42 stands for both, allowable by the rules which so provide if the record for the greater distance is in better time. The Canadian open record for six miles is 30:49.6, made at the Empire games in Hamilton in 1932 by J. W. Savidan of New Zealand.

Sugar Company President Answers Blistering Attack Made by Howe in House

CHATHAM (CP) — W. J. McGregor, president of Canada and Dominion Sugar Co. Ltd., replied today to an attack recently by Trade Minister Howe who, speaking in the Commons, accused Mr. McGregor of organizing a pressure campaign for legislation to stop the importation of Cuban refined sugar.

Mr. McGregor, in a prepared statement, said he made no apology "for any effort of mine in promoting the well-being of the sugar beet industry."

He said Mr. Howe overrated his ability to organize a pressure campaign.

"The hundreds of petitions, resolutions and communications, mentioned by Mr. Howe, was the collective voice of citizens of southwest Ontario expressing their alarm."

He said if the Ontario sugar beet industry is compelled to fold, competition from Cuban refined sugar will expand to Manitoba and Alberta.

Mr. McGregor said Mr. Howe "was wrongfully informed" about the company's 1952 profits.

The company's annual report for 1951 showed net profits of $1,779,337 or $1.19 a share. The report for last year has not yet been audited and certified. The company's fiscal year has been extended three months to March 31.

Questions Guaranteed Market

"It is curious that Cuba should be given a guaranteed market in Canada for 75,000 tons of raw sugar annually and in addition have the opportunity to flood the Canadian market with surplus refined sugar. The cane refining industry would not have bought a pound of Cuban raw sugar had not our government undertaken to rebate refiners the difference between the laid-down, duty-paid cost of Cuban raw sugar with raw sugar imported under Empire preference. As it now stands sugar beet growers face the double-edged impact from lower world price of Cuban raw sugar and ruinous competition of Cuban refined white sugar."

Wages Higher Claim

Mr. McGregor said the eight-hour daily wage in the Chatham and Wallaceburg beet plants for unskilled labor is 77 per cent higher than the lowest wage, $4.43, quoted by Mr. Howe, for unskilled labor in the Cuban sugar industry.

He said sugar beet growers and the company negotiate "a participating contract whereby growers and company share the net proceeds from sale of beet sugar, dried beet pulp and molasses."

He said he did not threaten to close the company's refineries.

"I did say that if the farmers were driven out of growing sugar beets owing to unprofitable returns brought about by competition from Cuban refined sugar, the beet refineries would be forced to close for lack of raw material."

City Employees To Keep Bonus

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The utilities commission Monday night decided to let 90 employees who have been overpaid about $50 each since last April keep the money.

Commissioner Dr. G. R. Langley said workers have been receiving a 2½-cents-an-hour cost-of-living bonus to which they were not entitled. The amount of the bonus was supposed to vary with the cost-of-living index, and when the index fell last May the bonus did not.

Dr. Langley termed not reducing the bonus last May an "error in management."

Quebec's Flying Game Wardens Making Name for Themselves As the 'Terror of Poachers'

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Tracking down moose and deer killers. . . finding a schoolgirl lost in northern Quebec bush. . . arresting delinquent anglers a year after an "outrageous" trout catch.

These are some of the activities of Quebec's flying game wardens who are making a name for themselves as the "terror of poachers." They say it is a flattering term which serves as a back-handed compliment for their work started three years ago.

"Poachers themselves admit they're never had it so tough since we started using planes to track them down," a provincial fish and game department official said.

Out of the Blue

"They say 'you never know when a plane will come swooping down on you,' and they're right."

At Roberval, on Lake St. John, A. A. Lavoie, 53, the only warden to hold his pilot's licence, makes regular patrols because he has more than 12,000 square miles to protect.

Using one of three government planes or a chartered aircraft, two or three wardens and an experienced bush pilot can in a few hours of winter sunshine cover an area that would take a month to patrol by dog team or on snowshoes.

Ski-Equipped Planes

Special attention is paid to man-made tracks in areas where deer and moose are plentiful, for they usually are signs of poaching activity. If they sight anything unusual, wardens land their ski-equipped planes, if possible, or send dog-team patrols to investigate.

Deer and moose killers are most active in February and March when the snow is deep and constitutes a swamp-like trap for frightened or wounded animals. Poachers use home-made spears to wound deer and moose and axes to finish them off when they bog down in the snow.

Some 50 cases of poaching were solved last year, most of them "big stuff," as a result of the flying patrols. Many involved moose killing and sale of moose meat to lumber camps in northern Quebec.

About a year ago, Mr. Lavoie spotted tracks in snow left by three men suspected of poaching. Next day wardens flew 70 miles in a chartered plane to the tent settlement of three Indians. They found moose meat, guns and hunting equipment. The wardens set fire to a log camp used by the poachers, who were sentenced to jail when they were unable to pay fines.

Rescued Schoolgirl

Last autumn Mr. Lavoie was the hero in the search for a young girl from Chambord, Que., who was lost in the woods several days. He found her alive.

There is considerable international co-operation among game wardens. Roland Clusiault of Lake Megantic, in southern Quebec, regularly joins Maine wardens in flying patrols along the Canada-United States border.

In the summer of 1951, a group of Vermont anglers flew to La Tuque, Que., and made an illegal trout catch. They made a mistake when they advertised it by having their photograph printed in a home-town newspaper. The photo came to the attention of the fish and game department and a warrant was sworn out for their arrest.

Last summer, they attempted another flight to La Tuque. Canadian immigration authorities tipped off the Quebec officials when the fishermen registered their names and flight plans at a border point.

Warden Georges Bonin flew to La Tuque, served the warrants, collected $600 fines from five men and closed the case.

The air patrols also are used to keep tab on deer and moose populations in Quebec and their migratory moves.

Second Man On The Ticket

By Edwin Lanham

"Then I did a shift at the five-and-dime store," Ginny said. "But I was forever putting stockings in the cash register and the money in a paper bag. I couldn't possibly be a secretary to Governor Warburton."

"Ginny, your qualifications aren't important to us," I said. "You know what is important to us."

"I guess I'm not cut out for anything," Ginny said. "Except maybe housekeeping." She started away from the wall. "Goodness, there's Clyde. Roy, I'm going to the powder room. Slip outside and I'll meet you."

• • •

CHAPTER XXXIII

Clyde McDonald approached us soft-footed, his red hair bright in the tiled room. Ginny said, "Clyde, remember what you promised."

He smiled at her, said, "Okay, honey," and turned to me. "Roy, Ginny thinks I ought to forget what happened at the Casino, and that's what I'm going to do. I'm not going to lose my sense of humor over you." He looked me up and down. "I outweigh you 60 pounds," he said. "For a skinny guy, you sure swing a lot."

"Clyde, I'm sorry about it," I said. "I lost my temper. I owe you an apology."

"I wouldn't go too far with apologies, if I were you," he said, and the familiar curl lifted one corner of his mouth. "You'll feel different when I get through with Willie Warburton. You'll want to take that apology back."

The loud-speaker was announcing the arrival of a plane. Clyde cocked his ear. "That's my plane," he said. "Come on, Ginny."

They moved toward the apron, but I saw Ginny whisper something to him and turn away.

I went out a side entrance and walked around the building. In the shadows near the main doors I found Ginny waiting.

"Ginny, is Clyde taking that plane?"

"No, he's meeting someone."

"Who?"

"A specialist from Baltimore."

"A specialist in what?"

"Pulmonary diseases," Ginny said.

"I see," I said. "If he expects to get his specialist in to see Mrs. Warburton, he's crazy. We pick our own specialists.

"Roy, I think he counts on being refused," she said. "He told me it was part of the story." She reached for my hand. "Roy, he'll be here pretty soon. Please listen to me. I want to be fair to him, and he expects me to tell him the story if he fails to get it out of Aunt Hattie, and of course he won't get it out of Aunt Hattie."

"Why should he expect it from you, then?" I said. "If Miss Hattie won't tell, why should you, Ginny?" I eyed her closely. "Except for a price."

She flushed, her eyes downcast. "Roy, I don't blame you for saying that. But I wonder if you have any conception of how dull it can be living in a town like Hydetown. I want you to understand it. I want you to know just why it all happened this way. Please listen to me."

• • •

"I suppose you've told Clyde the whole story," I said with resignation.

"I'm coming to that, Roy. It began innocently enough. It was just in fun. I happened to mention to Mel Fisher that Aunt Hattie knew something about Governor Warburton and we had a talk, and I thought it would be exciting to get Clyde McDonald here and give him a big story. I had read his columns and seen his picture in the paper and I thought —well I wanted excitement, you see, and I got entirely too much of it. Now, I'm caught in the middle, and I thought I'd just tell you the whole thing. If I didn't it would be just plain dishonest."

"Dishonest?" I said.

"Yes," said Ginny, "dishonest. I can't take shorthand and I can't type a lick and I can't hold any kind of job, and, Roy, I don't know that story and I never did."

I stood staring at her, then I leaned against the wall of the building and laughed. Ginny watched me until I was through, without a flicker of expression in her eyes, then she said quietly, "Yes, I suppose it's funny. But now, I'm caught in the middle, Roy. What is Clyde going to think of me? I brought him to Hydetown and I led him on and he expects me to tell him the whole story."

"I wouldn't worry about Clyde McDonald," I said. "I noticed a little lipstick on his chin. Yours, no doubt."

Ginny said, "Oh," and paused a moment, then whispered, "Roy, will you do something for me?"

"What do you want me to do?"

A porter was stacking luggage from the plane that had just landed. Ginny took my hand and led me deeper into the shadows.

"I want you to give me that job, Roy. I couldn't take it without telling you the truth. But if you'll give it to me I'll quit later and you won't have to fire me. And you won't have to pay me anything."

"What sort of job would that be?"

"I just want to be able to tell Clyde that I have the job," she said. "I want to tell him that I promised you not to tell the story, that I signed a contract or something. May I do that?"

• • •

I saw Bill Evers come out of the building with Lucy, looking pale and nervous.

"Ginny, we're not putting anything in writing," I said. "You can tell Clyde anything you like, but we're making no admissions. Why don't you simply tell Clyde the truth."

I ran into the darkness, groped for the door of the car, and threw it open. "It's all fixed," I cried.

Bill Evers said, "From what Lucy tells me, it doesn't sound fixed. Hello, Roy."

"Hello," I said. "I just this minute fixed it. Ginny never knew at all. Miss Hattie is the only one who knows the story, so we're in the clear."

"On that score, maybe," Bill said.

I got in behind the steering wheel and said, "Lucy, I told you Ginny was okay. She's just a simple, genuine small-town kid."

"Yes," said Lucy, "we saw you over there, necking like simple genuine small-town kids."

"That was just a friendly good-night kiss."

"You were burned once, remember." She waved her hand impatiently, and her bitter voice said, "Oh, drive on. Drive on, you—you public toothbrush."

• • •

CHAPTER XXXIV

I saw Clyde and Ginny at the entrance of the building; a tall man in a black hat with them. I put the car in gear, turned and drove at a screaming pace away from the airport.

"Bill, that guy with Clyde is a specialist in pulmonary diseases, probably from Johns Hopkins," I explained. "Clyde has imported him to examine Ruth, so I think we'd better get there first."

"He sure won't examine Ruth," Bill said, and added after a moment's pause: "But I don't like that. Roy, why did you pick pneumo anT e?ihcsslir wasetaointao monia? The crisis doesn't come for several days, and the Governor's schedule will be in a mess."

"I didn't have a Merck's Manual handy, Bill," I said. "Now look here, we've worked like dogs on this thing, and it looks like we have it straightened out at last. Don't come here and quibble."

"Don't take those corners so fast." He reached across Lucy to grab the door handle for support. "All right, maybe you have, but there are enough loose ends to worry me. If McDonald can prove the Governor left his campaign train to fly here and hush his old school teacher up, he doesn't have to know what the dirt was. He'll hint at that. He'll make it worse than he would if he had heard the story."

"He won't prove the Governor left the train," I said, with less certainty. "He's got Melvin Fisher checking on the hotels, but he won't find anything. Lucy, it's fortunate the Governor ruled out a hotel last night."

"How about Cabin nine Roy?" Lucy said.

"We'll have to keep our fingers crossed on that," I said.

"And how about Warburton Day tomorrow?" Bill said. "What have you done about that?"

"We called it off, Bill."

"The speech and all?"

"Yes, and, Bill, you'll have to knock a few days out of the Governor's schedule somewhere." your attitude toward women." "Where?"

"That's for you to worry about," I said. "You worry about that, and let me worry about the rest."

"I'm not sure how well you worry, Roy," he said. "You have not had my training."

"Oh, he worries," Lucy said slurringly. "About big moral questions mostly."

• • •

"Lucy, do you suppose we could change seats without wrecking the car?" Bill asked. "I don't like it here in the middle."

"So I kissed a blonde," I said. "That's what it's all about. A handsome blonde, too. Bill, did you see her?"

"Keep your eyes on the road," he said. "Yes, I saw her."

"The average man kisses 32,709 times in his lifetime," I said. "What's one kiss out of 32,709?"

"Where did you get those statistics?" Bill asked, with interest.

"I read it in the paper somewhere," I said, "or maybe it was the Kinsey Report. Anyhow, I kissed Lucy once, and to heck with the other 32,708. She's the girl for me and she knows it. I blondes."

"The odds are precisely 32,709 to 1 that you'll only kiss Lucy once," said Lucy.

"I'll take a piece of that," I said.

Bill Evers chuckled. "As a matter of fact, I'll take a piece of it myself."

"Besides, it has absolutely nothing to do with your kissing a blonde or anybody else," Lucy said. "You can't distribute your lifetime allotment where you please. Our dispute concerned your attitud toward women."

"Not toward women," I said. "Toward you."

"Precisely," said Lucy. "Toward me."

"Roy," Bill warned, "you're doing 70."

"We want to get there ahead of Clyde, don't we?"

"Yes," Bill said, "but on wheels, not wings."

"The trouble with Lucy," I said "is I haven't had a chance to tell the woman I love her."

"If you stop the car, Roy," Bill said, "and let me drive, you can tell her."

"I won't give her that satisfaction," I said.

"Lucy, when a cautious man like Roy drives the way he's driving, it must be love," Bill said. "Take my word for it." He considered a moment. "But say, this is pretty unexpected. Last I saw of you two, relations were pretty formal. Roy, stop the car!"

I pressed my foot harder on the accelerator and the car rushed ahead; a sign with a wiggly arrow proclaimed a winding road.

"Roy, you hear me?" Bill shouted.

"What does Lucy say?" I kept my eyes on the road.

"Lucy says stop the car," said Bill.

"Heavens, yes!" Lucy said at last. "Stop, Roy!"

I had the good sense to brake slowly and brought the car to a stop at the side of the road on a curve. I got out and walked around behind it and by the time I opened the door on the other side Bill had slid under the steering wheel and Lucy had moved over. She was smiling.

"Lucy," I said. "I'm not mad at you."

"I'm not man at you, either."

"And Lucy, I love you," I said.

"I love you too," said Locy.

• • •

Bill put the car in gear and started on. He sighed and said, "As I mentioned before, this is so sudden."

The car moved on into the night and Lucy was at last in my arms. Bill watched the road and drove in silence at a farmer's Sunday pace. It was not until we entered Hydetown that he said, "Kid's I've been counting. You only have a few thousand left. Better save 'em." He tapped my shoulder. "Roy, you can postpone your trivial personal problems until later."

He drove in under the porte-cochere. and said, 'Come on, you exhibitionists."

CHAPTER XXXV

A light was burning in the garage and I saw a night watch of reporters playing cards at a table. I walked around to the front of the house, and down across the lawn to the hedge that bordered the street. I leaned against a cast-iron stag and lighted a cigaret.

Ten minutes later I saw lights turn onto the street, wo blocks away. I moved down to the curb and was waiting there when the car stopped. Ginny was driving and Clyde was in the middle. Nearest me was the tall man I had seen with them at the airport. "Clyde," I said. "I want to talk to you."

"I'll do the talkihg," Clyde said. "This is Dr. Henry McBain. My editor has sent him here to examine Mrs. Warburton, in the public interest. Do we get in to see her?"

"I have no objection," I said. "Naturally you'll have to get the permission of Dr. Arnold first."

"Is Dr. Arnold the attending physician?" Dr. McBain asked crisply.

"Yes."

"Surely Mr. McDonald, you had his permission before you sent for me," McBain said. "I've made a long trip"

"Where is Dr. Arnold?" Clyde asked.

"In the house, I believe. You can talk to him, but first I want a word with you. Get out."

Toronto Playoff Hopes Rest On Aching Back Of Centre Star Max Bentley

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

LINDSAY HERE TONIGHT !

The junior Hawks hit the long playoff trail, at least they hope it's a lengthy one, here tonight, when they take on the youthful Lindsay Warriors in the first of a best-of-five semi-final series. The second game is scheduled for Lindsay on Saturday night.

Despite the fact the Hawks finished well in front of the pack and the Warriors trailed the four playoff teams, the series should be no pushover for Don Barrett's youngsters. These beardless Warriors, while in the main of juvenile age, have proven during the schedule they are a force to be reckoned with and "Red" Mitchell and Coach Coombs will have the young fellas out in full strength against the group leaders for tonight's important kick-off battle.

The Hawks, it is stated, will be at full strength, and have no intention of dropping the initial tilt. Bobby Green will be in the nets while the injured Don Barclay will view the proceedings from the sidelines. The rest of the crew are in fine fettle and ready to go.

Meanwhile the Kingston Vics took a firm grip on the leadership of their semi-final series Monday night when they knocked off the Peterborough Triple Links by a 6-2 score. One feature of the game was the upsurge in attendance, and Der Maxie Jackson's eyes bulged when he saw 930 paid pewsters file into the Community Centre. And it couldn't happen to a more deserving guy. Nobody will begrudge Max the bulge at the box office. He has carried the junior "B" mail down thataway for many years, the greater part of them lean ones. In fact some were so lean the bones were visible and they weren't "sawbones," to use financial slang.

TED REEVES SPEAKS

The Reevian humor was never in better form than yesterday when the Telegram's "Moaner" spoke to the combined Belleville and Madoc Kiwanis Clubs here. Ted likened the requisites of successful business to those of sport, illustrating his talk with hilariously funny cases in point.

He delved deeply into the recesses of a marvellously retentive memory, and at times had the clubmen in "near-stitches."

He "anecdoted" of his early playing days with his beloved "Beaches" and later of his coaching experiences with Queen's University and other championship football squads.

One of Canada's outstanding football coaches and players, Ted in his own quiet way belittled his own accomplishments, turning them aside with humorous sallies and stories.

As a matter of fact he recalled the time when he was a youngster learning to play lacrosse, that he sat on the bench so long under a blanket they thought he was an Indian. "When I was 21," Ted quipped, "they refused to sell me a permit."

The Moaner said modern rules tended to give sport an "inferiority complex." Hockey players of today, he smiled, "are not on the ice long enough to become acquainted."

He told the story of the 150-pound end who was sent through the line three times only to crash into a giant tackle. The next time the signals were called the end complained about his inability to move the tackler and asked for a suggestion.

"Sure," grinned the quarter, "on this play, run up his leg and annoy him."

Ted related the story of the immortal "Bummer" Stirling, who once galloped down the field draped with three or four tacklers. The "Bummer" was forced into touch, but the boys seemed reluctant to climb off him.

"Sorry, fellas," quipped the linesman, "you'll have to get off here. This is as far as he goes."

The story we liked was that of the member of the Montreal Royals enter in the Big Four coached by "McGruffey," and which proved the underdog of the season.

The Royals had absorbed a 44-0 defeat the hands of the Ottawa Roughriders. The Royals' quarterback bemoaned the team's fate. "It's nothing," said Coach Reeve ("sometimes they called me the 'Lean Old Master'—at least that is what it sounded like"). "Those guys were beaten in an upset last week and they were just plain mad."

Minutes later the Q.B. said: "Coach, did you hear Hamilton had defeated Argos in an upset?"

"Yes," replied the LOM.

"H . . . m," h . . . mmed the quarter. "We play the Argos next week. And they'll be mad, too."

"That's right," agreed the LOM.

Five minutes later the quarter spoke again.

"Say, coach," he murmured, "we're not mad at anybody, are we?"

These are but a few of the rib-tickling anecdotes and yarns that rolled from the Moaner's vast store of "behind the headlines" stories. He received a fine ovation from the joint clubs at the end of his talk.

Dipsy-Doodler Denies Story He Is Through for Keeps; Leafs Cling to Fourth Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The play-off hopes of Toronto Maple Leafs rest largely on Max Bentley's aching back.

The centre-ice smoothie, for whom managing director Conn Smythe gave almost an entire startling line-up five years ago, has been in and out of the hospital for three months now. And for a few hours Tuesday it looked as if he was out for keeps.

His wife, Betty, announced that Max had developed a virus infection, as well as a recurrence of the miseries in his back, and she threatened to tell Smythe her husband was through if he wouldn't do it himself.

But Max, still one of the National Hockey League's dangerous marksmen at 32, said Tuesday night that things weren't as bad as all that.

"I'll return to the team as soon as I can," he said. "Nobody wants to get into the play-offs more than I do."

With team captain Ted Kennedy out indefinitely with a shoulder separation and Bentley almost certain to miss tonight's game against Detroit Red Wings, and possibly several more, the Leafs at least have enough centres available to fill their roster.

Rudy Migay returned last weekend after being out for two months with torn ligaments. With Bobby Hassard and Phil Maloney, together with Tod Sloan, a converted rightwinger, the Leafs have the manpower to throw at the NHL's defending champions.

But the protracted absence of Kennedy and Bentley hasn't improved Toronto's striking power. In 56 games they've scored 125 goals, two more than the tail-end New York Rangers and three more than Boston Bruins, both of whom have a couple of games in hand.

As for their play-off chances, it's still a toss-up. Currently the Leafs are fourth, a point ahead of Chicago Black Hawks and a point behind the Bruins, who will be in New York tonight.

Just possibly they could get by without Bentley. But it's a good bet that coach Joe Primeau is out today, shopping for a get-well card.

Widow Bets Buck Wins $267,500

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—A 35-year-old widow with eight children won $257,000 on a $1.20 bet. She was the only person to pick the winners of six horse races Sunday at the Caracas Hippodrome track.

Concepcion Blanco de Herrera, a laundress of San Juan de Los Morros, capital of the state of Guarico, placed the bet Saturday when she had only another $1.20 left to purchase food. She said it was the second time she had bet on the horses. She earns from $8 to $15 weekly washing clothes.

Married at the age of 12 Senora de Herrera's children range from 22 to seven years of age. She said she would buy some houses, set up her boys in business, and put the rest of the money in the bank.

Dog Sled Derby Veterans Lead At First Lap

CRANBERRY PORTAGE, Man. (CP)—The end of the first lap of the Canadian championship sled dog race, which started at The Pas Tuesday, saw two trail veterans pull into Cranberry Portage separated by just three minutes and five seconds.

Gilbert Lavallee, a Pine Bluff trapper driving seven dogs, covered the 67-mile lap in six hours and 55 minutes. Close behind was last year's winner of the northern classic, Steve Pranteau of Grand Rapids, Man., with a time of six hours, 58 minutes and five seconds. He is driving nine dogs.

Pierre Carriere of Cumberland House, Sask., behind nine dogs is third with seven hours, nine minutes and 50 seconds. The teams remained overnight, then were to head for Flin Flon on the second lap of the 200-mile race from The Pas to Flin Flon and back.

Judge Proves Good Sport

THE PAS (CP)—One of the 18 starters in the Canadian open championship sled dog derby Tuesday was late getting to the starting line. A sports-minded magistrate had just let him out of jail.

The musher was clapped in the calaboose when he became over enthusiastic in his preparations for the big day.

He promised to appear in court later when he gained his freedom. "I'll be there whether I win the $1,000 first prize or not," he told the magistrate.

STATISTICS FOR CAR OWNERS AND DRIVERS!!

Mechanical failures, bad roads and driving conditions cause a very small percentage of accidents. The real offender is "human factor", the driver.

Speeding, drinking and driving, driving on the wrong side of the road and ignoring the rights of others cause nearly 70% of all traffic deaths.

Under-25 drivers make up 15% of the driving public but are involved in 30% of all fatal accidents.

Three out of every 10 fatal accidents brought death to themselves or others, simply because they were driving too fast.

More than 80% of all accidents occur on perfectly dry highways.

Barons Regain Top Berth In American League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons regained first place in the American Hockey League Tuesday night by trimming Providence Reds 6-3. It was the Barons' eighth straight victory over Providence this season.

Cleveland grabbed a 3-1 lead in the first period, and made it 4-1 early in the second. Then Providence rallied to bring the count to 4-3.

Glen Sonmor and Steve Wochy banged in the last two Cleveland goals late in the third period.

Zellio Toppazzini, with a goal and two assists, figured in all the Reds' scores. Providence went the entire game without a penalty, Cleveland drawing three sentences.

Rangers Enlist Junior Help

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers are bringing up centre Ray Cyr and left winger Roland Leclerc from the Quebec Junior Amateur League on a three-game trial.

Both players will report to the last place Rangers in the National Hockey League at Montreal Saturday.

To make room for them, the Rangers are sending George Senick back to Saskatoon of the Western League, and Pete Babando to Vancouver of the same loop.

Senick and Babando will remain with the New York club through Thursday night, when Rangers meet Chicago Black Hawks.

'Stop Sasky', Schoolboy Curlers Cry; Wheat Province Lead With 4 Wins

SASKATOON (CP)—"Stop Saskatchewan" was the try today at the Canadian high school curling championships.

The Wheat Province's representative, the Dennis Cochrane rink from Regina Scott Collegiate, leads the round-robin tourney with four straight victories.

The 10 teams each play three matches today and wind up the bonspiel with two matches Thursday.

Unless Regina is stopped, Saskatchewan will win the Sifton Trophy and keep the Dominion title in the province for the third straight year. Saskatoon Tech won in 1951 and 1952.

Right behind Saskatchewan are the Ontario and Nova Scotia rinks with three wins and one loss.

Three more—Alberta, New Brunswick and Northern Ontario—have two wins and two losses.

Deadlocked in last place with one win and three losses are Manitoba, Quebec, British Clumbia and Prince Edward Island.

Saskatchewan is drawn against New Brunswick this morning and Quebec in the afternoon. But the big test probably will come in the evening when the Regina foursome tangles with Ontario. Saskatchewan meets Nova Scotia Thursday morning.

In a fourth-round match, Manitoba appeared on the way to breaking Saskatchewan's unbeaten string by leading 4-1 after five ends. But Saskatchewan rallied with two fours and a three and won handily 12-7.

In an extra end match Prince Edward Island scored its first win, edging British Columbia 11-10.

A highlight of Tuesday's play was the New Brunswick-Nova Scotia battle in the third round. New Brunswick went ahead 6-0 on the first two ends, but Nova Scotia came back strongly for an 11-11 tie by the eighth.

New Brunswick got one on the ninth and when the Nova Scotia skip was a trifle heavy on the 10th, New Brunswick counted another for a 13-11 win.

Top Secret Files of Racing Bureau Bristles With Colorful Nicknames

By JOHN CHANDLER
(For GAYLE TALBOT)

NEW YORK (AP) — Coast-to-coast Gracie could pitch an alcoholic wing-ding at a race track that would give the management fits, and Silk Hat Harry made them tremble too.

Silk Hat Harry was a known pickpocket, an associate of Los Angeles hoodlums, who was recognized and ejected from Hollywood park. Coast-to-coast Gracie has been bounced from many race tracks, for hanging around the club house bars and bumming drinks from any man who'd buy.

These and hundreds of other nicknames that sound like inventions of the late Damon Runyon are found in the confidential files of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau.

Some are crooks and shady characters, but most are racing people who for some reason have gained an odd nickname. The imagination and ingenuity in dishing out nicknames is unmatched in racing, even to the jockeys.

There is Banana Nose Arcaro, Smokey Saunders, the Slasher Atkinson, Moneybags Longden, Neves, the Portuguese Pepper Pot.

"This nickname file, something fairly new with us, is vital in our work," said Spencer Drayton, the TRPB director, and former federal bureau of investigation man. "The FBI long ago discovered the importance of aliases."

TRPB agents were investigating a stimulation case in Detroit where a groom said he had heard Blue Boy talking about the doped horse.

"Who is Blue Boy; where can we find him?" The groom had no idea, for Blue Boy had moved to another track.

"Never knew him by anything other than Blue Boy," the groom said.

For months agents at various tracks asked for Blue Boy, finally located him at the New Orleans fair grounds and obtained enough information to clinch their case.

"It Ain't No Good," was a name that had them stumped. Perhaps it originated from the man's criminal record. He was an associate of gamblers and bookies, was barred from racing for falsifying a jockey agent's application.

A mobster was Jimmy Blue Eyes, while Artichoke Joe ran a California pool hall and did a bit of bookmaking on the side. Big John with the Black Hat was the only clue for an Italian sought in connection with an attempt to fix a race at Belmont in 1946.

Then there was Honest John and his brother, Fairly Honest Harry.

Brave Tabbies, Unbloody, Unbowed Finish Schedule With Loss Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The schedule ran out Tuesday night for Owen Sound Mercurys and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

The Mercurys ended on top of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series with 71 points gathered by 34 wins and three ties. They lost 11 of their 48 games.

The Dutchmen settled for third place with 59 points from 29 wins and one tie. They lost 18. The final loss came when the Mercs defeated them 5-4.

Stratford Indians finish their season tonight with Chatham Maroons but the result won't affect their second-place position, currently nine points behind Owen Sound.

Brantford Redmen are rounding out their schedule with Hamilton Tigers. Tuesday night they improved their fourth-place position by whipping the Tigers 14-5. The two teams play the last game of the schedule in Hamilton Thursday night.

Sad Season

It's been a sad season for the Tabbies. They've won only two games but it wasn't for lack of trying.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group the league-leading Sudbury Wolves trounced Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds 11-1. The NOHA ends its season tonight with two games. The Greyhounds fight for sole possession of second place with the rival North Bay Trappers and the Wolves take on the last-place Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians.

Brantford's Bill Shill and Doug McKay slammed home three goals each for the Redmen's victory. Sam Kennedy and Arn Dugan potted a pair apiece and the others went to Jack Taylor, Wally Simpell, Don Oberholtzer and Jack McKay. Jim McWhirter scored twice for the Tigers. Stan Ritchie, Stan Divinsky and Jim Brown notched the others.

In Sudbury Terry Biocchi scored the Hounds' goal, spoiling Andy Anderson's shutout bid. Nick Tomiuk potted three for Sudbury. Gord Heale and Durno Rondina notched two each.

WATSON RINK VICTORS

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—A Port Arthur rink skipped by Grant Watson won the Northern Ontario curling championship Tuesday and the right to represent the northern section of the province in the Canadian championships at Sudbury March 2-6.

The Watson rink won its third game of the round-robin bonspiel, defeating Milt Moran's Sudbury quartet 10-5. It was the Port Arthur foursome's second victory over Moran.

FRANKFORD

Hockey Team Defeats 6 R. D.

FRANKFORD — Frankford hockey team clinched second place Monday night, by taking a four point game from 6 RD by a decisive 11-6 score. The Trent Valley Bowling League swung into action Saturday night in Trenton, but Frankford's entry put up a rather sad display. with only one bowler, Jack Farley, looking anything like a major leaguer. With the opening game jitters out of their systems, maybe the boys will give a much better showing in games to come. Campbellford easily swept all three games, high triples as follows: E. Hoard, 600; D. Holmes 543; R. Hay 684; J. Stocker 670; G. Irwin 683; L. Holmes 628. Frankford scores: G. Lohnes 540; D. Couture 592; E. Tomecek 579; F. Murphy 578; J. Farley 702; W. Rankin 530.

TORONTO (CP)—Tales of an ancient game played on ice with granite rocks were bandied about over toddies Tuesday night.

Ruddy-faced veterans of Canadian bonspiels gathered to swap the latest stories and the favorite ones.

The occasion was the annual banquet of the Ontario Curling Association, now holding its 26th annual bonspiel. About 600 devotees of the old Scottish sport sat down to entertainment, companionship and good cheer.

In the bonspiel the quarter-finals of the Royal York Trophy and the Henry Birks and Sons Trophy are to be played today.

When Tuesday's draw ended there were 16 survivors left in competition for the top award. Of these eight were from out-of-town and eight from Toronto. Two rounds are to be played today to reduce the number of competitors to their four semi-finalists.

In the Birks competition, Toronto rinks have nine representatives against seven outside rinks. Two rounds of this event also are scheduled today.

Three more 1952 trophy winners entered the ranks of the defeated in the Royal York third round. Stan Sarjeant of Orillia, winner of the Seagram Trophy a year ago, Bill Knowlson of Toronto Granites, who won the Aggregate Trophy in 1952, and Dr. John Brock of Oshawa defender of the Birks Trophy, were knocked out of the Royal York play.

Forty-six rinks squared off in the first round of the Seiberling Trophy competition. Fourteen outside rinks were victors with the remaining nine going to Toronto clubs.

Losers in the Seiberling event dropped into competition for the North American Life Trophy, the first round of which was played Tuesday.

The round saw only four outside rinks remain in the competition—from St. Georges, Brampton, Oshawa and Mount Forest.

On today's full program two rounds of Seiberling play are scheduled along with the first rounds of competition for the Seagram and Parker Pen Trophies.

Sport in Brief

PRESTON, England (Reuters)—Derek Dooley, one of Britain's most colorful soccer stars, had his right leg amputated as a "life-saving measure" Tuesday when gangrene developed in his leg, injured during a game last Saturday. Hospital officials said his condition was "critical" Tuesday night.

Dooley is high-scoring centre forward for the Sheffield Wednesday club.

NEW YORK (AP) — Brendan Macken of Montreal, Canadian Davis Cup ace, outlasted William Lurie of Brooklyn, N.Y., 8-6, 4-6, 6-1, in a second-round match of the United States indoor tennis championships Tuesday night. Lurie tired after giving Macken a terrific battle for more than an hour.

Turf Princess Starts Light Training For Position in 1953 Track Royalty

By JOHN PATERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A quiet-mannered turf princess has started light training for the season ahead which may see her take her place among race-track royalty this Coronation year.

Canadiana—on her forehead the small white star of destiny—canters a few miles daily over a tiny, straw-covered track, one of two training ovals on the huge Windfields farm of her breeder and owner, E. P. Taylor.

Several farms make up the 700-acre establishment on the city's outskirts. Late last fall Canadiana had been covered with more glory than any other home-bred two-year-old in history.

Consistent Winner

Her $40,762 in purse money was a record for her age, regardless of sex. Six stakes—including one in track-record time at Randall Park, Ohio—were included in the nine victories of her 11 starts. She was voted Canada's "horse of the year," and made a prohibitive 8-5 winter-book favorite for the 94th running of the Queen's Plate at Toronto June 2, Coronation Day. Last month she was rated third among all the fillies of the continent by John Campbell, New York handicapper.

As befits the "big" horse, the star among the 17 thoroughbreds which make up the Taylor string to be raced in Canada this year, Canadiana has the best stall in the barn. It is big and roomy, has two windows and is enclosed.

Trainer Gordon (Pete) McCann said Canadiana showed promise from a yearling. This was on the larger track, ¾ of a mile, where yearlings are broken and where Canadiana will graduate to stiffer training before moving to Toronto's Woodbine Park, probably about April.

She was a late foal, born May 23, 1950, several months after most other thoroughbreds of her year. She is a half-sister to two other stake winners, Bennington and the speed-ball Britannia. Her dam, Iribelle, died last year and Canadiana is the only offspring of Iribelle and Chop Chop.

Chop Chop was a noted racer in the U.S. with 11 victories around New York in his two- and three-year-old years. He ran second to the great Assault in the Dwyer Stakes in New York.

There are 129 horses at Windfields and six in the U.S. division of the stable. They range from the four stallions, Windfields, unbeaten in Canada; Bull Page, 1951 horse of the year; Epic, 1949 Plate winner, and the imported Teddy Wrack to 54 broodmares and week-old foals, and others.

Plenty of Power

A bay filly, Canadiana is not considered "strong" on looks but she has a powerful front and strong driving quarters. She has a long body and a slight swayback. She has recovered from a small operation on her front legs, called "blistering" intended to tighten her muscles. Her stable nickname is "Belle."

The usual stable caution influences talk of her future. She is being pointed first for the $15,000-added Plate, richest prize in Canadian racing.

Mr. Taylor has bred the winners of the last four plates, but two were lost in claiming races as two-year-olds.

After the plate, what?

McCann says it all depends on how well she does in the 1⅛-mile classic. But she is aiming dead-on at the record of Kingarvia, top Canadian money-winner who earned $100,000. Canadiana almost certainly will go after rich races for fillies and mares in the U.S., stable officials say, but "it all depends. . . ."

Men's Commercial Bowling League

Gourley's and Pat's Barber Shop were the only 7 point winners with Gourley's rolling high total pinfall of 3429 to take Balyx Bros.

Pat's Barber Shop narrowed down the lead between themselves and the first place Bosiak's by virtue of their 7 point win over Stephens-Adamson.

Only 1 point separates Bosiak's and Pat's Barber Shop and the two teams meet each other shortly in this last 3rd of the schedule to finish up the league.

Star Welding, Bosiak's and Quinte Distributors each collected 5 points for the evening by wins over Welding Gases, Alemite and O'Neil Sales respectively.

Jack Young of Alemite took both the high triple and high single honors rolling a 787 three string and a 390 single. Other good scores as follows: E. Bowers 747, J. Doran 738; V. Sagriff 723; K. Quakers Widen Western Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatoon Quakers widened their lead atop the Western Hockey League Tuesday night by subduing the tail-end Victoria Cougars 7-2.

The victory boosted the Quakers' margin over second-place Vancouver to four points.

A disputed goal by playing coach Max McNab gave New Westminster Royals a 3-3 tie with Tacoma Rockets. Referee Eddie Powers rejected Tacoma's claim that the puck was thrown out in front of the net to set up the score.

Gord Fashoway and Pete Durham notched the other Royals' goals. Mark Marquess tallied two for Tacoma and Wayne Brown sank the other.

Junior Interlocking 'Sked' Success; Both Leagues Settle Down for 'Spots'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The last game of an Ontario-Quebec junior hockey experiment was played Tuesday night. Quebec Citadelles of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association ended their tour of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series by defeating Galt Black Hawks 5-2.

On the surface the interlocking schedule experiment appeared a success. A post-mortem by league officials at the end of the season will give the final analysis.

Oshawa Generals are almost certain of the sixth and last playoff berth in the OHA after Tuesday night's 5-4 victory over the eighth-place Windsor Spitfires. The Gens now are seven points ahead of the seventh-place Guelph Biltmores, last year's Memorial Cup champions.

The Bilts' hopes for that last playoff spot dimmed again after taking a 5-4 loss from the last-place Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts.

In St. Catharines the fourth-place Teepees and third-place Toronto St. Michael's fought to a 3-3 overtime tie.

Score Four

In Galt the Citadelles' victory was due mainly to the efforts of Camille Henri who scored four of the five goals. Michel Labadie tallied the other. Ken Wharram and Frank Bettiol counted for the Black Hawks.

Oshawa's win came on two goals by Roger Maisonneuve and one each from Fred Etcher, Army Armstrong, and Bill Stewart. Ted Reid counted twice for the Spitfires, the others going to Ed Louttit and Al Arbour.

Kitchener's victory over Guelph was the fourth straight for the Shirts. Grieg Hicks scored twice and Beryl Klinck, Gary Collins and Buddy Horne got the others. Biltmore scorers were Burly Dimma, Ron Murphy, Chuck Henderson and Jim Connelly.

Teepees and St. Michael's both scored a goal in the overtime period at St. Catharines. Alec Leslie, Hank Ciesla and Billy Haas were the Teeps' marksmen. Paul Knox, Marc Reaume and Ed McGaffin scored for the Collegians.

Tonight Barrie Flyers have a chance to take over the OHA lead from Toronto Marlboros when they meet St. Catharines. The Marlies lead the Flyers by one point.

There is no action in the Quebec loop.

Justice Rules Man Is Being Illegally Held

TORONTO (CP)—A Don jail prisoner who Mayor Lamport says has cost the city $20,000 for his keep for two years, will be sentenced Feb. 24 on a charge to which he pleaded guilty three years ago.

Mr. Justice J. B. Aylesworth ruled Tuesday that Ambrose E. Johnston is being illegally held prisoner under committal for trial on a charge of unlawful possession of narcotics.

Johnston has been awaiting trial for a year on both the drug and habitual criminal charges. Mr. Justice Aylesworth's ruling has the effect that Johnston cannot now be tried as an habitual criminal. He will be sentenced on the drug charge by Magistrate T. S. Elmore.

Johnston was charged April 14, 1950, with unlawful possession of drugs and appeared before the late Magistrate Browne April 26 for judgment. The magistrate decided to treat the case as a preliminary hearing and commit him for trial.

Johnston appeared before Judge Ian Macdonnell May 3 and elected trial by jury.

He appeared for trial Oct. 16, 1950, but was not prepared to proceed and was allowed to re-elect, choosing a quick trial before a judge without a jury.

May 8, 1951, he again appeared for trial, but again was not ready to proceed, this time because of the absence of his counsel. His trial was then adjourned to a date to be arranged. He has been awaiting trial since then.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When a grand slam is not a laydown, you may have work to do. Then is when your experience in the seven principles of play will come in handy. Among these seven principles is the squeeze.

The squeeze is divided into three general groups; simple, inverted, and double. But the preparation for setting up the stage for either may require the Vienna coup operation.

The Vienna coup is a play in which you use up a control in order to establish a control in the hand of an opponent. Then you proceed to squeeze that control out of him.

There was the deal shown here:

♠4 10 2
♥K 9 6
♦9 4 3
♣A K 5 3

WEST	EAST
♠7 6 5 4 3	♠K J 8
♥None	♥10 7 5
♦K Q 10 8 5 2	♦J 7 6
♣8 7	♣J 10 9 4

SOUTH
♠A 9
♥A Q J 8 4 3 2

South found himself in a grand slam bid of seven hearts. West led the diamond king. This forced the south lone ace and it looked as if he must lose a spade if he does not make the fourth club.

Six leads in trumps were followed by cashing king and queen of clubs. Then the ace of spades was cashed for the tenth trick. This set up the east spade king as a possible winner.

By then south had left a tiny club, a tiny trump, and the nine of spades. Dummy kept the ace and one club, the queen of spades. East had two clubs and the spade king.

At this point, south led his final trump and sluffed queen of spades from the dummy hand. This is where east really feels the pinch. But there is nothing he can do about it.

He is anxious to keep the spade king and both clubs. But he must play a card to that trick. He must let go of a club or his spade king. And it makes no difference to south which it is.

If east gives up the spade king, the south nine is good. If east lets go of a club, both of dummy clubs are good with a club lead from south. East may as well give himself up.

Lodges Reported 'Up in Arms' Over Police Raids

OTTAWA (CP)—Orange Order lodges are reported "up in arms" following widespread police raids on homes in various parts of Ottawa in a search for raffle tickets.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton, at a board of control meeting Tuesday, said a flood of complaints has been received following "one of the largest series of raids ever carried out in the city."

The reports said police sought raffle tickets which have been sold in Ottawa for $10,000 worth of prizes, including three automobiles, to be drawn for next Sept. 4 at the Mountain fair, eight miles southeast of Kemptville, Ont., in Grenville county, 45 miles south of Ottawa.

One Orange official said Ottawa police began the raids late last week, calling at houses, showing their warrants, and searching premises from top to bottom. He said police didn't get "more than 100 books (of raffle tickets) all told," but messed up houses and made the women nervous.

Indignant about the raids, Orangemen stressed the raffle was conducted strictly for charitable purposes.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Merle Oberon is back before the Hollywood cameras after a five-year absence, but this time it's for television.

One of the screen's most noted beauties, Miss Oberon was making her second TV film when I dropped by to find out the why and wherefore of her absence from the local movie mills.

The answer has something to do with Howard Hughes, plus the dearth of romance on the screen.

"During the past three years I have been sent scripts, but they were the kind of thing you would expect from Howard Hughes. I turned them down, and the studio had to pay me (a reported $100,000 a year). Of course, the money was nice, but there were disadvantages, too. I was kept from doing other pictures in Hollywood."

Her absence from the Hollywoods was also due to the current film preoccupation with realism. The studios are too concerned with the rock-'em and sock-'em kind of picture to do anything sentimental.

"I think that's a mistake," commented Miss Oberon, who is identified with such romances as "The Dark Angel" and "Wuthering Heights."

The actress remarked that she now is considering a couple of movie scripts and intends to stay in Hollywood for a while. A British subject, she has applied for United States citizenship.

Capsule review: "I Confess" lacks the suspense that one expects from an Alfred Hitchcock picture, but it's good story-telling. It starts with a premise which has intrigued Hitchcock: In the film, made in Quebec, a Roman Catholic priest hears the confession of a murderer, then the priest himself is accused of the same crime. Should the priest reveal the confession he has heard? Is the murderer found out? That is the basis of the story. The Hitchcock mastery of the movie medium is there, although his familiar tricks are largely missing. But the actors help make the story believable, notably Anne Baxter, Montgomery Clift, Brian Aherne, Karl Malden and O. E. Hasse. Lively drama.

AT THE BELLE—Greer Garson as she appears in the famous Jane Austin classic "Pride and Prejudice" now playing at the Belle Theatre. Laurence Olivier and Edmund Gwen al so appear in the leading roles.

CHARGE DOUBLE FRAUD

WALKERTON (CP)—Police said Tuesday two men charged with fraud made restitution to Katey Schwalm of Mildmay with stolen money. Roy Morrison of London, Ont., and John Patrick Riley of Galt are to appear here Thursday. They will appear as slated, but will face additional charges of defrauding Eva Shaver of Bright of $1,300 and William John Dundas of Thamesford of $3,750.

Purchase Authorized

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A closed meeting of the new board of directors of East Windsor Hospital Monday night authorized purchase of $500 worth of "basic hospital equipment" in an attempt to replenish the hospital's medical supplies.

A statement issued Tuesday said the board was asked to authorize purchase of a microscope after it was discovered there was none in the institution.

A board spokesman said much of "the essential equipment was just hot there."

The board also suggested an inspection of the hospital's fire-fighting equipment.

Seguin, Murder Suspect, Linked With Disappearance of Couple

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police have linked Henry Seguin, Ontario murder suspect, with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Labrie, who vanished mysteriously from a Kamloops auto court three months ago.

He was identified as the man who lived in the auto court with the couple prior to their disappearance Nov. 17.

Seguin, now serving a five-year sentence in penitentiary at New Westminster, B.C., following an attempted bank robbery at Williams Lake last December, admitted to police he knew the Labries but denied all knowledge of their disappearance.

In a bulletin issued recently police said murder was suspected in the disappearance of the couple.

Seguin told RCMP investigators who questioned him in prison that the Labries left the auto court while he was still staying there.

"Labrie went to find another job," he was quoted as saying. "Mrs. Labrie moved into Kamloops."

Sold Some Furniture

Mr. and Mrs. Labrie and Seguin, police said, moved from Williams Lake to Kamloops Nov. 9.

Police sources disclosed that furniture from the Labries' suite had been sold in Kamloops by Seguin about two weeks after the couple disappeared.

It was learned that an automobile used by Seguin was owned by Labrie.

Seguin returned to Williams Lake early in December and on the night of Dec. 16 attempted a holdup of a branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He was wounded and captured later by an RCMP posse.

In mid-January he was sentenced to five years in prison, convicted on charges of wounding bank manager Leonard Hillier, attempting to shoot a police officer, and armed robbery. He had stolen a wallet from Hillier.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner last week said the Crown would appeal the sentence, seeking a longer prison term.

Seguin is wanted on a charge of murder at Maxville, Ont., for the robbery-slaying of taxi driver Leonard Hurd last July.

Aurora Borealis Being Beaten At Low Cost by Ottawa Research

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian scientists say they have revolutionized the theory that it costs a great deal of money and takes a lot of power to send radio signals on low frequencies.

But they are even more concerned about the aurora borealis, the strange, shimmering northern lights which excite the wonder of the layman and pose transmission problems for the man who wants to communicate by radio.

F. T. Davies, superintendent of the defence research board's telecommunications establishment told reporters the low-frequency field has been described as one costing millions of dollars in stationary equipment but "we now are thinking of it in terms of mobile equipment costing around $5,000."

He spoke to reporters on a conducted tour which preceded today's official opening of a $600,000 radio physics laboratory which is the brain and heart of Canada's efforts to solve the exceptional communications problems posed by the northern lights.

The laboratory, 15 miles west of Ottawa, is unique in Canada in that it is built on an expanded copper ground screen. This strange foundation is part of the elaborate precautions to ground the building completely.

The laboratory works with eight "radio weather" stations across Canada's northland in checking every 15 minutes on how conditions are for sending radio signals. In her auroral studies, Canada is ahead of the world—primarly because the aurora borealis is largely her own problem and because she has decided to specialize in that field.

CANADA

Wind Up Debate

The atomic disclosures came after the Commons wound up a long debate on foreign affairs. In closing it, External Affairs Minister Pearson—who is also president of the United Nations general assembly—outlined Canadian policy in the Far East.

He said Canada opposes any move to extend the war in Korea unless there is "pretty convincing evidence" such a move would also end the war quickly.

Canada favors a firm but cautious policy against the Far East Reds. She is against bombing Red Manchuria or blockading the coast of Communist China—the former as "unwise" and the latter as being fraught with dangers and difficulties that would neutralize any benefits.

Mr. Pearson said Canada has made no arrangement to enter a Pacific pact. But she is taking part in "an exchange of intelligence and co-operation on military matters" in Southeast Asia.

Set Up Committee

Mr. Howe's statement on atomic power was given as he sponsored the setting up of a special all-party House committee to review the government's atomic policy. It was welcomed by spokesmen for all parties in the House and later given approval.

Mr. Howe said isotopes have become big business. A special building was being planned for Ottawa to produce them for various commercial applications.

Canada's atomic plant at Chalk River, Ont., he said, is going ahead on schedule with the building of a new, large atomic reactor which will be the best in the world. It will begin operating in 1954.

Reactor Being Rebuilt

In addition another reactor known as NRX, knocked out last December by an explosion which caused a leak, is being rebuilt. Its collander—or heart—is being replaced and in effect this will give the plant a new reactor. The tearing down of the burned-out reactor has given Canadian scientists much new information, the minister indicated, particularly on how to prolong the life of an atomic pile.

He said a uranium mill will come into production in the Beaver Lodge area of northern Saskatchewan in May, tapping the largest uranium find yet made in Canada. This will be in addition to production already going on at the original uranium mine at Eldorado on Great Bear lake.

Howard Green (PC — Vancouver Quadra) said private enterprise should be given a hand in development of atomic energy, but Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) thought the government ought to maintain control of this important scientific field.

Open Up New Areas

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said development of atomic power could open up new areas where power is not now available by the hydro-electric system.

J. H. Harrison (L — Meadow Lake) charged that the CCF government in Saskatchewan is retarding community progress at Beaverlodge lake, the site of the big new uranium find in his constituency.

J. A. MacLean (PC — Queens) urged that when atomic power is developed it be utilized first in the Maritimes and Prairie areas which have no source of cheap power.

Should Get to Work

Rev. Daniel McIvor (L—Fort William) said the special House committee to review the government's atomic program should get to work at once. Canada will soon have another development in this field—the location at the Lakehead of a cobalt bomb for treatment of cancer.

In his speech, Mr Pearson made these points on Canadian policy in the Far East:

1. Korea is a matter for the United Nations and any action touching on Canadian participation in that conflict, or in matters arising out of it, would have to result from UN decisions.

2. The government's attitude towards a stronger military offensive within the present strategy in Korea is that it must be looked at in the light of the political and military results that would follow.

Strong Division

3. The only excuse for a naval blockade of China would be that it would be effective in ending the war. There was a strong division of opinion on that question, since at least 75 per cent of military supplies going to Communist China for the Korean war travel by land. The Canadian view is that the "dangers and difficulties" of a blockade would neutralize any benefits.

4. The bombing of Chinese Communist territory incidental to the Korean operation would be "unwise" unless forced on the UN by all-out war from China itself. The UN should be "pretty careful."

5. Canadian policy is to be "very careful" before doing anything to help Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa-based forces get a foothold on the China mainland. It would probably "not be very wise," from the point of view of defeating aggression in Korea, if the UN cause were to be tied in with the restoration of the Nationalist government on the mainland.

WARNS HOG PRODUCERS

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Hog producers of Elgin county were warned Tuesday by W. J. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association, that there is danger of over-production again with the prices on the upswing. He said a survey showed a reduction of 31.1 per cent of breeding sows in Canada during the last year. That represented about the reduction needed to meet the domestic requirements for pork.

LYNDA WATCH

Mr. Watch was just leaving for his work as a waiter at a nearby hotel when he was met at the street by Trevor Taylor, store manager who advised getting the upstairs families out as fire had broken out. He turned back up the stairs and was met by his wife carrying their younger daughter. Dense smoke barred his way into the bedroom where Lynda was sleeping.

Mrs. Carmichael spotted the fire at about the same time when she saw smoke curling from beneath one of the apartment doors. She opened the door and was met by a sheet of flame. She grabbed her daughter Bonnie and raced past the flames. The baby had its hair singed slightly but both got out safely. Two older children were at school.

The fire broke out about 2:30 with firemen receiving the alarm at 2:35.

When firemen arrived on the scene smoke was rolling out through doors and windows at both ends of the building.

Escaped Without Trouble

Firemen reported that when they arrived Mrs. Watch called frantically that her young daughter was still in the building asleep on her bed.

Fireman Archie Hill climbed a ladder at the street and entered the apartment through a window. He was unable to see because of the smoke and was unable to find the little girl. She was not on her bed.

"I could hear the girl sort of whimpering but I could not find her," he said. "I had to get out because of the smoke.

Fireman Joseph Yome then donned a smoke mask and found the little girl unconscious beneath the bed where she had crawled.

The little girl was carried across the street to the old firehall which had been vacated by the department only the day previous. They went to work with oxygen equipment and worked for an hour-and-a-half in what turned out to be a vain attempt to save the little girl's life. Firemen were assisted by Dr. J. Russell Scott and George Whitman, local welfare officer.

Transferred to Hospital

The girl was later transferred to hospital but she died an hour after being admitted.

Almost every available piece of fire fighting equipment owned by the department was called out by Fire Chief Gerald Vance to fight the flames. Firemen poured water into the burning structure from ladders and also from the ground. When the fire broke through the roof the aerial ladder was brought into play.

Three hours after the outbreak the blaze was under control but firemen continued to pour water onto the embers.

Fire Chief Vance placed the loss to the building at close to $50.000 with another $20,000 or more for stock and contents of the store.

Store Newly Renovated

The Belleville Bargain Centre was a new store with a long frontage which was opened three years ago. The owner, William Mayer, was in Florida on a holiday at the time of the fire. He took the first plane home.

The fire chief was unable to state the cause of the blaze but said a full investigation into the blaze would be conducted through the fire marshal's department.

The blaze was the fourth serious fire loss in the downtown Belleville district within recent years. The last heavy loss was last March when over half a million dollars damage was caused when fire swept through five stores at the main intersection of Front and Bridge Streets.

In the other blazes there were fortunately no fatalities although numerous families were forced from their apartments.

Farm Forum News

Four forums reported meeting on evening of Feb. 9 namely: Brookdale (16), Foxboro (12), Hazzards (22) and Melrose (12). The subject under discussion was "Borrowed Money—Prop or Pitfall. All four forums thought credit might be used for purchase of machinery if used with discretion. It would increase the productive capacity of the farm; by doing own work and custom work in a few years it could be paid for. Scarcity of help makes machinery a necessity One forum said you can raise a cow but not a tractor.

All four agreed that credit should be asked for only necessities and not for luxuries or non-productive reasons; also plans should be made for repayment.

Hazzards summed it up thus: "Farming is a varied business and it is hard to make a rule that will apply generally. There is no other business so unpredictable and subject to so many hazzards. We are always taking a long chance when we borrow money. It is best to borrow as little as possible or better not at all in the long run."

Eisenhower Shows 'A Grim Picture' To Party Leaders

Democrats on Hand When Global Situation Outlined

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders of both parties reviewed the global military situation with President Eisenhower today, and a member of the House of Representatives said afterward it was a portrayal of "a grim picture."

The Republican and Democratic leaders of the Senate and House spent 1½ hours with Eisenhower at the White House session.

They were briefed on Korean war strategy and the military and diplomatic situations elsewhere by Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and by Allen W. Dulles, chief of the central intelligence agency.

MORE

In "Hell of a Fix"

Another Congress member who attended said no conclusions were reached at the session, "unless you might say we are in a hell of a fix." He asked not to be named.

Halleck said it dealt with both the Korean and the Indo-China wars, among other things.

Vice - president Richard Nixon also joined the congressmen for the meeting likely to affect important decisions and defence spending.

Robert Cutler, White House Liaison man with the national security council and budget director Joseph Dodge were with the government group, scheduled to tell the congressmen what the country was up against militarily and financially.

Such a far-ranging review presumably would include possible new action against Communist China. State Secretary John Foster Dulles said Wednesday that every conceivable measure to stop the flow of military supplies to Red China is being weighed by his department — including a naval blockade.

Dulles was not scheduled to attend today's meeting, however, nor was anyone else from the state department.

Senate Republican leader Robert Taft of Ohio and House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts headed the list of congressmen invited. The chairmen and other senior members of the foreign relations, armed services and appropriations committees of both houses were called in.

The White House press secretary, James C. Hagerty, called the meeting a "briefing," indicating administration spokesmen expected to do most of the talking.

Hagerty was asked if the inclusion of Democrats was a step toward carrying out the bipartisan approach Eisenhower has promised in foreign and defence matters.

"I think that would be a fair assumption," he replied.

W.E. Dermott, 66, Killed in Crash At Rednersville

Fatally injured Wednesday evening when the car in which he was riding skidded on a slippery snow-covered pavement, William E. "Hap" Dermott, 66, retired C.N.R. freight conductor of the 1st concession Ameliasburg township, died en route to Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Dermott had been to Belleville with his daughter, Mrs. Lola Rion, to purchase groceries and the two were on their way home when the accident occurred. A light snow had made the pavement slippery and the car driven by Mrs. Rion went out of control, skidded across a ditch and overturned.

The accident occurred west of Rednersville about two miles from the Dermott home. The two occupants of the car were taken to hospital in Bush's Ambulance where Mr. Dermott was pronounced dead by Dr. J. Russell Scott. Mrs. Rion suffered a possible broken collarbone and shock.

Retired Year Ago

Mr. Dermott retired from the railway about a year ago. He had moved to Prince Edward from Belleville about ten years ago. Mrs. Rion lived with her father.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable J. Thompson of Picton, assisted by Constables Toll and Barker of Belleville.

Mr. Dermott was born at Parham, and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dermott. He was a life member of the Moira Lodge A. F. and A. M. No. 11 and the United Church. His wife, the former Maud Kennedy, died four years ago.

Surviving are his stepmother, Mrs. Janet Dermott; two daughters, Mrs. Edison (Lola) Rion, at home, and Mrs. Lyle (Verna) Weese of Ameliasburg.

Also surviving are five sisters, Mrs. T. A. Hamton, Tichborne; Mrs. T. Cushing, Toronto; Mrs. Jack Brown, Gravenhurst; Mrs. E. Goodwin, Winnipeg and Mrs. P. Cracknell, Geneva, N.Y., and six brothers, W. Dermott, Vancouver; Charles of Mirroe, Alta.; George of Elson, Saskatchewan; Fred of Geneva, N. Y.; Gordon and Allan of Tichborne.

Eight grandchildren and four great grandchildren also survive.

Howie Meeker To Quit Hockey

TORONTO (CP) — Howie Meeker, 29, today announced he will retire from the National Hockey League and may also retire from federal politics.

Meeker, right winger for the Toronto Maple Leafs, said he will leave the club at the end of the current NHL season. He added he may retire as Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Waterloo South at the end of his parliamentary term.

Meeker is in hospital here for treatment of hockey injuries. He said he will devote his time to his summer resort at Armstrong, Ont.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: A low pressure area is moving slowly eastward across Central Ontario this morning causing light snow. A southerly flow of warm gulf air will bring rain into southwestern Ontario late this afternoon and evening. A storm located in Kansas this morning will move eastward today and will cause snow to begin in Southern Ontario tonight. Snow will spread northward into Central Ontario will be in the low thirties Friday.

OFFER TEACHERS RAISE

STRATFORD (CP)—The board of education Wednesday offered all teachers here a $100-a-year pay increase. Secondary school teachers had asked a $200 increase, and public school teachers a $200 increase for principals, a $300 increase for teachers and other benefits. The board did not list present salary scales.

ONT. TO BLOCK ILLEGAL TRADING IN SECURITIES

Amendments to Plug Loopholes Now in Act

TORONTO (CP)—The provincial government intends to plug a legal loophole which allows illegal trading in securities with immunity from the law.

Attorney-General Porter told the Ontario legislature Wednesday dealers now can work through "front" men and thus avoid running the risk of penalty.

He introduced an amendment to the Securities Act which would make equally guilty anyone who aids or otherwise participates in illicit practices.

The action is similar to that taken last year to stop underhanded operators from selling phony stocks by long-distance telephone calls to unwary buyers in the U.S.

The government tightened regulations governing licences for brokers, and cancelled a number issued to persons involved in the racket.

The amendment presented to the House also would bring under the act certain categories of dealers who have thus far been exempt from its provisions.

Mr. Porter said one broker recently defaulted with a heavy potential loss to his customers. The act did not cover his case and he escaped prosecution.

Health Minister Phillips said by 1954 the province will have 12,500 beds in general hospitals, exceeding by 2,000 the number recommended in a 1948 survey.

He was reviewing the situation since the findings of the survey were announced. The report of the survey, in its final form, was tabled in the House Wednesday.

Mr. Phillips said at least 85 per cent of its recommendations have been or are in the process of being implemented.

He said a decline in the rate of tuberculosis made the need for more sanatoria unlikely. The rate now is nine cases for each 100,000 of population, the lowest in the history of the province and the lowest in Canada.

Advances in mental health treatment, he said, have made possible an annual saving of $7,000,000 for provincial taxpayers. Thirty - six per cent of the next 20,000 persons admitted to provincial mental hospitals will be cured through early diagnosis and treatment.

A bill designed to protect historical sites and archaeological discoveries from souvenir hunters and museum expeditions was introduced for first reading.

Education Minister Dunlop said there have been several instances of important discoveries being ruined by tourists and unauthorized expeditions.

First reading was also given to an amendment to the Insurance Act, allowing issuance of policies to cover livestock killed by all forms of electrocution. Lightning now is the only cause of electrocution for which insurance policies can be issued.

CONVICTED OF RAPE

LINDSAY (CP) — Convicted of raping a 15-year-old girl on Christmas night, J. Dumulon, 36, Monday was sentenced to six years in penitentiary. On a similar charge, Gerald Statham, 17, was sentenced to two years in reformatory. A third man still is sought.

41 PC Reduction in Tooth Decay Said Due to Fluoridation at Brantford

BRANTFORD (CP) — A school dentist said Wednesday night at the seventh annual meeting of the city's fluoridation committee that there has been a reduction of 41 per cent in tooth decay among school children in the past eight years.

Dr. Bradley W. Linscott said 19.4 per cent of school children here now have perfect teeth compared with 5.18 per cent in 1944 when fluoridation of water began.

After Dr. Linscott finished his report, Ontario Department of health officials, representatives of the Ontario Dental College and the department of national health spoke against the critics of fluoridation.

Dr. A. E. Berry, chief sanitary engineer of the Ontario health department, said newspaper editorials and magazine articles charging that fluoridation increased heart disease, cancer and other ailments in Brantford and Grand Rapids, Mich., are "absolutely without foundation in fact."

Dr. Berry said: "So much has been written and spoken against fluoridation by persons who have no reliable information on the subject that I cannot help but mention it."

So far there is no evidence to indicate fluoride has had an injurious effect anywhere, he said. The Canadian Medical Association and the Canadian Dental Association have both reported that to date no harm had been done.

He described criticisms as "false charges" and added: "People say fluoride is poisonous. Of course it is. Other compounds used in water are too. But a waterworks operator has no difficulty in maintaining the dosage set within the proper limits. The danger of poisoning does not exist."

Dr. Harry Brown, dental consultant of the department of national health, Ottawa, who has just completed a survey of the teeth of 1,800 school children here, said everything he has to report is "very good indeed."

Finance Minister Drops No Advance Hints Before Giving Budget to House This Evening

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott tonight will present his 1953-54 budget to the Commons.

In a speech starting at 8 p.m. EST and expected to take 1½ hours, Mr. Abbott will outline his taxation policies for the fiscal year beginning April 1.

He has dropped no advance hints of his plans. In seven years as finance minister, Mr. Abbott has been responsible for budgets that reduced taxes, for others that increased taxes and for some that left taxes largely unchanged.

The treasury's financial position and rumors that this may be an election year have created speculation that Mr. Abbott will reduce taxes in what may be his last budget. He is reported anxious to switch to a less onerous portfolio

Change Predicted

Members of opposition groups in the Commons have freely predicted that widespread tax reductions will be made before an election. The election date, still to be fixed by the government, is expected to be Monday, Oct. 5, 1953.

The five-year term of the present Parliament does not expire until Aug. 25, 1954, but governments seldom wait until the fifth year to seek a renewal of their mandate.

Some observers have forecast reductions in personal income, corporation and excises taxes on such things as cigarets. The annual $2.50 licence fee on radio receiving sets also is reported to be earmarked for repeal.

In a white paper tabled Wednesday in the Commons, Mr. Abbott forecast a 1952-53 surplus of $47,816,000, the smallest of seven he has reported since 1947.

The seven surpluses, following in the wake of 17 consecutive deficits during the war and the depression of the 1930s, have been used to reduce the national debt to $11,137,500,000 from a post - war peak of $13,421,000,000.

Revenues at All-Time High

Mr. Abbott estimated the government's 1952-53 revenues at an all-time high of $4,374,628,000, an increase of $393,719,000 over the previous peak of $3,980,909,000 a year ago.

Expenditures were estimated at $4,326,812,200 compared with $3,732,875,000 last year, below the record of $5,322,253,505 in 1944.

Defence expenditures, representing almost 45 per cent of government outlays, were estimated at $1,939,137,000 compared with $1,446,453,000, an increase of $492,684,000.

The defence expenditures were more than covered by returns from personal income and corporation taxes, the government's two largest revenue producers. The personal income tax yielded $1,233,000,000 and corporations $1,268,000,000.

The personal income tax is paid by single persons earning more than $1,000 a year and married persons earning more than $2,000.

Can Claim Exemptions

Married couples with children 16 and under can claim an exemption of $150 for each child. They also receive tax-free family allowances, averaging $72 a year for each child under 16.

For dependents more than 16, an exemption of $400 can be claimed. Medical expenses in excess of four per cent of income are deductible up to a maximum of $1,500 for single and $2,000 for married persons.

Charitable donations up to 10 per cent of income also are deductible for income tax purposes.

Under existing law rates, a single

Uranium Rush at North Bay Sees Whole Lakefront Staked; Owners Check Mineral Rights

NORTH BAY (CP) — North Bay's waterfront on Lake Nipissing has been staked almost solidly in the last three days by an army of veteran and amateur uranium prospectors.

Five miles out from shore, on the Manitou islands which Indian legend says are cursed, a discovery of uranium, tantalum and columbium was reported earlier this week. Tantalum and columbium are rare metals used in making highly tempered steels.

The news electrified this Northern Ontario railway and tourist centre which has long called itself "The Gateway to the North." Its 18,000 citizens thrilled to the prospect that their community might join Sudbury, Kirkland Lake and Timmins on the list of Ontario's mining municipalities.

Drawn by the lure of uranium, the magic mineral of the 20th century, experienced prospectors from such mining areas as Cobalt and Timmins flocked into the city and jammed hotels and rooming houses. Amateurs from North Bay and elsewhere joined them in the uranium hunt.

Owners of lakefront properties in the city and surrounding townships awoke to find claim posts sticking out of their front yards. Homes, stores, railway lands and even church properties have been staked out.

Some property owners found on checking their deeds that they retain mineral rights to their land. Others haven't.

"We're safe," said one lakefront resident. "But both my neighbors haven't got their mineral rights."

Some prospectors carried on their staking under cover of darkness. A few ventured into the lake and staked islands in Callander bay.

So far, however, the only actual discovery confirmed by assay report has been that of the Inspiration Mining and Development Company between Rankin and Newman islands in the Manitou group. Drilling shows the formation in an east-west direction and this development spurs hopes of shoreline stakers that the orebody will extend across to their claims.

Two men who own mineral rights to Great Manitou, largest of the five islands in the Manitou group, are reported to have turned down close to $500,000 for their property.

The mining fever extends to speculators, who are crowding the stock broker's office this week. Clerks, stenographers, railway workers, merchants, newspaper reporters and others who seldom if

Partners Turn Down Offer In 'Seven Figures'

NORTH BAY (CP) — A North Bay business man said today he and a partner have received an offer running into seven figures" for mineral rights on Great Manitou Island in Lake Nipissing.

Jack L. Shaw, beverage firm operator and reeve of West Ferris township on the outskirts of North Bay, said that he and John Kennedy, real estate agent, have not sold their interests.

The two men bought the island about seven years ago for a reported $3,000.

Speculative Fever Increases On Stock Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Speculative fever on the Toronto stock market increased today and promised to approach record levels.

Trading volume for the first two hours totalled 4,223,000 shares — second only to the record day of Jan. 28. Then, volume for the complete 5½ hour session totalled 12,122,000 shares A "normal" session moves about 2,500,000 shares.

The exchange's high-speed tickers fell as much as 10 minutes behind trading during the morning but started to catch up about noon. Floods of buy and sell orders kept traders racing to fill them.

A new outburst of public interest in low-priced speculative mining stocks sparked the "penny boom."

Spectacular gains in a few leaders prepared the ground for a new general buying spree.

Companies with interests in Saskatchewan uranium fields, in New Brunswick base metal finds or in North Bay, Ont., rare metal possibilities attracted most speculative attention. Many other issues, dormant for months, today started to trade actively on the strength of rumors or reports that the companies intended to enter one of the new fields.

JUSTICE MINISTER URGES RETAINING SPECIAL POWERS

Govt. Asking Year's Extension to Act

OTTAWA (CP) — An emergency unique in Canada's history, an emergency of "apprehended war," makes it necessary for the government to retain special powers to act on a moment's notice.

Justice Minister Garson advanced this argument in the Commons Wednesday in asking for a one-year extension of the two-year-old Emergency Powers Act, due to lapse May 31 unless renewed by Parliament. It was passed in 1951 and was extended in 1952.

The act gives the government wide powers involving almost all phases of the economic life of the country including communications, transportation, shipping and manufacture. It can act without reference to Parliament.

Progressive Conservative members have argued that the War Measures Act, used during the war, is still o nthe books and could be revived. They said there is no need for a further extension of the Emergency Powers Act.

Unique in History

Mr. Garson said Canada faces "a condition of emergency unique in our history." It is "an emergency of apprehended war but unlike war emergencies of the past this present emergency. . .may be of indeterminate length."

The government felt that in an emergency of indeterminate length it was not advisable to invoke the broad, arbitrary powers of the War Measures Act which invaded not only the field of civil rights but also of personal rights.

The government believed it more desirable to outline just what powers it should enjoy in the present emergency, as had been done in the Emergency Powers Act in 1951. The emergency of 1951 was not any less today and the act should be renewed for another year.

Those who argued that the power of the executive should be curbed and the civil and parliamentary rights should be upheld could not but support the extension. If there was no extension the government would be left with all-embracing power under the War Measures Act.

The debate on extension of the Emergency Act is to continue today, but tonight the parliamentary decks will be cleared for presentation of the budget.

At the House opening Trade Minister Howe announced that the initial payments to wheat and barley growers are being boosted and the adjustments will amount to about $80,000,000. Initial price of all wheat except durums will increase to $1.60 from $1.40; all grades of durum will be increased to $1.65 from $1.40 a bushel and all grades of barley will be boosted 15 cents a bushel to $1.11. The increases are effective March 2.

Dust Storms Ruining Winter Crop Are Worst Seen in U.S. Mid-West

CHICAGO (AP) — New dust storms [illegible] across sections of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas are cutting into the United States winter wheat crop.

Strong winds Wednesday kicked up the third major dust storm in 10 days in the three states which supply most of the country's wheat.

In one Oklahoma county alone, it was estimated that damage amounted to about one-third of the crop. And last year's crop in that north central Oklahoma county—Garfield—brought $18,500,000.

County agent J. B. Hurst, who made the estimate, said farmers there reported Wednesday's blow "the worst they've ever seen."

In Russell, in central Kansas, county agent Gale Mullen said most of that area's wheat crop is doomed unless moisture comes at once.

A drought during the latter half of 1952 and insufficient moisture this winter left the soil dry and loose. The high winds can easily whip the soil from around young wheat plants, killing them.

The new dust storms brought memories of the black blizzards of the 1930s when wind erosion put thousands of farmers and ranchers out of business.

Wednesday's blow, with gusts up to 50 miles an hour, sent up clouds of dust over western Kansas. At Great Bend, visibility was cut to one-eighth of a mile at times.

In Oklahoma motorists at Enid in the central part of the state reported dust so thick they couldn't see their hood emblems.

Winds up to 45 miles an hour kicked up dust in the Panhandle and West Texas, but light rain fell in north and east Texas.

UK Arms Budget Increase Reaches Peacetime Record

Original Program Is Cut Due to Economic Strain

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain will spend £1,600,000,000 on defence in the fiscal year 1953-54, an increase of eight per cent more than last year, the government announced today.

The U. S. aid share amounts to $390,000,000 the estimates showed. Of the aid total, the army gets £54,000,000, the air force £50,000,000 and the navy £31,000,000.

The annual statement said that total manpower in the three services will fall by an estimated 13,400 to 866,400 by April 1, 1954

Review Program

Of the total projected defence spending, arms production will account for about £640,000,000. This figure is scaled down by £200,000,000 on the original three-year arms plan drawn up in 1951.

The statement said the original three-year program is still under review with the object of formulating defence policy "in the longer term, giving the probable international situation, the country's economic prospects and the advent of new weapons and techniques."

The statement added that in the current economic situation in Britain it was necessary to get the fullest possible value for money.

The country must balance the need for greater defence against the risk that by overstraining itself too greatly it would "by economic collapse, give the Communists a bloodless victory."

Cost is Less

The original three years program was to have cost £4,600,000,000 at 1950 prices. In the first year expenditure was in fact £121,000,000 less than was envisaged

Though momentum was gathering in the second year, it became clear that the whole plan could not be completed by March, 1954, as intended.

It was also apparent that the momentum reached in the third year would have led to an expenditure which would have imposed too great a burden on the country's economy.

For these reasons, the statement said, the government decided to spread the buildup over a longer period.

The 1953-54 program would nevertheless make a "very substantial contribution" towards modernizing equipment and expanding the services, it said. Expenditure would be at a level unknown before in peace-time.

SIGN FAT TV CONTRACT

NEW YORK (AP)—Lucille Ball and her husband, Desi Arnaz, signed a new $8,000,000 contract Wednesday with Philip Morris and Company and CBS television for 2½ more years of "I Love Lucy," CBS announced here. MOST-ROBBED BANK

DETROIT (CP)—The downtown branch of the Michigan bank has the dubious distinction of being Detroit's most robbed bank after an armed bandit escaped with $1,000. It was the fourth time in as many years that clerks there have been confronted by an armed bandit. The latest robbery occurred Wednesday when a man pointed a gun at cashier Mrs. Donna Muscoe, 21, and grabbed the pile of bills she was counting. He warned her not to push the alarm.

Council to Deal With Standards Of British Press

LONDON (AP) — Plans for a voluntary national press council to maintain and improve ethical and professional standards of British newspapers and defend press freedoms were disclosed Wednesday night by the newspaper industry.

Under the plan, the group of 15 editorial and 10 management representatives would be empowered to deal with complaints from outsiders about the press — and from the press about outsiders — "in whatever manner may seem to it practical and appropriate."

Among the council's duties would be to "maintain the character of the British press in accordance with the highest professional and commercial standards" and preserve its "established freedom."

It would also have the job of keeping an eye on tendencies toward newspaper monopoly and developments likely to restrict the flow of news. It would promote technical research, training of newspaper men and "proper functional relations" among various section of the professions.

The plan was drawn up by an industry committee. The move followed several years of pressure—mainly by Labor party members both in and out of Parliament — for the creation of such a council, by law if necessary.

A royal commission on the press set up by the Labor government in 1949 recommended establishment of such a body but said the industry itself should take the action.

Salary Changes Apply Only To Maximum Rates

The increase in maximum salaries for staff members at the Belleville Collegiate approved by board members this week does not mean that the present salaries of teachers will be increased.

This was pointed out today by board members who felt the public may have misinterpreted the story appearing in yesterday's paper. The increase in maxima for the collegiate staff will have an effect next term only for the four or five teachers who already had reached their maximum.

This year collegiate staff members took a cut in their cost of living bonus. The bonus for teachers with married status was reduced from $300 to $225, and for teachers with single status from $200 to $150.

'ChildPsychology' Subject of Talk By Bishop Berry

St. Michael's High School Parent-Teacher Association was signally honored on Monday evening, in having His Lordship, Bishop Berry, of Peterborough, as guest speaker at their meeting.

Bishop Berry spoke on "Child Psychology," stressing the point that the child should always be encouraged. Training should be both consistent and persistent and a reasonable goal set up as everyone requires some sense of achievement in order to carry on. Brain alone is not sufficient—there must be will power and perseverance.

Very Reverend Dean Garvin introduced the speaker and a sincere vote of thanks was tendered by Reverend Father Simpson of Holy Rosary parish.

Delightful musical numbers were provided by the Grant family and Mr. H. Brown and his three sons and vocal solos by Miss C. Forhan, Mr. E. Brown and Mr. R. Burke, all of which were thoroughly enjoyed.

Mrs. W. Grant and Miss D. Grant acted as accompanists.

Dog Licences Now Available At City Hall

Dog licences for 1953 are now available at the city hall, according to dog catcher Charles Thorn who advises that tags should be procured by pet owners by March 15th. This is the date called for by the city by-law.

It is rather tough on the dogs but that same city by-law states that dogs must be tied or kept on a leash at all times. Any dog found running at large or without a tag can be picked up by the dog catcher at any time.

The dog population in the city is on the increase according to Mr. Thorn. Last year approximately 1350 tags were sold at the city hall, and the number this year is expected to reach 1400.

Foreman Must Have Quality Of Leadership Says Speaker

"It is easier for a man to learn a new method than it would be for him to change his attitude toward his subordinates, equals and superiors. A foreman needs more than knowledge of his company's methods of work or service, he must have the quality of leadership." Speaking at the Charter Meeting of the Quinte District Foremen's Club, Eugene E. Sparrow, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board, stressed the quality of leadership last night in the Y.M.C.A.

"There was a time," Mr. Sparrow continued, "when the foreman was picked from the ranks of the workingman. It was thought he should know company methods, but this was 10 to 15 years ago and an evolution has since taken place. I would far rather take a prospective foreman from a rubber plant and place him in a paint factory. He could shortly learn the methods, but if he did not have the quality of gaining men's confidence, he could never learn that."

In an attempt to show relationship of psychology, economy and philosophy to leadership, the speaker said, "We are all psychologists, we are all selling something. The salesman must sell his product and overcome sales resistance of the customer. In industrial psychology, you must sell ideas to subordinates, equals —and on the odd occasion to top brass. Believe me," he said, "It is far more difficult to sell ideas than it is to sell products or merchandise."

Showing comparability of selling products and ideas, Mr. Sparrow continued, "In both cases of salesmanship, selling the product or the idea, a salesman will sell as soon as he has gained the confidence of the prospect. I suggest this is what you must do as junior management.

Briefly outlining economy, he summed it up in his description, "If you plan to get more, you will have to produce more. For the better part of this century we have been evolving through a machine age. However, the machine age is slowing down. Even, now, you know, there are some machines which may not be improved upon and so, jumping ahead 25 years from now, you will see us enter the mental age. Then you will produce more and get more because of what's up here," the speaker said, significantly tapping his head.

Before leaving the subject of economy, Mr. Sparrow said, "leadership is the quality necessary to prevent this country from changing drastically from a democracy."

"Philosophy boils down to knowing how much responsibility each of us may carry, or better, knowing our limitations. The business men who end up in hospitals with heart conditions or successful ulcers, are there because they failed to grasp the methods of philosophy. They had grasped methods of business, but had forgotten how to relax, how to enjoy themselves when they left the office in the evening."

"How does all this effect the foremen's club? Gentlemen," Mr. Sparrow smiled, "there won't be a single thing done in this club which shall not embody those three things, psychology, economy and philosophy. I feel there is a terrific potential in foremen getting together with each other. Remember, good foremanship is good citizenship and it is leadership this country needs. In conclusion I would like to say, there is no one in a position to utilize the increasing skills for the betterment of Canada, than you foremen."

The speaker was introduced by Lloyd Skeaff and the thanks were offered by F. A. O'Neil.

John Withers Presents Delightful Organ Recital

The Lenten season was most appropriately ushered in last evening at Christ Church when Mr. John Withers, church organist, formerly organist at Norwich Cathedral, Norwich, England, presented to an enthralled audience one of the finest organ recitals this city has been privileged to hear in some time.

The program consisted of the Gothic Suite by Boelmann, in four movement: introduction, the cheerful and stately minuet; the softly beseeching tones of the "Prayer to Our Lady" and the "Toccata," with its free and brilliant style.

Exquisite Blending

The second feature was Ave Maria, by Bach-Gounod, especially arranged for trumpets and organ, an exquisite blending of tonal qualities backed by the deep notes of the organ.

"Andantino in D Flat" by Lemare and "Romance Sans Paroles" by Bonnet, were both rendered with feeling, and precision of touch. The latter containing the theme of "Some Golden Daybreak."

The songs arranged for male voices, without organ accompaniment, included "Dear Land of Home," by Sibelius, from the tone-poem, "Finlandia" and "Deep River," a Negro spiritual, arranged by H. T. Burleigh, both of which were nicely colored and pleasingly rendered.

In the well known favorite, Schumann's "Traumerei," Mr. Withers' interpretation and shadings resembled the deft touch of one not only familiar with his subject, but one who loved it, the soft cadences of which carried the audience from depth to depth of feeling.

Gay and Merry

The "Allegro from the 13th. Concerto in F by Handel, was well described in its gay and merry movement, in which the plaintiff song of the nightingale, and the calls of the cuckoo brought pictures of leafy woodlands — a lovely piece of tonal coloring.

Again in the last selection, "The Lost Chord," in which the silver voices of the trumpets and the deep, rich notes of the organ mingled in delightful emotional appeal carried the listeners away from the mundane things of a troubled world to realms where harps abound, and music fills the air.

Sincere appreciation is tendered to Mr. Withers for his splendid recital, which was neither too heavy nor too light for a mixed audience, but which portrayed the deep beauty of pictures in sound, one which will remain a "thing of beauty" for days to come.

Others participating in the recital included, James Elliott, Frank Howard and Stanley Wiggins, trumpeters, and members of Christ Church choir.

Preceding the recital a brief impressive Lenten service was held under the direction of Canon J. B. Creeggan, rector of the church.

Trophies for Top Collegiate Cadet Corps, Band Presented By Brigadier M.S. Dunn

Trophies won for having the top collegiate cadet corps and the top collegiate band in Eastern Ontario, as judged at cadet inspections last year, were presented to the Belleville Collegiate on Wednesday afternoon.

Brigadier M. S. Dunn, O.B.E., E.D., as area commander for Military District No. 3, officially presented the two trophies. Cadet Col. John Hinchey accepted the Col. G. R. Johnston Trophy on behalf of the collegiate cadet corps, while Cadet Lieut. John Doig accepted the J. G. Wiser trophy, presented to the top collegiate band in the area.

It was the first time that Belleville Collegiate had won either of the awards.

Congratulated on Victory

Congratulating the local collegiate on its twin victory of last year, Brigadier Dunn said that trophies were not won without a great deal of co-operation and effort, not only on the part of corps members, but also on the part of teachers and officials in the school.

"With your cadet corps dating back to 1912 your school must have quite a tradition to live up to," he said, "but to win two trophies in one year your efforts must have been outstanding. All the more so because you were up against many big schools."

Included in the area are schools at Peterborough, Kingston, Cornwall and the LaSalle Collegiate at Ottawa. Nine collegiates competed in the Eastern Ontario zone.

Brigadier Dunn went on to point out how, in the present industrial age, the schools were becoming of added importance to the pattern of everyday life.

Used to Fill Gaps

More and more the schools were being used to fill gaps in leisure life. Among school activities cadet work was very important. It complemented the work of the home, the church and the school. Through cadet work an opportunity was given to develop qualities of leadership.

Cadet work also taught discipline, co-operation and team play, all of which meant much in civilian life.

The speaker also referred to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment as the parent organization of the B.C.I. cadet corps. This regiment had a great tradition and was ready and willing to assist in every way possible.

Band is Praised

The honor won by the local collegiate band was possibly greater than that of the cadet corps as it had competed against bigger schools. "Every credit was due to the band members and their bandmaster," he said.

Cadet Col. Hinchey in accepting the handsome trophy, said the credit for the collegiate corps winning was due to many people. Included were the school principal, G. E. Currie; Lieut. Angus Duffy, of the Hasty Pees, as the corps training officer and staff instructors. Special thanks were due the corps members. "Only their efforts made the win possible," he said.

Certificates Presented

Col. Widdifield said he was proud of the boys' achievements last year and urged them not to rest on their laurels. He assured that anything the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment could do to assist it would be only too glad to do so.

All male students of the collegiate were present in the auditorium for the presentation ceremony. Cadet Major William Campbell acted as chairman and introduced special guests on the platform. William Baldwin represented the high school area board while the public school board was represented by its chairman Fred Symons.

The school cadet band was on hand to play during the presentation. Collegiate Principal G. E. Currie introduced Brigadier Dunn to members of the school cadet corps.

Canadian 'March of Dimes' To Canvass Industry for Polio

Within the next few weeks, "The Canadian March of Dimes" plans to conduct a canvass of industry throughout the Province in an effort to raise funds to fight the expected high incidence of poliomyelitis this year.

Sponsored by the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis, Ontario Chapter, the campaign hopes to raise the sum of $200,000 for various purposes in the fight against the dread disease.

For treatment, which includes hospitalization, the provision of appliances, follow-up clinics and hospital equipment the bulk of the sum, $115,000 will be used. Rehabilitation will claim $15,000, transportation of patients to and from treatment centres is expected to account for $12,000. The balance of the funds raised will go to cover campaign costs, surveys, fellowships and other necessary purposes related to the foundation.

Of the $24,967.85 raised through the March of Dimes by the Ontario Chapter in 1952 more than $7,000 was spent for hospitalization necessary for surgical correction of deformities caused by polio. Surgeons on staff at the polio treatment centres where this work was being done, donated their services not only for this surgery and the necessary hospital supervision, but in the provision of outdoor clinics for all important follow-up care for those victims of the disease who are unable to afford private care.

A special grant to provide services of a physiotherapist at the Toronto Association for Occupational Therapy Curative Work Shop amounted to $2,300.

It should be noted that many times this amount could have been spent in this field, had it been available, at no increase in administrative cost. The chapter borrowed $15,500 from the National Headquarters so that at least the most urgent cases could be cared for.

This is the dollars and cents story—but it does not begin to tell you the human story of release from physical suffering in surgical correction of an old deformity; of relief from financial worry over treatment costs; and most important, of the truly wonderful prospect of independent living once more in spite of a severe handicap. Donors to the March of Dimes have made a wonderful contribution too.

IN MEMORIAM

WELCH. — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Alice Welch, who passed away February 19th, 1951.

Two years have passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
Within our hearts she liveth still.

—Sadly missed by grandchildren, daughter Helen and son-in-law Harold F19

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank my many friends, neighbors and relatives for cards, cigarettes, calls and inquiries made while in Belleville General Hospital and at home. Special thanks to Dr. Kennedy, Mrs. L. Rothwell, Miss M. Lorimer, my special nurses, and to all hospital staff; to my truck drivers Floyd Hannah and Gene Morris who so capably handled the business, and to my brother Don for driving third truck. To each and every one who in one way or another helped, I wish to say "Thank you very much."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Heavy speculative trading today reached its second highest point in the exchange's history.

Volume for the first hour totalled 2,422,000 shares—second only to the record day of Jan. 28. Most of the active stocks showed penny gains.

The market generally weakened although base metals held firm with a gain of almost a point on the exchange index. Golds and western oils showed minor losses while industrials were mixed.

Heaviest trader of the first hour was New Marlon which moved almost 200,000 shares to gain two cents.

Activity centred on uranium and New Brunswick base metal issues but a number of previously-dormant "penny" issues started to move in sympathy or in response to rumors. Inspiration, a previous heavy gainer on reports of rare-metal finds near North Bay, added another 10 cents.

Industrials mixed as manufacturing companies and banks gained and constructions and miscellaneous issues weakened.

CROSSING TOLL NOW SIX

OAKVILLE (CP) — Keld Baer Holm, 24, of Cooksville died Wednesday in the wreckage of his truck, the sixth victim within four months of accidents at a main-line level-crossing east of here. Graham Marshall, 21, of Lakeview, a passenger in the truck, was reported in critical condition with head injuries. The crossing, on a Canadian National Railways main line, is used by both the CNR and the Canadian Pacific Railway. The truck was hit by a westbound CPR passenger train.

Series of Crashes In Area Caused By Slippery Roads

Slippery highway conditions caused by last night's snowfall were responsible in series of motor accidents in the city and district during the night. One of the accidents resulted in a fatality while the others were but minor mishaps.

William E. Dermott, Carrying Place, was fatally injured when the car in which he was riding went out of control on the Rednersville road and overturned. His daughter, Mrs. Lola Rion, driver of the car suffered shoulder injuries and shock.

On the Trenton-Belleville highway three cars were reported in the ditch between nine o'clock and midnight. No one was injured.

In the city police reported two minor mishaps, again caused by slippery road conditions.

But for every skid that resulted in a mishap there were a dozen that were close and vehicles slid and spun on the glassy streets. The public works department were out with sanding equipment and eased the situation on the hills, and at many of the intersections.

During the night Dan Benn, 176 Burnham Street, was southbound on Burnham, when his car skidded through a stop sign into the path of an eastbound transport owned by Inter-City Forwarders of Toronto. The Benn auto was pushed to the curb where it knocked over a highway sign. Damage to the car was about $200.

Today, James Acera, Grove St. was driving on Station St., when his car went over the curb and bumped into a tree. The left front fender, spring and bumper of the car were damaged.

PRODUCE MARKET

The egg market was unsteady and sales were too few to establish a trend. Nominal quotations for graded eggs in fibre cases were: A large 50; A medium 48; A small 46; grade B 40; grade C 37. Wholesale to retail: A large 55; A medium 53; A small 51; grade B 45; grade C 42.

Butter solids: first grade 62 1-4 to 62 1-2; no prices established on other grades.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of two per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 97 15-16 cents. Pound sterling $2.76 5-16, against $2.76½.

person earning $3,000 a year pays $391 in income tax, providing he has no dependents or other exemptions

A married couple with two children under 16, earning $4,000 a year, pays $313 in income tax.

The tax includes a two-per-cent levy inaugurated in 1952 to pay the cost of $40 a month pensions to all Canadians 70 and over regardless of means. A similar levy is applied on corporations and on manufacturers' sales.

Graduated Scale

The rate of income tax increases gradually to a total of slightly more than 90 per cent. For instance, a person with $400,000 taxable income pays $313,776 in tax. He pays 91 per cent on any amount exceeding $400,000.

Corporations pay 20 per cent tax on their first $10,000 profits and 50 per cent on anything in excess of $10,000.

Besides the direct taxes, there is a series of indirect taxes applied at varying rates on imports and on luxury and semi-luxury goods.

The excise tax on cigarets amounts to eight cents on a package of 20, which retails for 39 cents. A 15-per-cent tax is collected on soft drinks.

While the excise tax on cigarets amounts to eight cents, the total federal tax on a pack of 20 is 22 cents.

The 10-per-cent sales tax applies at the manufacturers level to a wide variety of products excepting food.

But the key figure is still the prospector, amateur or professional, in a windbreaker, mackinaw pants and high-topped boots, carrying an ax, a few stakes, a pencil and perhaps a geiger counter. His slogan is "Stake first, investigate later."

The rush has its lighter side. One veteran prospector found on arriving home in suburban West Ferris township that his own property was being staked by someone else.

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Oliver Roweth, a carnival sideshow operator, shot himself to death Wednesday with a gun and a blank cartridge. Medical examiner Steve Tucker said Roweth, 62, placed the muzzle of a .45 loaded with six blank shells, in his mouth and fired. Tucker said Roweth died of bleeding when his cheeks were blown away—or of concussion or shock.

TRAILERS ON RAILS

The Times of London reports that British Railways will have more than 100 "camping coaches" in service this summer. From its description and from the picture it prints, here is perhaps an idea, remarks the Hamilton Spectator, which could be taken up by the Canadian railway companies.

The "camping coach" is simply an old wooden railway car fixed up as a sort of rail-borne house-trailer. Like most trailers nowadays, it is stationary. It is no flossy private car, affixed ostentatiously to the tail end of a limited, but a more or less permanently sited summer cottage which is parked for the season at some beauty spot but which can, if the fluctuating tastes of holiday-makers require, be shifted elsewhere.

The cars, says The Times, have been "trimly and imaginatively converted"—although the picture suggests that the furnishings have a touch of the usual summer-camp austerity.

Each contains beds for eight persons, in four-berth and two-berth compartments, a living room and a kitchen. It comes equipped with crockery, cutlery and linen. Cooking, heating and lighting are by coal oil "which may be bought from the stationmaster."

The rental rate is from £7 to £10 (roughly $20 to $28) a week for the whole car, which works out at only about $3 a person a week for a party of eight. The only condition is that the party must buy at least six adult round-trip tickets from its home station to the car's position.

The idea might have to be modified a little to fit Canadian conditions. There would need to be provision, for instance, for obtaining ice as well as fuel, and many of the most scenic sidings in this country are not within easy reach of a station agent to handle the supplies. But there is something appealing in the idea of a summer-cottage-on-rails parked beside the Miramichi, or by the shore of one of the lakes, or on one of the more spectacular spurs high in the Rockies.

FLOOD OF REFUGEES AT AN END

Steps taken this week by the East German Communists to isolate East Berlin completely within the Soviet zone will bring to a halt one of the most remarkable peacetime migrations of refugees Europe has ever seen. East Germans were fleeing the Red territory at the rate of more than 1,000 a day when the isolation decrees went into effect.

Until this week it was a simple matter for a refugee from Communist rule to cross over from East into West Berlin. Now travel permits control the movements of all German citizens in the Red zone, subway trains and buses are searched and the borders are closely guarded.

Previously all a refugee had to do was board a subway train, a street car or bus and get off at a station in West Berlin. Or it was possible to simply walk from the Communist East to the free West along many streets. Now all that is changed. Many will continue to flee the Red tyranny, of course, but the great flood of refugees appears to be at an end.

It cannot be said that West Berliners will be sorry to see the Red isolation orders taking effect. Reports indicate that there has been little enthusiasm for their compatriots seeking refuge. They know that not all of them are genuine. Some have been sent into West Berlin to do Moscow's work. All, however, are compelled to register and efforts are made to screen them but this is obviously a difficult task.

In West Berlin many recognize former fellow citizens among the new refugees who had earlier helped the Communists and betrayed their own countrymen. Now in disfavor for one reason or another they are in flight from the Reds. West Berliners are particularly bitter when they see that preferred treatment is given by Western officials to prominent Communists and fellow travellers who have been fleeing for their lives in recent weeks. Where the average refugee has to wait for weeks to be flown out of Berlin into West Germany, the important Red refugees get out at once and are given special attention.

Of course Western officials give special care to the prominent Reds in flight because of the information that may be gained from them but it is understandable that West Berliners resent the special treatment they get. There is also a good economic reason for the refugees being unpopular. Even without the refugee population which has risen to more than 100,000 still in West Berlin that zone has had a quarter of a million unemployed.

The great flight to freedom from Red Germany is a black eye for Communism but it is not one in which the West Berliners have joined in with great rejoicing.

"We have committed the golden rule to memory; let us now commit it to life."—Edwin Markham.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

IN THE CHILDREN'S PRESENCE

I never look them over, never see their little faces
In the school rooms at their studies, or the many sunny places
But behind them in the distance there are shadows that I see
Of the grown-up men and women that some day they're going to be.

When I'm in the children's presence, back of every happy smile,
There's a subtle hint of splendor for the coming after while,
And I think the little fellow bending now o'er book or slate
May be one that some tomorrow shall be ruler of the state.

Here they are, the men and women, of the future! Who can read
What great man now sits among they who shall serve his country's need?
Here perhaps in frock of gingham with her hair in ringlets curled
Is the heroine of tomorrow who may rise to bless the world.

In some way we all are teachers, as the children come and go,
And perhaps we should be wiser If the future we could know,
We might hold to them more closely if we had the power to see
The glorious men and women that some day they're going to be.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TIMING THE ATOM BOMB

If I were Stalin and had any intention of dropping an atom bomb on any American city, I would make it a point to do so before 9.00 o'clock tomorrow morning. I should be very careful to make that the absolute time limit, because tomorrow from 9.00 o'clock on in 15,000 communities in the United States and in 105 countries around the world, Christians will be uniting in the World Day of Prayer.

Whether Stalin knows it or not, these millions of praying people are the most dangerous enemies he has. Viewed from his standpoint, he would be amply justified in exterminating them without mercy. For they will do more to crumble his empire, impede his enterprises, wipe out his cruelty, and break down the wicked systems of atheism and tyranny he has erected than will all the armies of the world combined. What are the growing forces of NATO compared with the power of consecrated, praying Christians?

Because he is ignorant, as truly evil persons always are, this little puppet who dances, jerks, and marches as Satan works the strings, believes that the most fearful thing in the world is American armament and American industrial potential. These are great indeed and should become greater, but if Stalin only knew it, the thing he should fear most is the spirituality of sincere men and women the world over. Pray-ers are dangerous.

Your Time Is Up, Ma'am

(London Free Press)

Up in progressive Mornington telephone chatter over the Mornington Township Municipal Telephone System is to be abbreviated. From now on, the blow-by-blow and hour-by-hour exchange of gossip is out. Chancing the ire of housewives on the system the majority of subscribers have put a five-minute limit on all calls. People going over the limit will be cut off by the operator. We are not surprised that debate over the issue was "heated." We recall rural party lines where discussions, interruptions and subsequent commentary were always heated.

We shall follow the course of the Mornington Telephone experiment with absorbing interest, for it goes to the root of rural life. If the restriction can be maintained it will have instituted a change of the first magnitude in the country life of Southern Ontario.

Handy To Have Around

(Windsor Star)

When Washington press corps members facetiously perhaps, asked C.I.O. President Walter P. Reuther how he would run U.S. affairs, the red-topped labor leader replied he would name 13 plumbers and one millionaire to his cabinet if he were president.

Since President Eisenhower's cabinet reportedly is made up of 13 millionaires and one plumber —the secretary of labor—the Reuther comeback was in keeping with the spirit of the question.

On the other hand, both parties to the conversation may have recalled that a plumber isn't a bad sort to have around where leaks or plugged supply lines might endanger the general welfare.

A Matter Of Training

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

There is a school in New York for the training of dogs; not to do tricks at home or in a circus, but just to be well-behaved and obedient. They are taught to come when called; not to jump up on chairs and lie down, and, in short, how to conduct themselves like well-mannered ladies and gentlemen of the dog world. The people who run this school say breeding isn't very important in regard to dog behaviours; that the important thing is how well an owner trains his dog.

What goes on in the doggy sphere, also we think, applies to children. There are children who are spoiled, impudent, ill-behaved brats, even in the best of families, while others, who may have been born into and raised in a working man's home conduct themselves in such a way as to win the respect and the admiration of neighbors. The difference between boy of girl who does not cause his or her parents any anxiety and is esteemed by others, and the boy or girl who may become a delinquent, chiefly depends on the kind of parents they have.

Flies In The Vodka

(Detroit Free Press)

We are startled at the shock and horror registered by the Russians at the discovery that they have been harboring American-trained spies in their midst.

Outraged by it all, Pravda, the Soviet mouthpiece, announces arrest of the four spies, one of whom has been filching Kremlin secrets since 1939. (Pravda fails to explain why it took the vaunted O.G.P.U. 14 years to catch him.)

Everyone will agree, of course, that the spied-upon Russians are entitled to their righteous indignation. They wouldn't think of doing such a thing to us.

Tossing Lions To People

(Windsor Star)

The well-worn metaphor about throwing people to the lions may have to be revised. There is evidence that harshness nowadays is expressed by throwing lions to the people.

Indications of this reversal were apparent the other day, when two lions escaped from a show in Tennessee. After prowling the streets briefly, they were glad to return to their cages.

Most of the gentleness was shown by the lions. Traffic roared and swirled in front of them, in a display more frightening than their native jungles. A police inspector reached for his gun and there would have been shooting if it did not develop he left the weapon at home.

The lions retreated from screaming or scared persons. But one paused to let an unexciteable woman pat his head.

These of course, were selected lions, and gentler than most. But the kind of people who used to be thrown to the lions usually were selected Christians or hand-picked gladiators, not Clyde Beattys or armed men of the law. Hungry lions originally got a bad name after being tempted with a ready-made dinner.

If you meet a lion on the street it might be better to give him the right of way. But it could be he'd rather be in more congenial surroundings himself, if he had a choice.

Somewhat Revised

(Time Magazine)

For some U.S. schoolboys, making history is often a good deal easier than mastering it. Last week, as a case in point, the English Record, a quarterly put out by the New York State English Council, happily published the following high school composition.

"On a beautiful evening in August 1582, Queen Elizabeth entered the ancient town of Coventry, and divesting herself of her clothing, mounted a snow-white stallion and rode through principal streets of the city. On her way she met Sir Walter Raleigh, who, observing her naked condition, threw his cloak about her, crying, "Honi soit qui mal y pense!", which, being translated, means: "Thy need is greater than mine!" The Queen graciously responded, 'Dieu et mon droit!", which translated means, "My God, you are right!" This incident is called the Magna Charta."

Will Wolves Attack Men?

Sudbury Star

Will a pack of wolves attack a man when he is travelling alone on foot?

Browsing through the files of the Sudbury Star of Jan. 8, 1914, we found a news story reported from Port Arthur, which told in graphic terms of the death of a trapper killed by wolves after he had slain nine of the pack with his hunting knife.

The story said that Peter Nigosh, Indian trapper, in the Lake of Woods country, was following his trap lines on Sunday, Jan. 4, a few miles from War Road, on the Canadian Northern Railway, when he encountered the wolves.

Early Tuesday, his family became alarmed when he did not return and set out in search of him. They found the skeleton of the trapper stripped clean of flesh and the remains of nine wolves, partially devoured, lying around him. They had apparently all been killed by the trapper's hunting knife.

Will wolves attack man? Perhaps the advance of civilization and modern weapons have combined to make wolves more timid.

Competent Burglar

(Vancouver Sun)

And so we say a long farewell to one of the best burglars Vancouver ever had.

Roland Desrochers managed to steal more than $40,000 worth of valuables in series of 80 housebreakings since he arrived here to take up permanent residence two years ago.

The climate was good and the pickings were easy for a man of his talents. He was strong and agile and he was clever in his way. But now he is on his way to the penitentiary under a 10-year sentence.

Desrochers made one big mistake. Like all successful criminals, he became arrogant and careless.

The police towed his car away for illegal parking. And in the glove compartment of the impounded vehicle was a gun which aroused suspicion at headquarters. Was it registered? No. The whole sorry tale unfolded from there.

In his cell on the banks of the Fraser this malefactor will spend countless hours ruminating on his crimes. He will learn his lesson. Over-parking in Vancouver doesn't pay.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HAPPINESS A HABIT

There is nothing sensational, but an abundance of truth, in the statement that happiness is largely a habit that should be early formed. Children who are happy in their youth usually are happy in after life, even in the face of many a difficulty or sorrow. There is a sustaining power underneath happiness.

Any one of us can review his life and come to the conclusion that there has been far more happiness than unhappiness. We have learned that we gain more friends by presenting to them a happy front, and we have also learned that we love, learn, and work best when we are happy. We even try to avoid unhappy people, unless that unhappiness may be something that we can help to dispel.

There is no more purposeful or health-giving habit than this of happiness. Stevenson once said that "a happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five-pound note. He or she is a radiating focus of goodwill; and their entrance into a room is as though another candle had been lighted."

No one should ever leave home for the work of the day in an unhappy mood. No matter what he or she does, the work of that one will be affected to a harmful degree. An organization filled with happy workers is always an efficient [illegible] We work for ourselves in an organization quite as much as we work for the one who pays us for our services.

Only a very few have come to realize the tremendous power of mind over matter. If a person, going to his work for the day, should meet but two or three persons who would remark that he looked ill it would trouble him so much that he might actually believe he was ill! The mind is that powerful. It works the other way, too. We may be heavy in heart, but if we radiate cheer and hope, people will remark about it, and the weight of trouble or anxiety will disappear as though it had never been.

Once the happiness habit is firmly achieved, life takes upon itself a new and remarkable significance. We see the best of things in life, and are proud and happy that we live.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

OLD DAN DRUFF

Please inform me asks a correspondent, whether there is any real, honest-to-goodness cure for old dan druff. My hair is oily, which causes Dan to form in a sort of paste with large flakes clinging to the hair. I don't care how smelly the prescription or how much trouble to apply. I'm desperate. I've already tried kerosene and mange cure, so called. I shall appreciate your advice. (Helen C. C.)

Dandruff is practically impossible to cure, though generally it may be relieved, while the victim persists in the unhygienic custom of wearing headgear that excludes sunlight and air from the scalp. And very few of us can muster the moral courage to discard hats from our wardrobes.

The evidence seems to show that the disease condition which physicians call seborrhea (increased oily secretion) of the scalp is of bacterial origin. When the oily secretion is thick and scaly, it is called seborrhea sicca or dandruff. Lassar, a noted European skin specialist, found that dandruff scales from the human head could be mixed with vaseline and rubbed into the back of a rabbit and the rabbit would develop seborrhea sicca. There is every reason to believe that dandruff is communicated from one person to another by the barber, the hair dresser, the common hairbrush (which still prevails even in some modern hotels), and by the hat bands in hat stores where customers try on numerous offerings before selecting one. I feel that the barber is the chief offender, for not one of the better class of barbers among a hundred approaches asepsis or what surgeons or physicians understand as cleanliness in his handling of implements and customers.

It does not follow that because seborrhea sicca is of bacterial origin any alleged fermicide or microbe killer will do any good. In fact no such remedy seems to be worth a hoot, in practice.

If a certain disagreeable odor and greasiness are not insuperable objections the following formula, massaged into about one-fourth of the scalp each night for six nights, a shampoo the seventh night, and then repeat, for six weeks, will come as nearly curing dandruff as is humanly possible:

Salicylic acid .... 20 grains
Precipitated sulphur .... 1 dram
Petrolatum .... 1 ounce

(Properly made, this is impalpable, no particle can be felt in it. A very little suffices to apply with the finger tips, the hair being parted here and there to expose the scalp.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Worms

I wish you would give a little talk on worms, just what the symptoms are and what to do and why...I'm sure my little girl has them, she is so pale... (Mrs. A. L. F).)

Answer—There are no symptoms. Paleness certainly does not warrant the suspicion. Give your little girl a 50-50 chance, if her health seems impaired. Take her to your physician.

Two Leaks and a Plunge

The doctor says I have two leaks in my heart. Please tell me if it is dangerous for me to go in swimming. (M. W.)

Answer—In a general way it is safe enough to go in swimming if you are able to take exercise. You are a young woman I think. For your welfare it would be well to bear in mind that if there is any impairment of the heart function only your own doctor, who examines you regularly, is in a position to advise whether rest, mild exercise or active exercise will benefit it, for the heart may call for absolute rest this month and some exercise next month, according to its condition, which undergoes change.

Common Sense

Don't use ointments, cream or oils on a young skin. Use plain toilet soap and use it often. Don't use soap on an old skin. Use oil to cleanse the skin.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We often speak of one car being faster than others. This engine has so much more power than that. The truth is that no car is fast. Without a driver, they are all motionless. It is one driver who is faster than another. It is not cars that are fast, but drivers.

Many a man who owns a $5,000 car that is capable of 100 miles an hour without discomfort never drives over sixty, and his habitual pace is around 45 miles an hour. But many a man who owns some old rattletrap of a car that was not intended to go more than sixty when it was brand new, habitually shoves it to seventy and more miles an hour when on the highways, and in city and town is always about ten miles over the local speed limit.

It is astonishing the amount of evasion we are all guilty of in thinking about this question of speed. Whenever anyone declares that speed is the basic, the fundamental factor in traffic safety, one of us is sure to come up with astonishing factual cases in which two cars, going at fifteen miles an hour, collided, and both drivers were killed. Or we will take the stand that not speed but slowness causes a majority of traffic accidents, because of the amount of cutting in and out that is necessitated by the slow drivers on the highways. It sometimes appears that the majority of us are determined at all costs to excuse fast driving.

An inexperienced woman driver who is also nervous and excitable doubtless has less actual control of her car while driving it at thirty-five miles an hour than has an expert and experienced male driver, who has driven millions of miles, and who is driving at eighty miles an hour. This seems to be, on the face of it, a reasonable enough statement. But it just isn't so. There is a speed past which the combination of skill plus mechanics no longer can be reckoned in mathematics or any other logical process of thought. And no driver is expert who does not know this. It is speed above all that kills.

No Further Questions

(Maclean's)

The presiding judge in Vancouver's Naturalization Court asked a Chinese woman if she knew about the responsibilities and obligations of a Canadian citizen.

The woman hesitated then replied hopefully: "Well, I've just paid thirteen thousand dollars in income tax."

The judge asked no further questions.

So Lowly Fallen

(Winnipeg Free Press)

Every newspaper man will appreciate the feelings of the editor of the London Spectator. Turning over the files of 20 years ago he came upon this letter:

"Sir:

Low, indeed, has The Spectator fallen."

"All the poor thing had done," the editor explains, "was to start publishing crossword puzzles."

Centenary-Aikens H-S Display Fine Exhibits at Hobby Fair

After a brief business session conducted by Mr. Bruce Christie, during which plans were made to sponsor in March, a Downham nursery lecture with slides on "Beautifying Canada", the Centenary—Aiken Home and School Association's annual hobby fair was held.

Mr. Bill Slavin was chairman for a program of Dutch music and songs provided by Mr. and Mrs. Harm Slot and family, Mrs. De Jong and Mrs. Tulsma.

Mr. Fleet of Fleet's Sporting Goods, the guest speaker, told of the ancient sport of archery and showed bows and arrows that are used for flight target and deer.

He introduced Miss Barbara Malcolm who gave an account of her work in becoming flight champion of Canada, having won her honors at the C.N.E. in 1951 and 1952.

Mr. Fleet stressed that his great wish was to help make young Canadians better Canadians by developing eyesight and strength by use of bows and arrows. Mr. Fleet and Miss Malcolm gave an interesting demonstration of their skill as archers.

Numerous Exhibits

The exhibits of the hobby fair were numerous and of good variety. A photograph of "Rosswood Rocket Tone" with the ribbons he won in Canada's wide competition; snapshots of purebred cows and poultry; a pen of rabbits; collection of stamps, buttons handkerchiefs, coins; scrapbooks; guns; woodworking; lamps; leatherwork; house plants, including cacti and African violets.

There were two quilts recently quilted by Centenary W. A. and one that had been quilted by a great great grandmother. There was an old hand-made wooden shovel and a copy of "Daily Ontario" printed in 1882; a collection of pictures taken of big fish caught by the Aikens family.

Grimm's Fairy Tales

Mrs. Vogelar displayed a wall tapestry depicting Grimm's Fairy Tales along with other beautiful work that has been brought to this country by the neighbors from Holland and Germany, who live here.

There were also tea cosies dressed up as ladies with hoopskirts and dolls dressed in old-style costumes up to the latest fashions; puppets and marionettes were shown here, too. It was also ascertained that there are members who do oil painting, water colors, crayon work, china painting, pictures of yarn and needlepoint, all beautifully done. There was a carved Buddhist priest and a heavy silver plate that had come from Egypt.

Fine Needlework

In the needlework sectino, knitting; a layette; fabric painting; crotchet; speed-a-weave; felt work; cut work and embroidery showed the effort of the ladies' nimble fingers. These exhibits made the hobby show a fine success.

Later in the evening, the conveners, Mr. and Mrs. B. Harder, Mr. and Mrs. G. Sills, Mr. and Mrs. P. Sutherland, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Slavin, served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Queen Elizabeth H-S Association Hear Talk On 'Traffic Safety'

The Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association meeting was held on Tuesday evening under the chairmanship of vice-president, F. Benson, who expressed regrets that president, Mrs. J. Godwin, was not sufficiently recovered from recent illness to chair the meeting.

Mr. Benson read a letter from the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations regarding plans for school for leaders at Lake Couchiching and requesting information on delegates planning to attend. This matter was laid over until the next meeting.

Guest Speaker

Sgt. Devereaux of the Ontario Provincial Police was then called upon to introduce the speaker of the evening, Mr. Garth Harding, who chose as his subject "Traffic Safety."

Mr. Harding dealt with this matter in a most efficient and entertaining manner and with the aid of a blackboard upon which he listed 12 of the main causes of traffic mishaps, showed where each of the causes could be either wiped out or considerably minimized by careful observance of the "care, courtesy and common sense" slogan.

To illustrate this, two films were shown, "Winter Blunderland" and "Practice Makes Perfect" (drivers).

Thanks to the speaker were expressed by Mr. J. L. McGregor. Piano accompanist for the evening was Mrs. D. A. Whillans. Refreshments were served.

Women's Activities

TRINITY LADIES' CLUB

Madoc — Mrs. E. P. Arbic was hostess to the members of the club for the February meeting. The president, Mrs. Harold Brintnell, opened the meeting.

A business period, including minutes, roll call and treasurer's report follow. Mrs. White told what was being done to the church kitchen. It was decided to go ahead with getting choir gowns for the junior choir., also that the club cater for a banquet for the Junior farmers.

Mrs. McCoy had charge of the remaining part of the program, which was opened by Mrs. Lane. Mrs. McCoy read the Scripture, Luke 2: 42-52, after which a lovely solo by Mrs. Hulin was enjoyed. Mrs. McCoy called on Miss Raney, a teacher of Madoc high school, to speak. Miss Raney gave an interesting outline of Vocational Guidance as it is dealt with in high school. It endeavors to help the pupil choose the career to which he is most suited and from which he will get the most enjoyment.

A number of books showing how to plan a career were passed around, also cards on hobbies which should be a part of everyone's timetable. She closed by saying: "It isn't what we do, but how we do it," that counts.

Mrs. P. Nayler thanked the hostess for the use of her home, and also Miss Raney for her enlightening talk.

The conveners served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Weddings

KILBANK—JAMES

A lovely wedding was solemnized on Saturday, February 14, at 2:30 p.m., in Leaside United Church, Toronto, by the Rev. C. Murray, pastor of the church, when Shirley Mae James, of Leaside, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. James, was united in marriage to Donald Roy Kilbank, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kilbank. The altar and chancel were beautifully adorned for the occasion with white carnations, white snapdragons ,white 'mums, and ferns.

Mr. D. Wallace, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Joan Earl, of Toronto, who sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "Through the Years".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white slipper satin and Chantilly lace, fashioned with fitted bodice having a sweetheart neckline and long, sheath-like sleeves ending in V-points over the wrists. The graceful floor-length skirt fell in shimmering folds. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a braided headdress of matching Chantilly lace accented with seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Helen Sueda, of Toronto, was matron of honor, gowned in a cocktail-length frock of iridescent blue taffeta. She wore a braided pink tulle headdress with tiny veil, and carried a hand bouquet of pink carnations. Pink accessories completed her ensemble.

Mr. Roy Taylor, of Belleville, was groomsman, while Mr. Jack Dorland, of Wooler, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mr. Ralph James, of Toronto, brother of the bride, acted as ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of cinnamon lace and taffeta, with matching accessories and corsage of pink tea roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in apricot crepe and lace with black accessories, and corsage of white gardenias.

For the wedding trip to eastern points, the bride chose a suit of navy blue flannel with navy and white accessories and white carnation corsage. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Kilbank will reside in Toronto.

Selling tickets at the door was charming Emily Jeffery. Hostess for the evening was Kay Donnovon, who graciously welcomed the guests.

The tables were beautiful in their white linen, gleaming silver, vases of flowers and red cupids and hearts scattered here and there.

Servers were, Mary Peoples, Michaeline Calbury, Sheila McQuaid, Georgette Goddard, Barbara Bird, Nellie Burke and Mary Van Dusen with Joyce McKenna pouring the coffee.

Program chairman for the evening was Brother Wes. Prindle, who introduced the guests and supplied the entertainment.

Bobby Burke, talented young tenor, who rendered "Here in My Heart", "I'm Yours", "Why Don't You Believe Me?" and the popular "Jambalaya" and received a big hand. Accompanying at the piano was Irene Reed.

Another popular young soprano, Shirley Anne Parker, sang, "It's the Loveliest Night of the Year", and the beautiful favorite "Deep Purple", with Irene at the piano.

Well known guest was Walt Taylor assisted by pianist, Don Grass, who rendered several numbers and received hearty applause.

Other entertainers were the Moose trio, Brothers George Bird, Bill Thompson and Cecil Lloyd, who sang many songs.

Chairman W. Prindle tendered thanks on behalf of himself and the W.O.T.M. to all who attended and introduced the convener of the supper, Peggy Mintz, who also expressed thanks to guests for attending and to the co-workers, who had made the supper such a success.

Visitors attended from Trenton, Port Hope, Peterborough, Lindsay and Rednersville as well as Belleville.

The lovely basket of groceries on which tickets were sold was won by Ina Rodgers, of Lindsay, with past governor Marian Mintz, of Peterborough, drawing the lucky ticket. Convener of this was Florence Carufel.

The lucky ticket on a pair of chickens was drawn by Reg. Adams of Peterborough, with the winner being Mrs. P. Way, of Belleville.

Replenishing plates were Gladys Ritch, Nellie Scrymgeour, Luella Downes and Peggy Mintz. Looking after the pie and ice-cream were Lena Connel and Lena Murray.

First Meeting

On Thursday evening the Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter 435, held their first meeting of the month in the Moose Hall with a large attendance.

Sr. Regt. Mary Peoples called the meeting to order and balloting on one candidate, Frances Colissio, sponsored by Peggy Mintx, with ballot favorable.

Various thank-you cards were read and members expressed thanks for the cards sent to them while ill. One member was reported ill in Trenton.

Banquet Proceeds

Peggy Mintz turned in proceeds from the banquet that she convened for the 34th Battery and thanked all co-workers who helped her make it a success. She also asked permission to have a blind bowling team at next meeting for banquet which was granted.

All co-workers were glad to hear that recorder Nellie Scrymgeour had received the star for the first quarter of the year.

Social Service chairman, Luella Downes, gave report on rummage sale. Some of the proceeds were used to buy groceries for a family and some given to Child Care Chairman Sheila McQuaid is to buy a coat for a boy with one of the committee, Mary Van Dusen, purchasing the coat, and the rest of the proceeds turned into the chapter.

A large basket of groceries was also collected by the social service committee for a family with each co-worker donating.

Many discussions on raising funds and activities in the near future were held.

Women's Activities

BETHEL W.A.

Rawdon—Mrs. Sam Elliott was hostess on Thursday for the February meeting of Bethel Women's Association. The rooms were nicely decorated with red Valentine hearts and potted bulbs.

The president, Mrs. John Mulheron opened the service.

The group decided to try a new money-making project for this year instead of the usual bazaar. The executive had met previously and suggested plans and these were adopted at the meeting.

The officers were installed in a special service of dedication.

Mrs. R. R. Bonsteel gave an interesting address on the theme "The Work of the Church in the World Beginning at Bethel." She gave a descriptive account of the plans to date for world unity of Christian churches.

Mrs. Thomas Laycock conducted the devotional based on the Bible lesson found in Hebrews.

Mrs. Earl McMullen and Mrs. Ray Shortt arranged the program and the former presided and conducted some games.

Three humorous readings were given by Mrs. Leslie Thompson, Mrs. Will Heath and Mrs. Walter Warren.

Interesting contests were conducted by Mrs. Francis Reid and Mrs. Don Heath.

The hostess served refreshments and was assisted by a few other ladies, and later a vote of thanks was tendered for hospitality and program.

The next meeting will be held on March 19 at the the home of Mrs. Thomas Laycock.

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

The February meeting of Cannifton W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. A. Holgate with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. J. Williams, who extended a welcome to the members and visitors and gave a few thoughts on "Faith".

Business followed. The World Day of Prayer will be held on Friday in the Sunday School rooms. Mrs. W. Brenton, Supply secretary, told the W.M.S., where the clothing bales go and how much they are appreciated. The Literature secretary showed some books which all were urged to read.

Mrs. D. Brenton was in charge of the program. The theme. "The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper as a Means of Grace" was given. Scripture readings were given by Mrs. H. Brenton and the meditation was by Mrs. D. Brenton.

Mrs. F. Putman gave an inspiring reading on "Peace".

The study book dealt with the Church of Christ in Angola. Evangelism is carried by the United Church missionaries and they have training projects and courses in theology in some of the schools in Angola.

Schools for ministers are crowded and they need more ministers for teachers. Ministers have to have some other way of making a living, such as farming or a trade. They have Sunday Schools; boys' and girls' groups similar to those here. There are many in Angola hungry for food and hungry for mental learning.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her helpers and a social half hour spent.

UNITED CHURCH E.A.

Deseronto — The February meeting of the Evening Association of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Russell Boyce, with 28 members and two visitors present.

The president, Mrs. H. Aylsworth presided, and opened the meeting. After a discussion on changing the time or order of the meeting, it was decided to continue the present procedure.

Thank-you letters were read from members.

Plans were completed for the pie social to be held on February 27th. when a play will be presented by the members.

The following program was greatly enjoyed: a reading by Mrs. E. Gibson, "If I Only Had Money"; vocal solo by Mrs. J. Webster, "Just a Wearying For You"; reading by Mrs. Claude Thompson, "Treasures"; piano duet by Mrs. W. Crothers and Mrs. L. E. Tunnicliffe, and a poem by Mrs. J. Dawson, entitled "Pa on Television."

An interesting feature of the evening was the presentation to Mrs. J. A. Dawson of a life membership certificate in the W.M.S. Mrs. P. VanVlack made the presentation on behalf of the Evening Association for which Mrs. Dawson graciously thanked the members.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How do you look today-

It was a very wise person who said, "The most glamorous thing you wear is your expression.'

Bride's sister distressed that no bridal showers have been planned

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister, my only sister, is to be married very soon. I am to be her maid of honor, and there will be four bridesmaids also in the bridal party. Mother and I are very disturbed about the fact that no one, not even the bridesmaids, has suggested giving the bride-to be a shower. We have always thought of my sister as a very popular girl, and we know too that she has always been generous about giving shower presents to her friends. Now there isn't much time left. Would it be at all permissible for me to give a shower in honor of my sister?—W.

It is not considered proper for the maid of honor, who is the sister of the bride-to-be, to give a shower for her sister. And in these circumstances—when it is so evident that neither the bridesmaids nor any other friends of your sister are to be thoughtful or generous enough to plan a shower for your sister—for you, a sister, to plan it would be unattractively pointing up this fact-of-omission. I don't think—do you? —that garnering a few shower presents for your sister would be worth this insistent gesture on your part.

Causes complications when devorcee uses ex-husband's full name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How does a woman sign her name after she is divorced and retains her ex-husband's name? Her husband has since remarried. Also, how should her mail be addressed?—"Mrs. James S—"

It is most unusual for a divorced woman to continue to use her husband's name, that is, both his first name and surname. And this form of name isn't practical for her to use, primarily because of the situation you mention. Naturally it would cause confusion to have two women using "his" name, the former wife and the present wife. However, if the divorced woman does continue to use her ex-husband's name, she would continue to sign her name just as she did before the divorce (her informal name is her signature, Mary Brownly Smith), and her letters would be addressed as before, to Mrs. James Smith.

Correctly a divorcee uses her maiden surname prefixed to her ex-husband's surname: Mrs. Brownly Smith. (Or if she wishes to indicate her first name, she uses an initial: Mrs. M. Brownly Smith.) Socially she should not use "Mrs. Mary Smith."

Never Take Anything for Granted

By Mary Moore

My name should be Thomas the Doubter, for this morning I received some letters that set me wondering how much cooks actually know about cooking meats.

Wondering if I was performing my part adequately went through the back copies of this allegedly efficient column to find not one mention of such favorite dishes as Swiss Steak or Meat Pie in many months.

Up and at 'em, Mary, I sez, and here I am. I bought round steak at 79 cents per pound (even at that the butcher acted as if he were doing me a favor) and had to order two pounds to get the 1 1-2-inch thick slice I wanted. This may be made with flank steak if you wish.

SUPER SWISS STEAK

To 1-3 cup unsifted flour add 1 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon pepper and pound this into both sides of your round or flank steak. Be sure all loose flour is picked up from board and pounded in. Sear the steak in heavy iron frying pan in 3 tablespoons melted drippings until browned on both sides. Then add 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 medium-sized onion sliced thin and 1 large stalk celery with leaves sliced fine. Cover. Cook over low direct heat for 2 1-2 hours or bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 2 1-2 hours or until tender. You may uncover during last half hour if you want the liquid to cook down to a thick rich sauce. I can't resist serving this with fluffy mashed potatoes. It's good too with a mixture of fluffy mashed potato and turnip. My sister-in-law always serves it with large boiled Spanish onions, in centre of each of which she puts a large chunk of butter. She doesn't serve potatoes but does serve plenty of her own homemade bread.

At this time many Canadians will be strictly observing Lent and I will be giving you meatless dishes.

DEEP MEAT PIE

(From leftover roast)

Make Biscuit Dough or Herb Biscuit Dough: Sift together 2 cups sifted flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. (If you want to make this different make Herb Biscuit dough by adding 1-4 teaspoon each dry mustard, sage and curry powder to this dry mixture.) Cut in with pastry blender 1-4 cup shortening, then quickly stir in about 3-4 cup cold milk—enough to make a soft dough. Knead lightly on sparsely floured board for 30 seconds, pat out to 1-2-inch thickness and cut out into 1 1-2-inch or 2-inch rounds. Make pie filling: Gently saute in 3 tablespoon butter or melted drippings 1-2 cup each finely chopped celery and onion, and if desired, 1-4 cup chopped green pepper. Combine this in a casserole with at least 2 cups (preferably 3) of cut-up roasted meat, adding equal amounts of diced cooked vegetables such as carrot, turnip, potato, peas—mixed. Pour over them at least 2 cups left over gravy—if you haven't enough left over gravy make it up to 2 cups with hot water, but add salt and pepper to keep it well seasoned. If desired you may add white sauce instead of hot water to the left over gravy. Now you thought I was going to tell you to put the biscuit on top, didn't you? Not yet. Put the prepared filling in casserole in oven of 425 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes to heat it through. Now take it out and place the cut biscuits on top. Return to oven quickly and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 20 or 25 minutes. Don't be timid—try the herb version of the biscuit topping. Men love it.

Moles, Warts and Other Vexations

Every age seems to have its own complexion worries. Acne belongs definitely to the young fry, appearing usually at the age of fourteen, when glandular changes are taking place in the body. Sebaceous glands are extra active, filming the skin surface with oil that causes atmospheric dust to cling and fill the pores. Blackheads may cause pustules to develop. If twice-a-day face scrubbing with soap and applications of a boric acid solution do not overcome this condition, mother should take little daughter to a doctor who specializes in diseases of the skin and scalp. An unsightly complexion makes a child unhappy and self-conscious. Everything possible must be done to correct it.

In middle age the sebaceous glands are less active; the skin becomes dry, is subject to wrinkles. It is also likely to develop "liver spots" — though the liver, it is likely, has nothing to do with them. These discolorations are due to pigment changes, much the same as freckles. Like freckles, they may be present only in the summer season.

Strong bleaching liquids should never be applied. When Grannie was a girl, much experimenting went on with acids and other chemicals, sometimes with dire results. We know better now.

Milia, or seed acne, doesn't belong in any special age bracket. The opening of the pore closes and the sebaceous exudations bank up in hard, beadlike masses. As there is no outlet, pressure avails nothing; one is likely to bruise the skin, even cause scars with the fingernails. The proper treatment is to sterilize a needle by holding it in a flame, and slit the raised point full length. Then press ever so gently with gauze-covered fingers, or pick out the deposit with the needle point. Touch the wound with alcohol or a boric acid solution. It is not wise to attempt this treatment until the white points are fully developed. To avoid new ones, use cold water freely to keep the blood streams moving and the sebaceous glands functioning normally.

Once upon a time moles were regarded as beauty spots. In the Victorian novel the hero kissed the little mole on his loved one's neck. Now our lovelies seek a skin specialist, have the horrid thing removed by means of electricity or the X-ray. The treatment causes practically no discomfort.

As a rule, moles are harmless. If clothing rubs them, causing an irritation, one should seek medical attention, as there is a remote possibility of a malignant condition developing.

Warts, also, are easily banish-

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She smokes; he doesn't; he's angry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married for eight months and my wife is expecting a baby in June. She is 18 and I am 22.

Before we were married, my wife promised me she would quit smoking, but she hasn't done so and I told her I would leave her. I love her and she loves me, but she broke her promise.

I don't smoke and I hate smoking. She has tried to quit, but can't seem to do so, and I think if she really loved me she would stop it.

Don't you think I have a right to leave her because of her broken promise to me?—J. B.

Dear J.B.:

Are you really serious? If you sincerely love your wife, as you say you do, I can't imagine your even think of leaving her for any such reason as this.

It would seem to me that instead of talking so glibly about leaving, you would try to find some compromise.

I admit that when one person hates the smell of smoking, and lives with someone who is a constant smoker, it is a difficult situation. I admit, too, that the one who doesn't smoke usually seems to have no rights in the matter, but is expected to put up with the situation as best he can, for few inveterate smokers show any consideration for non-smokers.

However, when two people really love each other, each is willing to yield some ground on any controversial subject, and I think you and your wife should both try to do this.

Why don't you suggest to her that she do most of her smoking in the daytime and see that the air in the room where you will sit in the evening, is fresh and clear, with all ashtrays emptied? In this way, each of you make a concession—you don't insist that she give up smoking entirely, and she considers your comfort in the evening when you are home. On Saturdays and Sundays, when you will be around the house all day, she might do her smoking away from where you are.

Such an arrangement seems to me fair to both of you, and certainly more sensible than for you to talk about walking out on your wife, especially when she is soon to have your child.

Marriage should be postponed till you're sure

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For about two years, I was going steady with a certain boy and then we broke up and each of us went out with others:

He went into the army, and about two months ago I was surprised to receive a letter from him, which I answered. Pretty soon we found that, in spite of having broken up, we really still loved each other, so be became engaged. He is due home very shortly, and we are plannig to be married while he is here.

The trouble is that for some reason I have a feeling that he really cares for another girl he went with after we broke up. I know I'm in love with him, and he insists he is in love with me, but I would like your advice on whether we should carry out our plan to marry as soon as he gets home or wait awhile to see if our feeling for each other is the same. I'm 18 and this boy is 21.—N. F.

Dear N.F.:

Yours is a very easy question to answer. And the answer is that you should by all means postpone your marriage until you are quite certain everything is right about it.

I don't see, of course, why this boy should suddenly have started a correspondence with you, or told you he loved you and wanted to marry you, if he was really in love with another girl. But perhaps ou think that the other girl may have turned him down, and that is why he came back to you.

In any event, nothing could be more foolish than for you to rush into a marriage feeling uncertain about this boy's affection for you, and I hope you will be sensible enough not to do anything of the sort. Time is a great clarifier, and, if you will be patient and give it a chance, it will guide you right.

Fashion Flashes

MORE AND MORE we find the suit with its own blouse. This trend is well typified by a soft suit of navy blue woollen, the jacket lined with silk crepe in red and white "gingham" checks. with it is a checked, bow-neckline blouse in chiffon.

NEWEST length in short-skirted evening dresses is the "waltz" length. A waltz-length evening dress of antique silver silk taffeta has its strapless bodice overlaid with Val lace scrolls and panels in white glitter—re-embroidered. The wide silk stole has wheels of the lace.

VERY NEW-LOOKING is the suit with a boxy jacket marked by an inset, stitched band that suggests a low waistline. This type of jacket appears again and again in Spring collections shown by top-flight designers, and most likely will sift down to less costly clothes later.

NOTHING NICER on sleek heads, especially when the wearer is young and pretty, than those wreath hats, bright with flowers. Velvet, fashioned in rose petal sections, makes a pretty little wreath-like hat, each section covere in tiny velvet forget-me-nots.

LOVELY LEISURE is nicely high-lighted in a beautiful hostess gown of muted gray and blue striped silk, the stripes fairly wide. The surplice bodice crosses and ties in back. The floor-length skirt, made with deep pleats at the waistline, wraps to the back in a wide fold.

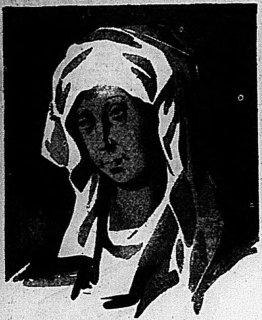
The Greatest Story Ever Told

By Fulton Oursler



PORTRAIT OF ST. ELIZABETH

A modern adaptation of the original painting attributed to the Dutch School in the Fifteenth Century.

CHAPTER III

THE UNKNOWN MESSENGER

Then suddenly Zachary came out in a wild rush from the sanctuary, and something very serious was wrong with him—the whole multitude could see that. Swaying dizzily down the twelve steps, he staggered to the rim of the open part of the altar. As Zachary tottered there, Annas, the High Priest, leaped forward and put strong arms around him. In the stillness of the sunset air they could all hear the crisp voice of Annas asking for an explanation. But Zachary, cheeks pale, eyes glittering, hair mussed, could only stamp his right foot and wave his arms in frantic movements, pointing to his open mouth as if he had swallowed the mystery and therefore could make no sound.

There was nothing to be done but for Annas to leave him standing there while he, as High Priest, took over the service, made the final prayer, and dismissed the people. Then and then only could Elizabeth get out of the Court of Women and beat her way to the outer square where Joachim held Zachary waiting. The old wife sheltered her man in her arms.

"We're going home, Zachary," she murmured. "Don't weep. Don't try to talk. We will go home now."

Not until they were back home in Ain Karim did Zachary divulge the facts. He sat at the table, motioning for parchment and quills; Zachary would talk with them by writing; the first great fact was that he had been stricken dumb.

"Ah! Ah! For once in his life he could celebrate the sacrifice in Jerusalem and he was stricken dumb!" Elizabeth sobbed and groaned; surely they were under a curse of God.

The Mystery Revealed

But Zachary admonished her with uplifted finger.

Slowly, and forming the inky characters with great exactitude so that his meaning could not possibly be mistaken, Zachary wrote on the parchment:

"I have been listening to an angel!"

When she read these words, Elizabeth gave a low moan and began pacing back and forth, beating her fists against her temples. Zachary had not only been stricken dumb; he had gone mad. See what he had written. Ah! Ah! It was blasphemy. Tear it up before someone reported it to the High Priest; a man could be put to death for such dangerous thoughts.

But Zachary rose up, too; he was dumb but he was not deaf: he heard it all and it made him impatient. Writing again, he declared he was still master in his own house. Let her call him mad if she pleased, but would she first have the kindness to receive what he was trying to tell her; what the angel said?

"Since when," Joachim reproached them, "has it been madness to believe that angels can talk with men? Are we to deny the Scriptures of Moses? Does Zachary look mad to you, Elizabeth? Let us be quiet and ask him what actually happened in there!"

"Terribly Frightened"

The priest picked up his pen and wrote again:

"I entered the sanctuary. A figure was standing there. He stood with folded wings and looked at me. I was terribly frightened and almost dropped the censer. My brain felt numb. My body was cold. My knees. . ."

"I can guess how you felt, beloved," urged Elizabeth. "But did the angel speak to you?"

Zachary bent over the parchment.

"He spoke in a deep tone unlike any voice I ever heard, and he said: 'Fear not, Zachary. Your prayer is heard!'"

A chill went down the spine of Elizabeth, her thoughts whirled. Could it have been the secret prayer that Zachary had made just before he mounted the twelve steps? The old man was still writing.

"'Your wife, Elizabeth, shall bear you a son.'"

Elizabeth began to weep again, and Anna and Mary with her, while practical Joachim, his hands clasped, leaned over Zachary's shoulder reading.

"'And you shall call his name John.'"

"John!" cried Elizabeth, "John! John! That means the gracious gift of God!"

"Many Shall Rejoice"

Zachary nodded to her. And he wrote again:

"'And you shall have joy and gladness. Many shall rejoice in his nativity and he shall be great before the Lord. He shall drink no wine or strong drink and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost. . .'"

Zachary's hand stopped, the same question agitating all. What could those queer words mean: the boy was to be "filled with the Holy Ghost"? None of them knew.

The angel had not finished when he said that the man-child, John, would be filled with the Holy Ghost. He went right on to predict that the son of Elizabeth and Zachary would grow up to bring many of the people of the country to the worship of the Lord their God. More, the angel declared that John, who was yet to be born, would have the spirit and power of the ancient prophet Elias. At this the others could keep quiet no longer.

"Do you realize what you are writing there?" gasped Elizabeth.

But the speechless priest was writing furiously:

"I mean what I say. Every word of it. I saw the angel. I heard his voice. Once and for all I insist that you remain quiet and hear the whole story. The winged messenger with whom I held this interview finished his first remarks with these words: 'He shall turn the hearts of fathers unto their children and the incredulous to the wisdom of the just, to prepare unto the Lord a perfect people.'"

A Serious Blunder

The priest looked around him at the strained faces and shrugged.

"Then I felt a little better," he wrote, "because I recognized the quotation. It was from the Book of Malachi, but here I made a serious blunder. Since the familiar quotation made me feel more at ease, more like myself, I suppose I lost a little of the awe I felt. I am afraid I was a little disrespectful to this angel. At least I plucked up enough courage to speak for the first time and asked him a question. I spoke with great humility but I felt I had a right to know, and so I simply asked: 'Whereby shall I know this? For I am an old man and my wife is advanced in year.'"

"And what did he say to that, Zachary?" The words burst uncontrollably from Elizabeth.

"He answered me at once," wrote Zachary. "He simply said that he was Gabriel."

Gabriel! Gabriel was the celestial messenger who had visited the prophet Daniel—one of the four archangels of the heavenly host.

Zachary continued writing. "He told me that he stood before God habitually and that he had been sent to the holy place just to bring me these glorious tidings. But his manner was much more serious and reproving now, let me tell you. He had not liked my doubts. 'Behold, you are dumb,' he said to me. And he said I was not going to be allowed to speak again until the day when these things come to pass 'because,' he added, 'you have not believed my words.'"

And Zachary dropped his pen, looked helplessly around him, and pointed to his open mouth, while he grew red in the face trying to make a sound which would not come, not even a groan.

"Did he say anything else?" breathed Elizabeth.

Her husband shook his head and wrote again:

"I closed my eyes and prayed a moment. When I opened them again, the angel was gone."

Was it a Dream?

Had the old man dreamed these things in a vertigo, a sudden stroke? With all the faith in the world Zachary might be imagining the whole story. Elizabeth insisted on calling the physician of the town who prescribed a purgative and a diet of warm barley soup and figs. Of course the doctor was not told the Temple story; that was for the ears of the family alone. Soon after the doctor left Zachary fell into a deep sleep.

Late into the night the others talked the marvel over. Elizabeth found it hard to believe it was anything more than the phantasy of a sick and tormented mind. Anna was puzzled. Joachim stubbornly remained the believer. In the face of the realism of the womenfolk he argued mystically: such visitations were not uncomman in the olden times; why should people assume, then, that the age of miracles had passed?

Joseph kept his own counsel, and no one asked Mary what she thought. But before they went to bed Mary said to Elizabeth:

"Cousin dear, you have prayed a long time. I believe in your prayers, Elizabeth. Why should we be surprised if God has heard them and will answer them? Why not wait and believe?"

And that, as time was soon to prove, was the wisest thing said in the family that night.

Curiously, though, the next morning there was not much talk about the mystery of the priest and the angel. By unspoken agreement they avoided the topic.

Even on the return journey they spoke only once or twice, and that briefly, about Zachary's experience.

Over the months the exciting episode receded in their minds until one day, by caravan messenger, a note was brought to Anna.

"Peace be with you, my beloved one," Elizabeth had written. "God has heard our prayers, indeed, and the promise of the holy archangel is fulfilled. Anna, my darling aunt, listen and tell Joachim and dear Mary and that fine young man, Joseph—listen, beloved—at my age I am going to have a child!"

Ask Safeguards Exempting Unions From New Laws

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada urged Wednesday that Parliament insert safeguards in a proposed revision of the Criminal Code exempting unions from sections dealing with breach of contract and creating a mischief.

The TLC suggestion was contained in a brief presented to a Commons commitee studying the proposed revision. The bill already has passed the Senate.

The brief said the federal and provincial legislation provides for legal work stoppages but one section of the proposed definition of criminal breach of contract might be invoked against unions.

The proposed section would make it a crime wilfully to break a contact when the parties knew it might deprive a city of light, power gas or water or prevent the running of railways. The penalty might be five years' imprisonment.

The TLC said some safeguards exist against use of the mischief section to deal with a strike. However, stronger safeguards were needed in creating a mischief by rendering property useless or obstructing the use of property.

The TLC also urged that the code contain a statement of the rights and freedoms of individuals as a protection against this who "would use our democratic liberties as a means to usher in their own kind of totalitarian dictatorship with its slave camps and utter disregard for human dignity."

Norwood Bows To Marmora 7-1

Marmora — Marmora emerged victorious from the first of the team's play-off series with Norwood at Marmora on Wednesday evening, the score being 7-1.

A crowd of about 400 fans witnessed a close and interesting game. Towards the close of the first period K. Trumble, for Marmora, drew first blood as he outwitted Nicholls. Less than two minutes later Doran registered for the hame team on Gray's assist. The second period went scoreless.

Early in the third, Doran got two more goals in quick succession, both on an assist from K. Trumble, and the second on a further assist from Darrah. Mantle added two more for the homesters, turning assists from Maynes and Gray to good account. Darrah, on assists from Leonard and Doran, got the final goal for Marmora. With about four minutes of play left, Tompkins spoiled Killian's prospect of a shut-out in scoring unassisted.

The Marmora goalie turned in a sterling performance, saving a large number of hot shots. Marmora goes to Norwood on Friday for the second game.

The teams:

Norwood — Goal, Nicholls; defence, Wotton, Tompkins; centre, Rochetta; wings, Stewart and Brickton; alternates, Kelly, Scott, Williams, McDougall, Gardner, Landon, LeClair.

Marmora — Goal, Killian; defence, E. Trumble, Leonard; centre, Darrah; wings, Doran and K. Trumble; alternates, Maynes, Jones, Mantle, C. Loveless, J. Loveless, Gray, Smith, Forestell. Spare goalie, C. Trumble.

Referees — D. Fitzpatrick, V. Goyer.

Over 400 People Attend Evangelistic Opening Service

FRANKFORD.—Well over 400 people crowded the auditorium of the Frankford Community Hall, Sunday evening, to hear the special opening service for the Evangelistic week being held by the United Church.

Guest evangelist Lindsay Vogan, D.F.C., brought a challenging message to all, pointing out most emphatically that wars and strife have failed to solve or prove anything, and that a better Canada, a better Frankford, must come from the citizens themselves. In order to bring this about, the citizens themselves must be better within, and only through the saving grace of God is this possible.

Following the service in the hall, a number of folk retired to the United Church Hall for a fellowship hour. A brief program was enjoyed, and each one present had an opportunity to meet Mr. Vogan, personally.

Monday night's service was held in the United Church, with a full congregation. The other churches of the village are joining with the United Church in worship, and it is certainly a fine Christian spirit to see the various Protestant denominations gathering together.

We'll Hear The News, Good Or Bad, Tonight

The annual budget presentation is all ready . . . but it's still the secret of Mr. Abbott.

Finance Minister Douglas Abbott is scheduled to present his budget to tax-paying Canadians on Thursday night. Mr. Abbott, as usual, is speechless as the sphinx about what the budget contains in the way of tax increases or decreases, but, as usual, there is plenty of guesswork as to what the budget will contain. John Doe, above, has reason to hope for a drop in income tax — but no drop in the higher mathematics required to fill out the forms. And, as a further consolation to the hard-pressed income tax payer, a decrease in the tax on the cigarettes which he smokes while estimating his tax is expected. — Central Prss Canadian.

Dulles Says United States Trying to Avoid Trouble With Allies Over Red China Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary John Foster Dulles has assured Allied countries that the United States is seeking to avoid "political embarrassments and troubles" with them in charting new moves against Red China.

One of several actions under consideration, Dulles told a press conference Wednesday, is establishment of a naval blockade of the China coast. Another is stricter "enforcement" of United Nations recommendations against trade with China, he said.

The whole range of "measures of varying kind which could be adopted," Dulles said, is under intensive study in the light of three considerations: "Their feasibility, their military consequences and the degree of political embarrassments and troubles that might be caused with our Allies."

It was Dulles' first press conference at the state department since he became secretary.

Dulles was questioned about what the administration hopes to accomplish by repudiating "secret understandings . . . which permit enslavement of foreign peoples," as called for by President Eisenhower.

Two Purposes

The proposed action, Dulles said, would serve two primary purposes:

"One is to register dramatically what we believe to be the many breaches by the Soviet Union of the wartime understandings; and, secondly, to register equally dramatically the desire and hope of the American people that the captive people shall be liberated.

"This document or pronouncement is not intended to be a domestic political pronouncement. It is intended to be a pronouncement in relation to foreign policy, which I hope will receive and I think should receive a substantially unanimous backing in the congress . . ."

His comments appeared to reflect some development or change in administration thinking. Previously the emphasis had been on repudiating agreements which "permit" enslavement. This was in line with Republican criticisms of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt and former president Truman that in agreements made with the Russians at Yalta and Potsdam they had allowed Russia to extend her domination over new areas in the Far East and Eastern Europe.

Try to End Fighting

The line which Dulles took Wednesday, however, was that "the enslavement of these captive peoples is due to abuse and violation of the understandings." Any repudiation, therefore, apparently would be blamed on Russian violations and not upon the claim that the understandings were themselves bad in the first place. Hence the administration would be able to appeal for Democratic as well as Republican support.

Dulles said a principal U. S. purpose in the Far East is to end fighting in Indo - China and Korea on acceptable terms, and one way to go about this is to replace Western forces with native troops so that Russia would no longer have the advantage of tying up Western forces in combat with Soviet satellites.

This policy of relying more and more on native forces would apply to consideration of increased aid to Indo-China, he said.

Operation Will Be Performed In Day or Two

KINGSTON (CP)—A complicated operation will be performed on three-year-old Frederic Orton in a day or two in the hope that the youngster, who has been living on a liquid diet since birth, will be able to eat normally.

The boy was born with a short oesophagus causing his stomach to be misplaced above the diaphragm in the chest cavity. Normally, the oesophagus, the tube leading to the stomach from the mouth, is about 10 inches long but the Orton child's is thought to be about six inches and too narrow to pass solid foods.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Orton, who moved to Lombardy, about 60 miles northeast of here, after living in Syracuse, N.Y.

The boy, cared for three years by his parents who followed strict medical advice received first in Syracuse, was admitted to Kingston General Hospital Wednesday for the operation. Three weeks ago the parents brought him to the hospital for examination and treatment because it had become impossible to feed him.

Mentally Unfit To Stand Trial

NORTH BAY (CP)—Wilfred Laycock Wednesday was found mentally unfit to stand trial for murder in the shooting a year ago of Arthur Kierstead.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury, after deliberating three hours and 35 minutes, found the 67-year-old war pensioner unfit for trial by reason of insanity.

Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven said he had no criticism of the verdict and thanked the jury for their decision.

He then remanded Laycock in custody "at the pleasure of the lieutenant-governor."

C.N.R. Has First Surplus in Six Years Says Abbott

OTTAWA (CP)—The financially-reorganized Canadian National Railways had its first surplus in six years in 1952, Finance Minister Abbott indicated to Parliament Wednesday.

In a White Paper tabled in the Commons in conjunction with tonight's budget, he said the government-owned line did not incur a deficit last year, mainly because of the 1952 federal legislation eliminating a big slice of its annual debt interest.

In 1951, the CNR had an income deficit of $15,031,000, its sixth in a row, despite a then-record gross revenue and an operating surplus of more than $44,000,000. Interest charges on the securities held by the government and the public put it into the red.

The CNR capital revision act of last year lifted about $28,000,000 in annual interest payment to the government from the CNR's obligations. Its interest payments to the public were expected to be about $22,000,000 for 1952.

In view of figures already made public, the expectations were the CNR will show a moderate surplus for 1952 when its accounts are tabled within a few weeks.

An unofficial calculation would indicate an outside figure of $5,000,000 for the surplus. This will all be absorbed either in income tax—to which the CNR becomes subject for the first time this year under the 1952 budget—or in dividend payments on stock taken by the government under the reorganization in exchange for interest-bearing bonds.

High Commissioner To Australia Named by Govt.

OTTAWA (CP)—Resources Minister Winters announced in the Commons Wednesday that W. Arthur Irwin, 54-year-old government film commissioner and head of the national film board, will be appointed Canadian high commissioner to Australia.

The minister made the announcement in reply to a question by G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West).

He made no mention as to when Mr. Irwin will be leaving for Australia or who will succeed him at the film board.

Twelve Alsatians Will be Freed By Amnesty Vote

PARIS (AP) — An amnesty voted today by the French National Assembly will free 12 of the 14 Alsatians sentenced to prison last week for their part in the wartime massacre of 642 persons in Oradour-sur-Glane village.

But the clemency — exempting from punishment all Frenchmen who were forced into German service during the Second World War and committed war crimes on German orders — will not benefit Alsatians who volunteered for the German S. S.

One of the two volunteers, Georges-Rene Boos, was sentenced to death. The other was given an eight-year prison term, most of which already has been served while awaiting trial.

Seven Germans, tried last week by the same military court in Bordeaux, also are not covered by the amnesty.

The 12 to be freed had been sentenced to terms ranging from five to 12 years.

The court verdict had created a great public uproar in the border province of Alsace, once German but now a part of France

Govt. Waiting For Privy Council Decision

TORONTO (CP)—The federal government has not yet decided whether to co-ordinate its three transportation authorities into one body, Transport Minister Chevrier said Wednesday night.

The minister also said the government is waiting for a Privy Council decision on jurisdiction before deciding whether to try to take over control of interprovincial and international highway traffic.

Mr. Chevrier's address was prepared for the annual dinner of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League an association of railroad traffic men.

His statements on the co-ordination of federal transport authorities and on highway traffic arose from 1951 recommendations of the road commission on transportation which proposed co-ordination and the federal assumption of control over trans-border road operation.

General Manager Montreal Star Is Retiring

MONTREAL (CP)—Hugh Graham Brewer, general manager of the Montreal Star for the last 15 years, announced Wednesday he is retiring because of ill health.

Mr. Brewer began work with the Star 45 years ago as a $10-a-week "copy chaser." He was due to retire at the end of this year but requested an earlier release. He has been a director of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association for many years.

He was born in Clinton, in 1888, and during the First World War served with the Royal Montreal Regiment.

Destroyer Rescues U.S. Jet Pilot From Icy Water

TOKYO (Reuters) — The United States navy told today how the Canadian destroyer Athabaskan rescued a U.S. jet pilot from icy 10-foot waves off Korea on Wednesday.

The pilot was Lieut. R. B. Statmatis of San Francisco. His carrier-based jet developed engine trouble at 3,000 feet.

Statmatis said his carrier, the Philippine Sea, was too far away. He knew he could not last long in the icy waters, so, accompanied by his wingman, he made for the Canadian ship below him.

The destroyer was abreast of the plane within five minutes of the crash. Another five minutes and Statmatis was in the Athabaskan's whaleboat.

Calls It an Affront

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Controller Hugh W. Simpson said Wednesday the present set up of the city police commission is a "continuing affront to the intelligence of the people of Windsor."

Chairman of the commission is Judge Archibald Cochrane of Brampton, who was appointed several years ago following an investigation into the police department.

"Many in Windsor could fill that position," Mr. Simpson said, "without the necessity of a man coming 500 miles to attend . . . meetings."

Judge Cochrane was re-elected chairman at a recent meeting attended by two members of the three-man commission.

Operation Saves Wounded Pet

No Christmas or birthday present meant as much to 11-year-old Gail Bowers, Toronto, as the return of her terrier, Blackie. He disappeared a couple of weeks ago. Then he was picked up by the Humane Society and an X-ray examination showed a small bullet of the type used in a .22-calibre target pistol had lodged in his heart. A veterinary surgeon operated, removed the pellet, and here is Blackie, lively as ever. — Central Press Canadian.

Cattle Breeders Pay Tribute To Breed Founder

GUELPH (CP) — Cattle breeders from across Canada met in three groups at the Ontario Agricultural College Wednesday to discuss the industry's problems and pay tribute to the man who introduced the Aberdeen Angus breed to North America.

The organizations holding their annual meetings are the Canadian Shorthorn Breeders Association, the Canadian Hereford Breeders Association and the Canadian Aberdeen Angus Association.

A bronze plaque was unveiled at a banquet by F. W. Crawford of Winnipeg, secretary of the Canadian Aberdeen Angus Association, in honor of William Brown who imported a herd of Aberdeen Angus cattle to Canada for OAC in 1876. The first North American-born calf arrived the following year.

Little was said on the re-opening of the United States market to Canadian stock, but members expressed optimism on the subject.

Artificial insemination was discussed at all three meetings. Professor R. G. Knox, head of the college animal breeding department, told Shorthorn breeders that artificial breeding provides an opportunity to improve the standards of commercial cattle.

Allied Bombers Blast Smoking Ruins of Communist Training Centre in Third Heavy Strike

SEOUL (AP) — Allied fighter-bombers today blasted the smoking ruins of a Communist training centre with tons of high explosives in their third devastating strike in two days.

Sabre jet pilots shot down two Russian-built MiGs and possibly a third, the 5th air force said. Col. Royal N. Baker, McKinney, Tex., shot down his 10th Red plane and became the second double ace of the Korean war.

The air force said 195 Thunderjets and Shooting Stars unleashed tons of bombs, following up a 380-plane raid Wednesday near Pyongyang, North Korean Red capital.

Today's strike was the fourth in the area in less than a week. The toll of MiGs brought the six-day bag of Russian-built planes to 16, nine of them in two days. Additionally, 23 others have been damaged or probably destroyed.

The air force said the trip-hammer blows destroyed at least 150 buildings and knocked out tanks, vehicles and repair facilities.

Lt.-Gen. Glenn O. Barcus, 5th air force commander, said the Reds would "feel keenly the loss of the tank and vehicle repair facilities in addition to the many tanks and vehicles destroyed."

On the frozen battlefront, Allied soldiers hurled back six small-scale Communist ground probes in brief, pre-dawn clashes.

Fifteen B-29s roared over North Korea Wednesday night and bombed Red supply and troop areas.

The one-two-three punch against the training centre was exceeded in the number of jet fighter-bombers involved only by the 1,193 sorties flown against Pyongyang itself last August. Nearly 600 planes hit the target Wednesday and today.

Sentence Quashed

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeals Wednesday quashed a three-year prison sentence imposed on Edwin Boyd's younger brother, Norman, for his part in a $46,000 bank robbery at Leaside in November, 1951.

Norman, however, still has seven months to serve of a nine-month sentence for harboring his brother before his capture in March, 1952.

Announcing its decision, the court said the alibi evidence "was much stronger than the identification."

Norman Boyd testified that he was on a city survey job at the time of the robbery and his evidence was supported by two city hall employees.

Lions Club Holds Ladies' Night

Bancroft—A good number of members and their ladies were in attendance at the annual Lions ladies' night held in St. John's Anglican parish hall on Thursday evening. President A. M. Burns welcomed the ladies and expressed the club's appreciation for the valuable assistance lent by them to the many club projects throughout the past year.

A delicious turkey supper, tastefully prepared and served by workers of the Anglican W.A. under Mrs. Gerald O'Shaugnessy, and refreshing entertainment was enjoyed by all.

John Hawkins proposed the toast to the ladies at supper. A presentation of a measuring tape bearing the Lion crest was made to each lady by Cecil McAlpine.

Mr. G. Fresque showed films to the gathering and Art Tompsett presided over a game of "Twenty Questions", and comedy monologue by Reg. Wallis, a master of this particular form of entertainment, met with hearty applause.

The sing-song was led by Jack Hattin who holds that office at all regular meetings.

572 Persons Typed At Blood-Typing Clinic

Bancroft—Five hundred and seventy-two persons were typed on Saturday at the Blood Typing Clinic held at the Legion Hall under the auspices of the local Lions club. This clinic brought to 1179 the total number typed and was the second in less than a month.

The need for this second clinic became apparent after 607 persons responded to the first with many persons still waiting at closing time. It is thought that a third date might be set, possibly in two months time, if the need is indicated.

The project has received wide acclaim in the district and has already been employed by local doctors and hospital officials. The name and blood type of each person is placed on a master list compiled for the use of doctors and hospitals for reference in case of emergency. A small card is also issued to each person identifying his particular type and should be carried at all times. This card might well be the means of saving a life in time of disaster or emergency. It will assist in procuring whole blood for transfusion purposes which is far more satisfactory than plasma if at all obtainable.

All clerical work at the clinic was done on a volunteer basis by members of the Lionettes. Chairman Leo Frieburger expressed great satisfaction with the results of the clinic and the tremendous public response it received.

Provincial Police Upheld in Action By Dana Porter

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Porter said Wednesday provincial police "acted on their duty to the public" early Tuesday when they set up a roadblock on the Queen Elizabeth Way which resulted in the deaths of two men.

He told the Ontario Legislature a full investigation is being made into the incident. An inquest will be held Feb. 26.

The roadblock was set up near Port Credit to stop a speeding car which a cruiser travelling miles an hour was unable to catch. Police stopped a transport truck and parked it across the road. The speeding car crashed into it.

"The police may have been right or wrong," Mr. Porter said. "But they have a duty to the public, and this car, travelling at a furious speed, was a hazard to the public.

Will Not be Served

TORONTO (CP)—Members of the armed forces under 21 years of age will not be served in taverns and cocktail lounges as the result of legislation to be introduced during the current session of the Ontario Legislature, it was reported Wednesday.

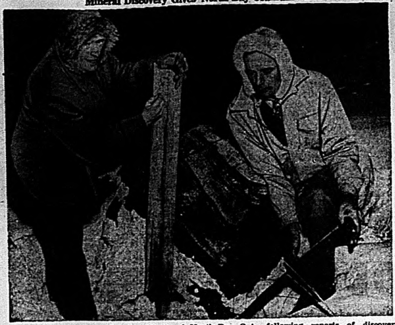
A clause in the Ontario Liquor Control Act since the Second World War provides for presuming servicemen to be 21 as far as the liquor licence act is concerned.

LEAFS SIGN ZOLDAK

TORONTO (CP)—Sam Zoldak, veteran major-league pitcher, has been signed by Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League on a trial basis, Leaf president Jack Kent Cooke announced Wednesday night.

The 31-year-old six-foot southpaw, a native of Brooklyn, started with Philadelphia Athletics in 1944 and later saw action with St. Louis Browns and Cleveland Indians. From the Indians he came back to Philadelphia. The A's made him a free agent this year.

Mineral Discovery Gives North Bay Uranium Fever



Uranium fever has gripped residents of North Bay, Ont., following reports of discovery of deposits of uranium, tantalum and columbium on islands in Lake Nipissing. Citizens are staking out claims right to the town's borders, and it is reported that geiger counters are recording uranium right in the town's business section. Here Bill Kennedy, left, tourist camp operator, and Gordon McNaughton, salesman, join the dozens of claim stakers and stake property rights within the city limits. —Central Press Canadian.

Second Man On The Ticket

By Edwin Lanham

Clyde gave me a long look, then got out of the car. I led him away into the shadows, by the hedge. I had an objective, to steer him away from cabin nine, and I had a plan that was pretty vague and depended on how things went. It depended also on Ginny Perkins.

"Clyde," I said. "I'm going to do you a favor. Not because I'm anxious to do you any favors, but because we've had enough trouble and we don't want any more. I'm going to give you a chance to pull you're neck in."

"Is that so?" Clyde said.

"You can bring your specialist in, if you want to," I said. "I'll call the reporters in from the garage, and they can be witnesses of it. And for that matter, I'll pass out prints of the photograph the Ego photographer took at the casino, to point out the part that personal venom plays in this. I don't want to do it that way, but if you force me to, I will. And let me warn you that you'll be in for a shock."

"The heck I will!" he said. "Ruth Warburton's not sick, and if you let Dr. McBain examine her, I'll prove it."

"Up there in that room," I said dramatically, "where you see the dim light, it's a question this minute whether she'll last through the night. If you want to force your way in their with your imported specialist, with the reporters as witnesses, all right."

"That's what I intend to do," Clyde said, but his tone had dropped.

"But first you'd better get oriented," I said. "I learned just a little while ago what's been biting you. It seems you have an idea there's some old scandal here in Hydetown involving the Governor. Isn't that it?"

"Oh, stop," Clyde said, his voice shrill and sarcastic.

"Clyde," I went on "Ginny Perkins is a nice kid. I hate to see you make a lot of trouble for her."

"What do you mean by that?"

"She reads your column regularly, Clyde," I said softly. "I suppose she's told you that. Did she tell you she's got your photograph pasted up in her room, too? You've been conducting a correspondence courtship with her, without even knowing it. That's why she brought you here. She wanted to meet you. Prepare for the big shock, Clyde. She made the whole thing up. There never was any scandal about Governor Warburton in Hydetown. You ask anybody in town if they ever heard any. Ginny made it up, just to get you here."

Clyde sucked in his breath, said, "You're kidding."

"Why should I be kidding? Why do you think she hasn't told you the story? The answer is she doesn't know it, because there isn't any story."

I could hear his breathing in the darkness. After a moment he said accusingly, "You offered her a job in Washington to shut her up."

"To get her out of Hydetown," I said. "To get her to Washington where I could see something of her. That's why I offered her a job."

I went quickly away through the darkness, crossed the beam of the headlights, and reached Ginny's side. I whispered, "Get out," and held the door open for her.

I saw her face pale in the darkness. "Ginny, I'm trying to help you out," I whispered. "But you have got to help me too."

I took her hand and led her toward the hedge, where Clyde was waiting. In the night we could barely see one another.

"Ginny," I said, "I told Clyde the whole story, but he wants you to confirm it. You don't know any scandal about Governor Warburton, do you?"

Her voice said faintly. "Oh, Roy, did you tell him that?"

"Ginny," Clyde demanded, "is this true?"

"Roy, you shouldn't have done it" Ginny cried. "Oh, why did you do it?"

"Answer me, Ginny," Clyde's harsh voice said.

"Ginny, I told him all of it," I broke in. "I told him you made the whole thing up to get him to come to Hydetown. I think he understands."

"But I didn't make it up," Ginny said. "I only pretended I knew when I didn't know."

"You put me on an awful spot," he said.

"But I was sure Aunt Hattie would tell, Clyde," Ginny said. "I didn't know she'd change her mind. How could I know that?"

CHAPTER XXXVI

Ginny had let me down, with the customary bump. I said angrily, "Suppose you ask Miss Hattie about that, Clyde. She's already denied that she knows anything."

"But I didn't make anything up," Ginny protested. "Clyde, I just fudged a little." I heard her sob and in the darkness I saw the faint glow of light on her bright hair. "Honestly, I didn't make it up."

"Ginny, why lie about it?" I said. "Clyde doesn't care whether you made it up. Nobody cares." I had to force the thing now; I had to brazen it out and impeach Ginny Perkins as best I could. "No harm is done," I said. "Admit it, Ginny."

"Clyde said softly, "So Ginny is a liar, eh?"

It was very dark by the hedge and I could not see Clyde's face. His bulk was a slightly darker shadow in the shadows. I could barely make it out, and a slight movement of the shadow was all I saw. I never saw his big fist coming. It caught me high on the forehead and knocked me back against the hedge.

Ginny cried out as I struggled back to balance. She tried to get between us, but I shoved her aside and lunged at the biggest shadow. I missed, and staggered into the hedge.

Another blow caught my shoulder and I swung again and hit something this time; my fist sank deep and I heard Clyde grunt.

"Please stop it," Ginny wailed.

I heard Clyde say, "Get away, honey. Where is he?"

"I'm right here, Clyde," I said, and moved agan.

I saw the bigger shadow moving again, and swung at it, then his bulk bore down on me. I was crowded against the hedge and he hit me hard on the shoulder. I could not get clear of the hedge and I tasted blood as he smashed my mouth. His whole weight was behind the blow and I went back into the hedge and fell to my knees at his feet.

"Get up," Clyde said.

I was dazed and shook my head. I mumbled, "I'm getting up," and started to push myself to my feet. He stood where he could hem me in against the hedge again and use his full advantage of 60 pounds.

"Clyde, stop it." Ginny cried. "Don't hit him again. It's enough. Clyde listen to me. I did make it up. I did. I did."

Clyde stepped back a pace and his low voice said, "I'll be blasted."

• • •

I got slowly to my feet. My knees were weak and I swayed against the hedge. I put up my hands to protect myself, but there was no longer any movement of the shadows. I heard Clyde's deep voice murmuring uncomfortably, "It's all right kid. It's all right.

I let my arms fall to my sides and walked unsteadily away, along the hedge.

Dr. McBain was standing by the car, an interested spectator. He said, "Come over here and I'll take a look at the damage."

"I'm all right," I said, and went slowly across the lawn to the house.

Lucy and Governor Warburton were sitting on the stairs, and Bill was leaning against the newel, talking earnestly.

"Roy!" Lucy cried. "What happened to you?"

I moved unsteadily toward them and said, "It worked, Governor."

Bill Evers whistled. "Did Clyde do that? Roy, you look pretty bad."

"I'm all right," I said. "It was just too dark out there. Couldn't see a fist in front of your face."

"Come with me, darling," Lucy murmured. "Let me wash the blood off."

"In a minute," I said. "Governor, everything is fixed. I've convinced Clyde McDonald that Ginny invented the whole thing because she was smitten with his male beauty and the quality of his prose, and I guess she was, at that. There's just a faint possibility she might be a good influence on Clyde."

"Pretty faint,' said Lucy, and began dabbing at my mouth with her handkerchief.

"Anyhow, Clyde won't write anything because he has nothing to write," I said, and pushed the handkerchief away. "Even if he finds cabin nine, he has nothing to hang the story on."

"What about Warburton Day tomorrow?" Bill Evers said. "What about the Governor's schedule What about those 250 straw hats and sunbonnets,"

"So everybody's happy, Governor," I said. "Even Bill, He's back to low-level worrying again."

"I'm grateful to you, Roy." Governor Warburton said simply, "I'm deeply grateful. I think now you'd better let Lucy make some repairs." He patted my shoulder.

"This way, Roy," said Lucy. She took my hand and led me through the pantry. She turned on the cold water at the copper sink, wet her handkerchief, and began dabbing at my mouth.

"That blonde tramp, I'll bet she's the cause of this," Lucy said fiercely as she took away the bloody handkerchief and rinsed it at the sink.

"She was the cause, all right," I said.

Lucy inspected my mouth. "It's not too bad," she murmured sympathetically, and the moist handkerchief gently brushed my lips. "But, Roy," she said. "Some of this blood doesn't wash off." She glanced up at me. "In fact, it's not blood. It's lipstick." Her tone was accusing. "You've got lipstick smeared all over you again!"

"If you look carefully," I said "you'll notice it's your lipstick."

Lucy came near, moved with a little sigh into my arms. As I kissed her I heard her contented murmur, "So it is. So it is."

Fluttering Maple Leafs Defeather Detroit Red Wings With 2-0 Shutout

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Hawks came through with flying colors in their opening tilt of their best-of-five semi-finals series last night with an 8-3 victory over the Lindsay Warriors. The Hawks again proved their adaptability in conforming to the style dished up by the opposition and the result was a scambly, peppy contest that threatened to develop into a wide-open fiesta in the third period.

The Hawks were much the better on the night's play and when the Warriors decided to play it a bit rough in the final chapter Barrett's buckaroos went into similar character.

Davy Jones had one of his better scoring nights hitting the hemp for three markers and grabbing as many assists. Paddy Gilmour and "Ammerin' Hank" Therrien also stood out with a pair of goals and triple helpers, in fact the whole line scintillated all evening.

Six penalties were handed out in the first two periods but the boys tore the lock off the door in the third and swung into a wide-open free-wheeling exhibition in which eleven went to the sin-bin and fraying tempers threatened to launch a free-for-all. No damage was done, however, but the general consensus is that a furious "fireworks" battle should occur when the Hawks take on the Warriors in Lindsay Saturday night.

In the other half of the junior "B" playoffs, the Kingston Vics journey to Peterborough on Friday night in a switch of dates with the Peterborough Triple Links back in Kingston on Monday evening. The Vics lead the series one game to nothing.

WATCH THIS YOUNGSTER!

Don't look now, but up around Trenton there's a young golfer who is making the links fraternity of that town raise surprised eyebrows.

This sixteen-year-old who shows much promise of fairway wizardry has the potentialities of a Bobby Jones, and his golfing pals predict great things for the youngster.

He is Carl Charlton, who has all the attributes, physical and otherwise of a golfing natural. With five years to go before he casts his first vote, Carl has a collection of trophies that linksmen thrice his age would be proud to own.

He has the lithe physique that bespeaks the golfer. He tips the beam an inch or so under six feet, and weighs some 146 pounds. Between seasons, Carl plays basketball for the town high school's junior squad. He keeps his eyes keen with an occasional hunting foray in the surrounding district.

Before he reached his 12th. birthday, Carl became attracted to the game and his curiosity prompted him to do a spot of caddying. This was not enough. As his yen for the game grew, he decided to take it up, and aided and abetted by a boyhood pal he started to play.

It came easy for Carl, but heartbreak was ahead. His pal and coach, whom later he defeated, was Joe Pregent. Joe died last year from an attack of the dread poliomyelitis.

Carl will never forget Joe. The memory of the chum, who himself had great links possibilities, will always remain. The Morton Parker Company, of Trenton, has donated a handsome trophy to the memory of the grand youngster, which will bear his name.

Carl has his golfing sights lined on this trophy. A bit misty-eyed, he said: "I'm going to try hard to win it, for Joe's sake."

But while he has the natural ability of a golfer, Carl realizes that only by practice and consistent study can he reach golfdom's high places. His record to date is an enviable one. Besides winning a number of trophies this year, he was adjudged the "most promising young golfer" on the Trenton Club.

And if "you take him on," don't be misled by Carl's affable, friendly manner. You might better watch his style. On the Bay of Quinte Club course his drives were consistently good for 300 yards. At the moment he is concentrating on his putting, and study of books by the old masters has improved this phase of his game tremendously.

Senior golfers of the Trenton Club became more or less wide-eyed when the "beardless Bobby Jones" of their fraternity shot the tricky home course in a 36-hole 72. This was two strokes above the all-time record. He smiles when he admits he plays with an eight-point handicap.

The golf virus is deep in the Charlton blood stream. He is ambitious with a strong determination to become one of the game's topflight exponents. Last year he worked at Middleton Park and spent his earnings in an intermediate membership, and a "half-set' 'of clubs.

Not trying to be dictatorial, this department feels the Trenton Golf and Country Club would not go wrong by allowing Carl to become assistant to the club pro when he (Carl, not the pro.) finishes school next June. He hopes to earn enough money this summer to get that full set of clubs, that are just over the financial horizon.

Carl is the second oldest in a family of five. He is in fourth form at high school and a splendid student, one who says he will not let his sports love interfere with his studies.

Trentonians, especially those of the links brotherhood, can well be proud of this promising youngster, and it might not be too far in the dim, distant future, that they hail him as a star, and "I remember when . . ."

Lumley Scores Eighth Blank As Leafs Reach Third Place; Rangers Defeat Boston 4-2

By ED SIMON

A cold wave descended Wednesday night on the two hottest clubs in the National Hockey League.

The high-flying, high-scoring Detroit Red Wings ran into poor flying weather and did no scoring at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, dropping a 2-0 decision to the Maple Leafs.

At New York, Boston Bruins, riding high on a three-game winning streak, took 4-2 lacing from the Rangers, whose lease on the NHL cellar is unlikely to expire before next fall.

Chief sufferers were the Bruins, whose drive to nail down a play-off spot was thrown abruptly into reverse as the Leafs climbed past them into third place. Chicago Black Hawks can join them on the fourth and last play-off rung by beating the Rangers in Chicago tonight.

Dignity Hurt

The main damage suffered by the Red Wings was to their dignity. They have a six-point edge over the Canadiens, with whom they have a date in Montreal tonight.

Both losing teams ran into trouble from former employees they had sold down the river.

Rotund Harry Lumley, the man the Wings disposed of three years ago to make room for Terry Sawchuk, outshone his successor as he turned aside 31 drives on the Toronto net in marking up his eighth shutout.

Tod Sloan broke up the scoreless duel late in the third period, cashing a pass from Jimmy Thomson. Fern Flaman sank a long shot in the final minute after the Wings had pulled Sawchuk in favor of an extra forward.

Ronty Scores

Paul Ronty, an ex-Bruin and the centre of a line dubbed "the Scavengers" by Boston coach Lynn Patrick, sank a pass from line-mate Wally Hergesheimer to start Patrick's club on the road to ruin. And after the Bruins rallied in the third period to cut the Rangers' margin to 3-2, the clincher was provided by Pete Babando.

Pete, whom Boston threw in on a deal by which they acquired Bill Quackenbush from Detroit in 1949, was ticketed by the Rangers for delivery today to Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League. Since he also set up a goal by Harry Howell, he may have earned a reprieve.

Eddie Kullman was the fourth Ranger marksman. Eddie Sandford and Fleming Mackell provided the Boston tallies.

Lavallee Wins Second Lap Dog Sled Derby

FLIN FLON (CP) — Gilbert Lavalee of Pine Bluff drove his panting huskies across the line ending the second lap of the Canadian championship sled dog derby Wednesday nine minutes and 40 seconds ahead of his nearest rival.

Lavalee was three minutes and five seconds ahead of Steve Pranteau of Grand Rapids, Man., after the first lap of the race Tuesday and Pranteau followed him across the line again Wednesday.

Indians Defeat Chatham 3-2 In First Game

The last scheduled Ontario Senior A Hockey Association game will be played tonight, but the leaders and playoff contenders have already been chosen.

Brantford Redmen meet Hamilton Tigers in the last game. The outcome means nothing. The Tabbies reached an all-time low this season, winning only two games. The Redmen were assured of the fourth and last playoff position several days ago.

Wednesday night Stratford Indians ended their schedule by defeating Chatham Maroons 3-2. The win gave the second-place Indians a season's total of 64 points, five points behind Owen Sound Mercurys, and five ahead of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen. Stratford's record was 31 wins, two ties and 11 losses. Chatham netted 43 points, nine less than Brantford, on 21 wins, one tie and 26 losses.

Second place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group was settled Wednesday night when Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds defeated the rival North Bay Trappers 5-3.

Sudbury Wolves ended the season in first place. Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians are the cellar-dwellers.

Stratford's win came on goals by Ken Schultz, Bill Flick and George Aitken. Chatham scorers were Ernie Dick and Joe Carveth.

Ronnie Lay led Sault Ste. Marie with three goals. John Offidani scored the others. George Gosselin tallied twice for the Trappers and Ab DeMarco scored the other.

Mixed Commercial Bowling League

Jets, Whiz Bangs and KVA's had 7-0 victories over Eggheads, Live Wires and Hy Liners. Wonder Watts and Power Pins defaulted to Short Circuits and Marketeers.

Smasheroos outlasted Bombers 5-2 while Sun Rays won two games but lost total pins for a 4-3 win over Symons.

Barb Young led the ladies with 717, Lil Mascaro had 626.

Galt, Brampton Reach Semi-Finals In 26th Annual Ontario Bonspiel

TORONTO (CP)—Semi-finalists for the Royal York Trophy, main award of the 26th annual Ontario bonspiel, take to ice today with outside and Toronto rinks evenly represented.

Galt and Brampton rinks will take on Toronto High Park and Royal Canadian rinks respectively with the survivors scheduled to clash tonight in the final for the blue ribbon award of the five-day spiel.

The same situation occurs in the semi-finals for the Henry Birks and Sons Trophy, also scheduled for today. Two visiting rinks will tackle two Toronto Clubs, the winners competing in the final tonight.

In Royal York competition there has been an even-stephen battle between outside and Toronto rinks since the bonspiel began Monday.

The Galt rink, under veteran skip S. Smithers, entered the semi-finals for the main award when they swamped F. Westcott's Toronto High Park rink 16-8 in Wednesday night's quarter finals.

The Brampton quartet, skipped by Don Best, earned their berth with a 12-10 win frim Toronto Royal's J. Abrams entry.

In the Birks semi-finals the two non-Toronto rinks are Lou Ross' Agincourt rink, winner of the Royal York Trophy last year, and Unionville rink guided by R. B. Rae

The Ross quartet, who downed K. Miles' Toronto High Park aggregation 8-6 in the quarter-finals, will square off with J. Douglas' Toronto Civil Service entry. The Rae crew defeated W. Fellow of Sudbury in the quarter-finals and meet M. Cunnington of the Toronto Curling Club in the other semi-final.

Four outside rinks and four city clubs reached the quarter-finals for the Seiberling Trophy. The visitors include two Kingston rinks, skipped by R. Ness and J. Shamess, and one each from Hamilton and Brantford.

A close contest developed in Wednesday's North American Trophy play where 16 surviving rinks in the event were evenly divided with eight out-of-town rinks represented and eight from city clubs.

Seagram Trophy play was the only competition Wednesday where outside rinks had the majority of winners. In this event there were 21 winning rinks from outside Toronto.

Today's program includes competition for the Parker Pen Trophy and opening play for the Monarch Knitting Trophy.

Hawks Trim Lindsay Warriors 8-3 In 1st Game Junior Playoffs

Davey Jones Grabs Six Points As Hawks Score Four Goals In Penalty-Shot Third Period

By JOHN GOODFELLOW

Belleville Black Hawks went one up in the first game of their best-of-five junior "B" league semi-final playoffs by defeating Lindsay Warriors 8-3 at the Memorial Arena last night.

For the first two periods it was typical playoff hockey as both clubs played it close to the vest. But in the final canto, all plugs went down the drain as the teams wheeled wide open and 11 penalties were called as the contest almost developed into the second battle of Gettysburg.

The line of Davey Jones, Hank Therrien and Pat Gilmour accounted for seven goals and racked up 15 scoring points during the night. Jones tallied a trio, with his linemates each getting a pair. George Jacklin got the other counter. Tom Hutton scored twice for the losers with Murray Packer adding the other.

"Hank" Scores First

The game was less than two minutes old when Therrien sent the Hawks into the lead on a close-in play with Jones and Gilmour. Pete Green, Jerry Goyer, John Casey and Ron Halstead all gave Lindsay's goalie, Reg Truax, a bad time before Jones clicked at 14.05. "Available" took Therrien's pass at the Warrior blue line, went in from the right and banked in a shot off the post.

Hawks made it 3-0 just 33 seconds after the second period started. It was Jones again, this time backhanding a short shot past Truax after taking relays from Therrien and Gilmour.

Only 14 seconds later, Therrien added the fourth marker, sinking a low drive from 10 feet out after Jones had set him up. Packer finally got the visitors on the score sheet as he took McGill's breakaway pass and skated in alone to lift the puck over a falling Green.

Jacklin upped the count to 5-1 at 1.10 of the third period. Taking Doug Hull's pass at the enemy blue line, he barged right in to bang one home off Truax's pads. The Warriors battled back with Hutton cutting the margin by slipping in a goalmouth relay from Packer.

Gilmour put the locals four goals on top by taking passes from Jones and Goyer and beating Truax with a high shot. Jones made it 7-2, hammering Therrien's rebound into the twine. Gilmour was also in on the play.

With both teams playing shorthanded in the penalty parade, Gilmour tallied from the edge of the crease after being set up by Halstead and Goyer. Hutton wound up the scoring at 11.30, taking Art Truax's pass from behind the net and smashing it into the Belleville cage.

Missed by Mile

Archie Delbosco broke away with a minute to go, only to miss the net from 10 feet out. Green kicked out three hot Lindsay drives as the game ended.

Jones, Therrien and Gilmour naturally stood out for the winners. Halstead, Casey and Ray Hermiston were best of the other forwards. The defence played steady hockey, with Goyer and Delbosco being particularly active on the attack. Green played a solid game in goal.

Reg Truax, one of the better junior goalies in the business, was best of the losers. His brother Art, Hutton and Packer were also effective.

Jack Graham, Lindsay forward was thrown out of the game with a match misconduct penalty in the third period for questioning a decision by referee Stan Scrutton. He was sitting on the bench at the time of his remarks.

The teams:

Lindsay —Goal, R. Truax; defence, W. Williams, O'Neil; centre, Hutton; wings, A. Truax, Packer; alternates, Graham, Cochran, Gibson, G. Teel, R. Teel, McGill, Crawford and H. Williams.

Kitchener Out Minor Playdowns

KITCHENER (CP)—A meeting of the Kitchener Sports Association Tuesday night supported a suggestion that Kitchener should not take part in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association playdowns for an indefinite period.

Ed Tschirhart, secretary of the Kitchener Minor Hockey Association, said the necessity of declaring all-star teams by Feb. 15 for OMHA playdowns was the reason for concluding the city league series well ahead of that date.

Executive members said it would be better to operate a longer city series and forget the OMHA representation.

Livvies Pushed To Limit By Falls Quintet

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—Tillsonburg Livingstons, defending senior cage champions, were extended to the limit by an undermanned Niagara Falls Jolley quintet Wednesday night before taking a 66-62 victory in the opening game of the Ontario senior playoffs.

In a close-checking affair, Livvies trailed 14-13 at the end of the first quarter. In a basket-for-basket second stanza, the visitors gained a narrow 34-33 lead. Playing only five men after elongated Hack Swain was banished by the five-foul route, Jolleys moved ahead 52-50 at the end of the third quarter and held a 59-56 lead with only four minutes left in play.

Harry Wade, with a pair of late clutch baskets before leaving the game with five fouls, sparked the late Tillsonburg drive in gaining this initial win in the best-of-five series.

Moiras Win Basketball First Round With 77-51 Victory Over Brockville

By ED MACDONALD

"On to Peterborough" is the war cry of the Belleville Moiras fresh from last night's decisive win over the Brockville Generals in the second game of their Ontario Basketball home and home total point battle. And battle it was as a total of 57 fouls were called during the joust which saw the Moiras finish on top of a 77-51 count. This gave them a series margin of 137-103.

The Generals started fast and took an early lead. At quarter time they led 15-14, but during the second quarter the Belles wheeled out the heavy artillery and literally swaped the Brockville crew. At half time Bill Spafford's gladiators were well in front 42-26 and in the final canto they commanded the play and were 'in' all the way.

The ever watchful referees didn't miss many tricks and kept the game in hand by ruling with the iron fist. The boys were prone to rough it up and the misdemeaors were practically equally divided. Three of Belleville hoopsters were baned during the course of the game for collecting five black marks, while five of the Brock's came mighty close to exile with four infractions each.

Dousett Stars

Lou Dousett showed top form around the basket and missed few opportunities to swish the cords. During the fray be racked up 23 of the best and in addition played a strong two way game. The old reliable Moira sharpshooters Ed McClay and John Batchelor was outstanding on offence and defence as is their usual wont, and they counted 20 and 19 points respectively. At a matter of fact, the entire Belleville team played top ball throughout and should they keep up the same brand of game, they will be hard to beat by any forthcoming adversaries.

Don Paul spearheaded the Brockville attack with 17 markers, while the Kyle brothers came through with 11 each for the River City five.

Next step for the Moiras toward the Ontario Intermediate B. Crown will be the Peterborough Petes. The date of the first meeting has not yet been announced, but it will be played in Peterborough with the second game back in Belleville early next week. Look for the date and come out to see the locals in action.

The lineups:

Belleville Moiras: McClay (20), Batchelor (19), Muirhead (4), Hayman (4), Soules (6), Garrow (1), Pappas; Dousett (23).

Brockville Generals: Paul (17), Watson (7), Billings (2), Foss (1), R. Kyle (11), Ferguson, Valentgooed (2); B. Kyle (11).

BANCROFT

Pontiacs Whip Madoc 10-3 In Semi-Final Tilt

BANCROFT (Special)— It was the same old story on Monday night as the local Pontiacs whipped a plucky Madoc club 10-3 here before a crowd of 600 fans in the opening session of the Hastings—Addington league playoffs. The two teams are starting a best-of-five series, the winner to meet the victors of a like series between Tweed and Tamworth. Pontiacs seem bent on carrying their unbeaten-at-home record through playoff competition. The local boys lagged in the first period but came out strong in the second and third as it became apparent that the visitors were taking advantage of every opportunity. The outcome might well have been different had Madoc been able to ice a strong team which they seem unable to do this year. Despite this handicap they can always be depended on to turn in a hard-played game.

Clean play was the order of the evening, Len Dougall and Stu Stringer of the Pontiacs drawing the only penalties of the game for rough play.

An E for effort goes to "Buck" Carswell, Madoc goal tender, who kicked back a good number of pucks but was unable to repel some beautiful plays set up by Bob Ramsbottom, Doug Maxwell and the Brough brothers, Norman and Elwood. Another brother act, F. Nickle and G. Nickle, with O'Neill stood out for the visitors. Art Young played a bang-up game in the Pontiac net. First-period action ended in a 4-2 score on a pair of Pontiac goals by Norm Brough and singles by Doug Maxwell and Floyd Bruce. G. Nickle and Smith rang up one each for Madoc.

Bob Comrie and Elwood Brough scored during the latter part of the second period to put Bancroft well in the lead.

Third-period play saw Floyd Bruce, Doug Maxwell and Bob Comrie net their second goals for the night and Bob Ramsbottom add one to the total on a lavely play with Ted Maxwell to end the Pontiac scoring. Gawley of Madoc nabbed the only goal for the visitors unassisted.

The series continues at Madoc on Friday night. The last game of the league schedule, slated for last Friday night here, was forfeited by Tweed to the Pontiacs when the former team failed to appear for the game.

The teams: Bancroft — Goal, A. Young; defence, J. Hattin, L. Dougall, S. Stringer, C. McAlpine; forwards, E. Brough, B. Comrie, N. Brough, B. Ramsbottom, T. Maxwell, B. Green, R. Severin, D. Maxwell, B. Delyea, F. Bruce.

TIMMINS (CP) — Timmins-Schumacher Flyers bowled over the South End Porkies 9-3 Tuesday night to win their best-of-five semi-final series in the Porcupine Mines Hockey League, three games to two.

The Flyers now meet Abitibi Eskies in the finals.

Bears, Bisons Victors Over Hornets, Reds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hershey Bears blanked the second-place Pittsburgh Hornets 1-0 Wednesday night in American Hockey League play and the tail-end Buffalo Bisons turned back Providence Reds 5-3.

At Hershey, the victory gave the Bears undisputed possession of third place.

Leo Labin, recently sent to the Bears by Boston Bruins of the National League, scored in the first period to give Hershey a badly-needed victory.

Ken Davies paced Buffalo's attack with three goals. Lorne Davis and Calum Mackay netted the others. Moe Morris, Paul Gladu and Al Baccari tallied for Providence, sixth in the seven-team loop.

Riotous Fans Face Charges

SIMCOE (CP) — Police said charges would be laid against five men who participated in a brawl that broke out here Wednesday night during the second period of an intermediate A OHA playoff game between Simcoe Gunners and Fort Erie Chevs.

Constable Pat Lindsay of Simcoe had his tie ripped after he was allegedly jumped by a group of Fort Erie fans. A Simcoe fan who tried to assist him lost a wristwatch in the scramble.

Constable Lindsay had told a group to stop swearing when some of the fans jumped into action, swinging fists.

The five, all believed from Fort Erie, were lodged in Simcoe jail. Simcoe won the game 6-1.

Spring Training Camps Open In Sunny South

By BEN PHLEGAR

NEW YORK (AP) — It's baseball spring training time again.

From now until early April reports of the aches and pains and training games of some 600 assorted athletes will be seeping northward and eastward from playing fields in Florida, Cuba, Arizona and California.

Rookies you've never heard of, and many you'll never hear of again, will blaze into prominence. Veterans will try to absorb enough spring sunshine and enthusiasm to stretch one more season out of their sometimes unwilling bodies.

Baseball players tend to pile on pounds during the winter when they switch from a game a day to a fireside and slippers routine. So weight naturally is a big topic as the training camps open.

Eddie Stanky levied a $2-a-pound weight fine against his St. Louis Cardinals. When the Red Bird pitchers and catchers showed up at St. Petersburg, Fla., Wednesday, Cliff Chambers had to dig up $13. Stanky himself was 4½ pounds over and paid $9. Al Brazle and coach Johnny Riddle also were overweight.

At Brooklyn's lavish Vero Beach, Fla., layout, Roy Campanella pointed to the scales with pride as he weighed in at 203, almost 18 pounds under his World Series weight of last season.

The Dodgers decided to put in their first regular drill today although some of the players have been around for a couple of weeks.

Clem Labine, almost a dead loss because of arm trouble last year, threw fast and hard Wednesday and said his arm felt fine. Ralph Branca, another 1952 sore arm casualty, reported ready for full-scale work.

The news wasn't so pleasant at the West Palm Beach camp of Philadelphia Athletics. After only one workout pitcher Harry Byrd, last year's American League rookie-of-the-year, went to bed with the flu. He had a temperature of 101.

In San Bernardino, Calif., St. Louis Browns, rounding out a full week of training, spent the day practising run down plays between home plate and third base.

Chicago Cubs open today at Mesa, Ariz.

Murder Trial Of Two Canadians Opens Feb. 26

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The murder trial of two Canadians accused of the holdup-killing of a Buffalo jeweler last Dec. 9 will be called for Feb. 26, district attorney John F. Dwyer said Wednesday.

Dwyer notified defence lawyers of the tentative date. The case will be brought before State Supreme Court Justice William H. Munson at that time. Munsin then will fix a definite date.

The defendants are Maurice O'Dell, 28, and Walter Griffen, 27, both of Hamilton, Ont. They have pleaded innocent to charge of first-degree murder and robbery and are being held pending trial.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, FEB. 20, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Personal, social and civic interests highly favored. Contracts involving much money or time should be most cautiously handled. Avoid excessive anxiety.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—In things little known be minutely careful, especially with investments, obligations. Watch possible miscalculations, hasty decisions. But don't be tense.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Take business and financial matters in stride, not fanatically. Assert yourself when sure; smile your best. Things will work out all right.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Some negation concerning financial and uncertain propositions. Employ a diplomatic course; irritation can upset.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—May have to forgo some of your ambitions and concentrate on unfinished business. Conservative attitude will bring surer results.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Full speed ahead, if you have made proper plans and know your way. No half-way effort will do. It's all-out or backwards you go.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Keep everything under control with humor. May be changes when least expected. Emotional outbursts bring grief, injure health. Avoid them.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Allocate activities so that you can get maximum results in least time. Unpleasant reactions can be thwarted by keen handling of each task. Don't strain or become annoyed.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Neither too helpful nor hindering aspects except in activities requiring great energy, endurance, bravery. Our fighting forces especially sponsored.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Mostly up to your own initiative today. Indications favor professions, trades, domestic issues, and especially our war efforts.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—All your inborn assets can be applied to new achievement today. You may have to keep urging yourself to do more than ordinarily but, if you do, you will be well repaid.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Same advice as for Aquarius now. Steady, honest work will succeed and perhaps open new avenues for you.

YOU BORN TODAY aim high and like to be praised for what you do. Do not permit caution to become chronic. Overcaution can cause you to lose good opportunities. Think! And don't fear decisions.

Birthdate of: Jos. Jefferson, noted actor; Mary Garden opera singer.

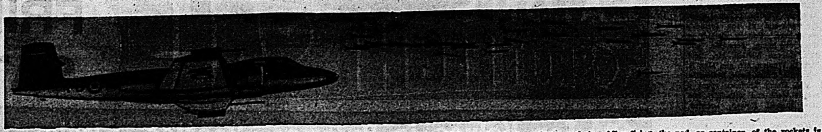
Canada's CF-100 Becomes First Rocket-Armored Aircraft in British Commonwealth



Deadly rockets fly from the pods of CF-100, Canada's all-weather jet fighter, in a practice run over the RCAF range at Trenton, Ont. The plane, first rocket-armored aircraft in the British Commonwealth, carries 60 rockets, which can be discharged singly or in salvoes and which are aimed by radar. It is believed that no bomber in the air could survive a direct hit by even one of the rockets. After firing, the pod, or container, of the rockets is jettisoned. This photo was taken one-eighth of a second after the rockets left the pods. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

British, French Boxing Impresarios Demand Title Bout, No Eliminations

By JACK HAND
(Fir Gayle Talbot)

NEW YORK (CP)—Boxing had its own Little United Nations session yesterday in the subdued charm of a quiet dining room over a swank restaurant here.

J. Onslow Fane was in town. J. Onslow is chairman of the British Board of Boxing Control.

As the angular British gentleman also is president of the European Boxing Union, he was a prize catch for the luncheon meeting of the New York Boxing Writers Association.

J. Onslow ran over the same old story that he has been telling in London for weeks. How he would insist that Randy Turpin fight only for the championship. No tournament or "eliminators" as he said.

"A fortnight ago," he said, "almost every American, except the women, were included in your middleweight tournament. Even a French welterweight. That struck me as slightly peculiar. But then, it might have been a slip of the pen."

Even Women

"We feel a fight between Turpin and the leading American should be for the title," he explained. "Or a fight between Turpin and Charles Humez. But no eliminator."

Fane also proposed a four-man international committee to insist on proper defences of world championships. That idea has been kicking around for some time.

The next international visitor was Gilbert Ben Aim, the leading French promoter, speaking on behalf of Humez, his box office ace.

"Who would get hurt if we let go Humez and Turpin? Maybe we would give your men a little more ambition to have somebody ready to fight the winner in September."

That prompted Abe Greene, the National Boxing Association commissioner, to warn American middleweights (Bobo Olson, in particular) to stop being "prima donnas" and get in the tournament or risk U.S. recognition of Hume-Turpin as a title bout.

The session broke up in a happy mood.

Fane still wants Turpin to fight for the title. Ben Aim still wants Hume-Turpin as a title bout. Green still wants Americans to have a chance at the title. Olson still wants to fight Turpin.

Ten of Auto Racing's Pioneer Greats Admitted to Brand New Hall of Fame

DETROIT (AP) — Auto racing's newly-organized Hall of Fame today opened its doors for the first time to receive the names of 10 of the sport's pioneer greats.

Among those elected to the hall, located at the Edison Institute in Greenfield village, were such early racing greats as Barney Oldfield, Louis Chevrolet, Ray Harroun and Henry Ford.

Ralph Thomas, president of the American Automobile Association, and Col. Arthur W. Herrington, chairman of the AAA contest board, announced the 10 candidates Wednesday night at a dinner honoring the hall and its first tennants.

In addition to Oldfield, Chevrolet, Harroun, and Ford, representatives of the auto industry, the press and auto racing elected Bert Dingley, Carl Fisher, William K. Vanderbilt, Harvey Firestone, Sr., T. E. (Pop) Meyers, and Fred Wagner.

Three Alive

Of the 10, only Meyers, Harroun, and Dingley are alive. Meyers at 79, is still active in auto racing as a vice-president of the Indianapolis Speedway.

Ford, founder of the vast industrial empire, was one of the first auto racing enthusiasts. The automotive pioneer set the first recognized speed record for the mile in 1904. Ford furnished the car in which Oldfield drove to fame and battled Chevrolet in many speed duels.

Harroun was the first driver to win the "500" at Indianapolis.

Oldfield and Chevrolet were the top early-drivers. They battled each other for speed honors.

Firestone was the founder of the tire company which developed the racing rubber that permits fantastic speeds today on the speedways.

Fisher founded the Indianapolis Speedway after a frustrating career as a race driver.

Vanderbilt gained distinction as the first international race driver. He also established the famed Vanderbilt Cup Race.

Wagner was generally considered the first historian and publicist of the sport.

Emms and Flyers Develop the Weeps Held Down to 2nd by Loss to the Teeps

A win was all Barrie Flyers needed Wednesday night but they didn't get it. Their 3-2 defeat at the hands of St. Catharines Teepees left the Flyers one point behind Toronto Marlboros, leading the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

A victory would have been a morale booster for Hap Emms' boys as they moved into the final stretch. Both the Flyers and Marlies have four more games to play.

Brockville Arena played host to Montreal Canadiens and Montreal Royals when the two teams of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey association played a postponed game scheduled originally at Montreal. The league-leading Canadiens won 7-3.

In Barrie, Brian Cullen scored twice for the fourth-place Teepees. Benny Poliziani notched the other goal. Fred Pletsch and Doug Mohns counted for Barrie.

Claude Vinet paced Canadiens with three goals. Guy Rousseau notched one goal and four assists. The other goals went to Walter McDonald, Len Croke and Les Lilley.

Ross Watson, Eddie Eustace and Sandy Morrison scored for the Royals.

Tonight the two Montreal teams journey to Kingston to play another postponed game. There is no action in the Ontario loop.

Sport in Brief

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — New Brunswick hopes in the Dominion bonspiel at Sudbury March 2-6 rest with a comparatively young rink.

Both in years and curling experience, the oldest member of the Moncton Beaver Club, winners of the provincial meet at Bathurst last week, is skip R. A. Noble, 45, an automobile dealer. This is his seventh year of curling.

His companions tiok up the sport about five years ago. They are: Mate, H. B. Trites, 37, a barrister; lead, H. R. Mitton, 31, sales manager, and second, A. E. Eeagles, 39, secretary of the Moncton Board of Trade.

BACK HURT, LIMBS ACHED NERVOUS, COULDN'T SLEEP

Got Bad Headaches, Dizzy Spells; Felt Sick, Rundown. Found Grand Relief Taking Syntona, She Says

Mrs. Chris Sandeff, 229 MacNab Street North, Hamilton, Ontario, is glad to pass her experience along to others because she knows what it means to get relief from rheumatic pain that kept her awake nights, as well as suffering from stomach disorders for several years.

Here is her experience:

"I was rundown and had so many things wrong with me I hardly knew which was the worst. The backache and rheumatic pains in my joints and muscles were a constant source of misery. I would get headaches and dizzy spells, and many days I was afraid to eat a meal because I suffered so with gas, indigestion and heartburn. My nerves were always on edge, I couldn't get to sleep at night and in the mornings I felt awful fatigued and worn out.

"But since I have been taking Syntona Herbal Compound, I have had more relief from my troubles and feel better than I did in several years. I can eat my meals once more and I do not suffer with gas, sourness or indigestion as I did before. Headaches and backache do not trouble me now and I have found relief from the pain and soreness in my joints and muscles.

"Also my nerves are calmed down, so I sleep soundly at night and I awaken mornings feeling more rested and refreshed. I can highly recommend this medicine to other people who suffer as I did."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan, the Druggist.

Ontario Hands Sasky Boy Curlers First Defeat in Dominion Bonspiel

SASKATOON (CP)—The possibility looks good of Canada's high school curling title going eastward for the first time.

Skip Bob Walker and three other Ontario players from the Oshawa Collegiate and Vocational Institute were hot Wednesday night as they trounced Saskatchewan 11-3.

It was Saskatchewan's first defeat in the nine-game round-robin competition and lifted Ontario into a first place tie. Each has six wins and one loss.

Walker, Duncan Brodie, Clair Peacock and George MacGregor were steadier than their rivals from the Scott Collegiate in Regina.

Skip Dennie Cochrane saved his Regina mates time after time with fine shots but the other three players were off color.

Thursday the bonspeil winds up with two more matches. Ontario, billed to meet Prince Edward Island and Quebec, appears to have the softer schedule.

Saskatchewan meets Nova Scotia and Alberta, two rinks which still have a mathematical chance of taking it all.

Saskatchewan won the championships in 1951 and 1952 and Manitoba the previous year.

Nova Scotia is third with a 5-2 record and Alberta third with a 4-3 mark.

Tied in fifth place are New Brunskick, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia with three wins and four losses.

A notch lower Northern Ontario and Manitoba have two wins and five losses. Last-place Quebec has won only one of its seven matches.

The largest crowd ever to watch high school curling in Canada, more than 3,000 fans, saw the Wednesday night games.

TAX BILL CUT $237,000,000 IN '53 BUDGET

Offensive Could End Korean War, Says Alexander

Sees No Other Way Out Of Deadlocked Situation

LONDON (AP) — Britain's defence chief said Thursday night an Allied drive up to Korea's narrow waist could end the war there.

But Field Marshal Earl Alexander, the minister of defence, cautioned that such an offensive—although limited in its territorial objective—would require more divisions than the Allies have on hand and probably would result in heavy casualties.

He said such a push is "the only possible military way" out of the present deadlocked situation.

Once the new line was established—some 150 miles north of where the Allied and Communist armies now are dug in—South Koreans could take over a lot of the new defences and so relieve pressure on United Nations manpower.

Alexander told a group of U. S. correspondents the Chinese Communists might then decide they were not bogging down sufficient numbers of Allied divisions to make continuation of the war worthwhile.

The famed Second World War commander was answering a reporter's question as to how military actions might be used to end the Korea fighting.

Alexander was understood to mean a limited Allied offensive should stop somewhere around the Pyongyang-Wonsan line south of the 40th parallel. This would shorten the front line about one-third to approximately 100 miles.

Small Operator Given Break

OTTAWA (CP)—The corner-store candy man who makes and wraps up his goodies on the spot gets a break in Thursday night's budget.

On his confectionery, he won't be charged the 10-per-cent sales tax or the 15-per-cent "luxury" excise tax that the larger concerns pay.

The tax is being removed from the little operator, it was understood, because it would cost more to collect—in money and trouble—than it would be worth.

Hensler Given Month for Theft Of Currie Report

MONTREAL (CP) —Federick Hensler was convicted today of theft of an advance copy of the controversial Currie report and sentenced to one month in jail.

The sentence was passed by Judge Gustave Marin, who presided Thursday at the 37-year-old print plant employee's four-hour trial on the charge, laid after a copy of the report on army works services came into the hands of the CCF party before its presentation in Parliament.

Claim New Gun Always on Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Army said Thursday it has guided missiles so good "it is almost impossible for them to miss a target."

In a summary entitled "Army's New Guided Missiles now Roll off the Assembly Lines," the service declared that:

"The army now has weapons that aim themselves, after the trigger is pulled, and it is almost impossible for them to miss a target.

"Enemy planes can dive, bank, side slip or turn tail—but the army's new weapons still will knock them out of the skies.

"Fantastic though it may seem, one of the army's surface-to-air missiles—the Nike-carriers a guidance system designed to allow the missiles to out-manoeuvre and hit enemy aircraft."

UK Papers Play Up Income Tax Cut

LONDON (CP) — Three evening newspapers today gave front-page play to news of Canada's 11-per-cent cut in income tax.

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard made it the main story, under a bold headline. The Evening News and Star also used it prominently. All used the same heading: "Canada Cuts Income Tax." There was no immediate editorial comment.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Rain is spreading into Southern Ontario today in the southerly current of mild air ahead of a storm that is intensifying over Nebraska and moving northeastward. Snow that spread into northern regions of the province early this morning will change to rain later today as far north as Kirkland Lake. Northerly regions of the province, in the path of this storm, will likely receive from five to 10 inches of new snow.

Colder air that covers the Praries and northern states will push southward across Ontario following the passage of this storm. As temperatures lower across the province Saturday, snowflurries are expected to develop near the Great Lakes.

OTTAWA (CP)—Extension of the five-day week to cover civil servants in 21 cities of Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec was announced today.

Marie, Stratford, Trenton, Windsor, all in Ontario, Vancouver and New Westminster in B.C., and Quebec City.

The civil service commission said the step must not interfere with service to the public, must not lead to increases in staff and that the work week through the year must average a minimum of 38.2 hours.

St. Louis Cards Sold ToBrewery;$3,750,000

ST. LOUIS. (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals of the National League were sold today for $3,750,000 to Anheuser-Busch, Inc., of St. Louis, one of the largest breweries in the United States.

Pravda Tells How Woman Doctor Exposed 'Sly Medical Assassins'

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda today described the key role played by a Soviet woman physician in exposing nine doctors accused of plotting to assassinate top Russian leaders.

Dr. Lydia Timashuk has been awarded the Order of Lenin for assisting the government in exposing the nine. They are accused of destroying or plotting to destroy Russian leaders on orders from British and American intelligence and a Jewish international relief organization.

The Communist party newspaper said Dr. Timashuk's suspicions were aroused when she saw a famous Soviet doctor giving an incorrect diagnosis and prescribing treatment which she thought would lead to the death of the patient.

Pravda said the woman, after puzzling over why such a famed doctor had made such a crudely erroneous diagnosis, concluded that she was dealing with an enemy of the people.

Pravda went on:

"Here at the cot of the patient there met two people in white doctors' clothes. One was a scientist with a big name and scientific degrees. The other had no (honorary) degrees, but possessed great experience, and knowledge accumulated in more than 20 years as a doctor and was inspired with a high sense of responsibility for the health and lives of the Soviet people.

"Both have exactly the same analyses and both have before their eyes the same symptoms, but the woman doctor sees: A person with scholarly degrees give an incorrect diagnosis.

"Incorrect diagnosis means incorrect treatment and this means death. . .

"Yes, before her stood an enemy — not just one, but a gang of enemies of the Soviet Union — malicious, sly and well disguised."

EXTENSION OF ACT SPELLS TWILIGHT OF DEMOCRACY

--Drew

Emergency Powers Act Bitterly Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons heard a warning Thursday that the switch from democracy to dictatorship can be swift and easy for a government seeking power to act without parliamentary approval.

It came from Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit spokesmen opposing extension for another year of the government's Emergency Powers Act. Under the act—due to expire May 31 unless renewed—the government has wide powers to move on a moment's notice in many fields, including transportation, communications and production.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said extension of the act "spells the twilight of democracy." Hazen Argue (CCF-Assiniboia) said the act is unnecessary since Parliament can meet within 48 hours. Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-Macleod) argued the cabinet should not have the power that belongs to Parliament.

Justice Minister Garson said the extension of the act to May 31, 1954, is necessary because an "emergency of apprehended war" faces Canada. No one could say how long the emergency would last.

Those who professed to uphold civil and parliamentary rights and curb executive power could not but support extension of an act where the government's power was specifically laid down. If it were not renewed then the government would be left with wider arbitrary powers under the War Measures Act which it did not want to invoke.

Formal Division

The issue precipitated a formal division. The government motion to give committee consideration to the proposal to extend the legislation was upheld by 154 to 61 in a straight party vote.

Highlight of the parliamentary day was Finance Minister Abbott's presentation of the budget

Cleared Oak Trees, Was Fined $500

SIMCOE (CP)—Mike Hungler, R.R. 1, Delhi, was fined $500 and costs Thursday for bulldozing 1½ acres of white oak trees on his property in contravention of Norfolk county conservation laws.

Charges were laid by Munroe Landon, chairman of the Norfolk tree conservation commission.

Magistrate H. P. Innes, in passing sentence, said that in future such offences will bring jail terms instead of just fines.

Hungler had held a permit in 1949 to clear four acres of trees, but did not get permission to clear the 1½ acres of oaks.

Deaths of Three Persons Blamed on Storm Whistling Along East Slope of Rockies

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A radio report to the Sterling, Colo., police station early this morning said that nine school children and a bus driver missing since Thursday in the snow-locked northern Colorado had been found safe and unharmed at a farm house.

The bus had last been heard from at 3 p. m. Thursday.

Deaths of three persons were blamed on the storm, which pushed its way into the area Wednesday with winds that reached 65 miles an hour.

The weather bureau here said there had been greater snow depths but not as much sustained wind with a snow storm in the region since the big one in 1949, which took 17 lives in five days.

Whistling along the eastern slope of the Rockies, this storm shucked off 12 inches of new snow at Cheyenne and nine inches at Denver.

13 Inches of Snow

Wheatland, in the central part of Wyoming, got 13 inches of new snow and, added to some already on the ground, that made a total of 19 inches. Most snow depths in the area were two to six inches.

Auto and air traffic was slowed to a crawl, if not halted, power and telephone lines were blocked out and many rural and small community schools were closed.

Storm warnings went out to Minnesota and northern sections of Wisconsin and Michigan Thursday night as they appeared in the path of the storm, which erupted from the meeting of Canadian and Pacific fronts. Earlier, 40-mile-an-hour winds had blasted both southern California and the Texas Panhandle.

FOUND NOT GUILTY

CHATHAM (CP)—Glen Greenwood and William Pickard, both of Thamesville, jointly charged on Nov. 22 with having criminally assaulted a 24-year-old Thamesville girl, were acquitted Thursday by a jury after more than an hour's deliberation.

Oliver Critical Of Hydro Costs In Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — An investigation for wasteful operation in the Ontario hydro-electric commission was demanded Thursday in the provincial legislature.

Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver, opening the debate on the speech from the throne, said the people have no guarantee the hydro system is being conducted "in the best interests of the public and with an eye to economy."

He criticized the cost-plus contract awarded to the Canadian Comstock Company for conversion of power in southern Ontario from 25 to 60 cycles.

"When conversion was started the cost was given as $191,000,000" he said, "It has risen to an estimated $275,000,000 and now it appears it could run to $350,000,000.

Cheap Power Gone

"The day of cheap power in Ontario has gone. It would appear we are in for successive rate increases in the years ahead."

Premier Frost said hydro rates are slightly lower than they were in 1944. He said this was accomplished despite the increasing costs hydro must cope with for labor and materials.

"Rather than going to the dogs," he said, "this indicates hydro is going along at a pretty good level."

"Let us check into the Comstock Company for the value it is giving Ontario," Mr. Oliver said. "While checking we might ask hydro to look into its administration costs. If hydrd is to remain competitive, then its costs must be kept down."

PREMIER FROST PLEDGES GREATER MUNICIPAL AID

Will Exceed Grants Given Last Year

TORONTO (CP)—Municipal governments in Ontario can look for more financial help frpm the province in the coming year. Just how much help remains a question.

Premier Frost said Thursday during the throne speech debate that municipal aid in the next year will exceed the $120,000,000 in grants and other forms of assistance given last year.

"Last year we turned back 40 per cent of our revenue to the municipalities," he said. "It will be more than that this year."

He declined to say how much the government's municipal assistance program will be increased. Informed observer: have predicted it will be considerable.

The premier's statement followed an hour-long speech by Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver in which the government was criticized for its municipal policy, highway operations and the Ontario municipal board's recommendations for coordinating the services of 13 municipalities in the Greater Toronto area.

Mr. Oliver objected to the municipal board's recommendation for an appointed council to govern the Toronto area municipalities. He said any council should be elected by the public.

Protection Given

Hard-pressed home buyers may get added protection from lawsuit, if they fall behind in their mortgage payments.

Most mortgages contain a clause which provides that in event of failure to meet an instalment payment on the interest or principal of the debt the company holding the mortgage can sue for the entire balance of the mortgage.

An amendment to the Mortgage Act introduced in the Legislature Wednesday, appearing in printed form in House records Thursday, would give mortgagees a chance to reinstate themselves by paying up the amount due and forestalling a lawsuit.

Film Available

OTTAWA (CP) — A two-hour television film of the Coronation ceremony will be made available to the CBC by the BBC.

A CBC official said Thursday the BBC plans to make the film available to everyone, including the United States. The cost of printing the film will be shared by those getting it.

This would amount to "peanuts," he said.

Popular Negro Family at Amherstburg Knows Meaning of Brotherhood Week

AMHERSTBURG (CP) — It was just coincidence that this historic town's latest act of spontaneous brotherhood was terminated during National Brotherhood Week.

It wasn't planned that way when most of the 3,000 residents dug into their pockets last January to help the Wilson family.

The Wilsons, a popular Negro family, were planning a New Year's Day family celebration when disaster struck.

Herman Wilson, 31-year-old railway worker, stopped off at a Windsor hospital on his way home from work the day before New Year's to pick up his wife who had been a patient there. En route home they were overtaken by an ambulance and decided to follow to see what "was going on." They were soon stopped by police and taken to headquarters where they were told fire had destroyed their home and claimed the lives of two of their six children. Dead were Ronnie, 4, and Karen, 20 months.

While the charred ruins were still smouldering, Mayor Bill Natress called a special meeting and a "help the Wilsons committee" was formed under chairman Thomas Moffatt.

"Every week is brotherhood week in this town," a committee spokesman said, "when a family is in trouble."

Some $4,500 was donated; carpenters, electricians and plumbers offered their services free; building supply companies donated materials and contributions of bedding and furniture were delivered to the committee by townspeople.

Thursday the almost-completed, five-room bungalow was passed over to Mr. and Mrs. Wilson by Mayor Natress.

"My husband is working steadily," Mrs. Wilson said. "We'll get along. It's all been so wonderful what people have done for us."

A clause in the agreement says the house cannot be disposed of or mortgaged until the children become of age.

Residents of Amherstburg, 15 miles south of Windsor, boast that there is no such thing as discrimination in the town.

The community, settled in 1796, became a haven for fugitive Negro slaves who fled across the Detroit river from the United States during the Civil War. Many present residents are descendants of the original settlers and of Negroes who escaped here.

Lops Nuisance Taxes, Reduces Tax On Incomes

Cigarets Cost 4 Cents Less A Package by New Bill

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The government, in wide-swinging but mostly light cuts of the tax ax, has chopped $237,000,000 from the federal tax bill.

Finance Minister Abbott is considered to have set up the Liberal party for a general election this year, so far as taxes go, in his budget speech to the Commons Thursday night.

The budget seemed to lend emphasis to a fall, rather than spring, election from its delayed-action effect of an 11-per-cent cut in personal income taxes, effective July 1. This will make the 1953 income tax reduction about 5½ per cent.

The $87,000,000-a-year personal income tax cut, the figure for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1954, was coupled with immediate reduction in the excise duty on cigarets, concessions on personal taxes apart from the direct rate cut, elimination of the $2.50 radio licence fee, corporation tax reductions and such things as the removal of the "nuisance" stamp tax on cheques and similar documents.

The cigaret tax change, one of those reaching most directly into the pocket on day-to-day spending, is a drop of four cents for a package of 20. It will bring the package price down to 35 cents where provinces do not impose additional levies.

No Political Reaction

In the Commons, as Mr. Abbott presented what he called a "social dividend" budget to Canadians, there was an immediate political reaction.

Dog Rescues Baby Before Fire Known

MENDON, Mass. (AP) — A German shepherd dog pulled a baby girl from a burning house Thursday night before anyone else was aware the house was afire.

Mrs. James Stimson said she let the dog into the house after he barked furiously to have the door opened. She said he ran directly to a play pen and hauled nine-month-old Billie Jean to the yard.

Mrs. Stimson said that not until then did she realize another part of the house was afire. She gathered her other two children and fled herself.

Tax Cut on Fags A 'Fair Deal' Says Minister

TORONTO (CP)—The four-cent-a-pack cut in cigaret taxes announced by Finance Minister Abbott in his budget was welcomed as a "fair deal" by Agriculture Minister Thomas of Ontario, himself a grower of flue-cured tobacco.

But in Leamington, Ont., the chairman of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Association said the reduction was only "a short step in the right direction."

Francis R. Gregory said the association would continue to work for reduction of the "outrageous taxes imposed on cigarets" and hoped eventually to bring the price low enough to halt smuggling.

Agriculture Minister Thomas said "I think they (the federal government) have gone about as far as it is practical to go."

B. O. Currin, manager of the Aylmer plant of Imperial Leaf Tobacco Company of Canada Ltd., said he hopes tobacco acreage will be increased considerably, "bringing greater prosperity to the tobacco areas."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—"Penny" trading and post-budget dealings combined today to boost the volume of stock market trading to 2,580,000 shares for the first hour—just 200,000 shares below the exchange record.

Prices generally responded favorably to the budget news. Industrials jumped 2.12 points in the first hour—their sharpest movement in weeks. Base metals gained more than half a point on the exchange index and golds and western oils showed minor advances.

Heaviest trader of the first hour was Wingait which moved more than 5,000,000 shares to add two cents at 15 cents.

Gunnar, one of the leading uraniums now past the $10 mark, added one-eighth of a point. Inspiration and New Larder U slipped.

Few losses were recorded in industrials as papers, foods and steels were strong. Refining oils, constructions, agricultures and miscellaneous issues also gained firmly.

Higher-priced base metals gained and senior golds held firm. Western oils showed a small majority of gains.

$5,000,000 Worth of Annual Imports Had Tariffs Reduced

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government Thursday night reduced tariffs on about $5,000,000 worth of annual imports, but kept plans for major reductions under wraps, awaiting world tariff bargaining at the end of the year.

The reductions, estimated to trim federal revenues on duties by about $1,000,000 a year, are spread among some 40 items, from isotopes to electric stove clocks and affect mostly imports from the United States.

They will benefit the mines and the fishermen, importing machinery and equipment from American factories, and Canadian servicemen returning from foreign service with household goods on which they no longer will pay duty.

On some items the budgetary changes eliminate tariff preferences to Commonwealth countries; on others, the preference remains intact.

But on the whole the extent of the cuts were not as drastic as in previous annual budgets, and, informants said, there's a reason.

Another big international tariff conference is expected towards the end of the year, possibly in Canada, and the tariff experts are holding their fire, ready to give new tariff concessions to other countries only in return for those which will benefit Canada.

The ban on imports of goods made in foreign prisons is eliminated and the power is granted tariff officials to grant individual import permits through order-in-council.

Because Canada's production of isotopes has been cut drastically by the break-down in the Chalk River, Ont., atomic plant, the government has decided to eliminate the previous 15-per-cent tariff on American isotopes now needed in Canada.

The U.S. has no duty on Canadian atomic oven products.

Assisting the fishing industry, the government virtually cut the tariff by half on imports of wire rope or cable used in commercial fishing operations.

To aid the nickel production operations in northern Manitoba, the tariff on certain ore extraction machinery is eliminated.

No Agreement On Proposal To Change Hours

Trenton—At a meeting in the town hall last night about 40 out of the 170 Trenton Retail Merchants discussed early Saturday night closing. It was proposed to remain open until 9.00 p.m. on Fridays and close at 6.00 p.m. Saturdays.

No agreement was reached after several hours of talking and a suggestion to close shops every night in the week met favor among some.

The question will be discussed again soon.

Colored Movies Seen

Local and out-of-town members of the Trenton Country Club gathered at the club house on King street last night when colored movies of Jim Uttley's 1952 Christmas party for the Salvation Army were shown. Member Jim Whytock, manager of Central Bridge, shooting with the help of member Fred Parker filmed the production considered an improvement on his effort last year.

Team Loses Protest

Carr's Admirals lost the benefit of the doubt protesting Wellington's 6-5 win at Wellington last week. President Art Duncan presiding at the hearing by the Trent Valley Hockey League executive last night ruled Trenton's case was not strong enough.

Trenton launched the protest on grounds that Wellington dressed 15 players contrary to league rule 15 which states that a team shall not dress more than 14 players.

Trenton's league standing was not hurt by the executives decision.

No Licence Fee Will be Imposed On Television Sets

OTTAWA (CP)—The annual $2.50 licence fee on radio sets will be abolished March 31 and no licence fee will be imposed on television sets.

Finance Minister Abbott said Thursday night in his budget speech that in lieu of licence fees the government will give the publicly-owned CBC the revenues from the existing 15-per-cent tax on radios, television sets, tubes and accessories. The tax will yield the CBC an estimated $12,000,000 in 1953-54.

The government plans to keep separate accounts on amounts received from the tax on radios and from the tax on television sets. The radio tax will be turned over to the CBC for use on radio broadcasting; the tax on TV sets for television.

The tax revenue will be in addition to the $6,250,000 annual grant the CBC receives from the federal treasury for radio broadcasting.

Mr. Abbott announced that, effective at once, the 15-per-cent tax will be applied on TV sets purchased by Canadian visitors to the United States.

Heretofore, Canadians remaining in the United States 48 hours have been allowed to bring back duty-free up to $100 worth of American goods, including television sets.

The CBC now operates TV stations in Toronto and Montrea. It plans others in Ottawa, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Halifax.

At one time, the government was reported to be considering a $15 annual licence fee on TV receiving sets.

Mr. Abbott said the government's policy is to have the cost of national television service paid, as far as practicable, by those who benefit from such service.

The transfer of the special excise tax to the CBC would eccomplish that purpose.

So far, CBC TV operations have been financed by loans from parliament. It now was expected that, in addition to commercial television revenues, the CBC would require about $6,00,000 in 1953-54 to meet operating costs of television, including interest on loans.

This requirement would increase during the next few years to possibly $10,000,000.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 3-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Thursday's noon rate was 98 cents. Pound sterling $2.76 1-16 against $2.75 5-16.

Canadian Business Given Tax Relief of $120 Million Yearly

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian business Thursday was given tax relief estimated at $120,000,000 a year, or $85,000,000 in the coming fiscal year, with a special nod to smaller businesses with modest profits.

The corporation tax as it stood collected 20 per cent on the first $10,000 of profits and 50 per cent on all profits over that amount.

As amended by the budget, effective from Jan. 1 last, the tax will collect 18 per cent on the first $20,000 of profits, and 47 per cent on profits over that amount.

Thus the amount subject to the lower rate of tax has been doubled, the lower rate has been reduced by two per cent, and the higher rate by three per cent.

Finance Minister Abbott said that while by far the greater part of corporation taxes comes from large corporations, small corporations are by far the more numerous. Consequently, he estimated that about 70 per cent of corporate tax payers will not pay more than the 18-per-cent rate.

He said doubling of the amount to which the lower rate will apply seems "a useful way to give relief to relatively small businesses which generally have to do their financing out of their earnings."

The rates announced do not include the two-per-cent old-age security tax.

Under another change, the present 10 per cent of dividends from Canadian corporations which may be credited against personal income tax is increased to 20 per cent, effective last Jan. 1. This will bring an estimated loss in revenue of $20,000,000.

Eighth Straight Budget Surplus Government Aim

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government is aiming for its eighth consecutive budgetary surplus in 1953-54, a year when revenues are expected to hit another record despite a $243,000,000 reduction in taxes.

In his budget speech to the Commons Thursday night, Finance Minister Abbott outlined how it will be possible for him to collect more, spend more, cut taxes and still more than balance the budget.

The secret lies in the value of gross national production.

Mr. Abbott estimated the value of gross national production—the value of all goods and services produced by Canadians — will increase to a record $24,000,000,000 this year, up $1,000,000,000.

The increase means corporations will produce more and will have more taxable profits; more individuals will be working and paying personal income tax; with more money available, individuals and corporations will spend more on articles subject to federal tax.

The result will be more revenue for the government, even with lower taxes.

Mr. Abbott said if taxes remained at their 1952-53 rates he would finish the 1953-54 fiscal year with a surplus of $248,000,000. His revenues would amount to $4,710,000,000 against expenditures of $4,462,000,000.

However, he planned to cut taxes by $237,000,000, reducing his revenues to $4,473,000,000 and his surplus to $11,000,000.

The $237,000,000 figure did not include a $6,000,000 reduction to the taxpayer resulting from repeal March 31 of the annual $2.50 licence fee on radio receiving sets. Revenue from the fee has been paid directly to the publicly-owned CBC and has never been considered as part of the government's revenue structure.

The estimated revenues of $4,473,000,000 will top the 1952-53 record of $4,375,000,000. The expenditures of $4,462,000,000 will compare with 1952-53 outlays of $4,327,000,000, below the record of $5,322,253,505 in 1944.

If experience can be taken as a guide, the forecast surplus of $11,000,000 will prove to be low. In every year since 1947, the surplus has outranked the budget forecast.

A year ago, Mr. Abbott forecast a surplus of $9,000,000 for the current year. Thursday night he said he now expects to end the year with a surplus of $48,000,000, small in comparison with others he has reported since he presented his first budget in 1947.

His 1947 surplus of $376,600,000 broke a string of 17 consecutive deficits during the last war and the depression. He had a record surplus of $676,100,000 in 1948.

His seven surpluses, totalling approximately $2,284,000,000, were used to reduce the national debt to $11,137,500,000 from a post-war peak of $13,421,400,000.

Abbott Makes Tax Concessions To Provinces

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott made two tax concessions to the provinces Thursday night.

In his budget, he placed corporations in Quebec, the only province without a federal tax agreement, on the same basis as corporations in all other provinces. He repealed the tax on the transfer of securities.

The securities tax ranges from one-tenth of one per cent up to four cents depending on the value of the security sold. The provinces will be free to re-impose the tax at the provincial level.

Until last year, all provinces except Ontario and Quebec collected a five-per-cent tax on corporation profits. Ontario and Quebec, then both without a federal tax agreement, collected a seven-per-cent tax.

A year ago, the five-per-cent tax collected by the seven provinces with tax agreements was incorporated into the federal tax structure. Later, Ontario signed an agreement, leaving only Quebec with a seven-per-cent tax on corporations.

The federal government has allowed corporations to deduct five per cent of the amount they paid in provincial corporation taxes on profits. That credit now is being boosted to seven per cent.

EXTENSION

at the night sitting. He painted a financial picture that included an 11-per-cent income tax reduction—beginning July 1 next—return of the 35-cent package of 20 cigarets through a four-per-cent cigaret tax reduction, and elimination of the annual $2.50 radio licence fee. Corporation taxes also were scaled slightly.

The public galleries were packed for this event.

J. M. Macdonnell, financial critic for the Progressive Conservative opposition, said Mr. Abbott's budget was not as rosy as it looked at first glance. The small income man would find he got mighty little and it appeared to be a government move to reach for votes in what is generally considered an election year.

In the debate on the Emergency Powers Act Mr. Drew said once any government gets power as wide as that under the act it is reluctant to give it up. The act afforded the government arbitrary power over the life of every Canadian if it chose to declare an emergency.

A Liberal, A. H. Jeffery, who represents London constituency, joined in the debate to say he does not approve of the Emergency Powers Act, but he would not like to see the government forced to invoke the far-wider powers of the War Measures Act, used in the Second World War.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) said the Emergency Powers Act could destroy the rights of Parliament and the constitutional powers of the provinces. The emergency was "largely of the government's own making" because of its taxation policies.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes VC (PC-Nanaimo) said "at the present moment we are living on the edge of dictatorship."

The switch from democracy to dictatorship could be "swift and easy" for a government which sought many more bills such as the Emergency Powers Act.

NEW PROBATION METHODS INDICATED

A report from Queen's Park indicates that Attorney-General Dana Porter plans to do something about changes in the system of probation for convicted persons in Ontario. It is a matter to which considerable study has been given and reforms measures appear to offer definite advantages.

There are more men in the jails and reformatories, and on industrial farms in this province than there are confined in the whole of Britain. And Britain has roughly twelve times the population. Probation methods there appeal to Mr. Porter.

The economic loss under the present system is a big one. Time spent behind bars in Ontario represents one million man-days a year. In Britain many of these men would be free and part of the labor force of the community.

It costs several thousands dollars a year to keep a man in jail while it is estimated that it costs only about $50 a year to supervise that man on probation. In the Old Country the experience has been that the probationer is seldom a repeater when the system is functioning properly.

Of course Britain set up its system long ago—in 1900. In Ontario, properly planned probationary treatment is only getting under way. D. W. Couglin, the recently appointed chief of probation, has only 15 full-time men to handle adult probationers and ten of these are in Toronto. He is advocating a school in which probation officers would be properly trained. The Attorney-General has indicated that some appropriation for training will be in estimates presented to the current session of the Legislature.

Setting up of a school and the development of a system which would achieve the results which have been obtained in Britain would cost quite a sum but it is argued that eventually the actual savings in administration would be counted in some millions of dollars, quite apart from the benefits gained in making useful citizens out of countless potential criminals.

The known results in Britain give weight to proposals for reform measures here.

FRIENDLY MAN IN THE WHITE HOUSE

There are some who doubt that President Eisenhower has been winning as many friends abroad as he might have in his first month in the White House but there is little doubt his public relations policy at home is something new and different in Washington.

When the President called in Democratic leaders in Congress along with Republicans this week to brief them on the global military picture he was following up a friendly relations program which is already unique in White House records. Last week the General set a precedent when he invited the ten opposition leaders in the House to sit down at lunch with the top Republicans. And it was strictly a social affair. Talk of business, policy, legislation or other administrative problems was taboo.

But more impressive is the fact that before this month is out the President plans to have lunch with every member of Congress. In the most thorough-going and cordial manner Eisenhower is getting acquainted with the men he will have to work with through the next four years. Such a thing has never been attempted before. As a host at the White House the President permits no party distinctions. Outsiders have included Adlai Stevenson.

It is conceded that affairs of this kind do much to smooth relations between the President and Congress but those close to the scene see behind it all that Eisenhower is naturally a friendly, sociable man. One observer says: "The President is more than courteous—he is cordial, almost folksy. The famed Eisenhower grin goes on, the Eisenhower charm goes to work. He makes his visitors comfortable and then encourages them to talk." And these get-to-gethers are always small groups which are often on a first-name basis.

More than their immediate predecessors, Roosevelt and Truman were friendly and sociable presidents, easily met, but Eisenhower has introduced a new relationship between the White House and the legislators. That he is doing so at the cost of encroachment on a busy working day is obvious. He is up before six and has studied newspapers and official reports, has breakfast and is at his desk by half past eight. It is often seven in the evening before he finishes a crowded, official day.

If there are no night assignments the President likes to get in an hour or so at his easel. Golf, his favorite other diversion, is badly neglected but occasionally he gets out on the spacious White House lawn for a few practice swings with his irons.

"We owe our place in the world to the energies and ideas of men who came from many different countries and who have various racial and religious backgrounds. Here they live in equality and work for the common good."—Henry Ford II.

JUST FOLKS

REAL NERVE

I admire the splendid courage of the soldier in the strife
Who faces death undaunted and for freedom gives his life,
And I'm sure the aviator as he speeds across the sky
Is in every way a braver and a pluckier man than I,
But I sing the greater courage of the reckless youth and rash
Who braves the whole world's jeering while he's raising a mustache.

I have sat at times and marvelled at some daring acrobat
And I've said as I applauded: "I would never tackle that."
I have seen brave men and fearless risk their precious lives for pay
And I've wondered at their courage, but I rise right here to say
That above these mighty heroes that across our vision flash,
I place the nervy brother who is raising a mustache.

I might in times of danger risk my trivial neck to save
A brother from disaster and a sad and early grave;
I might some day go flying in an airplane through the sky
(Though I doubt it at this writing, for I have no wish to fly);
I might try some bold adventure for a bit of fame or cash—
But I lack the nerve that's needed to attempt a cute mustache.

Roasting Without Ox

(St. Catharines Standard)

Mrs. Jean Mann, Labor M.P. from Scotland and a woman with a dry wit, asked the British Food Minister, Gwilym Lloyd George, where applications could be made for "an ox to roast" at Coronation time. That was the kind of celebration they went for in the days of Elizabeth the First. The suggestion about roasting an ox precipitated an all-round roasting of the government, which is letting each person buy and extra pound of sugar and a quarter of a pound of margarine more than usual.

Labor members in particular are indignant at the meagerness of those Coronation bonuses. [illegible] Shurmer asked the Min-[illegible] he realized the margarine bonus was becoming a joke up and down thec ountry. Was that the measure of the government's contribution to the Coronation? Norman Dodds suggested that if the Minister couldn't be more generous, it would be more appropriate to have him (the Minister) roasted instead of the ox.

Major Lloyd George replied tartly that was unlikely, since it was his job to issue the roasting licences.

It is a pretty complicated piece of business to try and bring in ye olde customs of a feudal state, long extinct, with the austerity of a modern welfare state. But the Briton must have his joke above all. On the British TV, they have a popular bearded chef, Philip Harben, and the public is demanding that he produce lessons on TV on how to roast an ox.

Ersatz To Scots

(Detroit Free Press)

German scientists have found a way to "age" Scotch in a few hours by vibrating at high frequency a quartz crystal in a cask of whiskey by means of an electronic oscillator.

Taste experts of the British Whiskey Distillers Association placed their stamp of disapproval on electronic Scotch by saying: "If you have a tongue in your head and a gullet behind it, you don't need to ask our advice."

Since electronic Scotch apparently has to be shaken before it is imbibed the British have blacklisted it by refusing to allow "shake well before using" labels to be glued on whiskey bottles.

It would not be considered good form for British gentlemen, who like their Scotch aged at least seven years in wood, to be seen shaking a bottle of that beastly German stuff. Besides, it's a rival export.

Flood Incident

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

One of the minor tragedies of floods is the loss and suffering among animals, especially among household pets of which children become passionately fond. One can understand, therefore, the joy of a little girl on Canvey Island who, to the great alarm of her mother was missing for some time, and turned up before the rescue boat moved on, bearing a cat in her arms and shouting gleefully, "Mum, I've found Tiddles."

'Mother 'Why Can't I Go There?'

(By Edith Johnson in Oklahoman and Times, Oklahoma)

How little mothers belonging to a majority group suspect how often mothers in a minority group face problems brought to them by their dismayed children whose tender feelings have been hurt either by children of their own age or by thoughtless adults. And how seldom a mother in a minority group dares to speak up before members of a majority group, telling them how very difficult it is to explain to children, the more difficult in the case of boys and girls of a tender age.

One mother, however, recently mustered the courage to stand up in an important statewide gathering of men and women whose major interest is spreading the gospel of mental health.

"I am a mother of five boys and girls," said the comely, intelligent woman in her middle thirties. "Again and again my children come home, not infrequently with tears in their eyes and say, 'Mother, why can't I go there Why can't I do that? —other children can.' Or, 'Somebody called me an ugly name today. What does it mean?'

"Can the mothers and fathers in this room who belong to a majority group realize what a difficult feat it is to rear children who are made to feel inferior time after time and who cannot understand why this should be so?"

After she had finished speaking in a quiet voice and had sat down a hush fell over that big room. For the first time in their lives, perhaps, mothers of children in the majority group and some fathers, likewise, heard a woman belonging to another race talk straightforwardly about this problem. How she tried to prevent her children from developing feelings and attitude of fear and resentment.

At the close of the meeting several of the groups' majority leaders hurried to the side of the mother saying, "I am so glad you said just what we have heard. Truly, I had not given a serious thought to the effect some of our heedless words and gestures must produce."

And the latter spoke honestly for old manners and customs are not always measured by the Golden Rule, and consequently they may remain unchanged from year to year. Acts that seem to be painfully cruel to persons suffering from them are repeated chiefly because the very persons who commit them have not put themselves imaginatively in the places of their fellow-beings who may be confused, baffled and grieved by them.

It is to interpret one group to another groups and to develop better relationship among people of different races and different faiths that the Conference of Christians and Jews works around the calendar and that once a year it celebrates Brotherhood Week, this year on February 15-22.

Big Five Movies

(Minneapolis Tribune.)

If you've had the idea that the movie business is in the doldrums, hear this: the second and third biggest box office pictures of all time were 1952 products. Here are the big five of movie history as of today (excluding "The Birth of a Nation", which probably ranks first, but on which accurate records aren't available):

Gone With the Wind (1939), $26,000,000; Greatest Show on Earth (1952) $12,800,000; Quo Vadis (1952), $10,500,000; Best Years of Our Lives (1947), $10,400,000; Duel in the Sun (1947), $10,000,000.

And incidentally, if you have thought the American theatre was pretty much dead outside New York: "South Pacific" has earned a $2,000,000 profit on the road, compared to $1,500,000 on Broadway.

No More Fire Water

(St. John's Evening Telegram)

Newfoundland, famous since Confederation as the only spot in Canada where you could obtain undiluted fire water bottled by the distillers and unmixed with the products of lake or stream, is back on a par with the other provinces. All the proof-strength rum, a huge stock which a far-seeing government laid by in 1949 in anticipation of the drought to follow Union, has been bought up by a thirsty public. The only way to get proof spirit is to buy the "cut" spirits on sale in the bond stores and double-distill it yourself at home, with a silver teapot and a length of copper tubing.

Real Women In Fiction

(Ottawa Citizen)

Mr. Somerset Maugham always is emphatic and sometimes is sound. Certainly he was emphatic enough in his recent declaration to the London Daily Mail that women prefer the accurate image of them painted by male novelists. That this thesis is sound, it would probably take a Kinsey to establish authoritatively. Nevertheless, even the most casual students of the novel will muster arguments against Maugham's low opinion of the capacity of male novelists for realism where woman are concerned.

Running the mind's eyes over the book-shelves they will recall many more unflattering portraits of women done by male than by female writers. Chaucer's picture of the wife of Bath, however jolly, is certainly not idealized. Like Defoe's Moll Flanders, she is lacking in most of the gentler virtues man supposedly likes in women. Charles Dickens, it is true, specialized in pink-and-white Dresden dolls. But it was Thackeray who created in Becky Sharp the prototype of the scheming woman, and Hardy who imagined Sue Brideshead, the first "blue stocking" in literature capable of making a hero unhappy.

Women novelists on the other hand, have produced such soul mates of men as Cathy, Jane Eyre, Maggie Tulliver, and the Bennet girls, Elizabeth and Jane. Less high-minded of course, are the heroines created by such contemporary women novelists as the Misses Marshall and Winsor. But in comparison with Madame Bovary and Nana—both portraits by men—Kitty and Amber are pretty pallid creatures.

It seems that both Somerset Maugham and Anita Loos are wrong: Gentlemen authors, like gentlemen in general, do not necessarily prefer blondes. First of all, blondes or brunettes, they must be real.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE FRIENDSHIP GARDEN

I can understand why it is that people love gardens as they do. I have talked with gardeners as they have worked among their flowers and noted the love that they seemed to put into all they did. I have even heard them personalize different shrubs and flowers. And with what care they water and weed and fertilize the soil so as to make each flower smile its loveliest.

The late Dr. George Washington Carver is said to have talked with flowers, and he often wore them as a token of his friendship. The language of flowers is not only a silent one, but a universal one that we all can interpret and understand. Flowers talk to us in joy and sorrow.

How beautiful it is to look upon our friends as one great garden of flowers. Varieties of every species. Colorful, fragrant, exquisite in character. We have to care for this garden, however, if we wish to keep it alive and flourishing. We have to water our friendships with love and devotion, fertilize that friendship garden with acts of remembrance and consideration. This garden will lose its beauty and weeds will grow in it, and it will finally wither away if given no love or care.

Where are our friends of yesteryear? Those with whom we talked and associated, and from whom we gained so much joy and satisfaction. It has been said that friendships need to be kept in constant repair, which is very true. They must be watered, too, the same as we water the flower garden. Nothing in this world is so important, for one's gayety of mind, as a garden of friends to which we may go at will for comfort and guidance, when the years lengthen and burdens press heavily.

Cultivate a friend and you will learn its priceless heritage. Cultivate a whole garden of them, and you will have what material wealth cannot buy. When all other assets in life appear to have melted away, the living presence of a few friends, or a garden of them, will still give to you hope and consolation. They will be near when most needed.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

ACTUALLY IT IS JUST POOR CIRCULATION

The mother of a 15-year-old girl thinks her experience may relieve the anxiety of other parents. When the school physician, who happened to be her family physician, examined her daughter he said: "I'm glad to say her heart is fine." The mother asked why the doctor said that. He explained that for several years the child had had a slight murmur — (here we go again)—which had now disappeared. Why had the doctor not informed the child's parents? "You would only have worried, to the detriment of your own health and your daughter's," the doctor expalined, and mother says "I knew that to be true." The doctor explained, and mother says young children have such things and usually outgrow them." I (Brady) know that is true, except that children don't "outgrow" anything.

Released for publication in this column a few months ago was a report of the large number of school children who had "murmurs" but no heart trouble.

In this instance the doctor was right, as the mother happily says, but would she have said so if the doctor had reported "I regret to say she has had valvular leakage?"

The school physician noting the "murmur" but making no comment about it offhand was not only capable but kindly and wise. It's unfortunate that a doctor in such cricumstance must consider whether it will do good or harm to tell the truth.

Popular notions of heart disease, heart failure, heart "attack," weak heart or heart trouble of any kind are generally childish, morbid and wrong. In print one may combat these misconceptions with impunity. In practice a doctor has to tread warily, as the school and family physician did in this instance, lest the patient change doctors.

After all, there is no borderline between a normal or healthy state of the heart and heart disease, heart failure, weak heart or other heart trouble. The best of doctors cannot fix the day or the week, usually not even the month when a normal or healthy heart becomes weak or affected with disease. In other words transition from nothing wrong to something wrong with the heart is nearly always a gradual process. Instead of a borderline between sound heart and heart disease there is a borderland of considerable depth.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Until quite lately, Saturday was the biggest business day of the week. In towns and villages, it still is. But that is because Saturday has been market day from time immemorial. Even in the cities, it still is. All other business seems to have abdicated Saturday in favor of the merchants. The factories close, the business and financial houses, banks, all manner of enterprises other than straight retail selling, are falling in line. Saturday is for shopping. Or for a holiday.

Friday, next to Saturday, used to be the busiest of the week. But Friday is slipping. From June to September, it is easy to see what is happening to Friday. Starting shortly after noon, on Fridays, the highways start to hum. The exodus has begun. Who are these thousands upon thousands of people who are free to flee the city early Friday afternoon throughout the four summer months? They are the managers and the secretaries of managers, the salesmen and the clerical staff, the upper and freer brackets of all the businesses and industries that are going to be closed on Saturdays. In summer, Friday is already only half a working day.

Now the highway police tell me the Friday trend is creeping into the winter months. Unless a blizzard is raging, Saturday highways have always been heavily populated for several years past, ever since Saturday closing became popular.

And now the police detect a definite and steadily mounting increase in Friday afternoon traffic even in the dead of winter. It may well be that all businesses save the retail merchants are establishing the four and a half day week.

As one who is old enough to have watched the whole drama of the decay of Saturday as a working day, I can warn you that Friday is cooked. The next logical step, that is, logical in the sense of the logic of history, is to close Friday and Saturday both. If, as appears to be the case, we can produce enough goods in four and a half days to keep the merchants humping until 6 p.m. Saturday in order to dispose of it. Why not give the merchants a little more time in which to catch up on their selling? Friday and Saturday both.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

Prayer is mentioned in the Bible about two hundred and fifty times. Abraham prays, and God hears him. Hannah prays for a child, and Samuel, the future leader of his people, is born. Elijah prays on Mt. Carmel, and fire comes down from heaven. Daniel prays when the sentence of death hangs over him, and he is spared.

Jesus prayed throughout a whole night, and the next morning chose His twelve apostles. In Gethsemane he prayed that the cup might pass from him. In the mountain, on the plain, in the hush of a quiet place and amid the turmoil of the crowd, this Lord and Master of ours prayed. Paul was a man of prayer, and so was Peter. In the middle of the night, bound by stocks in the prison at Philippi, Paul and Silas prayed and sang praises to God, the prisoners heard them. In his letter to the Thessalonians, Paul urged his followers to pray without ceasing. The Book of Revelation rings with declarations concerning the power and beauty of the prayers of the saints.

Today all over the world men and women will be continuing this wonderful tradition of prayer, and the heavens will rejoice and the dark citadels of Satan will tremble, as a result. "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." "God heareth the prayer of the righteous."

BILLION INCREASE IN '53 PRODUCTION PREDICTED

Says Last Year One of Prosperity Without Inflation

Claims Demand for Exports Will Continue at High Level

OTTAWA (CP)—Record national production of $24,000,000,000 in 1953 was predicted Thursday night by Finance Minister Abbott in his budget speech.

Mr. Abbott said he was basing his budget on the assumption that the value of national production will increase by approximately $1,000,000,000 from the previous peak of $23,000,000,000 in 1952.

"My estimate assumes that we will not experience extensive crop failures nor serious industrial work stoppages."

The national production figure represents the value of all the goods and services produced in a year by Canadians. The figure is used to estimate the yield from taxes at various rates. It plays an important part in the shaping of taxation policies.

The production forecast was contained in a 7,200-word fiscal portion of the budget speech—a portion preceding another covering tax changes. The fiscal portion dealt largely with points covered in an economic white paper, tabled Wednesday in the Commons.

Made Many Points

In his speech, Mr. Abbott made these points:

1. The present level of prosperity is expected to continue throughout 1953.
2. Indications are that expenditures on expansion of industry and the development of resources will continue at a high level.
3. Demand for exports is expected to continue high.
4. With labor and other incomes running well above the 1952 average, consumer demand is expected to remain strong in 1953.
5. An increase in labor income combined with a downward trend of prices made 1952 a year of prosperity without inflation.
6. There has been a noteworthy reduction in inflationary pressures in many parts of the world.

"I expect our present level of prosperity to continue throughout this calendar year and I expect a continuation of about the present rate of industrial and general economic expansion," said Mr. Abott.

Below '52 Average

He expected the $1,000,000,000 increase in gross national production will consist very largely of an expansion in the physical output of goods and services "since prices now are below the average for 1952."

Looking at the world picture, he said prices over a wide area have stopped rising and the prices of many of the raw materials, sharply increased after the outbreak of the war in Korea, now have receded to more normal levels.

"There has been a growing recognition of the close relationship between internal financial stability and the balance of payments. The success of many countries in damping down excessive demand internally has brought about a significant improvement in the world exchange situation during the past year."

However, many trade problems remained to be solved. They called for close and continuing co-operation among the important trading nations.

On the domestic front, production, employment and wages rose in 1952 to the highest points in history.

"It is gratifying to note that prices have not followed a similar rising course. The index of wholesale prices fell by nearly seven per cent during the year; the index of consumer prices declined by two per cent."

For 1953, he foresaw increases in both industrial and housing construction.

In Favorable Position

"The demand for our exports depends upon business conditions and circumstances in other countries, particularly in the United States," he said.

"It is, consequently, difficult to forecast, but well-informed opinion seems agreed on a continuing high level of activity in the United States for the near future which should sustain demand for our products in that important market.

"In respect of overseas countries our main exports consist primarily of essential goods and materials which should continue to be in a favorable competitive position."

DROWNS IN MARSH

SIMCOE (CP)—Peggy Ann Moore who would have celebrated her second birthday Sunday; was drowned Thursday when she fell through thin ice into a marsh near Port Rowan, about 17 miles southwest of here. Her body was found by her mother, Mrs. Laurence Moore, who lives three miles west of Port Rowan.

Fiscal Portion Highlights

OTTAWA. (CP) — Highlights of the fiscal portion of Finance Minister Abbott's budget speech:

Value of gross national production expected to hit a peak $24,000,000,000 in 1953, up $1,000,000,000 from the previous high of $23,000,000,000 in 1952.

Present prosperity and industrial and economic expansion expected to continue throughout 1953.

Demands for Canadian goods at home and abroad expected to continue high.

An increase in labor income combined with a decrease in prices made 1952 a year of prosperity without inflation.

There has been a noteworthy reduction in inflationary pressures in many parts of the world.

Financial Critic Of Conservatives Not Well Pleased

OTTAWA (CP)—J. M. Macdonnell, financial critic for the Progressive Conservative opposition, said Thursday night Finance Minister Abbott's budget will give "precious little" to Canadians in the lower income brackets.

The budget showed the government had turned a full cycle, tax reductions had once again been reached "which of course means an election year."

It is a pity, he said, that "tax reductions are timed having regard to the interests of the government and the party in power."

Mr. Macdonnell was delayed for a full minute from getting the floor by the deafening cheers of Liberal supporters for Mr. Abbott as the finance minister finished his budget address.

In the election year of 1949 there had been tax reductions, Mr. Macdonnell said. The following year taxes were up again. It was a "cat and mouse" game. Every once in a while the "mouse is given a little cheese to fatten him up for more extractions by way of taxes in the year following."

The budget sounded good but it produced almost nothing for the "man at the lower end" of the income tax bracket. Mr. Macdonnell said by rapid calculation he figured a man making $2,000 a year would get a $1 reduction for the last six months of this year and $2 for a full year.

(Actually the tax reduction for a single man on a $2,000 annual salary will be $10 in the last six months of this year and $20 during a full year.)

When the people realized just what was in the budget for most of them they wouldn't be fooled.

Mr. Macdonnell said there was evidence of "outrageous waste and extravagance" in government operation. The defence department was the "sinkhole of government waste and extravagance." Yet the government refused an independent investigation.

LOPS NUISANCE

J. M. Macdonnell, the Progressive Conservative financial critic, said the tax reductions mean "an election year." He said they are "timed, having regard to the interests of the government and the party in power."

Among unofficial observers, the fact that the personal income tax cut will take effect only on July 1 seemed to lend some weight to the theory of a fall election. The cuts would not take hold in time for spring voting, and mid-summer balloting was out of the question because of the Coronation June 2, and other reasons.

In any event, it was learned Thursday night that Prime Minister St. Laurent is against a hurried vote.

Radio Fee Abolished

One of the major changes stretching into many households this year is Mr. Abbott's announcement that the radio licence fee is being abolished March 31. This has been freely forecast since the National Liberal Federation recommended it a few months ago.

The minister also announced there will be no licence fee on television sets. The CBC will be financed in future by some $12,000,000 a year taken from radio-television manufacturers now out of the regular excise tax of 15 per cent.

The radio licence fee has yielded about $6,000,000 a year, paid directly to the CBC.

A major unchanged item in the tax plan is the two-per-cent "social security tax" earmarked for old age pensions, applied on personal and corporation income tax and included in the general 10-per-cent sales tax.

The percentage of reductions in both personal and corporation tax was made without reference to the social security tax, which remains unchanged.

The 10-per-cent sales tax level—again with that two per cent earmarked for pensions—remains unchanged.

Some Exemptions

However, Mr. Abbott brought in some exemptions to the sales tax as a whole.

He abolished the tax on materials going into books and, on the same basis, on materials going into the finished product of newspapers and magazines. Also, the exemption applies to materials used in the production of foods that now are exempt from the sales tax, such as bread. All these amount to a relatively small loss in federal revenue of about $8,000,000.

The reduction in personal income taxes run generally to an 11 per cent right through the brackets What they amount to is the elimination of the last of the 1950-imposed "defence surtax" of 20 per cent on tax payable for Korean war costs.

Last year, the government, in an intricate operation, knocked off part of this tax. This time it has been disposed of completely, and now income tax rates are back to 1949 rates, except for the static two-per-cent levy for old age pensions.

Corporations Get Help

Corporation taxes—also excepting the stationary old age pension haul for the government—are down 10 per cent for small companies and down six per cent for big firms. Also, the small-firm tax area is broadened to take in about 70 per cent of the Canadian corporations.

Until Mr. Abbott put the new corporation tax rates into effect on this year's profits, companies paid 20 per cent on profits under $10,000 and 50 per cent on profits over that. Now, there will be an 18-per-cent tax on profits under $20,000 and 47 per cent tax on profits above $20,000.

The double change in corporation tax would amount—on Mr. Abbott's calculations—to about $85,000,000 in the coming fiscal year.

On the personal income tax side, one of the major concessions was in giving taxpayers a better break on their medical expenses. The "floor" on deductions from net income is dropped from four to three per cent. Mr. Abbott resisted demands for no floor at all.

The personal taxpayer got a couple of other concessions. Persons with dependents in university now can get tax deductions when they are over 21—instead of under 21 as before—and taxpayers can deduct from taxable income for dependents earning up to $750 a year. The limit for this deduction was $600.

Some Concessions

All personal income tax changes—$87,000,000 on the rate changes largely—would run to $100,000,000 for the fiscal year.

In over-all business Mr. Abbott predicted a surplus of $11,000,000. This compares with a surplus of $9,000,000 which Mr. Abbott forecast a year ago and which turned into an estimated surplus of $48,000,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31.

He estimated revenue at $4,473,000,000 for the coming fiscal year; expenditures at $4,462,000,000.

Women Ignored

OTTAWA (CP)—Ladies, Mr. Abbott ignored you.

Amid the splendors of his tax-cutting budget, there was little or nothing for the women as such. They could bask in the sunshine of the 11-per-cent income tax cut that won't start until July 1 but that was about all.

The taxes on jewelry, on coats, on stockings, on things for the home, on things dear to the feminine heart, stayed put.

Price Support for Beef, Pork Necessitated by Foot, Mouth Disease Cost $42,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Price support for beef and pork necessitated by last year's outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease among Saskatchewan livestock herds cost the government an estimated $42,000,000, the largest single outlay since the price support act became law in 1944.

Finance Minister Abbott disclosed this Thursday night in his budget speech in the Commons in explaining why estimated the expenditure of $4,327,000,000 for 1952-53 was $57,000,000 more than he had anticipated.

One item he had been unable to forecast, he said, was "the $42,000,000 which is our estimate of losses which should be taken into this year's accounts in connection with our price support policy for beef and pork which in turn was a result of the difficulties ensuing from the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease last spring."

First Estimate Given

The figure was the first official estimate of the cost of the support program for beef and pork instituted when the foot-and-mouth outbreak was discovered a year ago in Saskatchewan and resulted in a United States embargo against Canadian livestock products. Previously there was an unofficial estimate of some $30,000,000.

The support policy was carried out under the Agricultural Prices Support Board Act passed in 1944. Until the foot-and-mouth outbreak the total price support outlay under the act amounted to not more than $10,000,000.

Cheaper Cigarets Available Today If Dealer Willing to Absorb Loss

OTTAWA (CP) — Cheaper cigarets are on the way. They may be available today — if your dealer wants to forego the excise duty he's already paid.

Finance Minister Abbott announced in his budget speech Thursday night a four-cent reduction in the duty on cigarets.

The reduced duty brings the price of a pack of 20 cigarets to 35 cents from '39 cents in all provinces except Quebec and New Brunswick.

Provincial Tax

In Quebec, where cigarets now sell at 43 cents a pack by virtue of a four-cent provincial tax, the new price will be 38 cents, a reduction of five cents. This is because the provincial tax, based on a sliding scale linked to the retail price, will go down one cent as a result of the budget change.

Smokes in New Brunswick, also bearing a four-cent provincial tax, are expected to decline four cents to 39.

Spokesmen for both Imperial tobacco Company and Macdonald's Company in Montreal welcomed the duty reduction, but said it may not be passed on for several days.

President E. C. Wood of Imperial Tobacco said:

"We will pass the full benefit on to the consumer as quickly as possible, but we must sell our stock in warehouses first. We have already paid the duty and we would lose a couple of millions of dollars if we reduced the price on that stock."

He suggested some retailers might decide to absorb the four-cent-a-pack loss and sell at the new price.

Same Story

William Stewart, president of Macdonald's Tobacco Company, said his firm, too, is holding millions of dollars worth of stock on which duty has been paid. The budget reduction would be passed along as soon as possible.

The decrease will apply to the "King Size" cigarets as well as to the smaller size.

The reduction cuts the federal tax will shape up, with the previous 20-cigaret tax comparison in brackets:

Excise duty, eight cents (12); excise tax, eight cents (eight); sales tax, two cents (two). Total, 18 cents (22).

Growers Disappointed

The reduction did not go as far as Canadian tobacco growers proposed. They wanted a nine-cent sale of a pack of 20 cigarets for 30 cents.

Mr. Abbott said a three-cent cut last year brought a "definite increase in sales, which from the point of view of the revenue collector is very encouraging."

But, he added, "smuggling, I regret to say, is still a difficult problem."

"Not knowing in advance what effect this further cut will have on the volume of consumption, or the amount of smuggling, it is impossible to estimate what the revenue loss from this move will be. A fair estimate is that it will not be more than $17,000,000."

Elimination of Radio Licences, Stamps Tax on Cheques, Lauded

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the economy of a country they were little things. They added up to just a bit over three per cent of national revenues approaching $5,000,000,000.

But if a single phase of Finance Minister Abbott's budget were singled out today as particularly pleasing to Canadians, it was his removal of the stamp tax and elimination of radio licences. To most taxpayers, they were out-and-out nuisances.

Of more importance to the taxpayer's pocketbook, of course, was the minister's announcement in the Commons Thursday night that income tax would be cut by 11 per cent. But the full effect of that reduction won't be felt until after July 1. The stamp tax and radio licences are gone, right now.

The cheers of the cigaret smoker at the four-cent-a-package slice in the 22-cent tax on cigarets were restrained by uncertainty as to when the reduction will become effective. The "catch" is that the cut was in the excise duty which has already been paid into the treasury by the manufacturers. The mountain of smokes in warehouses must be disposed of before a 35-cent pack of butts becomes a reality.

Since the First World War, every cheque written in Canada and every legal document had to bear an excise stamp—as little as three cents if the cheque was less than $100. That produced $12,000,000 a year for the government and, Mr. Abbott admitted, was a sheer "nuisance tax." Every Canadian who ever signed his name to a cheque cheered its passing.

Mr. Average Canadian cheered, too, at the lifting of the radio licence fee of $2.50. It produced only $6,000,000 for the government—at a collection cost of $700,000—and avoidance of payment of the fee has been almost a national game in Canada since its inception in 1922.

Reaction to other phases of the budget was mixed.

Cigaret manufacturers welcomed the four-cent cut in the duty, but tobacco growers said it wasn't enough. The Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Association said through its chairman, Francis R. Gregory of Leamington, that the cut was only "a short step in the right direction." The growers for months have pressed for a 30-cent package of cigarets. So have smokers.

Reduction of the "floor" on medical expenses deductible from personal income for tax purposes was welcomed as far as it went by most persons. But Dr. J. A. Hannab, managing director of Associated Medical Services, a medical insurance company, said in Toronto that the cut from four to three per cent "won't make a lot of difference to many people."

G. K. Shiels, president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, hailed reductions in corporation and income tax. He thought they would "encourage taxpayers to add to their savings and expand their enterprises." He regretted, however, the 'discrimination" of retaining excise taxes on many products.

The television industry, still an infant but growing rapidly, was pleased that the minister had said there would be no licence fee for TV sets. (Speculation in recent months had set $15 as a likely figure.) But retention of the 15-per-cent tax on TV and radio sets was criticized. One manufacturer said the tax "definitely retards sales."

Book publishers, booksellers and authors generally were pleased at repeal of the 10-per-cent sales tax on books and materials going into books, but candy manufacturers were disappointed that the budget contained no tax relief for that industry. It has pressed repeatedly for removal of the special excise tax of 15 per cent on confectionery.

The automobile industry also was disappointed. There was no tax relief in that field.

Some labor men also were sour. Murray Cotterill, president of the Toronto Labor Council, was critical of reductions in the corporation tax field. He thought, too, that the reduction of the medical-expense "floor" wasn't enough.

Only Mourner Was Minister When Tax Died

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government's cheque stamp tax died Thursday night, but only one man mourned its passing—the finance minister.

Douglas Abbott, presenting his seventh major budget, repealed the "nuisance" tax which formed part about a quarter-century.

"This tax is definitely of the nuisance variety and I am sure," said Mr. Abbott, "that only the minister of finance, who has to forgo about $12,000,000 of revenue, will mourn its passing."

The law required all cheque writers to fix a three-cent stamp on cheques up to $100 and six cents on cheques above that amount.

The tax applied also to promissory notes, postal notes, money orders and similar money instruments.

SHOT GIRL RECOVERING

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Judy Warner, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Warner, accidentally shot in the back Wednesday by her brother, is reported out of danger. The accident occurred when Bob Warner, 17, followed his sister upstairs and bumped his new .22-calibre rifle against the bannister.

Inspector Says Police Action Was Justified

TORONTO (CP) — Inspector Thomas R. Wright of the provincial police said Thursday night he thinks police officers' action in erecting a roadblock Tuesday which took two lives, was justified.

"I think the blockade was justified on the grounds that it was suspected an indictable offence had been committed and an officer is compelled by law to take whatever steps are considered necessary to apprehend fleeing persons," he said.

The roadblock was a truck set up across the Queen Elizabeth Way at nearby Port Credit to head off a car which had outdistanced a police cruiser travelling at 95 miles an hour. Flares were also put out.

The car crashed into the transport without slackening speed, fatally injuring Robert Getty, 22, and William Getty, 27. Eldon Rhyno, 26, was seriously injured. All three formerly lived in Timmins.

Police said Rhyno who they believe was the driver of the car, may be charged with manslaughter.

NEGLECT CASE REMAND

WALKERTON (CP) — Charged with neglecting to provide the necessities of life for five children, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Liddle Thursday were remanded in custody for a week. The Liddles were charged Monday after a post-mortem examination of their four-month-old son, John Charles Liddle, who died last Thursday. His death was attributed to malnutrition.

Weddings

JEFFS—ASHLEY

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Ashley, West Huntingdon, on Saturday, February 7, at 2:30 p.m., when their daughter, Muriel Jean, became the bride of Harry David Jeffs, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jeffs. The Rev. L. Norman officiated at the double-ring ceremony beneath an arch of evergreens accented by pink and white bells.

Mrs. L. Norman provided the wedding music.

The bride was attractively attired in a floor-length gown of imported French lace and satin, fashioned with fitted bodice of lace, having long sleeves ending in lily-points over the hands. The satin skirt featured a nylon net peplum with lace inserts. Her fingertip veil of nylon net fell from a tiara headdress encrusted with seed pearls, and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of Bettertime roses and hyacinth bells, tied with white lacelon ribbon.

Miss Helen Ashley, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, gowned in pale blue net over taffeta with matching headdress and gloves. She carried a nosegay of Briarcliffe roses and white and blue pom 'mums.

Mr. William Long, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the bride's home, which was beautifully decorated with pink snapdragons and yellow baby 'mums, for the occasion. The bride's mother received, wearing a gown of fuchsia colored taffeta with black accessories and corsage of Briarcliffe roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore pastel green with brown accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Jeffs left for their wedding trip, the bride travelling in blue faille with navy accessories and grey topcoat. They will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Ottawa, Belleville, Bannockburn; Stirling and Napanee.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was silver flatware; to his groomsman, tie pin. The bride's gifts to her pianists and to the girls who served, Misses Lois Emerson, Eleanor Wright and Myrna Benson, cups and saucers.

McCULLOUGH — DOWNEY

Holloway Street United Church was the setting on Saturday, January 31st., at 2.30 p.m., of a pretty wedding ceremony, when Alice Doreen Downey, of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E Downey, Belleville R. R. 3, was united in marriage to Dr. John Kenneth McCullough, of Niagara Falls, son of Mrs. John McCullough, of Toronto, and the late Dr. McCullough. The Reverend Sidney E. Larman, pastor of the church, officiated. Evergreens formed a lovely background for the occasion.

Mr. C. Templer, church organist, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Ethel Smith Lawrenson, who sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register, "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white nylon net and satin, featuring a fitted, strapless bodice having a full-length redingote — the bodice part of white chantilly lace buttoned from neckline to waist, with stand-up Queen Anne collar and long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in lily-points over the hands, while the redingote skirt was of nylon net, ending in a slight train over the slightly crinoline-effect satin skirt. She wore a finger-tip veil of tulle illusion and carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Miss Helen Murr, of Toronto, was bridesmaid, gowned in red net over tafetta, with matching velvet jacket over molded bodice. The skirt was gracefully full. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Mr. Vernon McCullough, of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman; while Dr. Robert McCullough, of Milton, also a brother of the bridegroom, and Dr. Ralph Downey, of Kingston, brother of the bride, acted as ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother, wearing navy blue crepe with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore grey bengaline with pink accessories and a corsage of Dusty pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Florida the bride chose a navy blue dress with gold colored topcoat, navy accessories and corsage of red roses. Dr. and Mrs. McCullough will reside in Stamford, Ontario, upon their return.

Guests from out of town were present from Toronto, Brantford, Trenton, Cobourg, Crookston, Bancroft and Sioux Lookout.

19 Girl 'Probies' Receive Caps At Ritchie Memorial Residence

At the solemn capping ceremonies held in the Ritchie Memorial Residence last night, only a few of the gathered parents and friends of the 19 graduating girls realized a personal drama was being enacted in their midst. The one who completed her examinations with the highest standings, almost could not be present. Mrs. Clara Hannah, the very last "probie" to receive her cap, unlike the rest of the graduates, sat down after the symbol of her graduation into the junior training period had been pinned upon her head—and a number of the gathering wondered why.

Staunch Graduate

Mrs. Hannah, also the eldest student, and the only one of the group married, walked palefacedly to the front of the audience to receive her cap, then retired and sat down. Several hours before, this determined young woman, from her hospital bed, refused the needle of morphine intended to alleviate her pain and told doctors she was going to the capping ceremonies. All the doctor's arguments were of no avail. Mrs. Hannah insisted she was going to attend the ceremonies. As a last resort, they told her she could go if she would sit in a wheelchair. Even this she scorned and took her place with the rest of the 19 to stand through the half hour procedures despite extreme pain.

A check with officials revealed although excruciatingly painful at times, Mrs. Hannah's back injury is on the mend. It is expected it will take some time befor this courageous woman may assume full and normal duties, but last night she gained the respect of many people who knew her only slightly.

Enter Junior Training

Symbolic of the six month probationary period's end, the caps placed upon the heads of the 19 young ladies by senior or intermediate students, marks these students' entrance into their junior training period. The entire class which began studies at the Belleville General Hospital's School of Nursing last fall was successful in completing the probationary six month period.

With an air of reverence, the 19 white clad figures filed into the room singing the hymn, "Abide With Me," under the direction of "Alf" Evans, musical director. The Reverend E. P. Smith of Christ Church, addressed a few brief words to the girls. Comparing the nursing profession to that of the doctor, teacher and clergyman, the minister said: "Like these other positions I have mentioned yours' is often one of a sacrificial nature. You may feel, all too frequently, your free time is perhaps much less than that of girls who have chosen other types of work. There are few of you who set your hands to this work without the spirit of self sacrifice. Never envy these others with seemingly more time for recreation than you, but ask yourself, 'have they really the inward satisfaction which belongs to me?'"

Praise Tendered

Following capping ceremonies, Mrs. John Buchan, president of the Ladies' Hospital Auxiliary directed a few remarks to the newly capped students. Mrs. Buchan praised the girls for their accomplishments and wished them luck in their future training. She also pledged continued support of the Auxiliary. President of the Students' Council, Miss G. Ireland, added a few words of encouragement.

The following is an alphabetical listing of the girls who received their caps last evening: Nancy Allison, Bath; Donna Bateman, Springbrook; Catherine Brown, Brighton; Jean Bryson, Grafton; Joan Campbell, Cobourg; Anne Crabbe, Cobourg; Doreen Dordland, Wooler; Dorothy Dudgeon, Henry Street; Clara Hannah, Bowmanville; Gwendolyn Hart, Carrying Place; Eleanor Herbertson, Foxboro; Marilyn Hopping, Campbellford; Joyce Lott, Holloway; Shirley McKeown, Stirling; Eva Nickle, Bleecker Avenue; Barbara Pratt, Toronto; Barbara Smale, Cannifton Road; Ruth Storms, Napanee; Helen Walsh, Shannonville.

The students closed the ceremonies by singing the Lord's Prayer. After they were reunited with their parents, refreshments were served.

Kay Rex Suggests

Canadian Press Staff Writer

A bachelor was quoted the other day as saying you can always spot a good housekeeper by the way she peels potatoes. He explained that thick peelings are a dead give-away for the wasteful homemaker, and a sloppy one is known by the number of eyes she leaves in the spuds.

So it's good advice to peel your potatoes cleanly and thinly. The critical bachelor might be tempted by the following dish:

Potatoes Au Gratin

Butter a shallow baking-dish and into it slice eight medium-sized potatoes which have been partially cooked (they should be firm and waxy). As you slice sprinkle 2½ cups grated old cheese between the layers and on top. Also sprinkle these layers with salt and pepper. Dot the top with butter and add enough skim milk almost to cover the top layer. Bake at 400 degrees Fahrenheit until milk is nearly absorbed and potatoes are tender (30 minutes approximately).

Weighty Tips

Calorie-saving recipes for the weight-watchers and diabetics are featured in a booklet now being distributed by the United States manufacturers of a non-caloric sweetener. They sound good too.

The booklet contains directions for making desserts and cake, dishes which normally the chubby girls avoid. However these recipes substitute a sweetener for sugar. In other words you can eat your cake and lose pounds too.

Smart Fish Salads

Housewives who serve their families with fish salads at least once or twice weekly help to keep Canada's fisheries department happy. A department booklet contains a recipe for tuna crunch salad which sounds like a good thing for this time of the year.

Ingredients: One seven-ounce tin Canadian tuna; one-quarter cup chopped green pepper; one tablespoon minced onion; two cups crisp shredded cabbage; two tablespoons vinegar; salad dressing; two cups potato chips.

Add green pepper, minced onion, cabbage and vinegar to flaked tuna. Add salad dressing to moisten. Just before serving add potato chips and toss lightly together. Serve on crisp greens. Yield: six servings.

Other salad combinations: A slice of cold cooked salmon with cucumber, tomato, hard cooked egg slices and celery curls.

Diced pineapple, apple, celery, flaked lobster, mayonnaise, lettuce.

Flaked fish, peas, cucumber, tomato, dressing, lettuce.

Quinte Tennis and Skating Club Sponsors Delightful Valentine Tea

Wednesday afternoon the Masonic Temple, Foster Avenue, was the scene of much pleasurable activity, when the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Quinte Tennis and Skating Club sponsored a delightful Valentine Tea and sale of homecooking, under the convenership of the social committee.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. J. Dickens, wife of the club's president, and Mrs. F. C. Miller, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Mrs. J. Anton acted as treasurer for the afternoon.

Attractively Adorned

The spacious auditorium was attractively adorned with intertwined ropes of red and white which met in a common centre of the ceiling, while the long tea table was lovely with its centre of tall sprays of white phlox, American Beauty roses, and asparagus fern in a crystal bowl. Tall silver tri-branched candelabra with delft blue candles and gleaming silver services added to the beauty of the appointment.

Mrs. W. L. Langlois and Mrs. R. Arnott were the gracious tea room receptionists, while Mrs. H. Mott acted as tea room convener.

Those presiding included Mrs. A. E. Purdy and Mrs. C. Morgan; Mrs. W. Van Tassel and Mrs. R. Slavin; Mrs. B. Weese and Mrs. G. Brearley.

Those convening the kitchen included Mrs. T. F. Wrenshall, assisted by members of the social committee.

Many Good Things

As usual, the homecooking table was replete with all sorts of good things: layer cakes topped with snowy shredded cocoanut; lemon pies heaped with golden-tinted meringues; tea biscuits light as feathers; date squares; plain angel cakes; luscious nut-topped chocolate cakes; little one-bite raspberry tartlets; cookies; cocoanut squares; a lovely heart-centred Valentine cake dotted with maraschino cherry hearts, over rich, soft icing; jams; jellies; relishes; pickles; and many other mouth-watering dainties too numerous to mention. Convening this was Mrs. Robert Smith and her willing assistants.

On a side table was a hamper filled to overflowing with groceries among which was a delectable ham; angel cake; cheese; soups; canned fruits; bread; cereals and convened by Mrs. James Davis, assisted by Mrs. H. Parker and Mrs. P. Jeffery. The winner of this grand assortment was Mrs. G. Wishart, Dufferin Avenue.

Lovely Novelties

Another attractive table was that of the novelties, all of which were new, and included: lovely yellow background aprons with creeping rose vines; little knitted doll sets; necklaces; guest towels; tiny cacti plants; gold bows for lapel ornaments; necklaces with ivory-centred mosaics; pearl earrings; doll dresses; tea towels, embroidered; plaid gingham child's dress; cup and saucer, and several bon-bon dishes, African violets, and books. Mrs. J. W. Sherry and her assistants were in charge here.

The Royal Doulton figurine, "Blithe Morning", was convened by Mrs. W. M. Fox and Mrs. G. G. Brearley, and won by Mrs. G. L. Wamboldt, Bleecker Avenue.

The appreciation is tendered the conveners and mothers of the members of the club who so willingly and efficiently gave of their time and talents to make of this Valentine tea such an outstanding success.

Ivanhoe — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Mission Band met at the church on Sunday afternoon.

Due to the absence of the president, the meeting was conducted by David Fleming. The Scripture lesson, Psalm 122, was read by Helen Fleming. Prayer was offered by David Fleming for boys and girls of all lands. James Wallace, Grant and Gerry Thompson sang "Jesus Loves Me." A story, "The King's Thanksgiving", was read by John Haggerty.

A chapter in the study book was explained by the leader. Plans were made to bring pictures of fruit and animals found in Africa to be pasted on the map drawn by Wayne Shaw.

A piano solo was given by Beverly McInroy.

St. Andrew's C.G.I.T. Group Enjoys Pancake Supper

On Tuesday evening, the C.G.I.T. girls held a sumptuous pancake supper in the Sunday School room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, with a splendid representation of members present.

The girls in their natty blue skirts and white middies made a most attractive picture, especially the two who represented Aunt Jemima and Uncle Remus, as they sold tickets and made merry among the guests.

The little guest tables, each with its white cloth centred with a golden daffodil, were intriguingly inviting, and especially so when golden pancakes and maple syrup made their appearance.

The proceeds went for miscellaneous objectives of the C.G.I.T. work and this supper constituted the main financial project for the year.

C.W.L Sponsors Bridge, Euchre Party

An interesting and pleasant bridge and euchre party was held on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League, at the Knights of Columbus hall.

Winners of the bridge were: Mrs. E. Logan and T. Flurey; of the euchre: Mrs. Mac Farrell, Mrs. H. O'Neill and Mrs. T. Cope. Men: John Vinkle, H. Flagler and P. Fonner.

The layer cake donated by Mrs. J. Vinkle was won by J. Scanlon.

The league is planning on holding these bridge and euchre parties every other week during the coming season.

Refreshments were served.

QUESTION:

. . . .sometimes you supply menus on request. . .our church group is going to put on a mother-daughter banquet. There will be children of four and up and mothers and grandmothers. We hope to serve about 100 people. If you could suggest a menu pleasing to all age groups we would appreciate it. Thanking you.—J. S.

ANSWER:

You have not mentioned cost. Consequently I am giving you 2 menus to choose from, one costing a little more than the other.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER BANQUET MENU NO. 1

Pineapple Juice
Chicken a la King on Patty Shells or Toast Triangles
Frozen or Canned Peas
Fluffy Mashed Mixed Potato and Turnip
Hot Rolls
Tossed Green Salad
Individual Ice Cream Rolls with Chocolate Sauce and Chopped Nuts
Homemade Hermits
Tea Milk for Children

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER BANQUET MENU NO. 2

Tomato Juice
Baked Hamburg (see below)
Baked or Scalloped Potatoes
Buttered Green Beans
Celery Hearts
Cottage Pudding Squares with Butterscotch Sauce
Tea Milk for Children

BAKED HAMBURG (for 100)

Twenty-five lbs. ground beef, 4 dozen eggs, 13 cups soft breadcrumbs, 1-2 cup salt, 1 tablespoon pepper, 8 cups milk, 3 cups finely chopped onions sauteed in 3-4 cup butter or margarine, 3 cups flour. Mix together beaten eggs, meat, breadcrumbs, milk, salt and pepper. Saute onions in butter and add. Mold into 200 or 300 patties, and coat with the flour. Bake on large greased sheet pans at 400 deg. Fahr. Time required depends on whether you want them slightly pink at centre or not—I would suggest one-half hour. Gravy may be made from drippings in pan if you have enough skilled help.

These amounts allow for 4 oz. meat per serving. Some very small children will eat only half of this. You will have to use your own judgment regarding making up this amount .You may decide to cut the recipe down to 3-4 of the amount. This will cut the amount of meat down to 3 oz. per average serving (which is 3-8 cup) and the meat cakes will still look adequate in size.

QUESTION:

. . . a devoted though silent reader for a long time. Thank you for splendid practical help . . . I tasted a delicious cake. It was moist, yellow, close-textured with whole red and green cherries, pineapple and nuts. It sliced perfectly. . . I love the way you always give the size of pans . . . . I think it makes such a difference to the finished product. —Amy A.

ANSWER:

Thank you kindly Mam. I think this recipe meets requirements.

FRUIT POUND CAKE

One cup blanched almonds cut in strips or left whole, 1-2 cup coarsely cut candied pineapple, 3-4 cup whole green cherries (glace or drained bottled), 3-4 cup red cherries (glace or drained maraschino), 2 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup butter, 1 cup granulated sugar, 5 eggs, 1 teaspoon each baking powder and grated lemon rind, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Measure the flour and take out of it 1-2 cup and to this 1-2 cup flour add the fruit and nuts. Cream the butter until light and fluffy and gradually beat the sugar into it, beating vigorously. Add unbeaten eggs, 1 at a time, and beat well after each addition. Sift remaining 2 cups sifted flour with the baking powder and salt, then stir it with the lemon rind and juice into the batter. Stir in fruit mixture until well-blended. Grease and line with greased heavy paper a pan about 9x5x3 inches, turn in batter, and bake cake at 300 or 325 deg. Fahr. for about 1 3-4 or 2 hours. These quantities make 3 lbs.

Fashion Flashes

DOWN TO THE SEA goes cotton, a favorite for the nicest resort swim wear. Red and green plaided cotton makes a neat beach or swim suit. Over the bra is worn a waist-length jacket fastened with gold hooks. The pants are of the baby-bloomer type.

SEEING THE BEST PLAYS are those little jewelled hats, now a fixture for evening wear. Petal pink satin encrusted with rose quartz and emerald green "jewels" makes a most effective little cap.

SHOWING CLEARLY through many of the upper-crust Spring collections is a dramatic handling of black and white—that ever popular color scheme. A new ensemble includes a handsome, full-length, loose coat of black silk and wool serge, made with a cardigan neckline and huge turn-back cuffs with underlays of white linen. The white linen dress it cut on softly tailored lines, and is softly draped to a V on either side of the cardigan neckline.

A FAVORITE with smart women is the softly handled shirtwaist dress for resort wear. A new version is of satin stripe cotton in white and emerald green. The sleeveless top is finely tucked, the skirt pleated. Buttoned to the hem along the white stripe of fabric.

NUDGING navy for color honors is beige, and this shade is coming along as Spring trends crystallize. A handsome Spring suit is of beige woollen in a soft seashell shade. Cut on slim lines, the snug jacket has a slightly arched hipline. Gauntlet cuffs and shaped collar are embroidered with pearls and gold tthread.

ANOTHER ADDITION to the many revivals is that of silk chiffon in a multi-floral print on white, a beautiful choice for evening. A rich all-over multi-colored print on white silk chiffon is smartly used for an ankle-length dance dress, the neckline intricately draped and twisted in the off-shoulder neckline, the skirt softly gathered.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

Laying Theological Traps

By ROY L. SMITH

In every generation and in every community there have been those who have been much more interested in wining arguments than they have been in discovering the truth. They have been full of questions, but they have been quite empty of any honest intention of doing the right thing once their duty has been made plain. They have made a great pretence of piety, but they have had no real interest in religion.

God and the Romans

Herod the Great, a half-Jew, had contrived to establish himself as the governor of the Jews with the help of the Romans. There was something of the Quisling about him, but it is a fact that he gave the people a stable government. It cost, and it was humiliating, but it was strong and vigorous, and it maintained the peace.

There was, however, an unending opposition to the payment of taxes, and anyone who openly advocated non-payment was in danger of imprisonment. On the other hand, anyone who advocated payment was looked upon as a traitor to the people. Jesus' theological enemies were trying to destroy him by trapping him into making an economic pronouncement.

Jesus eluded their trap very skillfully in one of his most famous sayings: "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." Which was another way of saying: Do your duty toward God and He will take care of the Romans in His own good time. And He did!

In spite of all the intricate arguments and philosophies built up by theologians, every really great teacher of relicion has managed to sum up the entire matter in very simple terms. Micah, the Old Testament prophet, said: "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God." Isaiah said: "Come now, let us reason together. Though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow." Jeremiah had assured them that God would write a new law upon the hearts of men.

> Lesson for February 22: "How Jesus Answered Questions," Matthew 22:15-46.

When the hecklers tried to trap Jesus into saying that some sins were worse than others, the Master lifted the whole matter up out of the realm of controversy, and laid their duty before them in perfectly plain and unmistakable terms: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all they heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind...And thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Did Not Want to Know

His questioners had come hoping to make Him say something He did not want to say, and they went away having heard something they did not want to hear.

Perhaps it is not amiss at this point to call attention to the fact that Jesus revised, very slightly, the ancient form of the Jewish law, and added to the other "alls," that men should love God with all their minds.

This means surely that good religion calls for the clearest and most careful thinking of which any man is capable. Not the sort of thing that passes for thinking when the winning of an argument is the main purpose, but that courageous thinking which is determined to find the truth even if it makes it necessary for us to change our minds about the things we have always said we believed.

Any man who asks questions ought to be prepared to hear the truth if it happens to be handed back to him.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

No names, please, in public places

Watch it! When you are talking with a friend in any public place, don't mention a name that may be overheard by strangers. Maybe they aren't strangers to the person whose name you mention . . . and maybe you'll be sorry!

Never the title "Miss" in the signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am 19 years old, unmarried. When I write a letter to a stranger—for example, this letter to you—shouldn't I sign my name Miss Mary Brown? I've been told I shouldn't, but to me it makes sense that I should sign the title "Miss" before my name, just as a married woman signs the title "Mrs." before her name. If I am not right, please explain.—Puzzled "Miss"

You should not sign a letter, any kind of letter to anyone, Miss Mary Brown. The title is not part of your signature. If you think it is necessary to indicate the title, write Miss in parentheses before your name:

(Miss) Mary Brown

And incidentally (referring to your words "just as a married woman signs the title 'Mrs.' before her name") it is not correct for a married woman to sign a letter, any kind of letter to anyone, with the title "Mrs." before her name; "Mrs. John Jones", for example. She signs her informal name. . . Mary Brown Jones. . . and if necessary to give her formal name, writes this in parentheses underneath. Like this:

Very truly yours,
Mary Brown Jones
(Mrs. John Jones)

Bride prefers to walk up the aisle alone

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I remember that you often advise a bride who has no father, to have a brother or other male relative escort her up the aisle and then to have her mother give her in marriage. My father is dead. I would like to have my mother give me in marriage (replying as she stands in her place in the first pew on the left of the aisle, as you have suggested), but I do not wish to ask a male relative to escort me up the aisle. I have no brother to be my escort, and indeed I have no male relative I especially wish to invite for this very personal service. Under these circumstances, would you consider it proper for me to walk up the aisle alone?—Polly R.

Yes, it is entirely correct for you to walk up the aisle alone, if you wish to. And under circumstances similar to yours, some brides prefer to do this.

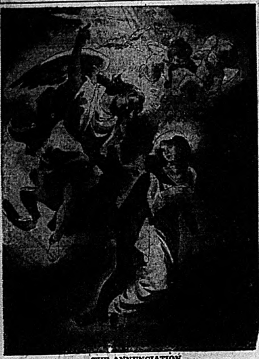
The Greatest Story Ever Told

By Fulton Oursler



THE ANNUNCIATION
An interpretation from the etching by Rubens.

CHAPTER IV

NO DREAMS TONIGHT

At the close of the day's work Joseph sat in the back of his shop and emptied a palmful of coins from a crock taken down from a tall shelf. Ever since he had first seen Mary he had saved every mite against his wedding day, which would not be long.

"Almost enough for everything," he congratulated himself. "And my wife won't have to skimp and scrape. Tonight," he resolved, "I will tell the family that we do not have to wait any more."

It was good to step abroad after the long day's work. Now and then the carpenter was saluted by a customer—a farmer, a shepherd, a blacksmith—and he relished every greeting with a sense of peaceful security.

Oh yes, he knew now that in Jerusalem sophisticates looked down on the countrified Nazarenes, yokels with a ridiculous northern accent. A favorite jest on the Jerusalem streets was the question: "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?"

"What More Could He Ask?

But Joseph, with all his fellow townsmen, felt that the people of Jerusalem were unnatural and overcivilized. Anyway, he was proud of his home town and expected to be very happy there with Mary and children and work. What more could any man ask? Let Samuel have his Jerusalem and his revolutions too.

Just ahead of him was a lane, and at its turning was the house of Joachim and Anna, white dome ghostlike in the dusk. At one side of it ran a staircase that led to the roof, and looking up there Joseph saw Mary. She had a lantern in her hand and she was bending over, collecting dates and figs that had been spread out to dry in the hot sun. Knowing his footsteps, she straightened up and waved her hand.

Then Joseph passed into the house with the freedom of one who feels himself already a member of the family. Joachim strode forward, the two men bowed ceremoniously, and the younger man kissed the father's beard.

Joseph seated himself beside the older man and plunged at once into his business. He had saved his money, he had improved the living quarters behind the house, he was ready to buy a goat and hens and a rooster; he wanted his wife. Why should there be any delay?

"Who makes delays?" demanded Joachim.

The carpenter glanced uneasily at Anna.

"No Sense in Waiting"

"No, Joseph," said Mary's mother, looking over her shoulder as she patted the dough. "I will not stand in your way. I know now that you love Mary and that she loves you. There is really no sense in waiting. Have you fixed a date in your mind?"

"I want to marry her yesterday,'" jested Joseph, and they all laughed. "But no, I have not fixed any date. I want to talk with Mary after supper tonight. I would like it better that way."

Later, in the damp darkness of the Nazareth road, Joseph and Mary strolled and talked. They were full of their plans and felt a little awed by them. Completely occupied with a dozen small and enchanting details about their wedding, they were oppressed that soft evening with no foreboding.

It was late when they were ready to say good night, but they had come to a decision. Within three months they would be married. Joseph would have liked it earlier but Mary pointed out that there was still sewing to do and a few more shekels her father wanted to accumulate, she knew, to fill out her modest dowry. Three months would not seem so long, now that the date was fixed.

"I hope I see you early tomorrow," said Joseph when it was time for him to go home.

"Very early, Joseph. When I go to the well for the morning water," she promised.

A Happy Dream

Their hands clasped and they parted. Joseph strode off bravely to his carpenter shop; he flung himself down on his pallet with a happy sigh and buried his head in his arms and thought how fortunate he was among Nazarene men; how happy he was and how much happier he was going to be. Sleeping, he dreamed only of Mary's dream-laden eyes.

No grand dreams, such as his ancestors, the prophets, had known in olden days. No foreseeing of what was on the way, marching in a mighty silence toward the earth. And no more than Joseph did Herod the Great and his kingdom of Judea with him, nor Caesar Augustus in his Roman palace, dream that night that the world was about to roll another way.

Early the next morning Joseph awoke to know that something had gone amiss. He heard a pounding on the door and his name being shouted. As he opened sleepy eyes he beheld Joachim standing, pale and distrait, distracted hands uplifted.

"Peace be unto you, Joachim," Joseph muttered, embracing him. "What is it? Tell me, what is wrong?"

"The Lord be with you, Joseph," groaned the father, laying a heavy hand on Joseph's shoulder. "Listen, my son. Mary has disappeared."

A Great Change

Mary, the blue-eyed, black-haired girl who loved Joseph heart and soul had fled Nazareth because within five minutes after she had said good night to her beloved, her life, her body and soul, had undergone a change.

It was an experience shattering to the very roots of her being. For hours after it happened she was unable to speak; she could scarcely breathe. It was so inexplicable, so dazing and frightening that for the time she could not force herself to tell her mother or father or even Joseph.

Without one instant's preparation she had walked into it, immediately after that tender good night at the gate. Joachim and Anna had been chatting up on the roof; they, too, had much to talk about.

Feeling a little chill, for the night was damp, Mary had crossed the lower floor inside the house and mounted to the inner terrace. As she went up the steps to the platform she realized that she was not alone. A tall figure was standing near the farther wall!

"Blessed Among Women"

A stranger. An odd and altogether different stranger; Because he seemed to stand in light where there was no lamp, and a kind of silvery mist enveloped him as if the light were his cap and gown. Mary opened her mouth to speak, to demand who he was and what he wanted there, but he anticipated her with an unexpected greeting.

"Hail, Mary!"

The voice was kind and fathomlessly deep; such a voice as Mary had never heard before—bass and yet tender.

"Full of grace!" the voice continued.

Hail, Mary, full of grace! She felt embarrassed and even more frightened.

"The Lord is with you. Blessed are you among women."

She folded her hands and she know then how she was tremblling in every muscle. The stranger saw.

"Fear no, Mary."

She bowed her head. She must not be afraid. She knew she could trust this deep and tender voice. But she could not still her quaking. She closed her eyes and listened to the astounding words this stranger was speaking. She had found grace with God. She would conceive in her womb and bring forth a son.

She too! That was akin to the message that had come to Zachary for Elisabeth. Cousin Elizabeth was to have a son and his name must be John.

"And you shall call his name Jesus!"

A Need For Reality

"Jesus; He will be my son. Jesus! Jesus, son of Mary! I shall bring him forth and hold him in my arms and sometimes I shall give him to Joseph to hold too!" Her mind was a place of wild, birdlike thoughts; yet she must listen to all that the stranged continued to tell her: her son Jesus was to have the throne of David, his father—

"And of all his kingdom there shall be no end."

Then came her instant need for realtiy. The very human impulse that had made Zachary question his angel and lost him his speech as penalty now possessed Mary, too. Who this stranger was she did not know; yet the maiden who heard his words felt bound to question him.

"How shall this be done?" she asked in a whisper. "Seeing I know not a man?"

In the starry blaze of his eyes she read only compassion. He took a step nearer and she saw the folded wings and knew him for what he was.

His voice lower and deeper still:

"The Holy Ghost shall come upon you. The power of the Most High shall overshadow you and therefore also the Holy which shall be born to you shall be called the Son of God."

Mary felt stifled, suffocated, as she heard these incredible words. She to be the mother of a son who would be called the Son of God?

The voice of the stranger was lowered into an intimate whisper:

"Your cousin Elizabeth. . . ."

He paused until she nodded, and then he went on:

"She also conceived a son. In her old age! This is the sixth month with her that is called barren. Because with God nothing shall be impossible!"

"Handmaid of the Lord"

This was the reality she needed. For the angel had spoken the truth as she knew it. It was true about Elizabeth. Well, then. . .

She looked up at him plaintively, her eyes half closed, her words coming so softly that she could barely hear herself speak.

"Behold the handmaid of the Lord. Be it done unto me according to your word."

As if by incantation the angel vanished; one instant he was there, gone the next. And Mary, swaying and murmuring, crossed the floor and sank to her knees and lay upon her pallet and closed her eyes and wept and prayed. Too much to understand! She wanted to scream for Anna and throw herself into those strong, stout arms and cry to her mother what had just happened. But she could not bring herself, even in the first agony of that hysteria, to risk certain disbelief. They would say she had imagined this thing because Elizabeth was having a child and Zachary had said he saw an angel.

Mary lay there quietly while Joachim and Ann tiptoed down from the roof. But Mary could not sleep. She stole up from her bed after two hours of restlessness; she wrote her mother a note, made herself a bundle, and set off alone down the long road.

There was one other person in the world to whom she felt she must first confide the experience. She was walking to Cousin Elizabeth.

Japanese Boy

Mrs. Morley Davidson, Belleville Presbyterial secretary, gave a most interesting story about a Japanese boy who became a member of the crew of a mission ship, and who did not become a Christian until a fellow crew member was drowned during a violent storm. The captain could scarcely believe the Japanese boy had forsaken his ways for a better life, as he had been so mischievous.

Mrs. Davidson was graciously thanked by Mrs. K. Sills.

New York Rangers Causing The Rest Of The Pack To Warble The 'Blues'

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THIS IS IT, MAYBE!

Tonight's the night for the Peterborough Petes!

Tonight it is do-or-die for the Pride of the Kawarthas in a battle of the survival of the fittest in this mad, wacky senior "B" scramble. And not the least interested in the outcome are the stalwarts from the banks of the Moira.

Tonight in the Kingston Community Centre, probably before a sellout crowd, the Goodyears and the Petes clash in a game which, if the tide of victory swings to the homesters, means elimination for the Kawartha Kids. Kingston and Belleville have 26 points while the Petes have one less.

A victory for the Petes will give them 27 points and the group lead. If such is the case, the Glens must win their Saturday night tilt here with the Orillia Pontiacs. A Glen victory will give them 28 points and the top of the heap.

But the Goodies are not yet out of the picture, if all this occurs. They have a protested game to play with the Pontiacs, if their group standing is affected. If this is played and the Ponties win, the Goodies can hang up the gear as far as the group is concerned.

And from what we hear, if this replay occurs the Orillia management has no intention of being caught with their Ponties down. Feeling against the Goodyears is running rather high in their town, and we're told they'll move heaven, earth and anything else not nailed down to tack a defeat on the Limestoners.

Another report has it that the Goodyears are endeavering to have this replay take place in Kingston. That should bring some stentorian protests from the Belleville and Peterborough masterminds. The protested game was played in Orillia and resulted in in a 17-5 shellacking for the Goodyears. And prithee tell us, why should the replay take place in Kingston? How desperate can some people get?

And another quiz, kiddies. If the Goodies are so confident they can take the Petes tonight, why are they worry-warting about this replayed game? If they win, it's snafu. Unless they want to use it as a top-perch hoist in the event the Glens win against Orillia.

However, it all hinges on the result of tonight's battle in Kingston.

ALL BUSY!

Five Belleville hockey teams swing into action tomorrow night. The big game in the city is the senior "B" tilt between the Glen Roys and the Orillia Pontiacs, while the junior Black Hawks safari to Lindsay for their second semi-finals tile with the youthful but scrappy Warriors of the Scugog town.

Down in Kingston the minor puckists tee off along the playoff trail. Belleville's bantams, midgets and juveniles take on the Limestone city younkers in a triple-header, first game goals-to-count series. The bantams get under way at 6.30 followed by the midgets and juveniles. The second games of the series are scheduled for Memorial Arene next Thursday night.

INTERVIEW WITH "RED" DORAN

Question—"Who is starting at centre tomorrow night, Red?"
Answer—"It's a girl."
Q—"How much do you figure we'll win by?"
A—"Seven pounds, thirteen ounces."
O—"What shape is the defence in?"
A—"They're both doing fine."
Q—"Who will flank you on right wing?"
A—"We thought it might be a boy."
Q—"Who is the referee?"
A—"A little sister for Deidra."

(The guy didn't act normal. Three buttons were missing from his shirt. In his pocket were revised editions of "What Young Fathers Should Know." He had a dreamy look in his eyes. We tried again).

Q—"Where do you think the final game will be played, Red?"

A—"Belleville General Hospital, early in the morning."

Q—"They tell me Jock (MacSuds) Johnstone lost money on the game the other night. Do you know how much?"

A—"Seven pounds, thirteen ounces."

Q—"We understand you are bringing up junior players next year. Can you tell us how many?"

A—"The next three will be boys."

Q—"Have you decided who will succeed you when you hang up the skates?"

"A"—"It's a girl."

And just before the white-coated attendants grabbed us, we learned "Red" had become the daddy of a beauteous bundle of joy, a seven-pound, thirteen ounce baby daughter. Both Mrs. Doran and the new arrival are fine, thank you. The Docs say "Red" will recover. Congrats, fella.

Terrible Tabs Nearly Win Final Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford Redmen and Hamilton Tigers ended the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series schedule Thursday night.

The Tigers, as usual this season, were defeated but they went down fighting. They lost 6-5, Brantford's victory coming at the 19:20 mark of the third period when Bill Shill scored the tie-breaker.

It was Shill's second goal of the night. Arn Dugan also scored a pair for the Redmen. Fritz Fraser and Bill Dinning notched the others.

Murray Dunnette and Stan Ritchie each scored two for the Tigers Ron Morgan tallied the other.

The win left the Redmen in fourth and last playoff spot with 54 points, accumulated by 27 wins. They had 21 losses in their 48-game schedule. They ended the season five points behind Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, and 11 points ahead of Chatham Maroons.

The Tigers had a disastrous season, winning only two of their 48 games, both against Stratford Indians.

Four teams are matched for the semi-finals. Kitchener - Waterloo and Stratford Indians open their best-of-seven series in Stratford Saturday night. Owen Sound Mercurys and Brantford begin theirs in Owen Sound Monday night.

The winners will meet for the league title and the right to face the representative from the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group for the all-Ontario championship.

Knock Off Chicago Hawks 4-2 In Rare Two-Game Win String; Wings Slap Habs for 4-1 Loss

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For a team that just lost its last mathematical chance of finishing first, New York Rangers are causing the rest of the National Hockey League a lot of grief.

The Rangers, who have been losing twice for every victory this season, currently boast one of their rare two-game winning streaks, earned at the expense of two clubs that needed the points in the worst way.

They knocked off Chicago Black Hawks 4-2 Thursday night when the Hawks had a chance to grab a chunk of play-off territory by sharing fourth place with Boston Bruins. The Bruins fell before Bill Cook's last-placers by the same score Wednesday, yielding third place to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Up Eight Points

Detroit Red Wings, who have had their own trouble with the New Yorkers in the past, gained a juicy 4-1 victory over the second-place Montreal Canadiens Thursday night, boosting their first-place margin to an impressive eight points.

Gordie Howe, almost certain to break a few league records before the season ends, picked up a goal and two assists at the Habitants' expense to run his point-total to 78, just eight short of the mark he set two years ago and equalled last year.

Scores 42nd Goal

The goal was his 42nd, leaving him eight short of Maurice Richard's record 50. He has 13 games left in which to increase his output.

Glen Skov, Metro Prystai and Alex Delvecchio were the other Detroit goal-getters. Elmer Lach was the Montreal marksman.

Little Wally Hergesheimer spearheaded a Ranger comeback that smeared the Hawks after they had taken a 2-0 lead in the first period.

Gus Bodnar rocked the New Yorkers on their heels when he converted a pass from defenceman Gus Mortson into a Chicago tally just nine seconds after the opening whistle. Jim Peters got Hawks' second goal on a solo effort before the period ended.

Jack Stoddard and Nick Mickoski wiped out the lead with second-period goals. Then Hergesheimer netted his 24th and 25th markers of the season in the final frame to decide the battle.

No games are scheduled tonight.

Toronto Rink Trophy Winner At Ont. Bonspiel

TORONTO (CP)—Gerve Meech of Toronto's High Park Club did a repeat performance at the 26th Ontario bonspiel Thursday night when his rink captured the Royal York Trophy, top award of the 'spiel.

Meech, who skipped a High Park rink to victory in the event in 1950, defeated Syd Smithers' Galt rink 10-6.

For Smithers it was the second defeat in a bonspiel final in eight days. Last week the game skip lost the right to represent southern Ontario in the Canadian curling championships to be held at Sudbury March 2-6 to Pete Gilbert's Chatham rink.

The Galt rink lost Thursday night's final by four shots. It was Toronto's game right from the start as they held a 8-0 lead up until the 10th.

The Smithers aggregation staged a comeback in the 11th end to collect four points before they conceded to High Park. It was the third time the trophy went to the High Park club.

The Henry Birks Trophy final which also took place Thursday night was an all-Toronto competition. The trophy went to a Toronto Civil Service rink skipped by D. Douglas who won over Mel Cunnington's Toronto Curling Club 10-5.

The out-of-town rinks were forced from this competition earlier in the day when the Civil Service four defeated Lou Ross' Agincourt rink, winners of the Royal York Trophy last year, and the Cunnington crew took a semi-final win from R. Rae's Unionville entry.

The semi-finalists in both the Royal York and Birks trophies were the qualifiers for the Grand Aggregate Trophy. The final of this award is to take place today, final day of the five-day bonspiel.

Some 125 games, including the two finals, were played Thursday, leaving 32 to be played today. Of the 125 games played visiting rinks won 65.

During the day two rounds of play were completed for the Seiberling Trophy, reducing the entrants to two finalists, Hamilton Victoria's Dr. A. Walkey rink and E. Smith's Toronto Granite Club. The final is to be played today.

Two rounds of Seagram Trophy play also were completed, leaving eight rinks left for final competition today. Of the eight places in this event five are held by outsiders.

Playdowns Thursday reduced North American Trophy competition to the semi-finals. Two non-Toronto rinks hold berths in this event, J. Sullivan's Kingston foursome and Tiverton's J. McFadyen quartet.

The Parker Pen trophy play has been brought down to the quarter-finals with Parry Sound, Seaforth and Brampton out-of-town bidders.

Ont. Wins High School Curling Title, Defeats 'Sasky' in Sudden-Death End

SASKATOON (CP)—An Oshawa rink has taken the Canadian high school curling championship to Ontario, ending the West's domination.

The Oshawa Collegiate and Technical Institute quartet won 8-7 over the Saskatchewan representatives from Regina's Scott Collegiate in a sudden-death, extra-end final completed early today.

Both teams had ended the regulation round-robin competition with eight wins and one loss. Nova Scotia was the closest of the other eight rinks with six wins and three losses and Alberta was next with a 5-4 record.

A crowd of 3,500 fans, a Canadian record attendance for schoolboy curling, watched the final and saw the Ontario boys presented with the Sifton Trophy and silver rose bowls by Victor Sifton of Winnipeg.

West Always Won

Since the competition was first run in 1948, the West had always won. Manitoba took it that year and Saskatchewan the next four, the Gary Thode rink of Saskatoon Tech winning in 1951 and 1952.

Both skips, Bob Walker of Ontario and Dennie Cochrane of Saskatchewan, made outstanding shots as the ding-dong 1953 final proceeded with never more than a point separating the teams.

But it was a beautiful, soft draw to the edge of the four-foot circle by Skip Walker on the game's last rock that won the title for Ontario.

Walker had Duncan Brodey as third, Clair Peacock as second and George MacGregor as lead. Cochrane was supported by Bob Forrest, Jim Garney and Glen Hamblin.

The Ontario boys appeared to have the decision tucked away on the 10th end where they held a 7-6 edge, but Cochrane came through with the tying point rubbing the Oshawa counter and rolling to the edge of the four-foot circle to make it 7-7.

On the extra end Cochrane attempted to guard a precious shot rock with his first stone and had tough luck when he bumped in Ontario for the counter.

Walker tried to guard his shot, but was a trifle too heavy and nudged into it leaving both rocks open, but still presenting a difficult situation for Cochrane. The Regina skip chose to try to kill both Ontario stones and gamble that he might hide his own as the counter.

Cochrane did just that and it all depended on Walker with the game's last rock. It had to be perfect and had to be in the four-foot circle for a winner.

Walker had the weight down to its finest point as he came over the hog line and began edging for the house. He barely rubbed one of his own stones and came to rest in the four foot with the point that gave Ontario an 8-7 victory.

Canuck Hockey 'Fair Dinkum' Says NZ Scribe

J. C. Graham, Canadian Press correspondent in New Zealand who is touring Canada, saw his first hockey game Wednesday night—Detroit Red Wings at Toronto Maple Leafs. Here are his impressions.

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

TORONTO (CP)—Seems I had quite a few misconceptions. I had always imagined rugby union football in my native New Zealand the toughest form of sport known. But then I hadn't seen Canadian ice hockey until Wednesday night.

I had thought of skating as the Barbara Ann Scott sort of thing. And I knew so little about hockey that I believed the most prominent Howe in Canada was a cabinet minister.

Rugby football New Zealand style can be downright brutal, but hockey at first glance looked to be just plain murder, with lethal weapons provided to make quite sure mayhem was done.

Toward the end I began to see that there were rules to prevent unrestricted slaughter, but I never did get to understand why the referee and linesmen were waving their arms unless it was to give the crowd something to boo about.

Actually the crowd struck me as remarkably well behaved, considering the drastic doings on the ice. I don't mean that there is anything wrong with Canadian lungs when a goal is scored, but I'm used to hearing people bellow "screw 'is neck orf" or "kick the blank ball, yer blank blank," and mild advice from the people around me Wednesday night like "let's go" was gentlemanly in comparison.

For speed, skill and excitement the game put any other skating I have seen—racing, figure or the ice follies variety—right in the shade. Even to the completely ignorant it appeals immediately as a game that calls for the utmost in timing, accuracy and determination. If that sort of thing is going on at local rinks all over Canada the country must be building quite a race.

The thing that left me amazed at the end was that in spite of the blood-curdling crashes, collision, and thumps that had been going on, there was no blood, no broken bones, no bodies.

Man. Trapper Wins Third Lap Sled Dog Race

CRANBERRY PORTAGE, Man. (CP)—A northern Manitoba trapper raced his nine-dog team 33 miles in less than three hours Thursday to win the third lap and threaten the leader in the 200-mile Canadian championship sled dog race.

Defending champion Steve Pranteau of Grand Rapids, Man., set the pace with two hours and 58 minutes compared with three hours for front-running Gilbert Lavalee of Pine Bluff, Man.

However, Lavalee still leads the derby with an elapsed total of 13 hours 21 minutes 40 seconds for the first three laps. Pranteau's total is 13 hours 29 minutes 20 seconds. The final gruelling 67 miles back to The Pas, Man., is to be run today.

QUAKERS SELL KIZMA

SASKATOON (CP) — Manager Norman Couch of the Western Hockey League's leading Saskatoon Quakers announced Thursday night the sale of right winger Alex Kuzma to Vancouver Canucks to make room for the return of George Senick from New York Rangers of the National Hockey League. Quakers earlier this week sold Carl Kaiser to the Canucks and in return purchased Ray Manson.

'Fearless Freddie' Says Tigers Will Finish Tops

By JOE REICHLER

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The best pitching in the American League will lift Detroit Tigers out of the cellar and boost the club into the first division this season, says manager Fred Hutchinson.

Fearless Freddie, who succeeded Red Rolfe last July, is convinced he has the nucleus of a club that should give the contenders a stiff battle within a year or two. He predicts a third- or four-place finish this season.

Hutch is pleased with the club's numerous trades and purchases since last spring that brought new blood in first-baseman Walt Dropo, shortstop Harvey Kuenn, second-baseman, Owen Friend, catcher J. W. Porter and outfielders Bob Nieman and Jake Crawford, but it is his conviction that it is the pitching that will carry the club.

"I honestly feel we have the best pitching in the league," Hutchinson said Thursday.

"Show me a club that is as deep in pitching as we are. We have six starting pitchers—Art Houtteman, Ned Garver, Ted Gray, Hal Newhouser, Bill Wight and young Billy Hoeft. Houtteman, in my opinion, has the brightest future of any pitcher in the league."

Melbourne Having Olympics Troubles; Rome, Mexico City May Put in Bids

By BEN PHLEGAR
(For Gayle Talbot)

NEW YORK (AP)—Four years ago the International Olympic Committee decided to send the Olympic games into the Southern Hemisphere for the first time and picked Melbourne, Australia, as the host city for 1956.

Two months from now the IOC is going to have to decide all over again whether it was a good idea.

Reports from Australia indicate the Melbourne organizing committee has been having a tough time. Short on funds, undecided on a location and hampered by various shortages, the Australians have had trouble getting started. So much trouble, in fact, that the IOC is worried.

"Or Else"

The IOC meets in Mexico City April 17. The Australians have been asked to furnish black and white proof that the games can go off as scheduled, or else.

The "or else," of course, means the games would be moved somewhere else. When talk of moving comes up U.S. cities figure prominently among the alternate suggestions, particularly Los Angeles, which staged the 1932 games, and Detroit.

But this observer, who covered the IOC meetings in Copenhagen in 1950, Vienna in 1951 and Oslo and Helsinki last year, doesn't think the Americans have much of a chance.

The United States is a long way from being the most popular country in the world. Resentment often runs deep even among its political allies. European nations, particularly, get the feeling at times that the U.S. is trying to run the world.

Another difficulty when it comes to selecting a site is that the host has to be one particular city, not a country. The Americans haven't been able to agree among themselves on one city and consequently the vote gets split.

So if for some reason the IOC at Mexico City decides to take the games from Melbourne, two of the better bets for 1956 would be Rome and Mexico City itself.

Both cities would like the games. And if Melbourne goes ahead in 1956 you can count on strong bids from Rome and Mexico City for 1960.

Hornets, Barons Again Tied For Loop Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets and Cleveland Barons, who have been battling for the leadership of the American League for most of the season, are tied again today for the league leadership.

The Hornets shaded Providence Reds 4-3 Thursday night, while Cleveland was idle. In the only other game, St. Louis Flyers stampeded Buffalo Bisons 10-4.

At Providence, Andy Barbe, veteran right winger, scored two goals to pace the Hornets. John McLellan and Danny Lewicki also tallied.

Ray Laplante counted two and Johnny Nenis one for the losers.

The St. Louis victory advanced the Flyers into a fourth-place tie with Syracuse Warriors.

Trailing 3-1 in the second, the Flyers exploded for three goals in as many minutes and went on to roll up their highest goal total of the season.

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Both coaches were expelled and three match misconducts were imposed before Fort William Canadiens downed Port Arthur Bruins 7-3 in a Thunder Bay Junior Hockey League game Thursday night.

Mickey Hennessey of the Canadiens was the first coach ousted. Bud Jarvis of the Bruins followed late in the third period. The match misconducts went to Garry McLeod and Don McLeod of the Bruins and John Kubinec of the Habs. Vic Marks of the Canadiens drew a major.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP)—Howie Meeker, right-winger for Toronto Maple Leafs and member of Parliament for Waterloo South, is being considered for the post of Ontario's athletic commissioner, Labor Minister Daley said Thursday night.

Daley said he had discussed the job with Meeker and "a good many others." He added:

"I am not prepared to go into the matter of filling the vacancy with a session of the legislature on. When the pressure of business lets up after the session, I will take up the matter of an appointment. Howie is a candidate, along with many others."

Meeker, at 29 the youngest member of the federal house, is in hospital recovering from back injuries suffered early in the National Hockey League season.

Meeker said he would like to keep on playing hockey "but I can't seem to keep away from injuries and the handwriting is on the wall."

The young MP said he is interested in the athletic commissioner post. He would have to retire from politics to become athletic commissioner.

After losing 2 and 1 to Betsy Rawls and Skip Alexander on the first day of match play, they decided not to continue in the first flight. They announced they would default their next match so Marlene could return to her studies at Rollins in nearby Winter Park, Fla.

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers of the National Hockey League changed their minds Thursday about farming out Pete Babando after his stellar play Wednesday night in the team's 4-2 victory over Boston.

Babando, who scored one goal and assisted on another, was to have been shipped to the Rangers' Vancouver farm club in the Western League. But the Rangers tore up his travelling orders.

Babando, a native of Braeburn, Pa., moved to Timmins as a youngster.

Judgment on Theft Charge Against Hensler Reserved

MONTREAL (CP)—Judge Gustave Marian reserved judgment Thursday in the trial of Frederick Hensler, 37-year-old printing plant employee, charged with stealing an advance copy of the Currie report on the Canadian Army's works services branch.

Judgment is to be given today.

The defence called no witnesses.

The Crown called five witnesses: Russell Bell, private secretary to M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader; Mrs. Alice O'Neill, secretary to George S. Currie, chartered accountant who drew up the report; Jack Brockman, office manager of National Lithographing and Printing, the company that printed the report; Mrs. Catharine Cosgrove, Hensler's sister-in-law; and A. S. Silver, a fellow worker of Hensler's.

Hensler gave himself up 24 hours after a warrant was sworn out for his arrest.

Mr. Bell testified he had not received the report but had seen it on several occasions in Mr. Coldwell's office in Ottawa. He had turned it over to Stanley Knowles, CCF member of Parliament for Winnipeg North Centre, on Mr. Coldwell's orders.

Typed Report

He had not seen Hensler until today.

Mrs. O'Neill said she typed the report and took it to the printer.

Mr. Brockman said Hensler, a typist, checked the report with another employee. All employees knew it was against company rules to take any of the 100 to 110 copies run off because it was a private report at the time.

Mrs. Cosgrove said Hensler came to her home and gave her an envelope to hold overnight, telling her not to open it as it contained "dynamite."

The next day, before Hensler returned, she opened it, found a "booklet" and saw from the front page that it was addressed to Defence Minister Claxton. She flipped through it and saw it had "something to do with Petawawa military camp.

Mr. Silver testified that at one time Hensler told him to say he knew nothing about the Currie report if anyone asked him.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mario Lanza is ready, willing and able to return to film work, an intimate of his reported today.

The friend is Nicholas Brodszky, composer of Lanza's two biggest hit songs, "Be My Love" and "Because You're Mine." He is one of the few persons who have remained close to the unpredictable tenor during his recent tiff with MGM.

After recording all his songs for "The Student Prince," Lanza failed to show up for the start of production. The studio finally paid off the other principals in the picture and sued Lanza for damages. He merely went into seclusion and was reported to be on another of his eating sprees.

"Mario says that's all over," said Brodszky. "He told me he has slimmed down again and is in great shape. He said he was going to make up with Metro and go back to work."

The composer said that much of Lanza's recent trouble was caused by disagreements with a business associate, which led to their parting company.

He added that Lanza's continual bouts with his weight have been a drain on his nervous system.

Shy Guy

Despite his brash ways, Lanza is actually "very shy," Brodszky added. "He is either very high or very low in spirits," he said.

Brodszky, a squarely - built, friendly Hungarian, boats an amazing record as a Hollywood composer. In his three years in the U.S., he has scored with three academy nominations for his songs.

He played piano and sang in night clubs of his native Hungary and composed for operettas and movies. He fled to England in 1936, when the Nazi terror began to strike. His old friend, Joe Pasternak, invited him to Hollywood, where Joe had become a producer and was making "Three Smart Girls" with Deanna Durbin.

But Brodszky had an offer to write a Coronation show for Charles Cochran and remained in England. He stayed through the London blitz. Three years ago, he finally accepted Pasternak's invitation.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

All the arguments about jump bids seem to ferment among those partners who dabble in cumbersome systems. In Horse Sense, all the meanings come to a head. Nothing to argue about.

South and north held the pair of hands shown here

SOUTH	NORTH
♥A K J 6 4	♠Q 9 8 5 2
♠A 8 7	♥K Q J
♦K Q 9	♦J 10 7
♣K Q	♣J 5

This is how they bid it:

South	North
1 S	3 S
6 S	Pass

Two aces were cashed by west at once and down went the contract before declarer in south could catch his breath. This started north telling off south for going to a slam.

South blamed north for their final troubles. He claimed that the jump assist was encouraging to a slam with the powerful cards in his own hand. Who wouldn't go to slam, south wanted to know.

In explaining his jump, north insisted that his hand was much too strong for a simple assist. Much too strong. A response of two spades would sound so weak he feared south would pass it.

His jump assist, north kept pointing out, was to make sure that south would not stop short of game. How could south guess the hand was so good if he bid only two spades, north wanted to know.

In Horse Sense the rule for an immediate jump is definite. In the case of an assist, three specific values are promised; support for the suit, tricks enough for game, two sure tricks. North was not only short a trick, he was short a sure trick, too.

The general idea is this: With only four tricks in north, they have no games unless south has another trick. If south has another trick he will bid again. North can then raise to four.

That should stop all arguments.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 21, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Anything contrary to principles of good reasoning should be strictly avoided. Be silent rather than say things that will only have adverse reaction.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Progress in routine, daily duties can be expected. Work in which you are trained should give little trouble, and can prove very beneficial.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Stars favor the pioneer, the thinker, steady effort. Wasting time over trifles will only put you in reverse, stunt your future.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Stimulating influences abound, so don't let unimportant things crowd out real issues. Plan, act promptly; carry out what you begin, to successful finish.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Essential to examine your outlook, pace schedule to conform with what you really can do. Make each minute count, but don't rush needlessly.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Go easy if inclined to spend money freely. May be strong leaning to extravagance. Shun that! Stars indicate p.m. best for relaxing.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—A lessening of generous benefic vibrations. Not unfriendly, but aspects warn against loose methods, lightly made promises, yours or others.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Day can be both pleasant and profitable if you will stop long enough to plan what you are about. Don't overstrain.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Can't afford to take chances. Would be easy to defeat good purpose of previous hard work by laxness or inaccuracy. Heart interests, family affairs sponsored.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Much depends upon way you accept responsibilities. If you undertake them in your usual manner, they will all fall in line for the due success.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Day will be largely what you make it. Some aspects ease your way. Pursue for efforts in steady fashion, not hastily or fearfully.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Dull outlook, right now, but okay for certain activities. However, you might better wait until things brighten. Prepare for urgencies, of course.

YOU BORN TODAY: Perhaps more studious than active; but you can attain great heights in work or profession. You don't fear taking on a new job or project. Neptune natives usually have artistic high mental ability. Noted nurses, doctors artists, actors, teachers born in this zodiacal sector. Birthdate of: John Henry Cardinal Newman, Eng. divine; Ann Sheridan, screen actress.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

Reverend A. Lloyd Shorten, secretary of Boys' Work and Young People's Work of the Board of Christian Education for the United Church of Canada, was the speaker at the Carrying Place church service on Sunday afternoon. This service was arranged by the Sunday School superintendent, Mr. Jack Baxter. The junior choir of Sunday School pupils sang "Can a Little Child Like Me Thank the Father Fittingly?" Mr. Baxter accompanied the organist, Mrs. B. Hendricks, on his violin.

Mr. Shorten held the attention of the children and adults alike as he described so enthusiastically the work he saw being done from coast to coast as he travelled across the Domion last year with the United Church Caravan.

Showing and describing the uses of several keys in his keycase, Mr. Shorten reminded his listeners that the most important key in life is the Word of God and urged that all get to know it and then use its teachings daily lest, like an unused key, it becomes rusty, and of no use.

Congratulating the Sunday School scholars on the way they had done their parts, he emphasized that all should serve God and their church in whatever way possible to the best of their ability.

Mr. Kingerley introduced and thanked the Reverend Shorten.

The Sunday School now has over 40 with Mrs. Stanley Hart, Mrs. Jack Baxter and Messrs. Jack Hart and Jack Baxter as teachers. Mr. Arnold Steenburg is assistant superintendent.

Mrs. Clark, of Toronto, is spending a few days with Mrs. H. Grounds, while Mr. Grounds is a patient in Trenton Hospital.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Vader on Sunday were, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Vader, Bancroft; Mr. and Mrs. E. Ruckstuhl and Mr. Frank Elliott.

Mrs. J. McLoclyn of Simcoe, spent a week with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Arnott Young.

Miss Gwen Hart, nurse-in-training at Belleville General Hospital, spent the week-end with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Bonter, and baby, of Belleville, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baxter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken McDonald, Niagara Falls, were week-end guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnott Young.

Miss Marion Daniels, deaconess at St. Paul's United Church, Orillia, and Rev. A. Lloyd Shotten, of Toronto, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baxter. Mr. and Mrs. Kingerley, of Consecon, were dinner guests at the same home.

Tourists Blamed

TORONTO (CP) — Who drank most of the $228,000,000 worth of liquor bought in Ontario last year?

Premier Frost said in the legislature today tourists purchased at least a substantial portion of it.

He said 17,000,000 persons visited the province last year, four times the actual population of Ontario, and they accounted for much of the huge liquor bill.

"Don't let anyone say we are going wild with the use of liquor," he said.

MADOC

Local Band Gives Successful Concert

MADOC.— A large crowd attended the second concert of the Madoc Band on Sunday evening, which was held in the High School auditorium. The band, which has been organized only a few months, is to be congratulated on its success.

Under the leadership of bandmaster Bill Aylesworth, the members have given many hours of work, and show a marked improvement over the first concert.

Chairman, Mr. Howse, principal of Madoc High School, complimented the band members on their progress. The guest soloist was Mrs. Roy Frost, (contralto), of Marmora, who rendered four numbers, "My Heart and Thy Dear Voice", from (Samson and Delilah); "My Lonely Alone", "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings", and "Dear Lord, Kind Lord". All numbers were beautifully rendered. Mrs. Frost is no stranger to Madoc, having resided here for some time. She was always willing to assist whenever asked. Her renditions were much appreciated. Her accompanist was Mrs. Rennie, of Marmora.

The band selections were well given among which the outstanding numbers was a cornet solo by bandmaster Bill Aylesworth, "Largo", and a "Polka", accompanied by bandsman Bob Wigle at the piano, and the overture, "Determination", with solo parts taken by Carl Blakely, Bob Wigle and Dave Crawford.

Plans are being made for another concert to be held in the near future.

Someone to Love

By Irene Lonnen Ernhart

—I—

You'd have thought Jenny Polaska was a bride, dressing for her wedding, the way all the girls crowded around her in the big models' dressing room at Max's salon. She straightened the collar of her brown velvet suit, and stared at her reflection in the mirror, feeling self-conscious and uncomfortable.

"You look positively wonderful in brown velvet, with those eyes of yours, Jenny," someone exclaimed. "Now put on the hat!"

Jenny sat the brown velvet bonnet on her head and tied the demure tulle ribbons under her chin and tipped her head. The hat did give her face a piquant look, accenting the brightness of her brown eyes and the well-brushed sheen of her short brown curls.

"Golly, Jen," one of the other girls cried, "the guy won't even listen to what you have to tell him, once he sees you in that hat. You look like a doll."

"He'll listen, all right," Nina Cushman put in. "He'll listen and hate Jenny forever for having told him."

Jenny colored a little as she turned away from the mirror and picked up her short brown lapin jacket. Nina was her best friend. And she couldn't help wondering if perhaps Nina wasn't right about her going to meet Tod.

Nina spoke again, her voice cynical and angry. "I still can't see why Liz asked you to meet him. Why not one of her own circle of friends,"

"We've been all over that," Jenny said wearily as she reached for her gloces and purse. "Tod and I are such old friends that naturally she thought of me."

"I think Liz is just malicious. She knows you're crazy about the guy."

"Don't be silly, Nina!!." Jenny's voice rose a little. "I had a teenage crush on Tod. We grew up togeth dnareloesm together and I somehow got the idea I was in love with him. But it was a long time ago, and it's all over now. I haven't even seen him for three years."

The girls were silent, and she was aware suddenly that she was blushing again and that her hands were shaking as she pulled on her gloves and started for the door.

• • •

It was snowing outside, one of those last snows of winter, great feathery flakes swimming lazily down. Jenny thought of taking a taxi, and then decided against it. She had plenty of time, and the snow was nice. The shop windows were filled with new spring togs, pastel suits, bouquets of spring flowers and new hat and white gloves. But her mind wasn't on the shop windows. She could only think of Tod.

"Somehow I got the idea I was in love with him. But it was a long time ago, and it's all over now."

The words hadn't sounded convincing even to her own ears. Why? Because they weren't true. She was in love with Tod still. After all this time. It was silly, but one couldn't help such things.

She ought to be planning how she would break the bad news about Liz to him, but instead she kept remembering Tod the way he used to be, before he ever got to running around with the crowd on the hill.

In high school she had been his girl. Summers on Sunday afternoons the two of them used to go with her father out to the fishing shack on the river to spend the day swimming and fishing. It had been such fun. She didn't suppose Tod ever thought of those good times any more, or all the other fun they'd had together. The Duncans had used to live on Catalpa street then too, and Tod used to spend more time at Jenny's house than he did at home.

Pop had liked him. He used to say to Jenny, "That Duncan family don't amount to a tinker's dam, taken as a whole, Jenny, but Tod's different, almost like he didn't belong to them. Now if your mother was alive, I suppose she'd have a fit about you seein' so much of him, because she never liked any of 'em. But I'd be pleased if you was to end up marryin' Tod. He's got good stuff in him, that boy."

Jenny used to blush and protest angrily when Pop said things like that. But inside it had given her satisfaction, because no other boy had ever interested her in the least. Then Tod had met Liz Conover somewhere and started running with the crowd on the hill. At first Jenny had been invited to their parties too. But after the summer Tod had begun dating Liz steadily, she'd not had more than a passing glimpse of him.

• • •

That summer there'd been a lot of pictures of Liz and Tod in the Sunday rotogravures. Jenny still had one of them tucked away in her handkerchief box. A good picture of Tod, showing his infectious smile, the reckless look of laughter in his eyes, the fine high forehead topped with a mass of dark curling hair. Tod was so handsome!

That fall he'd gone to the State University on a football scholarship. Liz had gone there too. Sometimes Pop would see Tod's picture on the sports page of the newspaper and point it out to her. He'd become a nationally known football player in three years. Then at the end of that third year an injury had put an end to the career. There was a long stay in the hospital in Capitol City and then an even longer stay in the East where some sort of an operation was performed on his back.

He was coming home now to Capitol City. The society page of the Gazette had been full of the coming nuptials for weeks. He and Liz were going to be married to the tune of considerable fanfare. The only hitch was that Liz had eloped with someone else yesterday.

The newspapers didn't know about the elopement yet. Meanwhile she had the unpleasant task of meeting Tod at the railroad station and being the first to break the news to him.

Her heart began to pound as she went up the long steps of the big limestone Union Station and through the swinging doors into the vaulted waiting room. The train caller's nasal tones echoed in the huge room, mingling with the rumble of baggage trucks, the sound of voices, and the thin reedy wail of a fretful baby.

"Train from New York coming in on track two! Train from New York!"

Jenny hurried to the gates, her face anxious. A few passersby looked back as they passed her and smiled. They probably thought she was meeting a lover or husband, for her cheeks were flushed, her eyes bright with eagerness.

And now her thoughts were really racing. What would she say to him first? Should she just blurt it out about Liz and be done with it, or break it gently?

• • •

She saw him coming at last. He was close enough to touch her before he even recognized her, and when he did he looked surprised and a touch embarrassed.

"Well, hello, Jenny! Fancy seeing you here. Going somewhere?" He was being polite, and already his gaze was circling her, looking for someone else.

"No," Jenny said quietly, "I came to meet you, Tod."

It was an instant before the words seemed to register.

"Came to meet me?"

"Yes. Liz told me you'd be on this train. She asked me to come."

"Liz? Has something happened?' He dropped his bags and reached for her shoulders. His touch made her shiver involuntarily.

"Yes, in a way something's happened."

"For Heaven's sake, Jenny!" The color drained out of his face and he gave me a quick shake. "She's not hurt——"

"No. Nothing like that," Jenny said. She was aware people were hesitating to watch.

Tod saw too, and took his hands away.

"Well," he said gruffly, "what is the matter? Where is Liz?"

"Maybe we'd better get out of here, before I try to explain," Jenny's voice trembled in spite of her efforts to keep it steady. Tod was even more handsome than he used to be, and he was angry at her too, just as Nina had said he would be. And she hadn't even told him about Liz yet. Outside, Tod hailed a cab. The snow was still falling.

In the privacy of the cab, Tod turned to her. "All right now, Jenny, what is it?"

"Liz—Liz is married."

Tod's blue eyes searched her face in disbelief. "Married?" She could see he didn't believe it. "You're kidding. What kind of a gag is this? Who thought it up?" There was not even the old friendliness in his eyes now.

He would hate her always for having told him this humiliating piece of news, Jenny thought bleakly.

• • •

—II—

The least he could do was buy Jenny a drink, Tod said, so they stopped at a small bar near the station. It was dimly lit and almost empty. The usual juke box played softly and monotonously from a corner.

While Jenny toyed with a cocktail, sipping it slowly and making it last, Tod downed three drinks in quick succession.

She had to keep explaining it over and over to him, just what Liz had said over the phone. He couldn't believe it. But after the drinks, he quit talking about Liz all at once, and seemed to notice her for the first time.

"You look cute, Jenny. I like that little hat with the whatchamacallit tied under your chin." He grinned at her amiably, signaled the waitress for another drink, and continued to talk, his voice blurred ever so slightly now.

"We used to have some pretty good times together before I met Liz, didn't we, Jenny?"

Jenny nodded. She knew he was tight, but nonetheless it pleased her that he recalled how things used to be between them.

"Remember when you and I and your Pop used to go out Sundays to the shack and fish all day, and go swimming?"

She nodded. Quick tears sprang into her eyes for no reason at all.

"Remember the time Jenny, we rented a boat and went down the river fishing and forgot to tie the boat?"

"And the current took it off, and we had to walk all the way back," Jenny put in laughing, "and we thought we were going to have to pay for the boat."

"Yeah, but they found it later so we didn't have to pay for it after all." He moved his glass in circles on the table, reflectively. And then he looked up, and said, "How is Pop anyhow?"

Jenny swallowed and looked down in silence for a moment, and then she said, "Pop's dead, Tod. I thought you knew."

"Oh. Sorry."

• • •

The waitress brought his drink, and he got out his billfold, paid her, and when she was gone he said, "I do remember now reading about it in the paper. He was a good scout, Jenny. I bet you miss him."

Jenny nodded, and finished her cocktail in one gulp.

Roofs, Signs, Trees TV Aerials Take Beating From Wind

City Hall Secretary Escapes Injury as Window Crashes

Tar paper roofs, signs, tree limbs and television aerials in the Belleville district took a beating this morning as they were buffeted by strong winds which at times reached as high as 55 to 60 miles per hour in gusts.

The wind came on the heels of a storm which earlier skirted the district to the north. Intermittent flashes of lightning were seen as the storm passed over.

In the downtown section of the city a large chunk of a tar paper roof on the Queen's Hotel was ripped away by the force of the wind. The heavy paper dropped onto the pavement and was further scattered about by the wind.

One large section blew across the street and crashed into a second storey window at the city hall showering broken glass across a secretary's office.

Typewriter Covered

"I had been sitting at my desk just a minute before," Mrs. Anne Haggerty, secretary in the mayor's office, said. "My typewriter was literally covered with glass, broken pieces were showered over my desk and all across the room."

The Chamber of Commerce sign hanging outside the city hall also came a cropper. The sign was ripped loose on one end and hanging by one end swung dangerously back and forth over the heads of pedestrians.

Hydro service in the city was cut intermittently but fortunately only for very brief periods. Mr. O. H. Scott said the trouble was on high tension lines leading to the public utilities distribution points. Downed limbe caused a few brief interruptions in the city, but these were only minor.

Power Disrupted

Late this morning power service to the northeastern section of the city was disrupted when the top of a hydro pole at the corner of College Street and Hambley Street, broke off with the force of the wind. Utilities manager Mr. Scott said the Canadian National Railways and the entire north eastern section of the city was affected.

Television antennas on exposed rooftops came in for a good shaking as the high wind swayed them dangerously.

At Rossmore across the bay several aerials were twisted grotesquely over rooftops after they had caught the ful force of the wind.

Shanties Blown Away

Fish shanties on the bay took a beating Jim Matthews, local market attendant, said his shanty and that of Gordon Roblin had taken off down the bay together as the unbroken force of the wind caught them. The shanties had been situated close to Rednersville and were found smashed and overturned within a few rods of open water at the bay bridge.

Herb. McCabe's fishing shanty, which had been situated opposite Zwick's Island, was said to have completely disappeared.

City firemen were called out on several runs a chimney blazes were reported. One call was to a chimney fire east of Rednersville in Prince Edward county.

N.Y. Papers Call Abbott 'Wizard' Praise Budget

NEW YORK (CP)—"Look at Canada go!" says the New York Daily News today in an editorial praising the Canadian budget. The New York Daily Mirror joins in the applause by dubbing Finance Minister Abbott the "wizard of Ottawa."

The New York Times says "that pale, green look on some New Yorkers' faces. . ."is envy.

After listing the tax reductions the News says "one of the most significant of those tax reliefs, we think is that on dividends."

"Canada, unlike the U. S. of recent years, takes the viewpoint that private enterprise is what makes a country tick. Maple Leaf citizens are being encouraged to invest still more of their saving in common stocks, etc. The new ruling allows them to deduct from the taxable income 20 per cent of dividends received, instead of the old 10 per cent.

"In spite of this kindly consideration for the private pocketbook, Mr. Abbott, in his seven years on the finance job, has reduced Canada's net debt by some $2,250,000—saving the people $63,000,000 a year in interest charges. . .

"Our shrewd friends up there have made a truly sensational post-war recovery. We take off our hats to Canadian enterprise and suggest the world and most particularly our Washington, D. C. part of it give Ottawa a long, careful look."

Tornadoes Hit Southern States

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Tornadoes smashing at three deep south states left one person dead, 10 injured, and a mounting list of homeless today.

The heaviest toll was in Alabama where four northwest state communities were lashed by destructive storms. Mississippi and Louisiana felt the fury to lesser degree.

Howling winds killed Mrs. Odell Willis and left her husband and six children injured in the wreckage of their mountain home near Tuscumbia, Ala.

Dangles from Plane For 30 Minutes In Freezing Weather

EDMONTON (CP) — An army paratrooper participating in a military exercise at Norman Wells, N.W.T., dangled from an airplane for nearly 30 minutes in 20-below temperatures Friday when his gear became entangled as he prepared to jump.

Pte. Jim Bonder, 18, of Mission City, B.C., hung under the aircraft until its third sweep over a target. The plane crew then cut him loose and he made a controlled jump.

The incident took place during "Exercise Bulldog", 950 miles north of here. Army officials did not say at what height the plane was flying at the time.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: High winds buffeting southern and central Ontario today are the result of an intense storm near Sault Ste. Marie early this morning and which is moving rapidly northeastward. Rain accompanied by record high temperatures in the fifties occurred early this morning before the arrival of colder air which is now sweeping across these southern regions. At Hamilton the temperature reached 56 early today.

As the storm moves on into Quebec tonight and Sunday, winds will diminish gradually throughout Ontario. However, Ontario will see colder weather with overnight minimum temperatures ranging from 20 above in the south to 20 below in northwestern regions of the province.

FROST ANNOUNCES $100,000 GRANT TO FLOOD RELIEF

Only Short Sitting Of Legislature Held

TORONTO (CP)—A government inquiry into the disappearance of the country doctor from the forefront of medical practice was urged in the Ontario Legislature Friday.

Dr. S. F. Leavine (PC—Waterloo North) said centralized hospital facilities are gradually pushing the general practitioner into the background.

"Much good has been accomplished (by central hospitals) but they would seem to be the death of the general practitioner," he said during the throne speech debate.

"The eclipse of the general practitioner will be a sad day for the smaller rural areas. I think the time is ripe for a royal commission to review the whole field of curative arts and sciences."

The House convened early Friday and rose after a 90-minute session, allowing out-of-town members to catch trains to their home constituencies for the week-end.

Before Dr. Leavine's speech, Premier Frost announced a $100,000 provincial contribution will be made to European flood relief. He said the money is to be used for whatever purpose the national committee considers necessary.

Buy Urgently Needed Wood

Premier Frost said the contribution to flood relief likely would be used to buy urgently-needed lumber, but he anticipated a demand for seed, fertilizer and livestock. Agriculture Minister Thomas is investigating the availability of these materials.

Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver, who last week criticized the government for not making an immediate contribution, said the government action "is a good step." The premier said at the time he was waiting for advice on the exact requirements before deciding the amount of money the province would give.

Dr. Leavine said "there is considerable evidence" to warrant changes in examinations for drivers' licences. He suggested regional schools be held for examiners.

Recommend Change

The former Kitchener mayor also recommended a change in highway speed limits. No specific limit was mentioned, but he said "the modern automobile is geared for high speeds, and the present 50-mile limit would make law breakers out of all of us."

He said the public is alarmed over monopolies in the press and radio.

"I have no doubt the present holders of a chain of newspapers and radio stations are exemplary men," he said. "But what of the future? The controlled press of Russia will ultimately be no different from a press dominated by the few."

Discussing the problems of his own constituency, Dr. Leavine urged replacement of a bridge in the village of St. Jacobs, which he described as "narrow and out-moded."

He said the western end of Highway No. 7 at Kitchener "resembles a jigsaw puzzle" of intersecting roads which makes it difficult to find the highway.

Refugees Back to 'Isle of Death' Find Canvey Scene of Desolation

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

CANVEY ISLAND, Eng. (AP)—The White family came home this week and papa poured the sea water out of the television set.

This was the report today of sandy-haired Robert White, age 11, one of thousands of refugees who have returned to what Britain called the "Isle of Death."

Canvey Island, in the Thames estuary, was the home of 12,000 persons when hurricane - driven tides struck it at 2 a. m. Sunday Feb. 1. Angry waters surged over the 8,000-acre island, drowning at least 62 persons — along with 245 more elsewhere on England's eastern coast.

Ten thousand inhabitants of Canvey fled, leaving behind a ghost community isolated in a lake of murky, swirling waters.

"The three feet of water in the living room was nearly gone," he said. "But oh, what a mess was left. The furniture was ruined and had floated everywhere. The whole place was stinky and sloshy.

"Mom had just finished paying for the television set, too, and the first thing papa did was to empty the sea water out of it. But it was wrecked.

"There was a dead fish in the bath tub."

The 4,000 persons who so far have plodded back over the old iron bridge from the mainland, past the water-soaked sign "Welcome to Canvey Island," have found their homes in about the same shape.

For the 2,000 pensioners, it meant lifetime possessions were swept away.

But Canvey Island is shrugging off its disaster and the people are getting on with business.

Total damage has not been assessed, but officials estimate the cost in the neighborhood of £1,000,000.

Eisenhower Indicts Russia For Subjugating Free Peoples Under Secret War Agreements

WASHINGTON (AP)—Quick congressional approval was forecast today for President Eisenhower's indictment of Russia's mass "subjugation of free peoples" through permission of Second World War agreements.

A resolution, sponsored by Eisenhower and made public Friday, rejects the Soviet Union's interpretation of the understandings—presumably those made at Yalta—as a licence for the subjugation of free peoples. It proclaims a hope for ultimate self-government behind the Iron Curtain in line "with the pledge of the Atlantic Charter."

The resolution was not as strong as some Republicans had wanted, but few seemed inclined to challenge the President on the issue. Most Democrats were ready to go along with it, too. It did not criticize the administration of Democrats Franklin D. Roosevelt or Harry S. Truman, nor did it repudiate agreements made at Yalta or elsewhere during those administrations.

Democrats chuckled privately, too, over the Republican President's acceptance of the principles of the Atlantic Charter, originated by Prime Minister Churchill and Roosevelt.

The Atlantic Charter, actually a joint declaration of the two leaders, was composed of notes they agreed upon aboard ship in the Atlantic in August 1941.

They recognized, among other things, the rights of all peoples to choose their own governments and agreed on restoration of self-government for those who had lost it. The charter had no legal force, although it caught on as a declaration of the West's principles.

Senate majority leader Robert Taft of Ohio arranged to handle the Eisenhower resolution in the Senate.

The resolution asserts that the Russians violated "the clear intent" of wartime agreements and understandings and subjected whole nations to "totalitarian imperialism."

It says the people of the United States will never countenance such enslayement and calls on Congress to join in:

1. Rejecting "any interpretations or applications of any international agreements or understandings" of the Second World War "which have been perverted to bring about the subjugation of free peoples."

2. Proclaiming the hope that the captives of Soviet despotism "shall again enjoy the right of self-determination which will sustain the peace; that they shall have again the right to choose the form of government under which they will live, and that sovereign rights of self-government shall be restored to them all in accordance with the pledge of the Atlantic Charter."

Hungarian Leaders Disappear In Red Wave of Anti-Semitism; Top Official Commits Suicide

VIENNA (AP) — The wave of anti-Semitism behind the Iron Curtain has caused a top Hungarian Communist to commit suicide, led to the execution of several secret police officials and resulted in the disappearance of three ministers, diplomatic reports reaching Vienna said today.

All jews, they were members of a Communist regime almost 90 per cent Jewish in its make-up.

The reports said that Zolton Vas, the general director of the Hungarian planning office and a member of the politburo, committed suicide a week or two ago after a group of Russian "purgers" allegedly arrived in Budapest.

Vas was a long-time friend of Hungary's Jewish premier, Matyas Rakosi, and once had the rank of colonel in the Russian Army. He was partly responsible for the country's five-year plan, which best available reports say has failed miserably to meet its quotas.

Vas is reported to have feared that he would be among those Jewish leaders of Hungary which the Russians planned to liquidate on "suspicion of zionism."

Lt.-Gen. Peter Gabor, Jewish head of the Hungarian secret police, was reported to have been shot, together with his wife and family, on Russian orders.

The reports said that three or four of Gabor's lieutenants have been removed from their plush offices at secret police headquarters and are believed to have been executed with the Gabor family.

The repirts said further that four officials, all Jews, may have fallen victim to the wave of persecution which has affected the entire Communist world:

Because the majority of Hungary's government leaders themselves are Jews, the report said, it was necessary for the Kremlin to send a special group of "experts" to carry out the liquidation of Communists who had lost Moscow's confidence.

INVALID ACQUITTED

NEW YORK (AP) — Vincent Pugh, 39-year-old tuberculoses victim whose lawyer says has only a year to live, was acquitted Friday night of two murder charges in the shooting of his wife and step-daughter last July 17. The defence called 56 witnesses during the six-week trial to prove that Pugh, a war veteran, was temporarily insane at the time of the shooting.

'Red Dean' Back With Apologies For Russ Purge

MONTREAL (CP) — Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, dean of Canterbury, said Friday night recent purge trials in Russia and eastern Europe "may be because they must clear the decks for war."

In an address to the Canadian Soviet Friendship Society in suburban Verdun, he said that when he questioned his Russian friends about the trials they said, "this is war and these men must be removed."

"They were removed."

He said his Russian friends feared that John Foster Dulles, United States secretary of state, and President Eisenhower might be planning to attack.

TORONTO (CP) — Fifty-seven persons were killed on Ontario highways during January, a number equal to the record for the month set in January, 1941.

In all, 21 drivers, 18 automobile passengers, 17 pedestrians and one cyclist were killed. Ten of the deaths resulted from collisions with trains. The number killed in January of last year was 46.

These department of highways figures were released today.

British Trawler Sinks; Eight of Crew Drowns

CAMPELTOWN, Scotland (AP) — The British trawler Richard Crofts struck a reef and sank early Friday off Coll Island in the Hebrides and eight of the 12 crew members were drowned.

The 290-ton craft was the fourth British trawler lost in United Kingdom waters in the last three weeks. A total of 46 men were drowned in the four sinkings.

RANGOON, Burma, (Reuters) —Chinese Communist authorities have evacuated all persons in Yunnan province living within 15 miles of the Burma border, the semi-official newspaper New Times of Burma reported Saturday. This move follows recent reports that Chinese Nationalist troops in Burma were massing along the war-time Burma road, leading into Yunnan.

P.M. REVEALS SECRET ORDERS FOR SECURITY

Defends Emergency Act Powers in Hot Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—A secret order whose nature has not been disclosed because it involves the security of Canada has been passed by the government under the Emergency Powers Act.

This was disclosed in the Commons Friday during a day-long debate on proposed legislation to extend the act for another year—until May 31, 1954 The Progressive Conservative and other opposition parties have described the move as an abrogation of the rights of Parliament.

Wide Powers

The act, first established in 1951 and extended in 1952, gives the government wide powers to act without reference to Parliament in almost all phases of Canada's economic life. It also gives the power of arrest where regulations under the act are contravened.

During 1952 the only known significant orders under the act concerned the screening of Great Lakes seamen for security and the possible revocation of the licences of airline pilots and amateur radio operators for security reasons. These orders were made public.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, leading an attempt to block extension of the act, made first mention of the secret order. He said he had been informed of its contents and the fact it was being kept secret under the General Regulations Act, a measure allowing the government to withhold certain orders from publication.

Leaders Were Told

Later Prime Minister St. Laurent confirmed this. He said "because it was an order dealing with security, the information about it was given to the three leaders and it was explained to them how the matter was being handled."

Neither the prime minister nor Mr. Drew made any reference to the contents of the order. But later an informant outside the House said it is similar to measures in effect in countries allied with Canada. He declined to go farther.

The exchange about the secret order brought from Mr. Drew the assertion that it was "not sufficient that the contents of an order be indicated to a few."

Unless the nature of such an order was most clearly defined by legislation "I submit that at no time should there be passed by this or any other government any order which limits the freedom of any individual or the rights of any of our people."

Called Dangerous

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) said "secret orders-in-council are dangerous in their import."

Mr. Drew said the "passing of the Emergency Powers Act is in fact the passing of the Canadian Parliament as a federal democratic institution."

SENTENCE REDS

C.C. Rorabeck Instantly Killed In Car Accident

Two Others in Car Suffer Only Slight Injuries

One man was killed and two others were injured early Saturday when their car left the highway half a mile east of here on No. 2 Highway and crashed into a tree.

Almost instantly killed was Courtland C. Rorabeck, 31, 44 Yeomans Street. Taken to the Belleville General Hospital were Earl Rivers, 31, Cedar Street, who suffered head injuries, and Monty McCann, 30, Graham Street, who was said to have received a broken nose. He was allowed to go home after treatment at the hospital.

The accident took place near the Smith Transport warehouse east of the city limits. Rorabeck was driving east with his two companions when he is said to have turned out to pass a transport on the four-lane highway. His left wheel was caught in the mud on the centre boulevard and the car sideswiped one small tree and then continued on to crash into the second tree. The left front of the car was completely demolished.

An inquest was called for Saturday morning by Coroner Dr. D. C. McVicker. Provincial Constable James McBride investigated the accident.

Worst Blizzard Of Winter Hits Mid-West States

CHICAGO (AP) — Numbing cold descended today upon a vast section of the midwestern United States in the wake of the winter's worst snowstorm.

Temperatures of zero to 15 below were forecast for tonight in at least six states.

The winds scattered the new falls of snow, ranging up to 15 inches at Huron, S. D., and 12 at St. Cloud, Minn., into formidable drifts that kept school children home, forced businesses to close for lack of customers, and even buried some highways.

Similar discomforts were felt in Wyoming and Colorado a day earlier, where the storm began Wednesday. It was in those states the only storm deaths — nine — were reported. Five were the result of traffic accidents and four, all in Denver, attributed to overexertion in the snow.

Outside the direct path of the storm but within the broad perimeter of high winds, temperatures also plummeted. Severe temperature drops were recorded Friday in Missouri, Illinois and Iowa as well as in the main path of the storm.

Kansas got a dust blizzard in the northwest section, nearest the main storm. Visibility dropped to zero at Colby.

Ottawa Ends Cattle Price Supports Today

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government plans to end its cattle price support program today, a week in advance of the reopening of the United States market to Canadian livestock and meat.

The U. S. market was closed to Canadian cattle and meat Feb. 25, 1952, following an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan.

The agricultural prices support board said Friday that starting Monday the government will buy no more cattle. It has been buying finished cattle at a support price of 23 cents a pound, basis of good steers at Toronto.

The board said the termination of price support a week before the reopening of the American market was aimed at discouraging heavy marketings within the next few weeks.

Russian Move On Indo-China 'In the Making'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Michael Mansfield said Friday the activity of Russian officers indicates a Soviet move on Indo-China "is in the making."

The Montana democrat said he believes the Russian move to counter President Eisenhower's Formosa directive "will be in Indo-China.'

Eisenhower announced he was ordering the U.S. 7th fleet to stop "shielding" Red China from attack by Chiang Kai-Shek's Natoinalist forces on Formosa.

A member of the Senate foreign relations committee, Mansfield urged in a statement that heavy new military shipments be sent to Indo-China.

Loss of that key southeastern Asiatic land, he said, would start a chain reaction extending to the Persian Gulf and give the Russians and their satellites "the rubber, the tin and the oil which are in short supply in the Soviet Union and which mean so much in the conduct of a war."

Three Balkan States Reach Defence Pact

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia have reached complete agreement on defence arrangements against possible Communist aggression in the Balkans in talks here, informed Turkish sources said today.

No communique was issued after the week-long discussions ended Friday night but the sources said: "Complete accord has been reached concerning defence arrangements to be made jointly by the three nations."

Women Are Better Garage Jockeys, Handle Others' Cars Like Babies

TORONTO (CP) — Women seem to be popular as car jockeys in Toronto storage garages, despite the average man's opinion of their driving ability.

In a city-wide trend, service managers are offering good pay to women who can take cars up difficult storage ramps and can take their turn in new-car pickups and deliveries.

Said one enthusiastic service manager: "They handle cars like babies." Another commented: "I don't know where the legend grew up that women drivers are untrustworthy. . .A good woman driver is worth two young men car jockeys any day."

One woman jockey, Margaret Smith, takes an average of 60 cars a day up steep concrete garage ramps and her boss says she hasn't bumped or scratched any. She has driven nearly every make and model. She was stumped once by the four-gear change on an English sports car, but she worked it out before letting anyone know.

Her boss says his company would convert to an all-woman jockey staff if he could get them. He added: "A woman in our service department has lifted the tone of the garage. Besides good women drivers know how to handle expensive cars with respect. They don't treat customers' Cadillacs like hot-rods."

A downtown garage employs four women and four men jockeys. Mrs. Helen Scott has been with the firm 12 years and plans to stay on although she is a grandmother. At another garage employing three women, Dorothy Smorden, who drove a taxi during the war, thinks it is an ideal occupation for women who like working with cars.

Theatre Guild To Present 'The Happy Time'

"The Happy Time," a mirthfully diverting comedy about a French-Canadian family in Ottawa in the early twenties, is to be presented Wednesday and Thursday, ~~March 11 and 12~~, by the Belleville Theatre Guild. The presentation for both nights will be at the Belleville Collegiate Auditorium.

The play was originally produced by the famous team of Rodgers and Hammerstein and was one of the biggest hits of the 1950 Broadway season, running 614 performances in New York. Since then, it has played to hundreds of thousands of thrilled audiences all over Canada and the United States.

This story of the Bonnards, a warm-hearted, gay and somewhat disreputable family, will give the audience an evening of entertainment which should be the highlight of the season and one of the biggest accomplishments, to date, of Belleville's own society of dramatic artists.

Under the direction of Sydney Rose, assisted by Joy Wonnacott, rehearsals are going ahead full swing. Property, wardrobe, lighting and sound committees are working at feverish pace, in preparation for the opening night.

Belleville audiences will enjoy the performance of a 12-year-old boy given by Mrs. J. Sisler, as well as the characterizations of the father and uncles by Syl Quinn, Stuart Robb, Bob Temple. Ray Brule gives a realistic touch to the role of grandpa. Dolly Cain, Milda Dandeneau, Helen Sulman, Shirley Foster, Bob Dickens, Frank Deacon and Bert Simpson all do a big job to round out a good cast.

Another picture showed specialized equipment built for planting, tilling and harvesting of crops in special areas. To hold the interest of the kiddies present a comedy feature starring Buster Keaton was shown.

Assisting Mr. May in the direction of the show was Douglas McLaughlin, John Deere block manager.

Many Attend World's Day Of Prayer at Tabernacle Church

"This whole wide world is bound by golden chains of prayer about the feet of God," so sang the poet. Yesterday afternoon, the nave of Tabernacle United Church was well filled by women from the various city churches who met in answer to Africa's "Drum Call," for the World's Day of Prayer, which stretched from 'Greenland's icy mountains, to India's coral strand' in one common plea that all Christians everywhere should "walk as children of light."

Mrs. W. B. May, of Tabernacle United Church, was leader for this special day, leading the assembled women through the prescribed program, assisted by those representing the various churches: Mrs. W. Neal, of Victoria Avenue Baptist; Mrs. J. S. A. Spearman, of the Wesleyan Methodist; Mrs. Albert Smith, of the Standard Church; Mrs. J. G. Hornsby, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian; Mrs. Arthur Smith, of St. Thomas' Anglican Church; Mrs. LaRue, of St. Margarets-on-the-Hill; Mrs. Stewart, of Christ Church; Mrs. R. G. Coulter, of Holloway Street United; Mrs. C. Hyde, of Bridge Street United, and Mrs. A. Henderson, of Alliance Tabernacle.

"What is in Thine Hand?"

The address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Ray Rowley, entitled: "What is in Thine Hand?" stressing the thought that, no matter how small the gift, or the talent, if willingly used for the Lord and the spreading of His gospel, it will bring forth fruit for the kingdom.

Mrs. Rowley also read a beautiful poem bearing on the subject in which the Master came to one in the spring morning asking for the seed to be planted; but delay was asked; again, in the summer morning, the Master came with the same request, and met with a similar answer. In autumn He came again, again the excuse, till at last in the chill of winter, the one who had been asked so often, was at last ready: but, alas the harvest was over and the precious souls which were outside the fold—the ungarnered grain, were lost, because of the place that had been left empty.

Mrs. I. E. Tinkess, favored with a lovely vocal selection, "Dear Lord, Kind Lord," accompanied by Mrs. George Wright at the organ console, who also presided for the hymns, as well as for the offertory, which was taken by members of the Evening Auxiliary.

The lovely white standards of white Calla lilies and sprays of ambrosia which adorned the chancel, coupled with the shafts of sunlight which filtered through the stained glass windows, combined, with the purple-surpliced choir, to make a most pleasing picture.

The well loved hymn, "The Day Thou Gavest" Lord, is ended and the Aaronic blessing closed one link of that golden chain which encircled the world for the "World's Day of Prayer."

Bruce Lattimer Attends Course In Rochester, N.Y.

One of three Canadian druggists to be selected, Bruce Lattimer of Lattimer's Drug Store here has just returned from a ten-day salesmanship training course at the Eastman Kodak Company.

Some thirty-four attended the course, with 31 Americans representing 25 states of the union. The other two Canadians were

According to Mr. Lattimer, the course was a more or less strenuous one, with study and lectures, tours and practical lessons taking up the students' time from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily. It was one of six courses held annually by the Eastman Company.

Mr. Lattimer was singularly honored when he was made president of the "class." Additional prestige as added in the fact that he was one of three Canadian druggists to be invited to attend the course.

The operation and manufacture of cameras was gone into thoroughly with the class being taken on tours of the large Eastman plant to study operational methods. One of the tours included that of Niagara Falls, where the class spent an entire day photographing the falls with movies and still cameras, all in color.

Raging Winds Cut Off Power In Part of Town

Winds ranging in gusts from 55 to 60 miles an hour caused a power shutoff here for most of Saturday morning on the west side of the river.

The shutoff occurred when a lighting arrester at the Hinde and Dauche Paper Mill toppled off a pole and caused a short circuit. Aside from inconvenience to merchants and residents, no damage was done. No operations were in progress at the Trenton Memorial Hospital during the blackout period.

A slight fire at the home of Arthur Chapkens, 15 McCann street, was caused when stove pipes became overheated by the wind. No damage was reported by firemen.

The power shutoff started at 8.15 a.m.

Plays Presented Much Enjoyed By Large Crowd

Trenton (Special)—Before a packed auditorium both nights Trenton High School dramatic students presented two plays "Our Dream House" and "Seven Women". Both were well received and their success reflected strongly the directive attention expended by teachers Miss A. C. Johnston and Mrs. R. M. McCormick.

The setting for "Our Dream House" occupied the living room of the Jenkins' home. Miss Kathleen Jenkins, played by Catherine Muir, was expecting a visit from Chester Nutkins (John Hart an architect and paleontologist whom she had little use for. Since Kathleen dreaded Chester's coming her family decided to end his visits for good. Her brother Michael (James Whelan) her sister Jennifer (Janice Hawtrey) her grandmother (Margaret Finley), her mother (Beverley Brown) and father (Jack Wilson) acted as a typical family until Chester's arrival. Then they seemed to be overcome by a temporary insanity by becoming Lady MacBeth, Napoleon, a wild west hero, a Russian spy and a maniac. The sketch ended in a riot with Kathleen's family succeeding in driving Chester out of his wits.

In the second play of the evening the action took place in the drawing room of Mr. and Mrs. Tovey's house in Chelsea, England. A dinner party was in progress for Mr. and Mrs. Tovey (Roger Mowbray and Pat Brown) for Captain Rattray (Fred Dobson) an old school friend of Mr. Tovey. Because a mistake in the invitation, Captain Rattray was a half-hour early.

While the host and the hostess were dressing the maid (Marlene Leveridge) admitted a lady guest Leonora by name (Iris Gibson). The two became acquainted while waiting and although the Captain became distressed for a time the play ended on a happy note with the captain arranging a seven day leave to win the vivacious Leonora.

Also taking part in the skit "Seven Women" were Ronald Klingspoon, Sylvia House, Janet Ross, Noel Almey and Barbara Robertson.

The stage settings for both plays were designed by S. Foden. Master of ceremonies J. Garret introduced the program for the evening. The school orchestra rendered selections during intermission.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B POWELL

I'm the Child of a King

My Father is rich in houses and lands,
He holdeth the wealth of the world in His hands;
Of rubies and diamonds, of silver and gold,
His coffers are full, He has riches untold.

My Father's Own Son, the
Saviour of men.
Once wandered on earth as the poorest of them;
But now He is reigning forever
on high,
And will give me a home in Heaven by and by.

I once was an outcast, a stranger
on earth,
A sinner by choice, and an alien by birth,
But I've been adopted, my name's
written down,
An heir to a mansion, a robe,
and a crown.

A tent or a cottage, why should
I care?
They're building a palace for me
over there.
Though exile from home, yet
still I may sing,
All glory to God, I'm the child of a King!

Cho. I'm the child of a King,
I'm the child of a King;
With Jesus my Saviour,
I'm the child of a King.

"Hath not God chosen the poor of this world in faith, and heirs of the Kingdom which He hath promised to them that love Him?"

That bit of scripture in the second chapter of the Epistle of James gave Hattie Buell the inspiration for her beloved hymn, "A Child of the King."

In a day when hymns of heaven were popular with hymn writers and hymn singers alike, this song become one of the most precious in the list. Nineteenth century Christians took it to their hearts along with S. Fillmore Bennett's "Sweet By and By", Fanny Crosby's "Saved by Grace", Annie Herbert's "When the Mists Have Rolled Away", Mrs. Ellen Gates' "Home of the Soul", and a host of other favorites.

Peter Bilhorn, the evangelist, used it frequently in his religious meetings and on one occasion, recalling how he had sung the hymn on an evangelistic tour through the Dakotas, he told the following story:

"We had started up the Missouri River for Bismarck and on Sunday we stopped at a new town named Blunt to unload some freight. A crowd of men and boys came down to the wharf. I took my small organ, went on the wharfboat, and sang a few songs, among them the glorious hymn, 'I'm a Child of the King.' I thought nothing more of the incident until long afterward when I sang the same song in Mr. Moody's (Dwight L. Moody's) church in Chicago.

"Then a man in the rear of the hall rose and said: 'Two years ago I heard that song at Blunt, Dakota. I was then an unsaved man but that song set me to thinking and I decided to accept Christ. I am now studying for the ministry'."

Tree-Top Hotel in the Jungle

(By Captain H. E. H. Spencer Cooper, MVO, RN, (Retd.), in the Navy, London.)

In the Aberdare forest of Kenya, there is a little hotel which must be almost unique in the world. Built in the arms of a huge wild fig tree, it overlooks a pool and salt-lick. From here, enthralled, one can see by day and night the wild animals below, unconscious of the watchers 60 feet above their heads—for animals never look upward.

The great beasts, and little ones as well, come to enjoy the salt, bathe in the pool, and wander in and out of the forest, which stretches dense and practically undisturbed by man, for a hundred miles around.

"Treetops" has given endless pleasure to the many from all parts of the world who have stayed there during the 18 years since it was built. Full moon is the best time to be there, when one can see both by night and day. (Quite recently, experiments have been made with an artificial electric moon which is giving very satisfactory results, and to which the animals have shown no objection.)

Elephant, rhinoceros, buffalo, leopard, hyena, bush-buck, wart hog, giant forest hog, baboons, collabus monkey, "bush babies"—all stage a living scene which is unforgettable. The little hotel provides hot meals and comfortable beds—the latter sometimes hardly used, such is the fascination of the view from the balcony.

The silence of the forest would appear to be a misnomer there. Sounds of all kinds continue throughout the night hours, with usually a lull for a while before dawn. Rhinos have a flow of "Billingsgate" African when they meet each other, in addition to their very poor table manners on the salt-lick!

Elephants squeal, and their stomachs rumble; the hyenas' call sounds cruel and unearthly at night; baboons chatter and scream, "bush babies" have an amazingly loud and high-pitched note for their size; frogs, both water and tree, continue their chorus all night long; birds at late evening and early dawn contribute their share—in short, silence there certainly is not.

Progress from the edge of the forest, where the safari cars stop, to Treetops, about a mile or so, irresistibly reminds one of some of the scenes from "King Solomon's Mines." First goes the native tracker, armed with an assegai. Then the "White Hunter," rifle at the ready, and prepared to deal, if necessary, with any infuriated beast.

In single file, and in silence, proceeds the little party which is to spend the next 24 hours in the tree. It files along a narrow track, noticing en route the obvious traces of the passing of heavy beasts, and at intervals on either side are escape ladders on the trees. At a given word by the White Hunter refuge could be taken up in these until the danger is past.

Baboons in the trees follow the progress through the forest, well aware by now that in due course they will be rewarded by yams thrown down to them from Treetops. These animals perform a double service in entertaining the visitors prior to the arrival of bigger game, and also by their carefree attitude, serve to reassure the latter that all is safe and well.

The hotel presents a most unusual picture, so high above it looks, and so securely built in the wide branches of the great tree. It is very complete; the dining-room in the centre, equipped with a warm stove—for it grows cold as the night draws on; there is a long table with benches on either side, and a neat little bar, a small kitchen beyond, dormitories for 12 persons, washing and sanitary accommodation, and a long observation balcony provided with cushion-covered seats.

The view from the latter is glorious. Immediately below lies the pool and salt-lick; beyond this, as far as the eye can see, stretches the great forest. From a "crow's nest" still higher up in the branches can be seen the twin peaks of Mount Kenya, the glacier of the mountain shining in the sunlight or at night illuminated by the moon.

On the salt-lick around the edge of the pool, show the deep footprints of elephant and rhino, and the eye follows their narrow tracks leading away into the shadows of the forest.

Conservation on the balcony is limited to a low whisper; the hearing of wild animals is acute, and the sound carries. The presence of onlookers, if detected, would mean the instant disappearance of these wild and sensitive beasts.

The majority of white hunters in East Africa agree that, for the most part, wild animals are not aggressive, and are usually intent on avoiding trouble rather than provoking it. Where elephant, for instance, prove antagonistic, it is usually in the case of a cow protecting her calf, or possibly an animal which has been wounded or frightened by man before, or in other cases, an old bull who has become "crotchety" with years, as, indeed, do some humans! Rogue elephants are the exception rather than the rule.

Rhino, with their poor eyesight, are apt to be more suspicious and intolerant of strange scents and sounds, and are surprisingly quick on their feet for such heavy beasts, though here again a so-called "charge" is often more truly an effort to escape.

Buffalo are the most feared by the hunter. Their horns, with eight-inch deep bosses, make them formidable. They are dangerous in their cunning, ferocity and speed; but this, too, has come to pass, primarily as a defensive measure against man's attack. In parts of the Belgian Congo, where these animals have been protected in the National Parks for some time past, their attitude is noticeably different and comparatively bovine!

The sight of an elephant, set in the beauty of his natural environment, outstanding in power and dignity, is an unforgettable one, and in the moonlight with white tusks gleaming, it appears even more huge and deeply impressive. The quietness with which this great beast, weighing five tons, can move through the forest is very remarkable; at one moment it is not there, and the next it is, and not a twig has snapped or a branch broken.

Rhinoceros, vast and prehistoric in appearance, exist in great numbers in the Aberdare Forest, and are regular frequenters of the salt-lick. To watch two of them threatening each other, blowing and snorting, clad apparently in coats of mail, with fearsome horns and slit-like suspicious eyes, has something comic about it when viewed from the safe distance of treetops.

Interest in the animals in this Forest Reserve is by no means limited to the greater beasts. Bush-buck and water-buck, dainty and graceful in their movements, are enchanting to watch. Giant forest-hog, wart-hog, hyena and leopard—these and many others help to make a visit to Treetops memorable.

A regular visitor is a very fine water-buck, nicknamed Prince, because of his magnificent and very large pair of horns. He appears regularly—always on the opposite side of the pond to the salt-lick, where scrub and brush comes right down to the water's edge. It is fascinating to watch him appearing, carefully threading his way through the brush, then standing completely motionless on emerging into the open, to make sure all is well.

Then as he moves on slowly, his wives will appear, somewhat timorously, then gradually gaining confidence as they proceed towards Prince who awaits them. Last of all come the totos, the small does, lovely, timid, gentle little creatures.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY

There was something for everybody in Finance Minister Abbott's "social dividend" budget Thursday night. In lopping $237,000,000 off the federal tax bill Mr. Abbott reached far and wide but he did not cut nearly as deeply as he did in his pre-election budget of 1949. Then, the cuts totalled over $322,000,000.

Nevertheless, the feeling in Ottawa was that the budget had set the stage for an election this year. As one correspondent put it, "It was in a benevolent atmosphere of sunshine,—pre-election sunshine, many thought" that Mr. Abbott scattered the budget benefits.

One the other hand, it could not be said that the budget which Mr. Abbott says will be his last was an outright bid for votes. The 11 per cent cut in personal income tax is highly acceptable but it is not calculated to bring the populace to its feet with cheers. Some reduction in this respect was so confidently expected that anything less would have been a disappointment. And the four-cent drop in the price of cigarets amounts to about the same thing. A reduction here was almost a certainty, too. Elimination of the odd cents is not an impressive cut.

The range of the budget changes, however, is far-reaching enough that, with or without an election in mind this year, no dissatisfaction has been incurred, and in a large way there is a good deal to be greeted with satisfaction.

* * *

Elimination of the radio licence fee of $2.50 had been forecast. Although not a major item of expense to Canadians it has long been resented. Removal of the stamp tax on cheques and similar documents eliminates a long-standing nuisance. Lowering of tax-deductible medical expenses from four to three per cent is a partial concession to strong demands for no exemption limit at all in this category.

Corporation taxes are substantially reduced. This is not a reduction which could win any government enough votes to carry an election but it is highly important in promoting the health of the nation's business. It is a constructive measure and meets appeals on all sides for easement of the high level of taxation on business profits which has been maintained since the war years.

The tax has been 22 per cent, including old-age pension tax, on the first $10,000 profits and 52 per cent on everything above $10,000. This levy will now become 20 per cent, including old-age pension tax, on the first $20,000 and 49 per cent above that. The effect of this is that $120,000,000 in estimated profits will accrue to business generally, and provide new investment capital to this extent. Mr. Abbott estimates that this change will now bring over 70 per cent of business firms into the 20 per cent tax category.

In the publishing field there will be general satisfaction in the decision to remove the sales tax from newsprint and other printing materials. The tax on newsprint had been strongly protested as a discriminatory one in that it applied to newspapers while magazines and periodicals were exempt from it.

* * *

In all these, and in other changes less widely felt, the government has certainly not injured its position in the public favor. Yet, it could be regarded as a budget which has left the way open for a decision to delay an election for a full year with ample room left over to provide for special inducements then; barring, of course, some major change in the international situation.

We think it might be significant that Mr. Abbott put special emphasis on the "social dividend" theme. It was a new one for the budget and it has an unorthodox connotation because it is one which originated with the Social Credit party. But Mr. Abbott was careful to point out that he used the term deliberately and with distinctive definition.

In referring to the tax cuts generally, he said: "Here is a real social dividend, not one that has been conjured out of thin air but one that has been well and truly earned by our people." He stressed that the lowering of taxes was a genuine dividend returnable to the people of Canada for hard work, for better and a higher volume of production.

It will be remembered that when Mr Abbott was dropping pretty definite hints a year ago that Canadians could not look for early tax reductions in view of defence costs he did make one reservation. He insisted that the only hope of lower taxes must lie in greater production and a greater national income. Contrary to the expectations of the Finance Minister—and other experts, it might be said—the rate of national productivity has continued to increase.

* * *

For 1953 Mr. Abbott has forecast a further billion dollar increase. Having in mind Mr. Abbott's record for unusually conservative estimates in this respect over the last seven years, it is not unreasonable to expect that this one will be fulfilled, perhaps exceeded.

Should this be indicated in the next few months, and should political conditions seem to warrant it, it would be no surprise if the St. Laurent government decided that the election might well be deferred until next spring. If the general level of prosperity is maintained another dividend budget might be in order before an election appeal is made.

THE TRUE AMERICAN

Standing firm and standing fast
Being faithful to the last,
Fighting hard for better things,
Breaking down old fetterings;
Less of flesh and more of soul,
Thinking always of the goal
In the distance, and the day
When great wrongs shall pass away—
This we say of every man
Who's a true American.

Big of heart and broad of mind,
Gentle, courteous and kind;
Brave in danger's tragic hour,
Conscious ever of his power,
Yet, regardless of his might,
Fond of peace and slow to fight,
Never arrogant or mean,
Never filthy or unclean—
Thus he serves his Maker's plan,
Who's a true American.

True to God and true to man
Ever since his race began,
He has kept his standards high;
Flung his banners to the sky
As a symbol of life's best.
Greed has never stained his crest,
Nor oppression scarred with shame
Treasures that were his to claim.
All that well becomes a man
Marks the true American.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOR LOVE OF BOOKS

Oliver Wendell Holmes spoke of books "as well mannered companions." Barry Cornwall wrote: "All round the room my silent servants, wait, my friends in every season." When Laurence Sterne's neighbors considered him alone in his home, he was actually "in company with more than five hundred mutes — each of whom, at my pleasure, commutes his ideas to me by dumb signs — quite as intelligibly as any person living can do by uttering words."

Andrew Lang spoke of a book as "a friend whose face is constantly changing." And when Oliver Goldsmith had read a fine book, he considered it as gaining a "new friend," but after he had read it and returned to it, it became "an old one." Stevenson wrote that the reading of Marcus Aurelius in his "Meditations" was like taking a "royal hand" and as looking "into brave eyes," to make a noble friend."

The great Dr. Samuel Johnson once said that "the best part of every author is in general to be found in his book." And it was Montaigne who said that if anyone wanted to learn about him, that one should go out and buy his book. Which makes me think of a delightful little book by George Barr McCutcheon, called "Books Once Were Men." It's the best of a man or woman that goes into the book either writes. Thoreau referred to books as friends that we associated with our "choicest thoughts."

Charles Lamb once wrote of his "cheerful dining room, all studded over and rough with books." That about describes my own library. Books are everywhere. All the space about the walls, on stands, chairs, and my writing table burdened, happily, with them. I am never alone with books about me. They set me right when I seem most wrong. They prod me on. They give me hope and comfort. They point to many a fault within me, and admonish me. Books are life!

Radar Link New Marvel

(British Aircraft Society)

Great Britain, which led the world in the development of radar, has now gone a stage further and given the radar eye remote vision—with a device known as the Radar Link, which makes it possible for an operator to watch a radar picture of an area of sea, land or sky on a screen erected miles away from the actual radar scanning device.

Its designers expect the Radar Link to have great uses in militaary and civil aviation. In the past, operators have had to work near the scanner, and the best position for the scanner has by no means always coincided with where the operators wanted to be. Now the scanner can be located in the position for producing the best radar picture, and then linked up with the most convenient site for the operators. Existing radar systems can be adapted to the Link network.

This means that coastal radar chains can be linked to central operation rooms, or a group of air defence systems built around a central control point—doing away with "filter" rooms where information telephoned from dispersed stations has to be collated before a complete picture is presented. Information from one station can also be presented at several different points.

Monster Returns

(Sudbury Star)

While the "inlanders" must content themselves with occasional glimpses of flying saucers, the "seasiders" at Qualicum Bay, British Columbia, 75 miles north of British Columbia, are being entertained by Caddy, the famed serpent-like sea monster.

The sportive creature has made his appearance of the year. Two men in a boat approached within 15 or 20 feet of Caddy before he submerged, to reappear about 100 yards away.

Cadborosaurus enjoys greater popularity in Canada than the Loch Ness monster, and has had a much better reputation for credulity than the Scottish lake monster.

A few years ago it was feared that Caddy was dead, when fishermen on the Pacific coast found the remains of a strange creature on the sea shore, but obviously it was not Caddy, and judging by the annual reports that keep coming from British Columbia, their Cadborosaurus is very long-lived and should be useful as tourist publicity for at least another half-century.

Looks Like A Saw-Off

(Montreal Star)

A couple of weeks ago the Gallup Poll asked Canadians this question: "If you were trying to persuade a friend or acquaintance to vote Liberal in the forthcoming federal election, what do you think would be the best reason for you to give?"

The replies varied but one listing stood out sharply: "Can't think of any reason for voting Liberal. . .50 per cent."

"Ah, ha!" said a lot of people, "the Liberals are sunk. Half the people can think of no good reason for re-electing them."

This view prevailed until a few days ago, when the Gallup Poll asked the same question about the Conservatives. Again the replies varied, but not much, and again one stood out sharply. "Can't think of any reason for voting Conservative," said 54 per cent of those questioned.

Here we are right back where we started: The "ah, ha's" have died away. C.C.F. and Social Credit stalwarts are the only people with any comfort left. Doubtless the polls will get around to them in time and we shall probably find that at least 50 per cent of the people can't think of any reason for voting for them, either. Should be an interesting election, though.

General Factotum

(Windsor Star)

The other day we noted where a man, in seeking a position, described himself as a "general factotum." Once a common term, it seldom now is used. It is one of the casualties of this specialized age.

A "general factotum" was sort of a high-level handy man. He was one of varied experiences and skills which would fit him for many different occupations. If not an expert in several fields, at least he was sufficiently well acquainted with them to do a passable job. And he had the aptitude for catching on quickly to work with which he might not be familiar.

Now the emphasis is on specialization. When a man is sought for a particular job, it is desired he be able to do that job particularly well. This applies not only in manual labor or in executive talents, but also in the professions, with many doctors and lawyers specializing in particular branches of their professions.

It is possible, however, in these modern days we underestimate the value of a "general factotum". Situations constantly arise just beyond the scope of the specialist in this or that. That is when it is well to have a handy fellow around, one who, even if he be not familiar with the problem or the work, can figure it out quickly.

Letter to the Editor

Teachers Explain Salaries

The Editor,

The members of the teaching staff at B.C.I.V.S. would like to correct an erroneous impression that we fear many Belleville citizens received from a report in your paper Wednesday night. From that report of a recent board meeting many of your readers must have believed that all B.C.I.V.S. teachers are to receive a special $400 increase in salary effective in September of this year.

It means merely that the maximum attainable by a secondary school teacher has been increased to a figure more happily comparable to that of smaller centres or some centres of equal size to Belleville. For example, a teacher having spent three years at university plus one year at the College of Education now begins teaching at B.C.I.V.S. at a salary of $2700 plus a cost of living bonus. After twelve years' service, under the new schedule, he may receive a salary of $5000, whereas previously, after ten years' service, he would have been able to earn $4600 and no more.

No teacher will be at his new maximum in September of this year.

Effective January 1st of this year the secondary school teachers of Belleville, far from receiving an increase in salary, have actually had their incomes reduced by $75 (or $50 dependent upon income-tax status) because of the cost-of-living escalator clause, despite the fact that other civic departments are enjoying a recent raise in salary.

We trust that this will set the record straight and discourage fellow-citizens from believing that the salaries of teachers at B.C.I.V.S. are responsible for tax increases this year.

The Teaching Staff—B.C.I.V.S.

Editor's Note:

The item concerning the increase in maximum salaries for staff members at the Belleville collegiate appeared in Wednesday's edition of the Ontario Intelligencer. It was thought by some board members the public may have been misinterpreted the meaning of the Maxima increases and a full explanation appeared in Thursday's paper.

Whittling Neglected

(Otiwa Journal)

A confirmed whittler finds it difficult to understand why the world continues in such a stew when an informal whittling session by the leaders of opposing ideologists might easily provide a lasting basis for a common understanding.

It may well be that our leaders have overlooked potent possibilities inherent in some of the simpler pastimes of life. State dinners, stiff-starched protocol, and the cautious conversation that mark the high-level social meetings of various nationalities do not contribute to the naturalness that is needed in considering every day human problems.

Noah Webster confines himself to a terse, impersonal definition: "to pare or cut off chips from the surface of wood with a knife." There are two main kinds of whittling, purposeful whittling and just whittling.

On a blustery February day when temperatures are low and a bitter wind is swirling dry snow across desolate fields it does something pleasant to the countryman's heart and soul to relax in the cluttered farm shop with the old stove throwing a generous heat.

Our ancestors who fought the good fight as they established a new nation in the wilderness had to use every working minute as they subdued frontiers and established homes and could not whittle as much as they probably wished.

Now that we are so highly civilized there is no reason why men should not take a few minutes occasionally to unkink taut minds and tense muscles. It is good to feel the sharp edge of a knife slice through clear-grained whitewood of white pine. A man is always master of the immediate present when he has a sharp knife in his hand and the fragrance of dry wood in his nostrils.

We cannot expect all citizens to know the relaxing pleasure of a farm shop. But is there any good reason why a man in a city office cannot keep a knife and a chunk of wood in a desk drawer. A half hour of whittling when the world is too much with him would restore his perspective and help him see there is a worthwhile future for the human race in spite of the way nations and men act toward each other.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

EASY COME, EASY GO

Some of us want to buy a $2000 automatic dish washer for the kitchen of our new community building, because we believe ordinary soap and water cleanliness is not enough to kill tuberculosis, cold and other germs. To prevent any spread of such diseases we believe the dishes must be sterilized at high temperature. Others say such an expensive dishwasher would make church suppers no safer than ordinary dishwashing with soap and hot water. We would appreciate your professional opinion about this. — (R. D. S.)

When I wash the dishes — and believe me, I wash 'em or else — I never hesitate in choice of the method. I wash 'em in the regular way, in the sink, with hot water and soap, right alongside the pretty electric gadget that purports to do the chore automatically. I haven't the time or the patience to set the dishes in the ingenious little baskets or frames the gadget makers provide for them, and then pick 'em out again after they are dry. I doubt if any one else in this household bothers with the gadget either.

I'm leery of church suppers, not because the dishes are not properly washed, but because outbreaks of typhoid fever have been traced to food handled, cooked or served by some nice kind lady who happened to be a typhoid carrier. Thirty-five out of 250 persons who ate a church supper in a small town came down with typhoid shortly afterward, and six of them died. The infection was traced to squash which had been prepared by a carrier who was found to have had typhoid 25 years before!

In any event I can assure these good people who are weighing the dish-washing problem that washing the dishes with just plain hot water and soap is as sanitary as can be, whether the washing is by hand or by machine.

No matter how impressive its color or odor, the chemical that will kill or discourage disease germs more effectively than plain hot water and soap has not been discovered.

Immunizing Babies

Please give your opinion or advice regarding immunizing shots now given babies — whooping cough, tetanus, diphtheria, smallpox, etc. —(Mrs. S. L.)

Answer — Every baby should be vaccinated (against smallpox) in the first year, better at the age of four to six months; and immunized against diphtheria at the age of 6 months. Any other immunizing treatment should be left to the physician's judgment in the individual circumstance.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the Cambridge Natural History, David Sharp says:

"The larger part of the animal matter existing on the whole lands of the globe is in all probability locked up in the form of insects. Taken as a whole, they are the most successful of all the forms of terrestrial animals."

This is a fine thing to print. We have been under the impression that it was Man. And with so much happening in recent years to shake our self-conceit, science might at least confine itself to atoms and electronics, instead of taking the wind out of us by statements like this.

But to scientists, the word successful has a far different meaning that it has for Who's Who, or Dun and Bradstreets. Canada doubtless has its fair share of this immense weight and number in insect life. But to look out the window today would not encourage us to believe it. In another couple of months, the air will be filled with insects, the earth will be moving with them, unseen in the earth and in dark places everywhere, they will be hotly busy sharing the mystery and miracle of life with us. But where are they now?

They are here all the time, of course. Possibly with one glance out the window, we can see enough trees and bushes, sufficient areas of earth, enough angles and cornices of houses and buildings to accommodate a quarter of a million insect eggs, chrysalids, pupae and cocoons of moths, flies, ants, butterflies, midges, gnats, grasshoppers, crickets, not to mention bushels of earthworms that must be serenely awaiting the spring well down under the frozen sod.

In my back yard is an elm tree of modest size. Every day since last November, two small birds, a brown creeper and a white-breasted nuthatch, have visited the rough trunk of this tree. Up and down it they have worked, industriously picking what must be an insect egg or some insects from every two or three vertical hops. They have not visited this tree daily just for exercise. They have been feeding. And the chances are, they will have left enough eggs for May to hatch out the lively beginnings of the coming summer's population of the most successful of all terrestrial animals.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

VULNERABLE HEEL OF ACHILLES

A great teacher of history said, some time ago, "George Washington was the most judicious mind that ever appeared in human history." Those who have made a study of his life would agree with this statement.

Although Washington was no goody-goody, he had nevertheless an almost perfect character. His courage never once faltered, although the British threatened to inflict upon him the most cruel punishment if he was captured. No man in all history ever deserved so richly to be called the Father of His Country as did Washington. He was the American Revolution. Without him it would have been a flash in the pan, over in a few months, and finished off with a series of hangings. When Washington came to the end of his life, the whole world bowed before him as its first citizen. Conspicuous among all his virtues was his judgment.

Yet singularly enough, this most judicious mind in human history came to his death as the result of a series of bad decisions which he made and insisted should be carried out in his last illness. "Bleed me," he cried to his servant, and to the two doctors who attended him. It was precisely the thing that should not have been done. He might have recovered otherwise. The world's most level-headed man went to his death because at the very last he made an injudicious decision about the treatment of his illness.

Remember Achilles? He had a vulnerable heel.

Baden-Powell, Scout Founder Pursued Remarkable Career

Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden-Powell was born in London, England, on February 22, 1857. He was the sixth son and the eighth of 10 children of the Rev. Professor Baden-Powell by his third wife, Henrietta Grace.

When he was three years old his father died. At 13 he became a pupil at the famous Charterhouse school, of which Dr. Haig Brown was headmaster. Outside the school, in nearby woods, he learned to snare and cook rabbits and to hide in the trees when imaginary Redskins, in the form of masters, came looking for boys out of bounds.

At 19 he tried and passed an examination for a direct commission in the army and the following September he left for India as a subaltern in the 13th Hussars. Thus really began the remarkable life of a remarkable man.

Posed as General

His earlier training in the woods at Charterhouse made him a master of disguise. On one occasion in India a regimental concert was in progress when in walked a general who proceeded up the aisle. The men promptly stood up but were waved down by the general. Colonel Baker Russell, sitting in the front row, rose hurriedly and came forward to greet his unexpected guest. The general proved to be a jolly chap and before sitting down, turned to the crowd, said he was willing to join in the fun and would sing them a song if they wished.

There was a roar of approval and the visitor was onstage and halfway through the "Major General" song from the "Pirates of Penzance" when his colonel host realized that he had been "had" and that the vocalist was his subaltern Baden-Powell. It turned out that the colonel had not yet met a certain general in Kandahar and Baden-Powell had actually succeeded in borrowing the general's uniform from a friendly aide de camp.

Versatile Talents

He laid great stress on the value of music in life, played several instruments and was in the orchestra at Charterhouse. He was also a capable artist, and being ambidextrous, could draw two different pictures at the same time. He claimed that sketching tiok him away from the busy haunts of men to the quiet atmosphere of God and nature.

Baden-Powell was a sportsman in the truest sense of the word. He called life a great game and claimed that team games such as football promoted discipline in obedience to the rules.

He fished in England, Scotland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and elsewhere. One Sunday morning in Wales while the guest of Lord Glanusk, he strolled past the boat house just before going to church. Seeing a rod on the rack and yielding to temptation, he cast a fly into a nearby pool and caught a 25-pound fish. Within a week he received a document from a religious conference, written in Welsh and English, rebuking him for fishing on Sunday.

He loved to shoot, but only for the pot. Speaking of elephant shooting, he said: "I have always felt than an elephant is too big and too sacred a thing for puny man to slay. To slay an elephant seems as great an impertinence as to blow up part of the Tower of London. But to stalk him with a camera — that is the best sport possible. It requires daring and skill." Baden-Powell spent much time in the jungle and passed on his knowledge of tracking to the scouts.

Rose Rapidly in Rank

He rose rapidly in the army. At 42 he was a major-general and at 52 completed his career as a soldier and retired on a pension.

He claimed to live two lives. In one he was a soldier fighting for his country. In another he became a determined worker for peace through the Boy Scout movement. On his return to England in 1903 he discovered that some boys, even girls, had been imitating his South African scouting tricks. After discussing the matter with a number of leading citizens, and particularly after a conference with Sir William Smith, founder of the Boys' Brigade, he decided to work out a program which would give greater variety in the training of boys for better citizenship.

Began as Program

In 1907 he held an experimental camp and later published his book "Scouting for Boys" in serial form. Scouting was never intended to be more than a program to be used by anyone in training boys. Under the term "scout" he held up for hero worship, the best among backwoodsmen, explorers, pioneers and frontiersmen. He gave the Scouts the motto "Be Prepared" and the idea to do a good turn daily. He gave his boys a selfless sense of duty and the guidance of religion. King Edward VII was interested in Scouting from its inception and called for a rally at Crystal Palace in 1909 which was attended by 10,000 Scouts.

In 1912, Baden-Powell met and married Miss Olive St. Cair Soames. This has been described by some of his friends as his greatest stroke of genius. Apparently she was the one person capable of helping him in his overwhelming task. Together they worked out the Girl Guide movement which has been almost as successful as the Boy Scout organization.

On January 8, 1941, this outstanding man died. To countless boys he brought something new and outstanding, appealing and helpful to their lives. The gift of learning while playing, the urge to explore and for adventure that modern conditions denied, a character-building code that expressed itself in action—all this he brought to the fore. He brought thousands of boys from many nations together by international jamborees.

His Last Message

After his death, among his papers was found a message to Boy Scouts. It said:

"I believe that God put us into this world to be happy and to enjoy life. Happiness does not come from being rich, nor merely from being successful in a career nor by self - indulgence. One step toward happiness is to make oneself healthy and strong while a boy so that he can be useful and enjoy life as a man. But the real way to get happiness is by giving happiness to other people. Try and leave this world a little better than you found it and when your turn comes to die, you can die happy in feeling that you have not wasted your time but have done your best. Be prepared in this way to live happy and die happy. Stick to your Scout promise always—even after you have ceased to be a boy."

Dr. Oliver Leroux, assistant director of Health Insurance Studies in the Department of Health and Welfare, Ottawa, will be the guest speaker at the annual Red Cross meeting on Monday evening. Dr. Leroux works under the direction of Dr. F. W. Jackson, director of Health Insurance Studies, which deals with administering the federal government's grants to the provinces for the extension and development of their health services.

MADOC

United Church Pastoral Charge Completes Year Of Achievements

MADOC — Madoc pastoral charge of the United Church of Canada comprised of Eldorado, Madoc, and Union Churches, has completed another year of activity and achievement. The annual congregational meetings on all three appointments have been held, reports for the year 1952 received, and reorganization for the year 1953 completed.

The several reports revealed a balance on hand in all the treasuries, with all obligations met. Besides the general running expenses and upkeep of all the church, Madoc made repairs to the outside of the church costing $1,332. At the present time a new kitchen is being built in the basement of the church. Quite extensive re-wiring and repairs are underway in the Sunday school rooms.

Union Church was redecorated during the summer at a cost of $810.

The attic of Eldorado Church was insulated, and this was accomplished by members of the congregation in free labor.

The Woman's Missionary Societies and Mission Bands have enjoyed profitable fellowship and good meetings throughout the year. Eldorado-Union W.M.S. forwarded $171, and the Mission Band $66, to the Presbyterial Treasurer. They also shipped a bale of used clothing for overseas relief valued at $100.

Madoc W.M.S. forwarded $341, and the Mission Band $55 to the Presbyterial treasurer. They also shipped a bale of used clothing, 140 pounds, for overseas relief. They shipped parcels to Immigration Port Worker at Halifax valued at $25.65, and Christmas gifts for junior boys valued at $28.25. Raised for the Missionary and Maintenance Fund $1,051, which was an increase of $128 over the previous year.

Officers Elected

In the reorganization for the new year the following were elected to session at Union: Clifford Blakely, Bernard Carman, William Chambers, Bert McCarey, Cecil Robinson, and Rev. G. J. Crabbe as honorary life member. Kelvin Kincaid was added to the committee of Stewards at Madoc. All other officials were returned to office.

At the recent Official Board meeting, Clifford Chambers was elected recording steward, and Percy Caverly as Presbytery representative, with Frank Palmer as alternate delegate.

Owing to the generosity and kindness of Colin I. Ross and W. E. Connor, who gave abundance of turkey, the Madoc choirs were treated to a fine turkey dinner recently. Both junior and senior choirs greatly enjoyed the fun, fellowship and bounteous banquet.

Weddings

HART—McFARLAND

A very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. C. D. McLellan at Grace United Church, Napanee, on Saturday, February 14, when Elinor Jayne, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan McFarland, was united in marriage to Donald Earl, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Manly Hart.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a white floor-length gown of nylon net over satin. The bouffant skirt fell from a peplum of nylon lace. A bolero of matching lace was made with an Elizabethan necklace trimmed with pearls and rhinestones. Her fingertip veil of nylon embroidered net fell from a white satin crown of pearls and rhinestones. She carried a white Bible to which was attached a cluster of red roses.

The bride's attendants, her sister, Miss Shirley McFarland, maid-of-honor, Miss Vera Hart, sister of the groom, and Miss Ruth Knight, the bridesmaids, wore identical gowns in pastel shades of mauve, yellow and green. Their bouffant skirts were caught up with matching artificial flowers and their bodices and boleros were of brocaded satin. Their flowers were nosegays of yellow, mauve and white 'mums. Penny Ballance, the flower girl, wore a floor-length gown of mauve taffeta with matching headdress, trimmed with mauve flowers. She carried a miniature nosegay of 'mums.

Mr. Donald VanKoughnet attended the groom and the groom's brother, Mr. Vernie Hart, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Howard Cuthill, were ushers.

Mrs. B. M. Black played the wedding music.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Dundas Street W., where the mothers of the bride and groom received 60 guests. Mrs. McFarland chose a dress of teal blue crepe with gold accessories and wore a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Hart wore blue crepe and lace with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The bride's table was centred with the three-tier wedding cake, and silver candle holders with white candles. Refreshments were served by the Misses Sally Tanner, Sylvia Godfrey, Shirley McNevin and Dorothy Parrott. The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. C. D. McLellan and was responded to by the groom.

For the wedding trip through the United States the bride wore a Windsor rose sabre cord suit with brown accessories and a brown mink jacket. Her corsage was of red roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a double strand of pearls with earrings to match. The bride's gift to the groom was a leather wallet. To her attendants, the bride gave gold compacts and to the flower girl a sterling silver locket and chain. Leather billfolds were given by the groom to his best man and the ushers.

Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville, Smiths Falls, Roblin, Rossmore, Deseronto, Toronto, Mountain View, Forest Mills, Lakefield and Kingston.

Vota Vita M.C. Presents Three-Act Play, 'Two Masters'

An enjoyable three-act play entitled "Two Masters", was presented by the Vota Vita Mission Circle on Tuesday, at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. The play was under the direction of Mrs. Keith Daniel and it had a worthwhile message that brought a tear to many an eye.

The cast was as follows:

Mrs. Van Horne, (a Christian lady of wealth), Margaret Lush; Mrs. Stuart (her invalid mother) Nora Hales; Janet McCrae, (a missionary's daughter), Harriet Thompson; Jane's college friends, Rachel, Elizabeth Wellbanks; Charlotte, Jean Wiegand; Helen, Marjorie Hales; president of the Culture Club, Margaret Hagerman; Mrs. C. Von der Witt-Jones, (traveller and lecturer), Ruth Campbell.

The evening opened with a few words of welcome from the president, Mrs. Helen Hales, who read Matthew 6:16-24. Mrs. C. H. MacDonald and Miss Helen Cook favored with a duet and solo between the acts.

The executive entertained the cast of the play following the program.

Club Activities

CANADIAN LEGION L.A.

The Ladies' Auxiliary Canadian Legion Branch 99, held its regular monthly meeting in the Legion Club rooms on Tuesday, with Mrs. G. Hughes, 1st vice-president, in the chair, in the absence of Mrs. Bean, the president. There was a good number of members present.

The reports of all committees were good, also letters from England showing how much the parcels are appreciated.

Applications for new members were received and accepted, arrangements were made for the coming St. Patrick's Day party.

FEWER ACCIDENTS

WINNIPEG (CP)—An active safety campaign was credited with reducing time-lost accidents in the Manitoba power commission to 56 in 1952, compared with 128 in 1949. Number of days lost through accidents dropped from 3,034 to 1,460 in that period.

'Carolers' Give Outstanding Concert at B.C.I. Auditorium

By EUGENE LANG

As was to be expected, the Collegiate auditorium was practically filled last evening as hundreds of Belleville and district music lovers were present to hear the initial presentation of the "Carolers", a group of five singers consisting of Penny Perry, soprano; Leo Bernache, tenor; Russell Hammar, tenor; Jonathan Wilson, baritone; and Eric Carlson, bass-baritone with Roy Cooper as assisting piano accompanist. This gifted group is now making its third tour of Canada and the United States. Each singer in his own right has done recital work along with radio and television engagements. Their reason for merging was their wish of presenting to their audiences more or less unknown group songs seldom heard. These vocal numbers could be likened to instrumental chamber music in that they require a degree of solo experience and facility from each singer. At present The Carolers are recording for MGM records.

Their program last night consisted of many types and styles of vocal numbers representing varied eras and nationalities. Whether they sang as a group, in quartet, trio, duet or solo their offerings showed a sense of taste as regards the selection chosen mingled with talent in the manner that each number was undertaken and rendered. The majority of the compositions sung were of a style that made for easy listening on the part of the audience, and with the exception of the Schubert songs, the program was not one that could be called heavy and meaty. The various selections were not of the type that one could sink his teeth in and grab hold of vigorously, but were of the class that were easily digestible (musically that is) and swallowed with a minimum of effort.

Nine Scotch Songs

The nine Scotch songs which opened the concert were given an earthy treatment that was of the necessary folkish approach to put them over adequately. The voices blended evenly and smoothly in this set of songs and the harmonic balances were weighed closely, one against the other or all against one, whichever grouping was required in the arrangement sung.

The six songs of Schubert were the highlight of the entire program, and were given forth with tonal splendors and nuances that were a delight to listen to. Outstanding amongst these lieder was the not too familiar "Standchen" (not to be confused with the other "Standchen" of the same composer of over hackneyed fame) and "Sehnsucht" ("None but the Lonely Heart"), again not to be mistaken for the familiar setting which Tschaikowsky wrote to these words of Goethes.

The rest of the program was made up of operatic excerpts ("Comic Duet from "L'Elisir d'Amore" of Donizetti", "La Donna e Mobile" from "Rigoletto" and the duet "Parigi, o cara" from Act Three of "La Traviata") and also a medley from Strauss' beloved "Die Fledermaus". These operatic numbers were all very nicely sung and portrayed by the various singers from the group.

As usual, a group of Negro Spirituals was included, this to the liking of all. "Dry Bones" was perhaps the one enjoyed most with its rhythmic swing and nonsensical words. Duets from "Porgy and Bess" and "The Old Maid and the Thief", were offered as a decided treat and received likewise. The Porgy and Bess duet is especially effective and was very aptly sung by Miss Perry and Mr. Wilson.

Touch of Old France

Mr. Carlson then added a touch of Old France to the concert by accompanying himself on the guitar to a pair of songs from the Province of Auvergne. They could be called different, but did not add anything exceptional to the rest of the program, except a change of instruments for accompanying the voice.

A medley from South Pacific brought the scheduled program to its end, and this was greatly appreciated by the audience to such an extent that the singers were brought back for three encores, all well sung and vocalized.

Once again mention must be made of the excellent Schubert numbers. If nothing else had been performed these songs alone attested to the best qualities of the singers, be it blending of voices, individual stylings of each member or niceties of phrasing and interweaving of melodic patterns. Mr. Roy Cooper, the accompanist, played very suitable piano backgrounds to each number.

Kum-Double Club Entertained With Moving Pictures

The first February meeting of the Kum Double Club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend who were also conveners for the meeting with Mr. Earl Snider presiding.

Each member answered the roll call with a proverb and then the group sang birthday greetings to two of the members who had celebrated recent birthdays.

A short business period was conducted with the main item being a project for the club to work on this year, after which the meeting was turned over to the conveners for the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Townsend.

Devotional Period

The devotional part of the meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, followed by the Scripture reading taken from Matthew 19:16-23 read by Mr. Ken McMullen with Mrs. Reg Workman reading the commentary. A poem, "The touch of Human Hands" was read by Mrs. Roscoe Robson Mr. H. Giffin closed the devotional period.

The conveners then entertained the group with moving pictures. The first, "Canada Carries On", dealt with the air rescue squads from Trenton and Halifax air stations. The second, "The River of Canada," was a boat trip down the St. Lawrence River touching at such points of interest as Kingston, Montreal, Quebec City, Three Rivers, Sorel and Gaspe. The third picture, a C.I.L. production called "Green Pastures" depicted the proper care of pasture land in order to procure the best results in stock grazing. The last picture of the evening, another C.I.L. production, "Deeper Acres," dealt with soil cultivation and showed the progress made on one farm by the proper use of fertilizer and plant food.

Time alone prevented the continuation of this most interesting evening which was topped off by refreshments served by the hostess.

Attendance for the evening was 25 adults and ten children.

The second meeting of the Kum Double Club met at the home of the convener for the evening, Rev. and Mrs. H. Giffin, Foxboro.

The devotional was opened with the pianist, Mrs. E. Emerson, playing quiet music. Mrs. E. Snider gave a reading. The Scripture lesson, taken from the 10th chapter of John, was read by Mrs. H. Giffin.

Mrs. Coleman Townsend gave a reading following which Mrs Giffin gave an interpretation of the picture of "The Good Shepherd" after which Mrs. E. Emerson played quietly the music of Hymn 475, "There Were Ninety and Nine."

Mrs. Giffin dismissed the group.

After the devotional, the president, Mr. E. Snider, conducted a short business period.

The evening closed with three contests put on by the conveners after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

Those who are hungry for a Canadian flavor in movies will like the film "Happy Time" starring Charles Boyer. Set in Ottawa, with the story around a happy French Canadian family who are bilingual, this is a moving play with plenty of fun . . . The film version is an adaptation of the play which was made up from the novel by Robert Fontaine, an Ottawa author.

The stage play of this human Canadian story had a two-year run in New York. It is something every Canadian will enjoy. It is wholesome, amusing — definitely a great play. Along with "Ti-Coq, Happy Time will be regarded as a classic of our country.

Black Potatoes

Lately we've been troubled with mashed potatoes turning dark. At first, blame went on the age of the spuds. But after checking with cook books, we are able to turn out creamy white mashed potatoes from the same vegetables.

The recipe calls for a tablespoon of salt added to the mashed potatoes and a pinch of salt when cooking them. It then suggests heating a third of a cup of milk to cream them. Result of the salt and the hot milk is excellent.

Oil Paintings

Everything is being made easy these days — even art. Stores are now selling pre-sketched oil sets containing two canvasses, 20 premixed oil paints and an artist's brush.

Numbers of the various colors to be used are stamped on the canvas. All you have to do is daub on the paint and you come up with an oil painting done by yours truly. It's what they call "paint-a-number" craze.

Here's sound and effective advice about colds.
No matter how you try to stop or shorten a cold, the first thing to do—before you do anything else—is to take Aspirin.
You should do this because a cold is almost invariably accompanied by muscular aches and pains—and a headachy, feverish feeling. And for your own good, you need a medication that will relieve these distressing symptoms—relieve them quickly.
One reason Aspirin tablets bring this relief is that they're ready to go to work with amazing speed . . . actually start disintegrating almost instantly.
So don't experiment with a cold. Use Aspirin. And for sore throats, due to colds, gargle 3 times daily with 3 Aspirin tablets dissolved in 1/3 of a glass of water.

GOOD MANNERS

George Washington at 16, Wrote His "110 Rules of Decent Behavior"

George Washington, when he was 16 years old, wrote his own book on etiquette! At that ripe young age he was determined he was going to be a gentleman, a man of good quality.

The young Washington's "110 Rules of Civility and Decent Behavior in Company and Conversation" are to be found in a volume in the Library of Congress, written in his interesting, engraving - like handwriting. Ever one of the rules is an ideal of mannerliness.. sound, practical, thought-compelling. This inspiring collection of "Rules of Decent Behavior" shows that fundamentally .... then and now and always.. for young and old ...good manners are good manners. .It shows that there is a standard of good manners and morals that is enduring because it is good, because inevitably it is right.

Let's look at Rule I: "Every action done in company ought to be with some sign of respect for those who are present." In one sentence here is an essay on Manners in Public!

His Rule 39 is a classic that is still quoted in military regulations: "In writing or speaking, give to every person his due according to his degree and the custom of the place." Also Rule 30: "The highest place in most countries is on the right side. Therefore place yourself on the left of him whom you desire to honor." And Rule 28: "When you present seats, let it be to everyone according to his degree." (Hosts and hostesses and masters of ceremonies...are you listening?)

What one says inevitably shows what one is. The wise George Washington, even at 16, realized this, and many of his best rules of behavior have to do with conversation. Rule 59 is a gem: "Never express anything unbecoming." And Rule 74, for listening: "When another speaks, be attentive yourself." Here's advice for the dogmatic: "Be not obstinate in your opinions." Listen too, to this ideal: "Be not forward, but friendly and courteous." Here's a manner-nudge for the self-conscious: 'Be not pensive when it's time to converse." And these so-very-wise precepts: "Let your countenane be pleasant"... "Let your conversation be without malice or envy, for 'tis a sign of a commendable nature"... "Speak not evil of the absent, for it is unjust."

Concerning table manners, too! What parent wouldn't be mighty proud of a 16-year-old son who had these how-to-behave-at-table ideas? "Feed not with greediness"..."Drink not nor talk with your mouth full"... "Keep your fingers clean"... "Put not another bit into your mouth till the former be swallowed. Let not your morsels be too big for the jowls"..."Be not angry at table whatever happens, and if you have reason to do so, show it not. Put on a cheerful countenance especially if there be strangers. For good humor makes one disha treat"...Lean not on the table. Lay not your arms, but only your hand upon table"..."It's unbecoming to stoop much to one's meat."

And listen to these great rules, standards to the young Washington who was to have such a powerful influence among men: Rule 108, "When you speak of God and His attributes, let it be seriously and with reverence"... "Honor and obey your parents" ...and Rule 109 "Let your recreations be manful, not sinful."

And Rule 110, the last rule and a masterpiece:: "Labor to keep alive in your breast that Little Spark of Celestial Fire called Conscience."

Many, many times in his "110 Rules of Civility and Decent Behavior in Company and Conservation," the young George Washington speaks of a "man of quality." At 16 he had already decided, very definitely decided, what "quality" of man he was to be!

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

LETTER (from "Lil")

"Better late than never"—I promised to send you my Trifle recipe. I think the deep dark secret of its flavor is the fact that I used browned almonds, chopped, instead of almond flavoring.

LIL'S TRIFLE

Line the bottom and sides of a glass serving dish with either lady fingers or strips of plain butter cake. (I prefer lady fingers which can be ordered from the bakery.) Sprinkle with 1-4 cup sherry. Let stand. Now make soft custard: 2 cups milk, 4 egg yolks, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Heat milk in double boiler. Mix egg yolks, sugar and salt. Add hot milk slowly to them—and I mean slowly. Put back in double boiler, and cook stirring, over hot water, until thick enough to coat silver spoon. Cool, flavor. (Here is an added note, Mary. If by any chance this curdles, just take an egg beater to it and give it a few whirls: (It happens to the best of us.) Now drain a can of peaches and place pieces in glass dish on cake. Chop coarsely, blanched browned almonds and sprinkle over peaches (about 1-4 or 1-2 cup). Then pour over the cooled custard. Place in refrigerator to chill. When ready to serve whip some whipping cream, cover top of trifle with it and make design on top of that with red and green cherries. Serve to your guests and listen to them rave. It is an old-fashioned English dessert—but oh so good.

I am also giving you my recipe for Creamed Celery and Almonds (our favorite vegetable for a party).

LIL'S CREAMED CELERY AND ALMONDS

Cut up one good-sized bunch of celery (I prefer the green), into about 1-inch pieces. Cook until nearly tender (not soft). Drain. Heat 1 tin of Cream of Mushroom soup in double boiler with 1 tablespoon milk. Add celery. Just before serving add 1 4-oz. packet of browned salted almonds.

ANSWER:

Thanks, Lil. I wish our readers could have tasted your glorious cooking, as I did. It was a never-to-be-forgotten treat.

QUESTION:

. . . read your column faithfully . . . interested in your economy recipes as I have to feed 7 on $15 weekly. Would like recipe for simplified white bread repeated. Also have you recipe for Chinese egg noodles. I have one here but find that they don't stick together when fried in deep fat.—Mrs. K. A. (Helen A.)

ANSWER:

I am mailing you recipe for White Bread.

Almost all Chinese cooks and Canadian cooks of Chinese food purchase their noodles from Chinese stores in Chinatown. They are more satisfactory and economical than homemade noodle dough. These stores or factories supply the leading Chinese restaurants. There are about 18 7-inch squares to the lb. Keep them in original wrapper covered with wet towel to prevent drying. They will keep three days in refrigerator. Cut off corners—about 1 inch of it—from each noodle square. Place 1-4 cup of filling (see below) on wide end of dough nearest you. Brush edges of dough with beaten egg, and roll up, turning edges in while rolling. Keep rolls on wax paper until all are rolled, having finished edge down.

FILLING FOR CHINESE EGG ROLLS

One cup chopped cooked shrimp, 1 cup cooked pork, beef or veal chopped, 1 cup celery chopped very fine, 1-2 cup each peeled Chinese water chestnuts, chopped, and green onions with stems chopped very fine, 2 tablespoons chopped winter onion, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-4 teaspoon white seasoning (MSG or Accent), 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 tablespoon smooth peanut butter. Mix well and keep refrigerated, until ready to use.

As soon as rolls are made heat peanut oil to 375 deg. F. Drop rolls in carefully, and fry until very lightly colored and set. Lift out and drain on cake rack. These may be made ahead of time. If they are they must be refrigerated. When this is done the Chinese dip them in batter for the first frying. Then when ready to serve they fry them again in peanut oil until the recrispened and golden or about five minutes and serve at once, cutting each roll crosswise into 3 or 4 pieces. Delicious and tricky but the finished product is worth all of your trouble. I hope you have good luck.

ARSENAL BLAST HURTS 3

In hospital were Rene Dupre, 40, of Montreal, Gerard Chabot, 33, of Joliette, Que., and Hector Piche, 42, of St. Paul.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHY DID THIS HUSBAND LEAVE HOME?

There are all sorts of reasons why husbands leave home and go off on their own.

And perhaps there are just as many to account for a man leaving home in the rather surprising way of picking up his wife and child and going to live in a doubled-up household with another family.

The story of a man who did just that is told by his wife in the following letter:

"Two years ago I married a man ten years older than myself. I am 25 years old and have a nine-months-old baby.

"Our marriage went along very well for a year, and then something happened that finally compelled me to leave my husband and return to my mother's home.

"What happened was that some friends of my husband's — a couple with three children — were always coming over to our house, having most of their meals there and staying till all hours of the night. The wife even came to my house to do her washing.

"Finally my husband decided we should give up our own home and move in with these people, where I was bossed around and mistreated by the woman until I couldn't stand it any longer.

"I have now been home with my mother for three months, and my husband is still living with those people. He says he loves me and misses me, but he does nothing about getting another place where we can be together by ourselves. He makes good money and can easily afford a home for me and the baby, but, instead, he buys groceries for these people he lives with and then always tells me he has no money. All he gives me is five dollars a week.

"I love my husband and would like to be with him, but I can't stand living with people who seem to have such a strong hold over him that he does anything they tell him.

Something More Attractive

Now the only possible reason why a man should go to the length of breaking up his home and taking his whole family to live in another household must be that he finds in the other place something more attractive to him than his own home offered. This is the line along which his wife will have to direct her thinking.

What, she should ask herself, can it be that gives him some pleasure or satisfaction which was lacking in the home he and she had together?

Could it be, for example, that the joint household provides the husband with livelier companionship than he got when he and his wife lived alone with their small baby? Is he the kind of man, perhaps, who likes to have people around him as much as possible and gets more enjoyment out of being with a crowd than having quiet evenings at home? In other words, was his home life altogether too quiet for him, so that he found it monotonous and boring? This is one possibility for the wife to consider, and if she thinks there might be something in it, she might go on to plan how life could be made more interesting for him if they were to live together again.

A second question she might be realistic enough to face honestly is: Could it be possible that her husband was attracted to this other man's wife, and so thought it would be nice to be constantly near her? Is the woman closer to his own age than his wife is, so that he perhaps finds her more congenial? I think this is something she should take up frankly with her husband, asking him to give her an equally frank answer.

In any event, she should not think for a minute of going back to her husband until he makes a proper home for herself and the baby. For families to double up in living quarters is unthinkable except in extreme necessity, which, as the wife tells it, certainly does not seem to exist here.

I believe this woman was not only fully justified, but entirely right, in leaving such a fantastic household, and I hope she will sit tight where she is, making it perfectly plain to her husband that if he wants her back he will have a provide a normal home.

If, after giving careful thought to the possible reasons I have suggested for his having made such a move in the first place—and thinking over, also, any other reasons that might occur to her—she sees ways in which she herself might make a happier home, then she can admit this honestly to her husband. But no one could expect her to tolerate, or participate in, any such situation as he has brought about.

I hope, hovewer, that she will not just sit around and passively await developments. For if she does this, she is bound to fall into a state of despondency which may easily put her in the mood to be persuaded to rejoin her husband under any circumstances.

What she should do is to find herself some interests outide the home which will occupy both her mind and such leisure time as she can manage. There is no telling how long her husband is likely to continue his unconventional living arrangements, and she might just as well, if not better, see to it that her own life is not completely empty while he fills his in a manner of his own choosing. Moreover, if she will find herself such activities, and will make new friends, she will gain practice in enlarging her social life that will be a help to her if her husband does decide he wants a home of his home again. In addition, it wouldn't do a bit of harm, if, some time when he came to see her, he found that she was out having a good time.

If anything is going to give this husband a new point of view, I think it will have to come out of his seeing his wife, and the possibilities of life with her, in a more attractive light. And this is likely to happen only if she will do everything she can to become a more stimulating person.

ZACHARY, JOHN THE BAPTIST AS AN INFANT, AND ELIZABETH

An interpretation of the oil painting attributed to B. E. Murelle

CHAPTER V

WHAT A ONE, THINK YOU!

"Well, Joseph?" demanded Joachim, something like truculence in his voice. "Now you've heard. What do you say?"

Joseph shook his head slowly and turned to the washbasin. From a jug that Mary had filled with water for him only the night before the carpenter poured a splash into the basin and dashed a handful on his face.

"Mary had a good reason," was his answer. "Be sure of that."

Joachim's face softened.

"She must have had," he agreed. "But can you imagine what it would be. This is an unheard-of thing, Joseph. A girl does not run off from her parents."

"And from her espoused one."

"And, of course, from her betrothed," Joachim agreed. "Why, only last night you two were setting the date for the wedding. Do you suppose she got a little giddy; overexcited, I mean? She is a very young girl."

"No, not Mary," declared Joseph firmly. "There was never another so composed as she. As serene. And," he added with an eloquence of words not unusual in him, "unshakable in her purposes. She loves me. She is going to marry me. Last night we made great plans. Something happened after I left her, I am sure of that; something good; we must believe when we do not know."

"God Will Protect Her"

But the same thoughts were in both minds. The great southern road was long and difficult.

"If," sighed Joseph, answering his own doubts, "she had wanted me she would have called me. And God will protect her," he added, his voice breaking.

Joseph's faith was fully justified. As one under special protection Mary traversed the weary distance. She had walked only a few miles when a small caravan overtook her and offered her a donkey to ride to the next town.

Brooding she was, all the way; the wayfarers were struck by a feeling of special separateness that distinguished her. One of the least of them, a rakehell from the Damascus bazaars, gave her a cup of flavored water late one night and whispered:

"Where have you found such peace?"

There was no mirror for Mary to study; it would be days later before the peasant girl would notice for herself the pallor that was coming to her face and neck, arms, and the backs of her hands, like cream over strawberries; the blood-red natural color of strength and youth was giving way to some newer and purer force taking possession.

"A New Person"

Without a mirror she realized that something had taken hold of her and changed her. She felt as if she were a new person, a stranger who—keeping all previous memories—was nevertheless different; a mixed awareness of of glory and humility. She felt small and weak and yet powerfully protected.

This was the way she had felt ever since the Annunciation of the Angel. And this was so, even while thoughts of reality persisted; they were of Anna and Joachim a little, and of Joseph a little more. How could she tell him? Cousin Elizabeth must advise her.

It was nearing sunset of the third day when she found herself back in the tiny suburb of Ain Karim, and there was her cousin, six months big with child, sitting on the dooryard stoop.

Now Mary had come all the long distance to Elizabeth, not because she doubted the angel but because she believed in him. Yet even the trust of Mary was startled at the confirming greeting she received.

"Hail, Mary!" cried Elizabeth happily. "Blessed are you among women!"

Words of the Angel

The dusty figure of Mary stopped short in the road. Those very words she had heard before—from the angel!

"And blessed is the fruit of your womb!"

"You repeat the angel's words to me, Cousin Elizabeth. How did you know?"

Elizabeth embraced her, and then whispered:

"For look, as soon as the voice of your salutation sounded in my ears, the infant in my womb leaped for joy. And you are blessed because you have believed, because those things shall be accomplished that were spoken to you by the Lord."

With a sob of relief Mary flung herself into the arms of Elizabeth. Then, speaking very softly, she uttered the words of her Magnificat, all unaware that the world would sing those words and pray them for thousands of years, but pouring them out for the first time in the consolation of her communion with Elizabeth:

"My soul doth magnify the Lord; and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Savior. Because He hath regarded the humility of His handmaid; for behold from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed. Because He that is mighty hath done great things to me; and holy is His name. And His mercy is from generation into generations, to them that fear Him."

As at last Elizabeth led her into the house, she whispered:

"Do you realize that you are pregnant already?"

Mary's eyes entreated her.

"I have not known a man." She trembled.

"Of course, beloved!"

For the first time tears rolled down Mary's cheeks.

"You believe me. You know," she quavered. "But how can anyone else ever believe me? Will not Joseph be sure to think. . ."

"God Will Show Us. . ."

"What would any man think in his place?" asked Elizabeth. "But God, Who has shown us these things, will surely show us how to talk with Joseph. Come in now. No more deep talk until you have rested."

The kindness with which she was received on her arrival never once wavered in the months that followed. In her advancing pregnancy Elizabeth was not strong enough to do the housework and so Mary remained to be maid to her until the child was delivered. At once she wrote notes home, explaining this as her intention. She also told her mother that she had passed through an experience of which it was impossible for her to write. When she came back to Nazareth she would confide everything. To Joseph she sent a dutiful and tender note, telling him that the time was soon coming when she would explain to him why she had to leave so suddenly.

She remained in Ain Karim until the great day when, as the angel had predicted, a man-child was born to Elizabeth. And, true even to the last prophetic accent of the angel, Zachary immediately found his voice again!

Return of Samuel

Suddenly Samuel, the trader, returned from Jerusalem and called on Joseph.

"I think," the carpenter said, "I notice a change in you, Samuel."

"No, I am just the same."

"Let be, then."

"Please, Joseph, what kind of change did you think you saw in me?"

"You look hunted. And furtive! And frightened!"

Samuel instantly became serious.

"There is never a moment when I am not in fear of my life. The last time I talked to you, I thought I knew all about the wickedness of Reb Naamaan. But now. . . ."

"Who is Reb Naamaan?" asked Joseph innocently.

Samuel whispered in his friend's ear.

Spies Everywhere

"King Herod. We never dare mention his real name when we talk. The sound of that name in your mouth will bring a spy to your elbow instantly; if they misunderstand you, it may cost you your life. So we never mention him except in code. Joseph, his deeds would shame a tiger."

"More beast than man, then?" asked Joseph in a sad tone.

There was a moment's silence and then Samuel came nearer Joseph, towering above him, and clamped both palms on his shoulders.

"Joseph," he cried, "hasn't the time come for you to change your mind? How goes it with you? The last time I was here you were mooning about marrying some girl you never met. But you're still a bachelor. Her father refused you, then? Come with me to Jerusalem. . . ."

"She accepted me!" protested Joseph, leaping to his feet. "We are to be married in a few days."

"Then where is she? Where is the excitement? Where are the wedding preparations?"

Joseph looked distressed.

"You see, Samuel," he explained, "she has a cousin who has not been in the best of health. She went to see that cousin. I am expecting her back any day."

A Caravan and Song

"You're still hard to figure out," Samuel grumbled. "But look here, Joseph. I am with a caravan that rests in Nazareth tonight. Come down with me this evening to the camp fire. Let's have supper together. And sing a few songs for old time's sake."

Sunset found Joseph at the camp with his friend by a small fire of dried twigs. They ate and listened to the roistering voices of the minstrels, who sang to Dionysos, god of wine and the drama. Pagan songs, yarns, about the gods of Rome and how they mated with mortal women, breeding half-gods who always stirred up a lot of trouble in the world.

"Now you're hearing something," gloated Samuel. "Not those sickening old psalms. Did you hear that song of the god and the woman?"

"Yes. But their gods are not real. The singers themselves laugh at them."

"Of course, Joseph. And does that not have a personal meaning for you? Didn't you tell me a year ago that you would not fight for the freedom of the people because God promised to send a deliverer, wasn't that it?"

"Right."

"An Old Wives' Tale?"

"Who was to be God's own son, and born of a virgin? Am I not now quoting the prophecies?"

"Yes, Samuel."

'Can't you see, Joseph, that it is all just an old wives' tale—told in every language? Every silly religion teaches the same thing. They all have the same story of gods having children by mortal women. You are making your decision on a fairy tale. You are believing in a universal nonsense."

Joseph leaned forward, and now the light was on his face.

"In universal truth," he replied with the same tranquil conviction that always annoyed Samuel with its force. "Even though some people worship these false gods, and believe in myths, the Messiah will not come just for our people, but for all—for everybody!"

And then before they could speak more a hand was thrust from the darkness behind him and tapped the carpenter on the shoulder. Startled, he turned swiftly, looking up into the face of Joachim.

"Peace be with you," the young man breathed, aware of sudden fear.

"And the Lord be with you, Joseph. I came over here to ask you to come to your shop. Mary is there, waiting for you. She says she wants to talk with you at once. Alone."

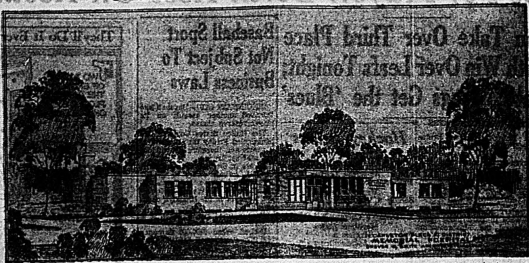
Contract Let for Carleton Place Hospital



General contract for the erection of the Carleton Place and District Memorial Hospital has been let to M. Sullivan and Son, Limited of Arnprior and Kingston. The architects are Drever and Smith, Kingston. The patient accommodation consists of 22 medical and surgical beds, eight maternity beds and 10 bassinettes. The general planning, construction and features of this building follows that found in more pretentious hospitals.

The hospital to be built at Carleton Place culminates the efforts of this progressive community and a group of representative citizens in the district who for some time have seen the need of a hospital for this area. The building will be erected at the corner of Lake Avenue and Neelin Street. The structure is being built of fire resisting materials in the best type of hospital construction and is planned for easy enlargement when required. The building is being erected at a low cost per bed and none of the essential services or construction has been sacrificed.

The building is two storeys in height. The ground floor accommodates boiler and fuel rooms, laundry, fan room, kitchen, refrigerators, food service lift, stores, dining rooms, nurses room, Ladies' Aid, toilets and other auxiliary rooms. Part of this floor is left unfinished for future use.

The main floor entrance faces Lake Avenue, and has glazed vestibule and public lobby, with offices adjoining. There is an ambulance entrance with X-ray and emergency operating suite adjoining. In the north wing and separate from each other is the operating and obstetrical suites, with their auxiliary rooms and services. These suites are isolated from the public corridors. The east wing accommodates the nursery and maternity rooms, with their services, also isolated fro mthe public corridors. The south wing is devoted to patients wards, private and semi-private rooms with their auxiliary services. Provision is made for future additions without disturbing the operating of the hospital. The exterior walls are finished in brick with stone trim. All rooms have large glass areas. Floors are terrazzo and linoleum finish with glazed tile walls in the service rooms. Interior partitions are hollow tile with plaster finish. The deck roof is fire resisting.

The plan has been designed with economy of structure in view, without sacrificing any of the necessary requirements in a hospital of this size. The heating system is forced hot water with high pressure steam for sterilizers, kitchen and laundry. Mechanical ventilation is provided to kitchen, serveries, operating and obstetrical and other service units throughout the two floors. Electric lighting, nurses call and telephone systems to the rooms and service areas are in rigid conduit.*

Fishing Best When Moon Full Biological Experiment Shows

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—For those who like to speculate on the relation of the moon's phases to fish-catching, here's something the Quebec biological bureau found out.

Carpes noires, or white suckers, entered nets and traps more freely on nights when the moon was full, but barometric changes had no effect on the fish at all.

The experiments were made at the Mont Tremblant biological station two summers in a row and the findings were reported by Prof. Albert Courtemanche, station director.

Just so you won't become confused about the color description of the fish in the two languages: French-Canadians selected "black" because of the dark color of the fish's back; the English verion, "white", relates to the fish's belly.

Scientific Tests

Prof. Courtemanche says anglers should not consider the findings as necessarily applying to other species, or to fishing with hooks, but "the tests intrigue the imagination because they were conducted along strictly scientific lines."

The experiment in continuous fishing, using hoop nets, gill nets and wire traps, was conducted in Lake Lauzon. The type used made little difference but use of an under-water light invariably boosted the yield sharply.

The experiments were carried out from mid-June to the end of August. The new-moon phases in June, July and August were peak-catch periods for each month. So were the full-moon phases in June and August. Peculiarly, the July full-moon phase showed a low daily average catch, but it rose rapidly and reached peak period three days later.

The experiments also showed that the total daily-average catch tended to diminish during the course of the season. It was found, too, that the fish prefer average depths near the shore.

Prof. Courtemanche remarks that les carpes noires like to get about and go places. They will enter a trap whether it is baited or not, perhaps out of pure curiosity or to find shelter or for some reason not yet determined.

What's This One!

If you're wondering what kind of fish that odd-looking thing is you hauled in, you'll soon be able to thumb quickly through a book and find out.

Vianney Legendre, working under the auspices of the Quebec department of game and fisheries, has completed the first of a series—this one on Quebec fish—that eventually will describe all Canadian fish so their identification will be unmistakeable.

The present volume is believed to include every fresh-water fish—and fish coming into fresh water—in Quebec except so-called minnows. It was prepared specifically for fish wardens but can be used by the ordinary angler even outside Quebec, especially in the Great Lakes region.

It contains data on the white perch, a fish so rare in Quebec that some specimens taken recently at Ile Perrot—between Lake of Two Mountains and Lake St. Louis, near Montreal—were the first noted by science in 75 years.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By
WINIFRED E. WILSON

IN THE SOUTH

Nature holds numberless mysteries. Certain people use their entire time trying to solve puzzles offered by the inhabitants of Birdland, but many of these problems are too deep for man's brains. Why do some birds fly north in spring while others of the very same species remain continually in or near the tropics? Why do our birds of summer spend their winters in warmer regions and very few feathered folk of the south temperate zone migrate to the tropics when the season of cold comes upon them?

Faraway Relatives

The great blue heron, that splendid looking shore bird which breeds in Canada, has the closest of relatives, other great blue herons, scattered all the way down the North American Continent to southern Mexico. Similarly, when the little spotted sandpiper, so familiar to us, is nesting in Canada, other spotted sandpipers are at the same business between here and southern Louisiana. The shoveler, a kind of duck, breeds as far north as Hudson Bay and Alaska, but also as far south as Lower California. Stranger still, there are pied-billed grebes found nesting from Nova Scotia to southern Argentina, near the far end of South America.

The same thing is true of many song birds. Both bluebirds and chipping sparrows breed from northern Ontario to Honduras, near the Panama Canal. Predators also are not restricted to one little spot at the nesting period: Cooper's hawks can be found from Nova Scotia to Florida and ospreys from Newfoundland right across the continent and as far south as Argentina and Chile in the southern hemisphere. Not one of these birds remains in Canada during the winter. All join their own kind in the south.

Birds of the south temperate zone seldom leave home at all, and practically none come up here for their holidays in the way our barn swallows, bobolinks, and golden plovers go down there for a vacation. Penguins never move far from the South Pole. Extremely few birds that spend the southern winter (which is June to September) in the tropics go south to nest in Argentina when, in December, it is summer there. It is a curious fact that the general trend, in both eastern and western hemispheres, seems to be for northern migration at breeding time.

Possibly one answer to these puzzles may be found by looking at a map. There is 50 times as much land in the north temperate zone as in the south temperate.

Elected Officials Of Municipalities Get Exemption

OTTAWA (CP)—Expense allowances of elected municipal officials ancesof elected municipal officials become tax-exempt under a provision of Thursday's federal budget.

This places municipal councillors in the same tax position on expenses as members of the Commons, senators and members of legislatures, provided expense allowances do not exceed one-half of salaries or other remuneration.

The exemption is retroactive to 1946—the only retroactive tax feature of the budget—because it was in 1946 that the $2,000 tax-free expense allowance was provided for members of parliament beyond their $4,000-a-year sessional indemnity.

P.M. REVEALS

The Prime Minister said the powers of Parliament remained complete as before the act became law. The act merely gave to the government power to do some of the things which Parliament itself can do.

Justice Minister Garson said the government asked for the extension because a "very serious emergency of apprehended war" faces Canada. Just because no real emergency action had been required under the act so far was no guarantee there would not be the need at any time for government action at a moment's notice.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the act could turn Canada into a "garrison state" and make the cabinet the "masters of the Canadian people."

Under the act, said Mr. Diefenbaker, the government could seize all the telephones in the country. It could take over privately-owned radio stations, airlines and railways. It could direct labor into specific jobs.

E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) said there was no emergency that justified an extension of the act.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver Quadra) said the government "is getting pretty close to thought-policing" in Canada. To "catch a handful of Communists" it was drastically cutting down the rights of Parliament.

Boston Bruins Hopes For Playoff Berth Rest On Results Of Road Trip

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GOODIES WERE GOOD!

The Kingston Goodyears leaped into the sectional top spot and shoved the Peterborough Petes into hockey oblivion last night in a rip-roaring senior "B" battle that had nearly 4,000 fans squatting on the edges of their seats throughout.

The Goodies deserved to win on the night's play. They couldn't help it. They had everything. They had the spirit, and fire, the breaks, the crowd and a guy named Ken Johnson. They couldn't do a thing wrong, and they played this to the fullest advantage.

But the gallant Petes went down with all colors flying. They battled right to the last ditch and a lot of guys today are wondering how come that duck egg. Johnson was uncanny and not entirely devoid of the proverbial horseshoes. In fact at times he had a whole blacksmith shop.

But you couldn't deny the Goodyears the win. They started at the drop of the first puck and ripping into fifth gear, maintained a terrific tempo throughout. Their checking was brilliant and Coach Johnny Carr-Harris had his hockey pooches sitting-up, playing dead dog and barking at the crook of his finger.

The win leaves the Glens two points in arrears. These they can pick up tonight by defeating Orillia Pontiacs here. If they do it will be left to the OHA to decide what will happen as far as position goes. Manager Harold Langabeer of the Goodyear said today that a meeting was scheduled for tomorrow in the event the Glens win tonight, to decide the course of action. He would not say that the Goodies will insist on the replay of the protested game.

The OHA usually as fickle as the proverbial femme has already ordered the game replayed "if it affects the standing." It seems to this corner that if the two teams wind up in a tie, the standing is affected, and the game should be replayed. Why this meeting is more than we can fathom. Maybe Kingston is looking for more of that OHA "justice."

However nothing can be done about it until after tonight's game with the Ponties. It should be mentioned that Orillia cannot make long trips on days other than Saturdays. That comes from having the hired help sprayed over the landscape. So if the protested game is ordered replayed it means a week of idleness for all concerned.

MEET PETERBOROUGH!

The Belleville Moiras, conquerors of Brockville's Generals and rated as eastern champions, are quietly biding their time waiting for the second-round opposition in the intermediate "B" basketball playdowns. The Moiras came through with a brilliant victory over the Generals in the second game of their playdown series on Wednesday night, winning by a handsome point margin.

They meet the powerful Peterborough Marines here on Tuesday night with the second game of the points-to-count series set for Peterborough on Thursday evening. The game here gets under way at eight o'clock, and it should be a thriller. The teams have met twice in exhibition tilts during the season with honors even.

The Spafford-coached crew has played consistently good basketball throughout the schedule. Their only serious lapse from grace came in the second playoff game with the Trenton Flyers when they faded badly to take the worst defeat of their current career. However, they zoomed back to topflight form in the first playdowns with Brockville and their performance here Wednesday night left little doubt in the minds of the fans that it will take a mighty good team to make the Moiras say "uncle."

COSSA TOURNEYS!

While on the subject of basketball, it has been announced that the COSSA "A" and "B" boys' championship tournaments will be held in Toronto on Saturday, February 28th. Junior and senior basketball will be contested in each class with the games held at Danforth Technical School.

"A" and "B" girls' championship tourneys are slated for Toronto on Saturday, March 14th., at a location to be named.

Winners of the "A" and "B" boys' senior championships will go on into the Ontario Federation Schools Athletic Association championship tournament being held in Toronto on Friday and Saturday, March 7 and 8 at Ryerson Institute of Technology. So states COSSA secretary "Pete" Beach.

Albert College's strong senior and junior teams should be powerful entries in the COSSA "B" tournaments. The collegians have yet to meet defeat this year in schedule play. The seniors lost to Queen's University Seconds while the juniors have been tied on one occasion.

The Albert seniors met and defeated Cobourg C.I. senior squad in an exhibition tilt by 60-40 score. The Cobourgers, playing off with the Peterborough C.I., lost the first game of the series 66-17. The winners take the Lake Shore District senior title and enter the COSSA playoffs.

It is not likely the Bay of Quinte District of the COSSA will be represented in the senior and junior "A" tournaments in Toronto on February 28th. Neither of the Belleville Collegiate Institute teams will go on, it is stated.

Can Take Over Third Place With Win Over Leafs Tonight; Habs, Wings Get the 'Blues'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lynn Patrick's Boston Bruins have left home to seek their fortune.

A seven-game road trip that started last Wednesday and won't end until March 2 will have considerable bearing on the Bruins' National Hockey League play-off hopes.

The safari started badly. The Bruins were in third place when they crossed the Massachusetts border. The last-place New York Rangers knocked them off 4-2 and they dropped to fourth.

Fourth place is still play-off territory, but Patrick thinks his club can do better. In Toronto tonight, the Bruins will have a go at dislodging the Maple Leafs from the third rung, which they currently hold by a single point.

From there, Lynn takes his show to Chicago to face the fifth-place Black Hawks who trail his team by a scant two points.

A couple of victories and Lynn could almost wire the Boston Garden to start printing tickets for Stanley Cup play. A couple of losses and he might consider writing the Patrick clan on the coast about the prospects of a Western Hockey League job for next season.

The Bruins are reasonably healthy. The only absentees tonight will be forward Dave Creighton, out indefinitely with a broken leg, and rookie defenceman Bob Armstrong, who has a dislocated shoulder.

The Leafs still have three absentees—centres Ted Kennedy and Max Bentley and rightwinger Howie Meeker.

Boston's visit to Chicago is the first of three in eight days. If either club makes a clean sweep, the loser's chances of post-season play will be precarious.

The remaining NHL activity this week-end won't affect the standings. The giant-killing Rangers, fresh from back-to-back victories over Boston and Chicago, take on the second-place Canadiens in Montreal tonight and entertain the front-running Detroit Red Wings Sunday night.

Since Canadiens are separated by eight points from the Wings and the Leafs while the Rangers have 11 points to make up on Chicago, the only things at issue will be New York's dubious Stanley Cup future and recollections by Montreal and Detroit of what the pestiferous cellar-dwellers have done to them on past occasions.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles and Rex Layne of Lewiston, Utah, will meet here April 1 in a 10-round fight.

The bout will be under the joint promotion of Jimmy Murray and the International Boxing Club of New York.

It will be the third meeting of the two challengers for Rocky Marciano's crown. Promoter Murray said he hopes to be able to match the winner for a title engagement with Marciano here in September.

Baseball Sport Not Subject To Business Laws

CINCINNATI (AP)—Baseball has survived another assault on its player reserve clause.

The United States Court of Appeals ruled Friday that baseball is a sport, and therefore not subject to anti-trust laws.

Losers in the test case are Jack Corbett, former owner of the El Paso, Tex., club in the Texas-Arizona League, and Walter J. Kowalski, a player in the Brooklyn chain of clubs.

They claimed that baseball is a business.

Corbett asked $300,000 damages and Kowalski asked $150,000.

Frederic A. Johnson, one of the lawyers representing Corbett and Kowalski, said he will appeal the verdict.

He contended that radio and television have brought baseball into interstate commerce. Thus, he added, the anti-trust law applied.

Baseball club owners said the reserve clause is necessary to preserve the game. It gives the poorer clubs a chance to get the star players, they maintained.

In behalf of Corbett, Johnson claimed the anti-trust law was violated when Corbett was prohibited from keeping players he signed from the Mexican League. Kowalski said he was prevented by the reserve clause from advancing in the profession.

The reserve clause binds a player to the club holding his contract and prohibits him from negotiating with other teams during its tenure.

Barrie Flyers Finally Make Top Spot, Whip Spits 6-1 As Marlies Take Loss

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers are on top of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series again. Their margin is only one point but it is a morale booster for Hap Emms' crew as the series moves into the final week of the schedule.

The Flyers took over the leadership from Toronto Marlboros by lacing the eighth-place Windsor Spitfires 6-1, coupled with a 3-1 loss the Marlies suffered at the hands of the third-place Toronto St. Michael's.

Guelph Biltmores, defending Memorial Cup champions, still have a mathematical chance of taking the sixth and last playoff spot after edging Galt Black Hawks 6-5.

In Kitchener St. Catharines Teepees improved their comfortable fourth-place position by turning back the cellar-dwelling Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 5-3.

Barrie's assault against the Spitfires was led by Doug Mohns with two goals. The others went to Don McKenney, Orv Tessier, John Martan and Tony Poeta. Marlin McAlendin spoiled Bill Harrington's shutout bid.

Near Donnybrook

Maple Leaf Gardens ice was littered with flying sticks and bodies when the Marlies and Collegians tangled. The brawl developed in the second period when Marlboros' Louis Bendo boarded Paul Megaffin. The two players laced into each other and Magaffin was tossed to the ice and suffered a concussion. He was taken off on a stretcher.

At one point the two goalkeepers were the only players not fighting. Bendo received two major penalties and one misconduct for his role in the donnybrook. Gerry James, Marc Reaume and Megaffin all received majors.

Bill Dineen scored two of the Collegians' goals and Murray Costello notched the other. Parker MacDonald counted for the Marlboros.

A departing player gave the going-away present at Guelph. Ron Murphy, due to join New York Rangers of the National Hockey League in a few days, presented the Bilts with three goals, including two in the final minutes of the game which overcame a 5-4 deficit.

Billy Graham, George and Chuck Henderson scored the others. Ken Wharram paired for Galt and Jim McBurney, Hec Lalonde and John Sleaver tallied the rest.

Two third-period goals broke a 3-3 deadlock in St. Catharines. Joe Kastelic, Brian Cullen, Charlie Marshall, Willy Haas and Hank Ciesla scored for the Teeps. Kitchener's goals went to Ivan Tennant, Gary Collins and Buddy Horne.

There was no action in the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association. Sunday Montreal Royals play Quebec Citadelles and Three Rivers Reds are at Montreal Canadiens.

Two games are scheduled in the OHA tonight. Barrie meets Galt while Kitchener is at Oshawa. Sunday Oshawa plays at St. Michael's, Guelph meets the Marlboros and St. Catharines is the guest of Windsor.

'Out-of-Town' Rinks Capture Honors In 26th Annual Ontario Bonspiel

TORONTO (CP)—It was a triumphant day for Galt, Hamilton, Kingston, Ayr and Montreal rinks Friday as the 26th annual Ontario bonspiel concluded. They captured four of the seven trophies awarded and the Grand Aggregate.

The Grand Aggregate, awarded to the rink chalking up the most wins in the bonspiel, was taken by Syd Smithers' Galt foursome. They defeated E. Young's Toronto Royal Canadian rink 9-5 in the finals to emerge with a 9-1 record against Young's 7-1.

It was a deserving win for Smithers since he lost the Royal York Trophy Thursday night and the right to represent southern Ontario in the Canadian curling championships at Sudbury March 2-6 to Pete Gilbert's Chatham club last week.

The Hamilton rink skipped by Dr. A. E. Walkey won the Seiberling Trophy by closing out E. Smith's Toronto Granite Club 11-5 in the final. The Seagram Trophy was presented to J. Reid's Ayr quartet for the first time after they took an easy 9-1 final from W. Palmer's Sault Ste. Marie entry.

Kingston Wins

The Kingston crew headed by J. Sullivan came through with a 10-8 win over A. Kirkpatrick's Toronto Granite quartet to win the North American Life Trophy.

F. Rubbra's Montreal entry took the Monarch Knitting trophy. They won the award, up for competition for the first time this year, by downing M. Fullerton's Brampton rink 9-8 in the final.

A Toronto High Park rink skipped by Gerve Meech Thursday night won the Royal York Trophy, top award of the bonspiel. The Henry Birks Trophy also was awarded to D. Douglas' Toronto Civil Service rink Thursday night.

F. Westcott's Toronto High Park foursome won the Parker Pen Trophy Friday night by defeating a Churchill, Man., rink skipped by H. Allan 12-5.

Some 480 games were played during the five-day 'spiel. A full draw of 128 rinks squared off on Monday, first day of the bonspiel. Of these 69 were out-of-town rinks.

All eight 1952 winning skips played in the bonspiel. Only one of them, Lou Ross of Agincourt who won the Royal York Trophy last year, reached semi-finals in any event.

The Ross foursome curled their way to the semi-finals for the Birks Trophy where they lost to M. Cunnington's Toronto Curling Club. They also played in the Grand Aggregate, only to lose to Smithers' Galt rink.

Kingston Goodyears, in one of their best performances of the season defeated the Peterborough Petes 5-0 in a bitterly-fought senior "B" battle in Kingston last night.

The victory spelt elimination for the Petes and hoisted the Goodyears to the top position of the eastern section of the group, two points in front of the Belleville Glen Roys.

The Glen Roys can reach a tie for the top berth by defeating Orillia tonight in the last scheduled game of the season.

The Goodyears, flashing terrific speed before 3961 fans, took a two-goal lead early in the first period and were never headed. They added three more in the second heat and held off the desperate Petes in a scoreless third period.

Sports Editor Is Honored

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton sportsmen paid tribute Friday night to George Mackintosh, sports editor of the Edmonton Journal, who retired earlier in the day after 40 years with the paper.

Jim Coleman of Toronto, chief speaker at a dinner in Mackintosh's honor, said the retiring editor "never wrote a hateful word about any man in 40 years" despite the fact he came from "an age of newspapering when vituperation was the accepted thing."

Mackintosh, 65, recalled that when he came to Canada from Scotland soccer had been the major game in Edmonton. His desire was to live to see Edmonton win the Grey Cup.

The retiring sports editor's tribute to sport: "Anyone who plays a game has something fine inside him."

His successor as sports editor is Hal Pawson, 36, who came to the Journal 12 years ago after working for newspapers in Regina, Toronto, Sudbury and Vancouver.

Wolves Win Over Indians

SUDBURY (CP)—Sudbury Wolves defeated Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians 7-4 Friday night and took a one-game lead in their best-of-seven semi-final series in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group.

The series continues tonight.

Scoring for Sudbury were Nick Tomiuk, Roly McLenahan, Marty Burton, Lennie Speck, Yacker Flynn, Andy Milne and Mauno Kauppi. Jimmy Farelli, who was moved to the defence from the forward line for the series, paced the Indians with three goals. John Lumley scored the other.

BOXER SENTENCED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Jesse Flores, 26, one-time contender for the world lightweight boxing title, and his wife, Carmen, 26, were sentenced Friday to two years in a federal narcotics hospital. They pleaded guilty last Tuesday to possession and sale of narcotics. Flores said he had been a heroin addict about six months.

'Coolidge' Dawes Does Not 'Choose to Run'

MONTREAL (CP)—A. Sidney Dawes, who has headed the Canadian Olympic Association since the last war, said Friday he will not stand for re-election.

"This is my last year," said the COA president. There were reports during and following the 1952 Olympic games at Helsinki that the Montreal industrialist would retire from an active part in the Canadian body.

The next meeting of the COA directors is scheduled for Feb. 28 and the annual meeting of the association will be held March 28.

Dawes' verbal statement coincided with the release of the COA's latest bulletin in which the association's finances were reviewed and immediate problems leading up to the 1956 games were discussed, with emphasis on a "tougher" attitude towards standards to be met by aspiring Olympic athletes.

Funds collected for the 1952 games amounted to $149,444.82, including $40,000 from the federal government. Along with the 1948 surplus, the available total was $172,353.86. Expenditures on the 1952 games were $142,064.39. Adding $3,799.63 for the association's 1948 booklet and approximately $384 for accounts not yet received, the balance rests at $26,110.54.

The bulletin said for Canada to drop out of the games, as some have suggested, because of indifferent showing, "would be a grave error for any nation of Canada's reputation and prestige."

"The Canadian Olympic Association must be 'tougher' about standards than it has been in the past, and if no one can attain high proficiency, then no one should go 'for the ride.' The COA should not be concerned over lack of representation in some sports. . . ."

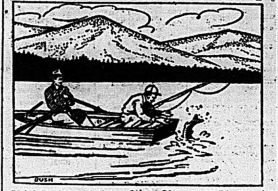
Put 'Em Back to Grow Up



(Noted Sportsman, Auther and Creator of Solunar Tables)

What with conservation classes in our public and private schools, sportsmen's associations, state and federal magazines and publications, outdoor magazines on the newsstands and outdoor features in our newspapers, the word "conservation" has, of late years, taken on new meaning.

Webster defines the word variously, even including the making of fruit conserve and placing it in jars for future use. The present popular concept, however, is applied to our natural resources — our forests, waters, minerals, soils and wildlife.

Most of us are apt to consider conservation to be the specific province of those who are paid to look after such matters, such as wardens, government employees and the members of the legislative bodies who make the laws which tell us what we can and cannot do.

Few of us, however, have formed the habit of viewing conservation as a belief which should be in the minds of each and every one of us. Until more of us accept the fact that conservation is the duty of the individual there will always be more work than the wardens and the enforcement officers can do.

Consider, for example, the opening-day enthusiasts who rush back to town with an outsize catch of trout or bass so that their pictures can appear in the newspapers, posing beside a string of dead fish.

Once the fish have been photographed they are distributed among the neighbors or placed in the deep freeze units. Meanwhile, these fish are no longer available in the streams to provide sport and thrills for other anglers.

Oh, I know — the fish were legally taken and the law says that a man can bring home a legal limit of trout if he wants to. My point is that he shouldn't want to kill that many fine fish when half that number would provide all that he and his family could eat.

Some years ago, when the Pennsylvania trout limit was ten fish a day, I met a friend on the street.

"Jack," he said, "I wish you could have seen the basket of trout I brought home yesterday—ten fish that ran from 14 to 18½ inches. They were beautiful."

"Yes," I replied, "I imagine they were. Tell me, Joe — what can one man do with that many big trout?"

"You know," he said, "it is a problem sometimes. Not very many of my neighbors will take the trouble to clean trout. Maybe it's a good idea to put some back and let the neighbors catch their own."

Being in the business that I happen to be it naturally follows that I find some pretty fancy fishing as the years go by. In addition, I fish a part of almost every day of the active fishing season.

More and more I find myself less inclined to kill a good fish when I land one. I fish just as enthusiastically as the next fellow but, once the fish is safe in my landing net, it has served its purpose. More often than not, back it goes into the stream or lake to live and fight another day. Last season we had at our house one mess of trout and one of bass.

Each spring a friend of mine, who lives in a large city comes to visit me during the trout season. Of course, we fish every day, regardless of the weather. This has been going on for about twelve years.

He is a good fishermen and he hooks and lands his fair share of trout. Yet, in all the years I have known him I have never seen him kill a fish. Year after year he will fish from dawn till dark, returning all of his fish to the water, and never have I seen a man enjoy his trout fishing more than he does.

The oldest and largest angling competition in this country is the Metropolitan-Miami Fishing Tournament. This season marks its 18th consecutive year, and more than 400,000 anglers compete annually for its prizes, trophies, and citations.

To encourage the release of catches which obviously are not record fish or prize-winners, the "Met" tournament issues Release Certificates. These are really handsome affairs, suitable for framing and prizes to be envied and admired more than mounted specimens. They mark the owner thereof as a sportsman in the true sense of the word.

To accentuate the importance of the release of sailfish, which are not as plentiful as they once were, the angler receives not only a Release Certificate but an inscribed cigaret lighter as well.

If, in the opinion of the boat captain, the catch is a possible prize-winner, then, of course, the fish should be brought in for official weighing. Otherwise, the accent is now on putting 'em back, the more the better.

As I say, conservation is a word of growing importance these days. As matters now stand, with the thousands upon thousands of fishermen and hunters who take to the fields, woods, streams and lakes each year, there is barely enough wildlife to go around.

Thus, unless more of us accept the fact that applied conservation is a personal matter, stamped deeply in the mind and heart of the individual, the day is not far off, I'm afraid, when such a thing as good fishing or good shooting will be difficult if not impossible to find.

STATISTICS FOR CAR OWNERS AND DRIVERS!!

Mechanical failures, bad roads and driving conditions cause very small percentage of accidents. The real offender is "human factor", the driver.

Speeding, drinking and driving, driving on the wrong side of the road and ignoring the rights of others cause nearly 70% of all traffic deaths.

Under-25 drivers make up 15% of the driving public but are involved in 30% of all fatal accidents.

Three out of every 10 fatal accidents brought death to themselves or others, simply because they were driving too fast.

More than 80% of all accidents occur on perfectly dry highways.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Your bridge partner gets the feel of your jump bid from its size. One-jump shows strength; double-jump shows unusual length with strength only in the suit; higher jump shows length only.

The one-jump is subdivided like this: If made in the first round, the strength includes two sure tricks; if made in a later round, sure tricks may or may not be among its strength.

The double-jump is distinctive in that it promises no worry in the trump suit; that the contract should play in no other trump suit; that a game can be made in it, even though it lacks two sure tricks.

The higher-jump definitely denies a minimum of high cards that would permit a simple response; admits it is weak in high cards in the suit, too; but would like to gamble for game in that suit only.

South opens with a club when north has this hand:

♠K 9 8 7 6 5 4 2
♥J 8 4
♦8
♣6

North responds with four spades; an unusually high jump at once. What does partner know from such a reply? If he knows the different basic meanings of jumps he can read the holding.

It is not the one-jump. It is not the double-jump. Therefore, it is a long spade suit in an otherwise worthless hand; discourages any idea of going to a slam; nothing but a gamble for possible game.

Akoolap Oxpert sneers at drawing so fine a bead of distinction. To him, all jumps have the same meaning; a jump of any kind is just a signal that encourages the pair to try for a game.

Get not the idea that Akoolap is dumb. On the contrary, he is instinctively sound. But he gives his partner no pattern to follow. Too often the pair is in doubt on close decisions.

If you stop at game when you can make a slam, he is quick to tell you that you have no imagination. If you go to a slam that fails, he asks how you get that way. He is what we call a result player.

Frankford Bowling Loop

FRANKFORD — Frankford clinched first place in the Frankford District Hockey League this week by virtue of their 14-7 shellacking of Johnston-Centenary Combines. The outcome was never in doubt at any time during the game, for from the first drop of the puck, the Frankford club had things pretty well their own way.

At the end of the first period Frankford led 6-2, at the end of the second it was 9-6.

In the other game, a real thriller, Glen Miller took over second place in the standing by edging Springbrook 3-2.

League standing to date:

Team	W.	L.	Pts.
Frankford	5	0	10
Glen Miller	2	2	4
Springbrook	2	3	4
Johns'n-Cent'y	0	4	0

Frankford Bowling League, Division "A" saw a great tightening up around the middle of the standings, as both of the top teams lost. Ray Scott's Outlaws were stopped by Gib Gilmour's Gib's Gang, as the latter rolled well over 3500 on their triple, for the highest in the history of the league. They also copped high single, with a 1340, not bad bowling for any league, particularly mixed bowling. Ross Huffman's Racketeers, without their captain, dropped five points to Lloyd Hanna's Robbers, enabling the Robbers to advance from seventh to sixth place. Jack Farley's Jack's Jokers, took seven points from Bob Arbuckle's Hopefulate. Thus they gained the tie for fourth place. Preston Chase's Jets took five from Karl Austin's Curley's Crew, dropping them into seventh place. It looks now as if the Jets are not going to gain the dubious distinction of finishing with the least points of any team in the history of the league, as they have four nights to gain the five points they need to tie the all-time low of 59.

Standing: Outlaws 111; Racketeers 93; Gib's Gang 93; Hopefulate 84; Jack's Jokers 84; Robbers 77; Curley's Crew 76; Jets 54.

Frankford's entry in the Trent Valley Bowling League finally broke into the win column this week, by taking two games and four points from the Brighton team. Frankford's next game will be in Trenton Saturday night, Feb. 28, at which time they will play host to Stirling.

Sport in Brief

QUE HOCKEY CLUBS BEST

TORONTO (CP)—The question of which league—the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association or the Ontario Hockey Association—has the best junior A teams has been answered, for this year at least. The Quebec clubs have it by a nod.

Of the 72 games played in the Ontario-Quebec interlocking schedule, Quebec teams won 36, lost 33 and tied three.

This is remarkable when it is considered that the Quebec League has only four clubs, Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Royals, Quebec Citadelles and Three Rivers Reds, against nine in the Ontario circuit. The Ontario teams are: Toronto Marlboros, Toronto St. Michael's, Barrie Flyers, St. Catharines Teepees, Oshawa Generals, Galt Black Hawks, Guelph Biltmores, Windsor Spitfires and Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts.

In the lop-sided interlocking schedule which ended last Tuesday when Quebec defeated Galt 5-2, Quebec teams played 18 games while the Ontario clubs played only eight. The series was introduced for the first time this season.

The Ontario league has a chance for a comeback. Champions of the two leagues are likely to meet in the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup playoffs. If the league schedule is any indication, the series should produce some spectacular hockey.

Current leaders in each league produced the best records. Montreal Canadiens, Quebec pace-setters, lost only three games in 18, to Marlboros, Barrie and Oshawa.

The Ontario front-runners, Toronto Marlboros, had six wins and two losses.

MONTREAL (CP)—Joe Anderson's senior McGill basketball crew Friday defeated Assumption Purple Raiders of Windsor 61-43.

The Redmen's victory moved them into a fifth-place tie with Assumption in the intercollegiate senior basketball league standing.

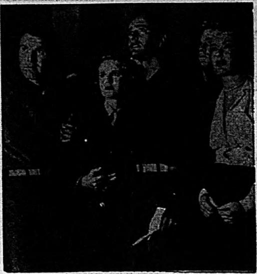
WINNIPEG (CP)—Mrs. G. Dick of Rapid City, Man., Friday won the Manitoba ladies' curling championship and the right to represent the province in next month's Canadian championship at Regina. In an extra-end, Mrs. Dick came from behind to nose out Mrs. Laura Clark 10-9.

MONTREAL (CP)—Lanky Wally Emo netted both McGill goals on solo efforts Friday night as the Redmen edged the University of Montreal Carabins 2-1 in a senior intercollegiate hockey game. Claude Dagenais counted for the Carabins.

NEW AIR SCHOOL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army announced Friday the opening of its own aviation school at Fort Sill, Okla. The school will give tactical training to pilots and mechanics of all branches of the army which now use or may eventually employ light airplanes and helicopters.

AT THE BELLE—The irresistible team of Bing Crosby and Bob Hope trip the light fantastic in this joyful scene from Paramount's new Technicolor feature "The Road to Bali" now playing at the Belle Theatre. Co-starred with the two fabulous personalities is the delectable Dorothy Lamour.



AT THE CAPITOL—Tense moment in Republic's thrilling new war saga "Thunderbirds" next attraction at the Capitol Theatre starting Monday, pictures Gene Evans, Mona Freeman, John Derek and Suzanne Dalbert. On the same program "The Gambler and the Lady" starring Dane Clarke and Naomi Chance. Both hits are first showings.

AT THE McCARTHY—Mari Blanchard, cast as an Oriental spy in Universal-International's new laugh film, Bill Mauldin's Willie and Joe in "Back at the Front," tries her exotic charm on Tom Ewell, centre, and Harvey Lembeck, seen as Willie and Joe, respectively, in the laugh sequel to "Up Front," opening Monday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

FOR SUNDAY, FEB. 22, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Today has double meaning of great importance: first, it is God's Day, secondly it is the birth anniversary of a great man, first president of the United States. Mediate on that!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Favorable aspects for good deeds in all wholesome directions. First, go to your church and thank God for your blessings. Later join family, worthy friends in Sunday affairs.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Happy indications if you are in pleasant mood and lend your entertaining self to day's program which should include church, family activities.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Sort of inclinations you usually enjoy. Encourage attention to children's affairs, useful social matters, religious and community interests.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—We in the comfort of our homes must think of, and do more for, our fighting forces. P ray for them daily; also send them letters, gifts.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Really stop yourself and review; check over thoroughly yourself. Are you co-operating or dictating? Improving, slipping or standing still?

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Courage and faith, as Libra well knows, frustrate apathy and defeat. And sturdy resilience, another top quality, is strong in the Sign Libra. Your best, friend!

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Struggle (something we all know) should strengthen not weaken determination and ambition. Be your sound self, a Scorpio asset when lived up to; and take rebuffs and praise rightly.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Snappy influences in your sector, encouraging for quick action and thinking. But there is a warning to remember and be guided by spiritual needs. Enjoy loved ones.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Your personal interests, family affairs and urgent work all are under benefic Saturn and Sun rays now. Don't neglect your soul; prayer, good deeds bring inner contentment.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Read Scorpio today, advice helpful to you no matter your duties or other activities. While you are practical innately, you may indulge extremes at times. In theories Aquarius excels.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Some very old methods and practices are found still to be best. Some new ones also are highly advisable. Review for week ahead to ascertain where you can improve, accelerate.

YOU BORN TODAY: A combination of Aquarius-Pisces attributes, faults, born while the sun was leaving the former Sign, entering the latter. You can be most progressive, initiative-inspiring, yet sometimes lack the determination to carry efforts to successful conclusion. Many in this sector become renowned reformers, missionaries, investigators, useful adventurers; work for far-reaching helpful recommendations. Teach yourself consistency of ambition, develop your many talents, inventiveness, and depend upon prayer. Birthdate of: Geo. Washington, First Pres. of the U.S.A.; Jas. Russell Lowell, author, diplomat.

Home-School Assoc. Holds 'Founder's Day'

Marmora—The February meeting of Marmora Home and School Association held in the public school on Wednesday evening, in keeping with those of other associations to be held this month, observed Founder's Day. Despite many counter attractions, a splendid attendance of parents marked the occasion.

Mrs. R. Frost, president, presided. The treasurer's report as given by Mrs. M. Kouri showed finances to be in good condition. E. C. Prentice principal of the school thanked the association on behalf of the senior pupils for the crokinole board which the association had donated since the last meeting.

He then took attendance of parents and grandparents which showed the children of Mrs. E. Manchester's room to be best represented thereby.

Mrs. Yorke upon invitation from the president, spoke of a forthcoming meeting in the interests of Girl Guides. Mrs. R. D. Arnott, of Belleville, is to address a meeting in the town hall in the evening of February 26 which it is hoped will result in the formation of a local company.

It was decided to have a sale of cooking and articles at the March meeting to supplement the association's funds.

Program

The program opened with a waltz by Chopin being a pianoforte number played by Barbara Meiklejohn. Miss Margaret Roushorn, of the teaching staff, gave a reading on the founding of the Parent Teachers' Association from which the Home and School Association took its cue.

Assisting her to display letters making up the words "Founder's Day" were Mrs. J. Vanvolkenberg, Mrs. F. Bobyk, Mrs. J. Grant, Mrs. Ritchie Wells, Doris Merchoff and Allan Grant.

Linda Meiklejohn sang "Daddy's Little Girl," with her sister, Barbara Meiklejohn accompanying on the piano.

Principles of Education

The address of the evening was given by E. C. Prentice principal of the school and was followed with rapt attention because of its enlightening nature. Mr. Prentice dealt in turn with all the principles of good education and in conclusion testified to the value which the association had proven to be to the school's welfare.

Diversion was forthcoming as a primary scholar Allan Grant gave a selection on the bones to gramaphone accompaniment. Three sound films were operated by Mrs. A. F. Fraser to conclude the program.

A vote of thanks to all taking part was moved by Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Under sponsorship of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion, Major Rev. F. Goforth, padre of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is showing colored slides of places where the regiment fought in Italy, at the town Hall on March 25.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Keating, of Oshawa, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. E. D. O'Connor.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Vanvolkenberg attended the funeral of the former's sister, Mrs. Carleton Reid at Oshawa on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Hardy visited the former's brother, Leslie Hardy, at Kingston last week.

Mrs. William Burke has returned home from Belleville General Hospital where she recently underwent an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Burness Johnson of Havelock spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ellis and family.

Mrs. Ritchie Wells and daughter visited her father Mr. D. Sigsworth and sister, Mrs. Alice Dawe in Kingston for a few days last week.

RAWDON

Rawdon — Miss Bernice Ryan, Oshawa, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, fourth concession. Bernice left on Tuesday for a six-weeks' vacation at Mimai, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McAdam and children spent Sunday, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burkitt.

Mrs. John Heagle was hostess for Wellman's W.M.S. and W.A. Vocal solos were contributed by Mrs. Frederick Beckett and Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Maybee recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bend, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pauley, Cecil and Hazel visited Mr. and Mrs. Harris Dean and children, Fuller, on Sunday.

Miss Patricia Ryan, Belleville, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan and family.

Mrs. Frank Bailey and her sister, Mrs. Hector Whitton, spent a day last week with Miss Alice Parker, in Campbellford.

Messrs. Walter Warren, Leslie Thompson and Murney Johnson were among the members from Stirling Masonic lodge who attended a special meeting at Trenton when an official visit was paid to Trenton lodge by District Deputy Grand Master W. J. Anderson.

A large number of Rawdon folk attended the dance at Springbrook under the auspices of Stirling L.O.L., No. 110. Austin's orchestra furnished the music.

Mrs. Gordon Green was hostess for the Busy B's Club of Bethel. The worship service was taken by June Free, Joan Baron and Jean Reid. The program was presented by R. Bulten, June Free, Donalda Heath and Marlene Hadley. The hostess served refreshments and the girls enjoyed some games.

Rev. G. Telford, M.A., D.D., Oshawa, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, will be the guest speaker at St. Paul's United Church centennial service on May 24th.

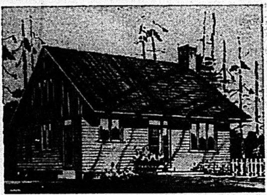
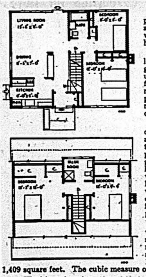
HOUSTON'S "HOME OF THE WEEK"





Here is a 1½-storey design planned for the growing family and incorporating many features which ensure enjoyment of a new home.

With two bedrooms, kitchen, living room and dining area on the ground floor, the two additional upstairs bedrooms can be left unfinished until finances and family requirements warrant their completion. The second floor washroom is an added feature for the convenience of the large family.

Architect Henry Fliess of Toronto has placed the living room at the rear of the house—a modern trend intended to provide greater privacy and enjoyment of the garden and lawn area behind the house. The dining area is conveniently located next to the kitchen and has a built-in buffet which separates the hall from the dining room without detracting from the openness of the first floor plan.

The exterior finish is horizontal wood siding with vertical wood siding on the gable ends of the roof. The dimensions of the house are 32 feet, six inches, by 26 feet, 10 inches, and the floor area is 1,409 square feet. The cubic measure of the house is 20,490 cubic feet.

Working drawings for this, known as Design 400, are available at minimum cost from The Houston Co.

Someone to Love

By Irene Lonnen Ernhart

"Let's go out to the shack again sometime, when the weather gets nice, Jenny," he said eagerly. "I'd like, it, wouldn't you? We could take a lunch and some beer and go swimming. It's been a long time since I've done anything like that. It would seem like old times.'

"Let's do," Jenny answered. She felt wildly and unreasonably happy now. Tod wanted to see her again.

They went out of the bar into the fresh air. It had stopped snowing now, but the wind was blowing sharp and cold. Tod put her into a cab, which was waiting. He paid the driver and then said, "I'll see you again soon, Jenny. We're going fishin' too, aren't we."

Jenny nodded her head, smiling at him, as the cab took off from the curb. She told the driver to take her to the shop instead of home because it wasn't five yet.

Nina took one look at her sparkling eyes as she came into the shop and exclaimed. "Oh, so everything went off all right! Maybe he wasn't so much in love with that high-hat Liz Conover after all, Jenny. You can't tell." The girls all crowded around, asking what he had said and all about the meeting. Jenny put 'em off with a laughing retort of some sort. It was only Nina whom she confided in, telling her what really happened.

Nina looked thoughtful. "I bet he phones you tomorrow."

Jenny didn't answer. Already she was wondering whether she'd buy those new checked slacks that had just come in or some plain brown ones she'd been admiring for some time. But it was silly to think of what she'd wear out to the shack, since it wou'n't warm enough to go out there for another month at least. A new dressy suit would be more important, that cunning little chartreuse wool number with the matching satin blouse. The color flattered her.

"Tod loved my hat," she told Nina, as she untied the tulle ribbons from under her chin.

"It does suit you."

"Do you honestly think he'll call me tomorrow, Nina?" She stared wistfully at her reflection in the long mirror in the back room of the shop. The cocktail was beginning to wear off now, and with it some of the elation she had felt when she left Tod.

"Sure," Nina replied.

But her confidence was misplaced, for Tod didn't phone the next day. Weeks went by and she didn't hear from him. Every time the phone rang in the shop, or at home in the shabby little house on Catalpa Street, Jenny's heart plunged. But no call came from Tod.

March slid into April. The new suit hung in the closet unworn, and regretted now as a pure extravagance. Nina suggested she bring it back to the shop. "Max'll let you bring it back. He's a good egg about things like that."

Max owned the shop. Even he noticed Jenny's nervous preoccupation and scolded her about it. "What's the matter, Jenny," he asked. "You go around the shop looking like the crack of doom! I like my models to look happy. It's better business."

"I'm sorry Max, if I've been looking gloomy."

"It's some man, I suppose."

Max's shrewd black eyes didn't miss a thing. He saw the faint flush that brushed Jenny's cheeks and continued, "Sometimes I think it would be better to have only married girls in the shop, except even married ones have their ups and downs these days. They're always getting babies or divorces or worrying about finding a place to live."

Jenny changed the subject by asking if she could bring the suit back and exchange it for something else. He agreed amiably.

That night she took her courage in both hands and phoned the Duncan apartment. Tod's sister Harriet answered.

"No Jenny, we ain't got the faintest idea where Tod went. Joe said he thought he saw him get in a taxi yesterday down near Madison Street, but he couldn't be sure. Ma raised cain that day when he come home and said he wasn't going to marry Liz Conover. Course you couldn't blame Ma, now could you? She's had a hard life, and we was all lookin' forward to better times with Tod married into the Conover family." She cleared her throat. "It's just like Ma said——"

Jenny broke in. "If you should see Tod, will you tell him I called?"

"Oh. ell, yes, I guess I could," Harriet said, sounding miffed at having her recital cut short.

After she had hung up, Jenny sat there a moment, her hand knotting the phone cord. Madison Sreet. The very worst part of street, peopled with derelicts and bums, every other doorway a poolroom or tavern, dim stairways leading up to 50-cent flophouses. It couldn't have been Tod that Joe saw. Or could it? Madison Street would be a good place to hide if you were hurt and discouraged and didn't want to run into anyone you knew. She lay awake in the darkness a long time that night, thinking about him and wondering. And through the long week that followed she tormented herself with a thousand speculations about him, visioning him sick and miserable and lonely in some hideous room on that awful street, without money or without anyone to talk to.

And then one day she saw Tod again, quite unexpectedly.

Eden's Firm Stand On Disputed Isle Cheered In House

Says Sovereignty Violated By Argentine, Chilean Acts

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today told a cheering House of Commons that Argentine and Chilean "encroachments" on Deception Island near sovereignty.

In blunt language, Eden said Argentine and Chilean naval parties which recently pitched camp near a British base on the tiny British - occupied island "represented not only an infringement of our sovereignty but a nuisance and an obstruction."

Britain last week dismantled the Argentine and Chilean huts on Deception Island and deported two Argentines.

Eden said the British government wishes to dispel any doubt about its attitude "to encroachment of this type on British territory." Loud cheers greeted this remark.

Eden said Britain's protest was answered by Argentine and Chilean claims to the territory. He added that Britain renewed its proposal to submit the conflicting claims to the International Court of Justice but added "I am sorry to say both countries have seen fit once more to reject this offer."

No China Shop For This Bull

ZAMORA, Spain (Reuters)—When the office boy answered the door bell at the door of an insurance office here a bull rushed in. It chased the staff around the premless until farmers managed to lasso it and drag it out. The bull, which had escaped from a herd being taken to the railway station, had run up the office steps and rung the bell with its horns.

Fugitive Taken At Gunpoint

WHITBY (CP)—A fugitive from the Ontario reformatory at Guelph was captured at gunpoint here Saturday night.

Kenneth R. Wilson, 19, of Sharbot Lake was found beneath a pile of coats in an Ontario department of highways shed.

Provincial and city police are searching for Leo Bouchard, 21, of Kingston who broke out of the reformatory with Wilson last Wednesday. He is believed to be armed.

Wilson has been charged with breaking and entering and theft of an auto. He will appear in court here Tuesday.

Police have been investigating the theft of five cars and break-ins of five cottages at Burlington Beach since the pair fled the reformatory. Two revolvers were reported stolen from one of the cottages.

Wilson was serving a one-year definite and six months indefinite sentence when he escaped.

Resistance Leader Lured from Camp, Shot by Mau Mau

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Ten Mau Mau terrorists disguised as African policemen lured a native resistance leader out of his camp in the South Nyeri reserve Sunday and shot him dead.

The murder was one of half a dozen incidents to occur in this British colony as Sir John Harding, chief of the imperial general staff, made an inspection tour of defences.

Believed led by the notorious terrorist Dedan Kamathi, the 10 anti-white Mau Mau agents strolled in to the resistance camp, posing as police, and asked to see the leader, Gutugata Gachuri.

Gachuri was tricked into accompanying the terrorists out of the camp. As he talked to one of them, another pressed a rifle to the leader's body and fired.

58 Killed

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Two suburban trolleys collided on Mexico city's outskirts Saturday night, killing 58 persons and injuring 82 others.

Officials blamed brake failure and overloading for the head-on crash which occurred between the towns of La Venta and Tacubaya on a steep grade.

BENNY IN HOSPITAL

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Benny, stricken by flu, was taken to hospital early Sunday suffering severe stomach cramps. He will remain in hospital a few days.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP)—Synopsis — Milder air that began moving into Ontario Sunday night brought with it a band of cloud that produced a little light snow in parts of southern and central Ontario. This cloud is expected to clear later today and mainly sunny skies with mild temperatures are forecast for the southern half of the province Tuesday.

Colder air will once again push across Northern Ontario tonight and Tuesday. Only a few light snowflurries are expected to occur with the arrival of the colder air in these northern regions.

Grant Amnesty To 10,400 U.K. War Deserters

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill announced today a general amnesty for 10,400 wartime deserters from the British armed forces as a special Coronation year measure.

He told the House of Commons this is a "special measure not to be regarded as a precedent for the future."

The amnesty calls off the long manhunt for deserters who fled the forces between Sept. 3, 1939 and Aug. 15, 1945 and who refused to give themselves up.

It includes men who deserted from both the forces at home and abroad. Many are still abroad and others are in hiding in Britain under assumed names.

Brothers Found In Frozen Pool

MONTREAL (CP)—The frozen bodies of two young brothers, missing from their homes for 16 hours, were found early today in an ice-covered excavation dug for a new children's hospital.

The youngsters, Charles Rubin, 9, and his five-year-old brother Stephen, had been the objects of a day-long search by police, boy scouts and neighbors.

Their grief-stricken father, cabaret owner Harold Rubin, stood by as firemen waded through the pool with probing hooks and found first one body and then another. Their mother, vacationing in New York with a sister, caught an overnight plane for Montreal, aware only that the boys were missing.

MIGHT LEAVE COMMONWEALTH MALAN HINTS

South African Premier Resents Policy Attacks

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — Prime Minister Daniel Malan hinted today that South Africa might decide to leave the British Commonwealth if other members continue to criticize South African policies.

Malan said South Africa does not favor isolation and is playing her part in the struggle against communism. But he emphasized that support for remaining in the Commonwealth would depend not on South Africa alone but also on the reaction of the Commonwealth itself.

If other nations of the Commonwealth showed "enmity" to South Africa it would be difficult for the union to maintain its assocation.

Malan spoke before the Senate approved principle of a bill providing for Queen Elizabeth to be known here officially as "Queen of South Africa and her other realms and territories, head of the Commonwealth."

Selection of individual titles to fit each of the Commonwealth countries was decided upon on the Commonwealth conference in London.

Malan's remarks about the attitude of other nations was apparently prompted by criticism of the racial-segregation policy in effect under his government.

Girl, 5, Saves Sister in Fire

RICHMOND HILL (CP) — Joan Clement, 5, carried her 10-month old sister, Diane, through smoke to safety Saturday when fire broke out in their home here while her mother was visiting neighbors.

Joan was in the kitchen when the fire broke out. She rushed into the bedroom, picked up her sleeping baby sister and dashed to safety. Her two brothers, Douglas, 6, and Kenneth, 3, who had been playing in the living room, also escaped.

The house was gutted. Mrs. Winifred Clement, 32, had to be restrained by neighbors from entering the burning one-storey frame home to get a purse containing $70. Her husband, Angus, 40, was away at work.

Ceylonese Says Red China Pact Prevents Famine

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—Communist China saved Ceylon from famine, Food Minister Sir Oliver Goonetilleke claimed in an address Sunday.

Ceylon signed a five-year rubber-for-rice trade pact with China last Dec. 18.

Goonetilleke said Ceylon turned to China for food after the United States gave an "unsatisfactory" reply to an appeal for rice.

The island's food problem became grave in August and September. The government cut the rice ration and sent missions searching for new supplies in the U. S., China, Burma and India.

Former Welsh Miners Producing Fur Coats for Canadian Women

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Former Welsh miners are producing fur coats for Canada.

In a factory in South Wales, men too handicapped to work longer in the pits are turning out mouton coats that find a ready market across the Atlantic.

"Canada is one of the fur-producing countries of the world," Denis White, president of the Retail Furriers' Guild of Canada, told a press show in London. "But few Canadians realize that 75 per cent of the furs worn are actually imported."

Canada supplies the luxury furs, White said, but the ones that most ordinary women wear come from abroad.

The South Wales factory, established three years ago by a well-known British fur company (Swears and Wells) was opened under a development plan designed to give employment to incapacitated miners who knew no job beyond the pits. Few had ever handled furs. Now, trained by European craftsmen, they turn out hundreds of mouton coats, called beaver lamb in Britain.

They are sold through outlets in Calgary, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton, and company chairman Cyril Ross claims: "It may seem odd that an incapacitated miner could produce a better fur than Canadians—but he has done it."

Ross says further outlets will be established in Winnipeg, Montreal and Vancouver, leading to what the company hopes will be an annual trade of $8,000,000. The British treasury has authorized the necessary dollars for expansion.

Austrian Electors Take Belt At Communists, Fascists In Parliamentary Elections Held

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA (AP)—Another coalition government of Conservatives and moderate leftists appeared in prospect for occupied Austria today following parliamentary elections in which the Socialists scored marked gains.

The Communists, neo - Nazis, Catholic Conservatives and all other factions in the country astride the Iron Curtain lost ground in the voting, held in Austraia's American, British, French and Russian occupation zones.

The Socialists polled the largest number of votes and picked up six new seats for a total of 73 in the 165-seat lower chamber, but the country's complicated voting laws made Chancellor Leopold Figl's Conservative Catholic Peoples party again Parliament's largest with 74 members.

Because of this, President Theodor Koerner, himself a socialist, was expected to ask Figl to form a new cabinet.

Will Invite Socialists

The Catholic leader, who has headed the country's governing Socialist - Conservative coalition since it was formed in December, 1945, appeared certain to ask the Socialists again to participate in the cabinet.

Socialist Interior Minister Oskar Helmer told reporters his faction would "continue to co-operate with the peoples party to spare the country further suffering."

The voters Sunday elected 74 Peoples party members, 73 Socialists, four Communists and 14 members of the extreme-right, neo - Nazi League of Independents. This represented a gain of six seats for the Socialists, losses of one each for the Conservatives, Communists and independents, and the removal of three splinter party representatives generally allied with the Conservatives.

Increase in Vote

The total valid vote was 4,319,274 — 125,541 more than in the last parliamentary voting in 1949 and about two-thirds of the country's population.

Many of the new voters were youths believed to have cast their first ballots for the Socialists because of the country's rising unemployment.

Observers considered it significant that the lost Communist seat was in one of the busy industrial areas of Vienna occupied by Russian troops.

Helmer also had a dig for the Russians. He said: "We can assure those who use force against our country that we will answer with the same weapon."

The Reds gained votes, however, in several towns in the Russian zone. The Communists also picked up 800 votes in the American-zone industrial city of Linz and 600 in Graz, in the British zone.

Political observers said the losses suffered by the Nazi - type independents were particularly significant when it was considered that the party polled 662,501 votes in the 1951 presidential elections.

Yugoslavia's Leaders Declare Russia Dangerous Aggressor; Says Vatican Endangers Peace

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslavia's top leaders again have denounced Russia as a dangerous aggressor and have charged that the Vatican, also, is endangering peace.

Opening the fourth congress of the war-born peoples front organization Sunday, President Tito declared that both the Vatican and Soviet Union are trying to split the world into two "hostile camps." The actions of the Pope, said Tito are "dangerous for the peace and freedom of the world."

Tito welcomed the 2,200 delegates of the former resistance organization with a pledge that this Communist, anti-Soviet nation would struggle for peace.

He asserted that present Kremlin policies have nothing to do with communism as laid down by its founders but are rather aimed toward Russian expansion and imperialism.

Vice-President Edvard Kardelj, Yugoslav foreign policy expert, extended Tito's anti-Soviet attacks in a keynote address prepared for delivery today before the peoples front.

Must Oppose Expansion

He warned that the United States must oppose Russian expansion "at all points of the globe" or risk collapse as a world power.

Moscow policies were bitterly attacked by Kardelj as "extremely aggressive, intimidating, extorting and the greatest menace to world peace."

Kardelj said, however, that he felt "the chances of preserving world peace are better today than they were two or three years ago." He cautiously expressed his Balkan country's willingness to enter into defensive alliances against Russian aggression, expressing belief that the projected mutual defence pact with Greece and Turkey would bind peace-loving nations in the struggle against aggression and would safeguard peace.

Kardelj said the Russians would like to involve the United States in a war with China to free Russian forces for use elsewhere. It would be a "fatal mistake," he said, if statesmen were duped by this scheme.

R.C.A.F. Plane Downed In Northern Michigan

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP)—A twin-engine Royal Canadian Air Force C-47 made a forced landing here Sunday after one engine konked out over Lake Superior on the plane's flight from Toronto to Winnipeg. The plane was expected to resume its flight today after repairs.

The C-47, piloted by Sileh Shaw, carried eight personnel, an RCMP officer and six civilians.

Kindly Family Just Too Much

WASHINGTON (AP)—Clarence Rowe learned today that your family can load you down with just too much kindness.

When he took his wife and children to the auto show here yesterday each one wrote daddy's name on a stub good for a chance on a car. That gave Rowe five chances to win.

The Rowe family was happy when show officials called daddy to tell him he'd won the car. But when Rowe asked, "which one of my five stub numbers is it?"

Too bad, explained show manager Maurice Mike Murphy:

"Each person is limited to one stub."

Carrier Pilot Emptied Bombs Because of Fire

TOKYO (Reuters)—A U.S. naval pilot—desperate because flames had broken out in his cockpit—dropped the bombs that killed three U.S. infantry behind the lines in Korea Feb. 2, the Allied command disclosed Sunday.

The carrier pilot was over a command post of the U.S. 7th infantry division when the fire broke out. Hoping to get back to his ship he let the bombs go to lighten his burning plane. The bombs killed three Americans and wounded five others.

Later the pilot snuffed out the fire and the plane limped back for a safe landing on the carrier.

Russians Donate Big Flood Gift

LONDON (AP)—Russian ambassador Andrei Gromyko today handed a Soviet gift of £90,000 to Prime Minister Churchill to help British flood victims.

It was the third such Russian gesture to non-communist nations made public within the last week. Russia has announced cash gifts raised by Soviet organizations also are being given to flood-stricken Holland and to Iran which recently was hit by an earthquake.

Informed diplomats here pictured the actions as expressions of a new "friendship offensive" which they believe the Soviets are aiming at certain countries within the Western sphere of influence.

LEADERS MARK 35TH BIRTHDAY OF RED ARMY

Call for Preparedness Against All Enemies

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian military leaders marked the 35th anniversary of the Red Army today with new calls for preparedness and vigilance against "all enemy agents," and a new attack on the United States.

Among the writers was Marshal Leonid A. Govorov, Second World War liberator of Leningrad, who, as evidence of "hidden enemies" trying to harm the Soviet Union, cited the nine doctors recently accused of plotting against Soviet political and military leaders.

The original announcement of the charges named Marshal Govorov as one of those the medical group allegedly tried to kill through false diagnoses and wrong treatments.

Govorov's statement was published in the special Armed Forces Day edition of Red Star, the army newspaper.

Writes Articles

The chief attack on the U. S. came from Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, whose appointment as chief of staff of the Soviet armed forces was disclosed Saturday. He wrote an article in Pravda, Communist party newspaper.

The Soviet war minister, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, in an order of the day, called for the army to "tighten its battle readiness" and demanded "intensified vigilance" from all personnel.

From the forces afloat, Navy Minister Admiral Nikolai Kuznetsov in a companion order also insisted on increased vigilance and mastery of modern techniques and armaments.

Asserting that the Soviet Army and Navy represent a "dread and constantly strengthening force," Sokolovsky wrote in Pravda that "all kinds of provocations" are being organized in the Soviet Union by the United States. He demanded that the subversives be driven out "into clear water."

Pauper's Grave Produces Body Of Missing Man

NEW YORK (AP) — A well-to-do Long Island businessman, missing six weeks, has been found—in a pauper's grave in a New York city potter's field.

Karl Virtanen, 59, of Mineola, N. Y., who owned a floor refinishing business, a resort hotel at Roscoe, N. Y., and several Long Island apartment houses, was reported missing last Jan. 12.

Sunday New York city police reported that Virtanen had been found unconscious in a Manhattan apartment house elevator on Jan. 8 and died of natural causes an hour later in a hospital.

Police said there was no indication of what he was doing in the apartment house, and that no relatives could be located.

Officers said arrangements have now been made for removal of the body to another cemetery.

Russia's 'Great, Peaceful Work' Red Dean's Cracked Record Theme

TORONTO (CP)—[illegible] Hewlett Johnson, the Red de[illegible] Canterbury, arrived here Saturday to tell Canadians, he said, "something about the great and peaceful work being done in the Soviet Union."

Reporters interviewing him in his hotel room asked how Russia's latest anti-Semitic moves could be considered peaceful work.

"I don't believe that Russia is anti-Semitic," said the 78-year-old British churchman. "Russia may have certain opposition toward particular groups, but she is not anti-Semitic."

"Have you any proof of that?"

"Certainly I have proof. What about Kagerovitch, a member of the politburo. He is a Jew and nobody bothers him."

"How about these latest arrests on the continent? All of the men were Jews."

"Really," said the dean, drawing his hand tiredly across his eyes, "I am not in Canada to discuss this thing. All I want to do is tell your people about the great and peaceful work being done in the Soviet Union."

"What do you think is the main threat to world peace today?"

"Formosa," said the dean. "No doubt about that. Everyone is worried about Formosa. The British people are very, very concerned about it."

"Are you a Communist?"

"I am a Communist in the sense that I believe everyone must work together. Everyone is equal."

"Everyone must live on a common level?"

"Of course."

"How about your three country houses and your flat in London?"

"I inherited that money," said the dean sternly.

"But what I want to talk about is the great and peaceful work being done in the Soviet Union. I don't seem to be getting on the subject at all. . .

1 Dead, 1 Missing In Crash of Four U.S. Jets in North

Planes Part of Flight From U.S. to Europe

ST. JOHN's Nfld. (CP) — Three United States jet aircraft crashed near Goose Air base in Labrador Saturday and another is missing after one of the worst multiple jet crashes in history.

The USAF says one pilot was killed and the fate of the fourth pilot, missing over the Atlantic about 100 miles south of Greenland, unknown. The others escaped serious injury.

The planes were part of a flight of 16 F-84s en route to Europe and were flying from Goose Bay to Narsarssuak in Greenland. The three that crashed were returning to Goose Bay after their flight leader reported his auxiliary fuel tanks weren't feeding properly.

They were making a ground radar approach in formation when the leader's craft ran out of fuel at 10:30 a. m. NST (9 o'clock EST). All three planes struck the ground about 3½ miles east of the giant military airfield.

A rescue helicopter located the two surviving pilots within 20 minutes. Evacuated one to Goose Bay immediately while the helicopter crew chief, airman Thomas Millett of Palmyra, Maine, stayed with the other.

They were picked up Sunday, as unfavorable weather prevented the helicopter from making a second flight. During the night Millett fashioned a shelter from the wreckage, inflated its rubber raft for the remaining pilot and administered first aid in below freezing temperatures.

The third plane and its lifeless pilot were found Sunday morning.

At 1:55 p. m. NST Saturday the pilot of the fourth craft radioed that his engine quit and he planned to bail out when the plane descended to 5,000 feet. Actual bail out time has not been confirmed.

Two amphibian aircraft and two D17s searched the area off southern Greenland for two hours without success before bad weather forced abandonment of the hunt. Unfavorable conditions continued Sunday, and operations were not expected to resume until late today.

The U. S. Air Force withheld names of the casualties until next of kin have been notified.

Not War III Yet Says Gen. Bradley

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP) — Gen. Omar Bradley calls tricky, false and dangerous the slogan "let's face the facts—we're already in World War III."

The chairman of the United States joint chiefs of staff said: "I hope we can develop a better slogan before we become victims of this false one."

"If we were in World War III right now," he said in a speech Sunday at Rollins College, "neither you nor I would have time to sit here and talk about it. As a matter of fact, we would not be here to talk."

He continued we should "get a straighter line on what we are actually in—a tough period of tension not of our own choosing."

Feuding Families 'Shoot It Out' Four Are Killed

RAYMONDVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Cavazos and Trevino brothers shot it out in a tavern Sunday, killing four members of the two feuding families.

Police weren't able to find the exact case for the fight that killed George Cavazos, 23, Ubanio Cavazos, 41, Lorenzo Trevino, 31, and Manuel Trevino, 30.

Narcisso Cavazos, charged with murder in the slaying of the two Trevino men, was freed on bond.

Officers said Lorenzo Trevino shot the two Cavazos men with a .22 calibre pistol before he was shot down. They said Narcisso Cavazos entered the battle with a .32 calibre pistol.

Floods Unlikely Lake Levels Down

DETROIT (AP) — The U. S. lake survey today reported January fluctuations in Great Lakes levels at normalcy, minimizing possibilities of summer floods.

The district engineer's office said that Lakes St. Clair and Erie receded as opposed to their January tendencies to rise.

Superior, Michigan and Huron were reported to have receded at average rates. Ontario remained constant.

All the Great Lakes were reported at lower levels than their record highs of past history. Superior and St. Clair set their all-time January highs last year.

Car Is Damaged Beyond Repair After Hitting Tree

A cocker spaniel owned by James Hayman, London, Ont., came out best late Sunday night when his master's car went out of control on the Trent Road and ended up wedged between a large tree and a fence after smashing a hydro pole.

The dog was scared but uninjured; Mr. Hayman suffered minor gashes which took six stitches to close and the car was a complete wreck.

Hayman, whose brother is a teacher at Albert College, was eastbound when his car went out of control near the Ontario School for the Deaf. PICTON

Roofs of Barns Blown Off In Severe Wind Storm

PICTON.—This week sees considerable work necessary to repair damage which resulted from Saturday's severe wind storm. During the gale, the roof of a barn owned by Wells Lumsden, Bethel, was blown off and one end of the barn smashed in. Animals escaped injury. A barn at Yerexville, owned by Arthur Stone, had the roof blown off, while a garage owned by Arthur McCornock, Bongards, was blown down.

The gale disrupted telephone service on many lines and hydro power was off for a time in several districts. Power in part of Picton was off for an hour when a television aerial toppled on a live wire. Many of these aerials were blown down.

Chimneys suffered and on Main Street glass was blown out of several windows of apartments above stores.

During the high wind, a large brick house, owned by Bert Vader was gutted by fire. Located between Wellington and Bloomfield, the fire was first discovered in the roof and it spread very quickly. Furniture from the downstairs portion was carried out. Bloomfield fire truck managed to save other buildings in the area.

The gale took most of the ice out of the Bay of Quinte, huge cakes jamming the bay and water being hurled high in the air. Quite a number of trees along the banks of the bay were carried along. Glenora ferry service was interrupted for a time but is able to resume. The ferry will continue to operate, weather permitting until March 2, when it will go to drydock for two weeks for the annual overhauling. A new and larger ferry at this crossing is planned by the Ontario Department of Highways.

The storm broke up the ice at many places from which those who store ice get their supply, but most of those concerned had managed to get this work done the previous week.

FIRE DESTROYS BOATS

OTTAWA (CP)—A two-alarm fire Saturday night swept through a boat storage house on the Ottawa river destroying about 100 boats valued at more than $100,000. No one was injured.

Roof of Storage Warehouse Blown Off by High Wind

Caught by Saturday morning's heavy wind the roof of a large storage building owned by Louis V. Harvey, manager of Graham's Food Products, east of the city on Herchimer Ave., was torn off and the building completely wrecked.

The building, a concrete block structure covered with a gable metal roof, was built only a few years ago as a seaplane hangar. The building was later purchased by Mr. Harvey and was being used for storage purposes.

Situated on the shore of the bay the building caught the full force of the wind. The roof was lifted competely off the structure and was smashed as it struck the ground 50 feet away.

"We didn't even hear the roof go off," stated Mrs. Harvey. We were in the nearby canning factory and didn't know anything about it until my husband happened to look out the window and see the hangar roof was off."

Mr. Harvey placed his loss at about $6,000, unfortunately not covered by wind insurance. A number of small boats stored in the building were damaged.

LEAVES SEWER BY WINCH

HAMILTON (CP)—An emergency winch was used to lift controller Sam Lawrence, 73, out of a sewer following an inspection tour Saturday. Mr. Lawrence, who has a slight heart condition, descended 60 feet to the shaft with the others using a system of ladders. On the return trip the winch was used. Officials said the precaution was taken to assure that the controller could be easily raised from the shaft.

Hospital Board Making Plans For New Wing

Picton—The Board of Prince Edward County Hospital was directed at the annual meeting, Tuesday night, to make plans and set up a committee for the purpose of securing necessary funds for the erection of a new hospital at Picton to serve Prince Edward County. It is evisioned that the new hospital will be a fifty-bed one, compared to the present one of 28 beds which yesterday had 62 hospitalized patients.

Acting on the suggestion of Branch 78 Canadian Legion, the new hospital would be called Prince Edward Memorial Hospital, as a tribute to those who gave their lives in the two wars. The Legion offered to donate the cost of a room, $10,000. Other groups plan similar aid.

The sum of $400,000 locally is required before the proposed hospital is built, the balance required being available from other sources.

The newly-elected board was named as a planning committee, its members being E. J. Williams, president; Mayor H. J. McFarland, vice-president; R. B. Small, secretary - treasurer; Howard Leavens, Mrs. F. J. Webster, Mrs. S. W. D. Hart, directors; Reeve H. S. Colliver, County Council representative; Dr. J. H. Walmsley, medical staff representative.

The present hospital was built 32 years ago. Dr. J. H. Walmsley pointed out that conditions have changed since it was built, and hospital insurance plans have increased its use. In addition, presence of several hundred families of the RCSA (AA) here, without hospital facilities of their own, has added to the crowded conditions of the county institution.

Good news was contained in the report of secretary-treasurer Small in that the hospital completed the year with a balance of $3,233. The County grant was $12,000.

Miss Aileen Arnold, superintendent, reported that the rated bed capacity of the hospital is 28 while the actual number of beds set up is 42 plus 15 bassinettes for babies. There are often 50 patients.

There were 1,245 patients admitted during the year and forty babies were born there. There were 412 operations performed there and 2,568 X-rays taken.

Miss Arnold pointed out that operating a hospital is more expensive because of a 24-hour a day service being given. Three shifts are required and all services are available during that time. Beds and linen last three times as long as in the average home. At the end of the year there were 12 graduate nurses, 10 graduate nursing assistants, one X-ray and laboratory assistant, three administrative and office staff, four housekeeping, four dietary, 3 laundry and two maintenance staff. The medical staff includes 12 doctors.

In a meeting lasting four hours, a score of speakers gave opinions, all agreeing that a new and larger hospital is urgently needed.

Thirteen Left Homeless After Fire Threatens Brighton Home

By ELMER BONTER
Phone 3124

TRENTON (Special) — Flames that threatened to destroy a frame house more than 100-years-old during the windstorm at Brighton on Saturday left 13 people homeless with most of their belongings ruined by water and freezing.

The fire caught near the peak of the roof around the aged brick chimney. It was spreading fast when noticed by one of the Post children playing around outside. Trenton firemen were ready to make the 11-mile dash to the aid of the Brighton brigade in case the flames got the best of them.

Mr. and Mrs. John Post and their eight children lived in one half of the ancient wooden building. Her husband was in another part of town delivering coal when a friend rushed up to tell him his house was burning. He grabbed a taxi and sped to the house fearing for the safety of his wife and little ones. "When I got there I saw the roof was ablaze and the firemen chopping holes in the bedroom ceiling with axes. Somebody trampled all over our beds with their muddy feet and ruined the only mattresses we have."

Part of the Post family was taken in by Mr. Post's people living west of Brighton while a sister of Mrs. Post residing downtown is caring for the two oldest daughters, Eva, 17, and June 20.

The Fred Stewart family in the other half of the house fared even worse. They were forced out into the street with nobody to turn to. Mr. Stewart hunted most of Saturday and part of Sunday before he found another place to move into. Their only son, Donald, 12, sat up most of the night with his mother waiting for the father to return with good news. Boots, a cute water spaniel pup that went through the fire, snuggled close to Donald whimpering most of the time.

Neither of the unfortunate families carried fire insurance.

Iceboat Enthusiast Injured

Firemen Gerald Lewis and Elmer Stacey rescued an injured iceboat enthusiast on Saturday, who thanked them and walked away without revealing his name.

Lewis and Stacey were out on the river retrieving their fish shanty which had been carried away by the high wind. They were wearing creepers and finding it hard to stand up on their feet on the glare ice against the gale.

Suddenly they noticed an iceboat in trouble out on the bay. It turned over and the driver was thrown through the air, while the shattered boat continued across the ice and piled up on the shore back of the Trenton Machine Tool premises.

Figuring the rider would be hurt the two firemen, despite the problem of bucking the blow, started straight for the huddled form lying out on the ice near the second buoy. The rescuers reached the injured driver after considerable difficulty and found him suffering from a gash behind his ear and a cut knee. He wobbled on his feet when he stood up and needed assistance to reach the shore. The cut on his head was bleeding profusely by that time.

The battered iceboat fan told Lewis that he couldn't have made the trip across the windswept bay had he not had help. He was heading for a doctor's office when he left the ice fishermen at the shoreline.

The crumpled remains of the iceboat indicated that the speeder was travelling at high speed when misfortune struck.

Many TV Aerials Down

More than a dozen television aerials went down during the high winds here on Saturday. The gale was blamed for three chimney fires that needed the attention of the firemen but caused no damage.

Firemen fought a grass fire successfully yesterday on the commons behind the Quaker Oat plant. One of the regulars could not remember having been called out to a grass fire before in February.

Once Beggar Lad in Leningrad Now Teaching South Koreans How to Live Normal Lives

By JOHN STACKHOUSE

TAEJON, Korea (Reuters) — A man who was once a beggar lad on the streets of Leningrad following the Russian revolution now is teaching the ragged, dirty beggar boys of Taejon how to live normal lives.

The beggar boys' benefactor is Nicholas Wyrouboff, now a French citizen and a United Nations welfare worker, who was able to win the boys' confidence because—from his own experience — he understood their problems.

After his mother died in prison in Russia and his father had fled to France, young Nicholas took to the streets and became one of the "bezprisorni"—the "children without care" — who set Communist Russia one of its biggest social problems after the revolution.

When he came to Korea in 1951, Wyrouboff saw the parentless boys haunting the markets, forced to beg and steal to keep alive.

Wyrouboff discovered that the beggar boys in Taejon were organized into gangs led by older boys, who gave the youngsters some food and shelter, in return for which they begged and stole for them.

Boys Traded

Leaders in the various districts often exchanged boys for money or favors.

"I realized that the only way to help them would be to get the gangs to come into their own orphanages," Wyrouboff says. "I met some of the leaders and they agreed to this so long as I left them in charge."

In February, 1952, the children moved into a battered building in the bombed part of Taejon and started to repair it themselves. But their leaders continued to terrorize them and would not allow the boys to go to school or obey the UN workers. What's more the leaders were selling orphanage rice on the black market.

Wyrouboff used this to break the leaders' hold. He put one of his Korean assistants into the orphanage as manager, and told the leaders that they would be assistants under supervision.

The leaders called a strike and marched the children out. But within two days the boys were back again, with only two of their leaders.

These two agreed to the new system.

Needed More Room

By this time, the orphanage had grown so much it needed another house. The children rebuilt this one, too, and it became the home of the older boys.

Today, there are about 180 children in the two houses. Some are going to school where teachers say that they are highly intelligent and eager to learn. Others are working and give half their earnings to the only home they know.

Eldorado Resident Taking Trip Around World in Ketch

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven young people, six of them Canadians, sailed through wild Mediterranean seas in the first portion of their round-the-world cruise aboard a 72-foot ketch.

The voyage to the historic island of Capri was a side trip for the crew of the "Memory." They bought the ketch in England and planned to cross the Atlantic from Gibraltar as the first major leg of their two-year world cruise.

They were successful on the Capri trip, although one of the storms nearly piled them up on the rocky shore of Sardinia.

Diary of Storm

The story of their travels is being written by Bruce Kirby, 23-year-old reporter on leave of absence from the Ottawa Journal, in periodic instalments.

The others are Cameron Rougvie 30, and his wife, Marianne, Don Burwash, 20, and Eddy Hughes, 22, all of Ottawa; Kelly Brownson, 29, of Eldorado, Ont., and Ralph Menhenick, 28, of Hamble, England, who joined the ship before it left England.

The first storm struck Dec. 17, as the Memory sailed from Algiers toward Capri.

Chased by the storm, the boat reached the treacherous west coast of Sarnia about dusk. Caught between the storm and the coast, the crew headed south in hopes f covering the 15 miles to the southwest tip of the island.

Just before dark the base of the mizzen mast worked loose and sail had to be taken in to save the mast. That left them with only the little staysail to control headway.

"We were in a tight spot—the kind of a spot where a lot of searoom to leeward is a comforting thought," wrote Kirby. "We had only a few miles of sea room."

The auxiliary diesel engine was started as the Memory ran broadside to the gale. Wind and waves repeatedly rolled the ketch up, until water was knee deep on deck.

"Waves broke over her deck and slammed her topsides and starboard bottom with sickening thuds. She was knocked down and battered. . . Every third or fourth wave broke over her. The others just blanketed her with spray," wrote Kirby.

Stout Vessel

"She kept coming back for more, and what was more surprising, she kept good headway through the whole thing."

The storm gradually abated. The light at the southwest tip of Sardinia was sighted and for the rest of the night the ketch circled close to the light until daylight arrived to show the way to the south-coast port of Cagliari.

After refitting, the crew set out Dec. 21, hoping to reach Capri 200 miles away by Christmas Day. That night they ran into another storm. This time with lots of open water they hove to and waited out the storm for 16 hours, leaving the ketch to keep her nose into a 45-knot gale as it drifted slowly downwind.

"It was a comfortable relaxed feeling riding out the gale in this manner," Kirby wrote. "But at nightnight it became Dec. 23rd and we wanted to be in Capri for Christmas."

After the storm abated, it took all one day and the next night to reach Capri. The morning sun on the day before Christmas "showed us Capri rising steeply out of the sea about five miles ahead."

"We sailed along the southern, or lee side of the isle of Capri, about 100 yards off shore. With the binoculars we scanned the high cliffs, the caves and grottos, the pinnacles of rock along the shore, the white villas dotted here and there. . . .

"At 11 o'clock we were moored in the small, well-protected harbor . . . It was Dec. 24. We had made it."

POLICE BLOTTER

City police had a quiet weekend with little more than routine matter coming to the attention of the police department.

What appeared to be an attempt to enter a garage where considerable equipment was stored was reported by D. Downey, Bleecker Ave. Nothing was reported missing.

Charles Carter, caretaker at Queen Mary Schol, said he had surprised a young boy in the school. The lad about 13 years of age made good his escape when the caretaker was unable to hold him.

Provincial Police received the report of the theft of a desk pen and pencil set from the office of the Tatham Company at Rossmore.

Mrs. Arthur Horton, Octavia Street, suffered a bruised cheek, when her husband's car was in collision with another vehicle at Moira and North Front Streets. Mr. Horton had stopped before entering North Front Street, when a vehicle driven by John H. Gee, Baldwin Street, emerged from off the Upper Bridge. The collision occurred when the Gee car attempted to make the turn onto Moira.

Coronation Medal Should be On Display Shortly

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The Coronation Medal—the Queen's personal Coronation memento—should be on view shortly.

A special committee has been appointed to attend to details, including selection of a suitable likeness of Her Majesty. The Duke of Edinburgh has conferred with the committee.

The medal goes to a chosen few, comparatively speaking, in the United Kingdom and the Commonwealth.

Canada was allocated 10,000 of 90,000 medals struck at the Coronation in 1937 of King George VI. Australia received 6,673. Two per cent went to the military forces and 1,200 Commonwealth troops, who were in London for the Coronation, received the medal at a mass parade attended by the King, Queen, and Dukes of Kent and Gloucester.

Unknown Quantity

How many will be struck and allocated this time hasn't been made known. As for the recipients, a spokesman said, the basis on which they are picked in the United Kingdom has never been published.

"What the Commonwealth countries do with their allocations is their own business," said Sir Robert Knox, secretary of the Coronation commission both in 1937 and 1953.

"As for the basis of the award, it's a matter for the sovereign to decide since it's her medal—at least in this country."

One large U.K. group honored in 1937 was 2,000 metropolitan police, largely long-service personnel.

The decoration is a fairly recent one, dating back only to 1902 and the coronation of King Edward VII. The Commonwealth is believed to have had its own choice of recipients starting with the 1937 coronation.

Simple Decoration

That crowning also marked the simplification of the medal from the 15 types that King George V had struck, to the one type his son chose. It's considered likely that the precedent will be followed by the Queen.

The 1936 medal was typical of the two earlier medals with likenesses of the King and Queen hung on a blue-centred ribbon, bordered on each side by a red and white strip.

In order of precedence it ranks about midway between the highest award, the Victoria Cross, and the foreign decorations over which all native decorations take precedence. It is included in the jubilee, coronation and durbar medals class initiated by Queen Victoria and is highly prized.

After the 1937 coronation there was an ironical story about the importance that is attached to the coronation medal.

An officer serving in Africa wanted one so badly that he wangled his way back to London and into a coronation parade assignment.

But he didn't get a coronation medal.

What's more, the story goes, he returned to his African unit to find that everybody there had been given one.

CHILD, 9, MISSING

East-Central Canada Hit By Surprise Storm

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A surprise storm laced with fierce winds swept over Canada's east-central provinces Saturday, but by Sunday temperatures were normal for late February in most parts of Ontario and skies were generally clear.

There were snowflurries off Lake Huron and Georgian Bay during the day. Milder air was expected for Monday with temperatures up 10 to 15 degrees.

Winds of 26 miles an hour and carrying two inches of snow swirled off Lake Superior early Saturday, swept through Sault Ste. Marie and swung east into Quebec.

Temperatures which had climbed to the 50s suddenly dropped more than 30 degrees in several hours.

In southern Ontario winds up to 60 miles an hour caused unestimated damage. An apartment house roof was ripped off in Brantford and dropped in the street and two Hamilton citizens were injured by flying debris.

Trapped in Hut

Two small boys were trapped in a fishing hut on Lake Simcoe when the wind sent the tiny structure scuttling across the ice-covered lake. Trees were uprooted, telephone poles toppled and awnings, fences and doors torn loose in many communities

Lake Erie rollers, driven by a 60-mile-an-hour gale, pounded the shoreline near For Erie Saturday with tons of ice. The huge waves and the ice endangered cottages over a wide area. The cellar of the Palmwood Hotel was flooded.

Two Forestry Clubs Ready For Active Season

Two Forestry Clubs, one at Bancroft and the other at Denbigh, have had their initial meetings and are ready for a full season's activities.

Zone forester W. E. Edwards reports these 4-H clubs are sponsored by the Ontario Department of Agriculture and a local sponsoring group, each club to have a membership of ten or more boys and girls from 12 to 21 years of age.

The club program consists of a field project which may be either reforestation or a woodlot improvement exercise. A study is also made of forestry principles and collections of tree leaves, twigs, seeds or wood. Prizes are awarded, based on all phases of club work.

The Denbigh club is sponsored by the Denbigh Agricultural Society under the direction of Ezra Getz, principal of the continuation school. The club will have 11 members.

The North Hastings club has a membership of 19 and Gordon Wragg, high school principal is the leader. The club will be directed by the high school students' council.

Most Difficult Thing 'To See' In Indo-China Is 'The War'

By IAN FAWCETT

HANOI, Indo-China (Reuters) — The most difficult thing to "see" in Indo-China, where 350,000 French-Union troops are fighting for their lives, is "the war."

There is no front line here, and few big battles. But hundreds of men are killed every month.

French authorities are worried about this lack of a visible war. They say they want other countries to realize the importance of the struggle in Indo-China, but their war does not lend itself to salesmanship.

Only rarely can it catch newspaper headlines. Hardly ever can a visiting statesman see the type of fighting which he associates with a life-and-death struggle.

In Saigon, described by travel books as the "paris of the East," there is almost no evidence of war and every evening there is at least one lavish reception.

White-jacketed diplomats, ministers and business men arrive in chauffeur-driven cars, sip a cocktail and talk about "world affairs." "The war" is mentioned along with that in Korea or a fresh incident in Britain's African colony of Kenya.

Seven hundred miles north in Hanoi, the heart of the Tonkin delta country, there are fewer and smaller parties and more troops in the street. Occasionally, at night, gunfire is heard in the distance. But no one knows whether the shots are being fired in anger or practice.

Even at Nasam, scene of three recent bloody battles, the impression is one of preparedness rather than of war. Nasam is heavily defended with the best of military equipment. But for weeks at a time that equipment may see no action.

"That is why we cannot sell this war," the French official said. "It is not like anything else associated with large-scale fighting, yet it is a war and its cost ($1,500,000,000 a year) is almost crippling France."

The troops are the only ones who are really conscious of the fight. They see it in its sudden bursts of fierceness when a post is overrun or a convoy ambushed, when men beside them fall to the bullet of a sniper whom they cannot see.

Every night at least three or four posts in the delta are attacked.

If the post is taken, next day a French force comes in with its tanks and artillery and retakes it.

Occasionally, the Vietminh attack an objective with divisional strength and for two days there is the type of fighting which civilians associate with real war. But by the time the news appears in a communique and correspondents and observers rush to the scene, order has been restored, only to flare up again next day miles away.

DAIRY INDUSTRY PROBLEMS

The dairy industry is beset with some urgent problems in meeting competition from substitutes for milk and milk products. To bring its case before the public the National Dairy Council of Canada has issued a pamphlet setting out facts about its place in the national economy.

The figures are impressive about the great number employed and the contribution of $750,000,000 a year the industry makes to national income but one point made is both interesting and important and, perhaps, very much overlooked. It is that cows are invaluable in maintaining the fertility of the productive soil of the nation. This paragraph states:

"It has been wisely stated that the health and welfare of our nation lies in the top six inches of our soil. A problem vitally affecting every individual in our country is that of retaining this top six inches in order that our people and our prosperity may be well nourished, or even survive. Some nations are spending millions every year to preserve this six inches of soil from being washed or blown away. However, if the greater part of this six inches of soil is kept in grasslands or forests, this problem is a long way towards being solved. Few, if any other kinds of farming respond more promptly and satisfactorily to soil and water conservation, cropping and pasture management, than does dairy farming."

The point made is that if the dairy industry can be kept prosperous on the farms, great sections will never become dust bowls like those which developed on the great plains of the U.S. and in western Canada, during the thirties, and were traced to the gradual disappearance of the buffalo grass in those areas

Canada has at the present time 3,000,000 dairy cows on 455,000 farms. The production of milk is 16,700,000,000 pounds a year. This means millions of pounds of butter, cheese and concentrated milk products in excess of what Canadians can consume. Thus in the face of competition from milk substitutes and U.S. discrimination against Canadian dairy imports, the dairy industry is seriously concerned for its continued welfare.

CANADA LEADS PEACETIME ATOMIC RESEARCH

The hopeful prospect is held out that Canada may lead the way in putting atomic power to use for peaceful purposes. But at a time when the atomic age is still pictured in terms of terror and global destruction Canadian efforts in this direction would appear to be a race against time.

With the disclosure by Defence Minister Howe a few days ago that power companies are to be invited to share in the knowledge Canadian scientists have accumulated, earlier predictions of industrial application of atomic energy in five or ten years become less fantastic. Mr. Howe states that Canada is now leading the way in these experiments at Chalk River.

The generation of power is expected to be the major peacetime use of the force locked up in the core of uranium atom, but as yet atomic power is not as economic as hydro-electric power. It has, however, certain advantages which would make it valuable in remote regions.

It was indicated a year ago that Canada's research efforts were being directed to developing peacetime uses for atomic energy when control was transferred from the National Research Council to a new crown corporation, Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd. In the United States and Britain, where atomic developments are primarily concerned with military objectives utmost secrecy is imperative. Canadian research has become a good deal less secretive and with industry being permitted to participate in the work it is expected that more rapid progress will result.

The by-products of the Chalk River plant have already indicated many potential developments. In the field of isotopes some amazing things are already being done. Canadians have already become familiar with Cobalt 60 in its treatment of disease at a number of special clinics. Other isotopes are also being used in a variety of ways in industry, in forestry and in agriculture.

The start already made here is believed to be well in advance of any other nation in turning atomic energy to the service of mankind and Canada is fortunate in possessing known deposits of fissionable material with which to supply the widest needs for its new developments.

Bicycling seems to be making a comeback in the U.S. Industry leaders expect to sell about 2,100,000 units this year, making it the second best year in the history of the two-wheel trade. The boom is not traced solely to children. About 40 per cent of the output is in adult models.

KEEP GOING

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
And the road you're trudging seems all up hill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest if you must—but don't you quit.

Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As every one of us sometimes learns,
And many a failure turns about
When he might have won had he stuck it out.
Don't give up, though the pace seems slow—
You may succeed with another blow.

Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man.
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup,
And he learned too late, when the night slipped down,
How close he was to the golden crown.

Success is failure turned inside out—
The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
And you never can tell how close you are,
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit—
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

An old fashioned spelling bee was the feature on the program at the weekly meeting of the Y's Men's Club at the Y.M.C.A. and it was interesting and amusing. Secretary Edward Buchanan proved to be the champion speller; he spelled down all contestants and finished off Court Miller in the final test.

A marked decrease in the number of police court cases was one of the features of the annual report of Chief Constable Kidd for the year 1932. The decrease was 154 cases and this speaks well for the efficiency of the police department. The cases tried numbered 305. The fines collected amounted to $4,537.10. From April 18 to December 31, 1932, inclusive, 2580 transients were given a night's lodging at the police station. The following compose the police force: Chief Alex. Kidd, Sergeant Arthur Harman, Sergeant Arthur Booth, Constable William Evans, Constable Frederick Isard, Constable Peter Thompson, Constable Clarence Arnott, Traffice Officer Harold Taylor.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IT ALWAYS COMES BACK

A sincere and generous deed has eternal value! Whenever we give up something to add to the happiness or comfort of another, we will always get back far more than we give. The law of compensation works that way.

We do a great many things we feel are not appreciated, but we must never forget that the deed itself has a kind of immortality attached to it. We never know how far an act of kindness may go. It may be duplicated a thousand times over the years, from one individual to another.

The action of the woman in the Bible who gave her last mite overshadows all the others who gave—for she gave all she had. Thus has her example inspired the gifts of an endless number of human beings.

George Gissing, the English novelist, once accosted a child crying in the street in London. Inquiring, he learned that the child had lost a sixpence. So he immediately replaced that small sum in the hand of the little chap—and, lo, an immediate burst of joy was revealed. But most significant of all was that Gissing remarked that he had himself purchased a sixpence of joy! Knowing from my reading of Gissing how often even a sixpence meant wealth to him, I am inspired by that story.

Never regret doing something that may add to the enjoyment or happiness of another. Not once, but time and again it will be returned to you. The mere satisfaction of having given of the substance of yourself is quite enough.

We have been reading about many men, selected for important positions in the American government, reductant to give up their great holdings and salaries before being accredited to their important tasks. I am of the opinion, however, that they will realize that public service far outweighs all other earnings.

I was interested in a new item which told of an advertiser sponsoring on TV the program of Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, paying a million dollars for a period of 26 weeks. But from this great sum the Bishop gives all of his share to his fellow creatures, regardless of race, color, or religion. No wonder he is so beloved! And effective.

A woman wrote the medical consultant of a Chicago newspaper the other day to ask whether one should sleep with one's head pointing north, as Charles Dickens always rcommended.

At the risk of being cited for practising medicine without a licence, we say the answer should be yes, in all cases, where the feet are pointing south.

Countryman Gets Plumper

(New York Herald-Tribune)

Despite a necessitous round of chores and a daily joust with some armored logs at his woodpile, a countryman finds himself growing perceptibly plumper as winter endures and church suppers increase. A neighbor, for instance, has recently had three, nice pigs butchered, and, proving that cheerful effect can follow fatal cause, a man notes that a roast pork supper is scheduled in his local paper for Saturday night. Tender portions of the sacrificial pigs will serve toward the redecoration fund of the Methodist Church. This will be the third week in a row that a countryman has been capaciously present at a like festivity. Last week there was a pancake and sausage supper arranged to cover a repair job on the lodge hall. The week before that the village fire company financially set forth some ribs of roast beef with all the trimmings. A man, of course, is always willing to dedicate his evening appetite and endangered waistline to such good causes. He may add five more pounds between now and spring but there will be a busy summer in which to sweat off in ways which no city Turkish bath can offer. When any hay is cut and piled in a Turkish bath steam room it will be a novelty among Manhattan masseurs.

As for a few extra calories devoted to redecorating and repair purposes, a man enjoys these extras with careless delight, tossing in a sizeable piece of layer cake topped with maple sugar frosting and helped along by two cups of coffee richly paled with Guernsey cream. There is, he reckons, too much foolish talk about dieting nowadays. A farmer can't always stay young and beautiful, but he can sure keep wiry enough to bend easy without busting a suspender or straining a belt buckle. A countryman hopes the notion of dieting will never get around to church suppers or a feed at Firemen's Hall. A supper committee would have hard work selling tickets for a meal that might have baked egg plant au gratin as the main dish, with hot biscuits and sweet pickles left out as practically poison and wheat germ being sprinkled over everything like birdseed. Such an inhibited menu would mean a lot of redecorating undone in a church and a fire company lacking support. There is no part of a winter pig which isn't good for a winter man. And if it also proves good for a church ceiling or a lodge room, so much the better. As long as church suppers and pigs hold out, a countryman figures on being on hand when the plates are heaped and the pies cut.

Describing Nation's Soul

(Ottawa Citizen)

Some time ago, the London Times sought words and phrases that best express a nation's soul. There are such words, though in some countries they are no doubt easier to discover than in others. For parts of Latin America, manana comes readily to mind; for France, sangfroid with all it holds of urbanity; for Germany perhaps achtung! But what of Britain? After much soul-searching, The Times thought that "considering" was the word. It expressed the profoundly British conviction that all sides to a question should be studied before reaching a decision. "The weather is fine, considering.' And considering the difficulty of pinning down a people as reticent — inarticulate almost —as the British, the selection seems shrewd enough.

For Canada, a choice would be even more difficult, for this country still feels the stirrings of nationhood. Its character has not yet really hardened, taken form. Yet certain tentative conclusions are possible. "Not necessarily" comes, perhaps, as close as any expression to revealing what there is of the Canadian character. This might be challenged by those who prefer "it depends."

But depending on the circumstances, it is not necessarily true that the two phrases are mutually exclusive. Each implies a noncommittal attitude, a desire to achieve balance, and to remain on friendly terms with everyone. This is logical, for Canada's middle position between the United States and Britain has been a dominant factor in forming the Canadian character. The need to maintain an amiable relationship between French - and - English - speaking Canadians has been another.

If so Canadians have a very different outlook from Americans, even though they share common land frontiers, language, dress and radio programs. For the American who says "Let's go" expresses the true character of his race. It is not necessarily true that all Americans have this attitude. It depends on their situation.

Adlai Is Like Lloyd George

(Ottawa Journal)

"The New Dealers move out, the car dealers move in". Thus Adlai Stevenson's description of the change in Washington.

Lloyd George, somebody said, changed the style and character of political oratory in Britain, substituting for Gladstone's sonorous sentences and Rosebery's moving cadences the biting epigram, the mocking phrase, a touch of the vulgar.

Adlai Stevenson, with a talent not unlike that of Lloyd George, seems to be a definite break with traditional oratory in America. Instead of following the countless imitators of the Websters and Haynes, the Henry Gradys and Bourke Cochrans, with their rolling periods and sustained "perorations", Stevenson has an armory of wit and scorn, a lively, marching prose, occasionally a touch of Lloyd George vulgarity.

Stevenson's "the car dealers move in", is not as good as Lloyd George's "as the Empire expands, the Chamberlains contract", but it is the same technique. As much of the "L.G." technique as the description of Eisenhower's Defence Secretary Wilson as "the team's star performer who weighed four or five million", "L.G.", in his "Limehouse" days, did this sort of thing to perfection.

Perhaps American politics can stand a change. For not since Woodrow Wilson has any American political leader spoken with high distinction. Franklin Roosevelt had a great radio voice and a greater stable of ghost writers, but few of his phrases or passages will grace the anthologies. In truth, and Wilson again excepted, American political life over the past 40 years has produced no public leaders who, in true eloquence, could hold a candle to contemporaries in Britain like Lloyd George, Asquith, Birkenhead, Churchill, Hugh Cecil, John Redmond, or to contemporaries in Canada like Wilfrid Laurier or Arthur Meighen.

Maybe Adlai Stevenson, his political future all but assured, will redress the balance.

A Matter Of Taste

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

An interesting sidelight on the music tastes of Canadians and Americans is gleaned from the reports of recording companies' sales for the year 1952. One of the major companies announces proudly that its recent recording of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with Toscanini conducting has sold 60,000 sets although it was little more than two months ago that it first appeared on the market. This set consists of two records and was boosted by one of the most intense promotion sales yet lavished on any one recording.

Reduced to cold statistics these figures mean that about one person in 200,000 bought the issue. Spoil sports will point out that this is not impressive and that a single disc by Johnny Ray sold over two million and that a lament by Patti Page came near to Johnny's total. But the efforts of Johnny and Patti can be obtained for less than a dollar each, while Toscanini can be obtained only by paying somewhere around eleven dollars per set.

Those who judge the phenomenal record business by the teenagers' juke box hits could well revise their thinking. Musical values are beginning to outweigh the importance of smoky voice and a TV evening gown. Furthermore, Beethoven - Toscanini sounds better with each hearing, while Patti and Johnny can endure being repeated about as much as turkey after Christmas.

Not What They Were

(Iowa Falls, Iowa, Citizen)

Another institution that's going to come crashing down one of these days is "Saturday night" in the country towns.

Oh, there will be a few folks maimed in the process, as there always are when a change comes about. But more and more we've got to realize that the line between "town and country" in the average rural county is a pretty imaginary thing. It's getting more so all the time.

Folks who live on farms live no differently in many respects than people who live in town. They are even more "mobile" than many persons who live within the city limits. Even during the busiest season of the year it's unusual when some member of the family isn't in town a time or two during the week. Television is having its effect, too, on Saturday night habits.

As a result many a Main st. merchant is opining that "Saturday night isn't what it used to be" and staying open is "hardly worth the

REAL DOCTORS GETTING SCARCER

A real doctor who has practised thirty years in a town that has grown to a little over 2,000 population tells me he delivered all babies the natural way in the first 23 years of practice, with the husband in the delivery room to hold his wife's hands — they are not strapped — unless he happens to be a sissy and faints, in which case he is shoved out.

However, all these years the town has had a fine little hospital, and now the doctor delivers no babies at home, only in the hospital.

That seems sad enough to me, but the doctor adds to my unhappiness by saying:

"Your extolling the virtues of having babies in the home is, I fear, of little avail. Women are happier to have them in the hospital near home. If everything goes well they go home in 5 to 8 days. If any complication arises we can give a blood transfusion on short notice or do a Cesarean section if necessary...."

If the letter came back from a trick specialist it would just irk me, but the very language shows that it is from a real doctor and so it saddens me. Am I fighting for a lost cause? Is the profession converting en masse to business? Has the general practitioner, the family doctor, already become defunct?

But wait a moment. I'm not giving up just yet. On reconsidering what the doctor says, I come up with a yahbut. Yahbut the testimony would be more convincing if the doctor cited an instance or two from his practice in the first 23 years of unhappy consequences of delaying blood transfusion or Cesarean section long enough to take the patient to the hospital. Give me factual, not hypothetical evidence.

It may be that patients who go to the little hospital in this village to have babies merely use bed and hopital services which would otherwise not be used. In large cities, however, this is not so. Unless the hospital authorities deceive us there is generally a shortage of hospital beds, nurses and services for the sick, and so doctors who persuade patients to go to the hospital to have their babies, and women who do so despite the fact that they have a home fit to live in, are depriving sick people of the hospital care they need.

The real doctor says he formerly delivered a good many babies in the home but "now I have not wanted any more of that for a good while." The medical blue book tells me the doctor has been practising nearly 30 years. That's not long in these days of good roads and automobiles. Still, his health and vite may not be up to it—which would explain why he has not wanted any more of that for a good while. If the state of his health has anything to do with this change in his practice I'd be happy to know about it—I mean of course that it would bolster my wavering faith in the future of American medicine to know that this real doctor is impelled by necessity to make a hospital case out of the birth of a baby.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

South of what might be called the normal snow and ice line of this continent, basketball takes the place of hockey. In Canada you see the boys of all ages on the rinks and the country ponds, hard at hockey. Not far south of the border, you see the American boys just as busy flinging the basketball in outdoor school yards of village and town. And in every larger school gymnasium, the basketball schedule is even tighter than any hockey schedule among our schools.

Like hockey, basketball is a fast and furious game that gives the players all they want in the way of tireless performance, and gives the spectators a practically uninterrupted entertainment of the sort that keeps the spectator's neck swinging from left to right all night long. It may be too soon to say that poor old slow-motion baseball is doomed. But with hockey and basketball offering the sport-watching public a brand of athletic entertainment that is modern in every aspect of speed, and ultra-modern in the stress they lay upon the initiative and instantaneous quick-wittedness of the players, most other games which consist of a move every half minute instead of every half second are bound to suffer by comparison.

The growth of basketball in the United States is more than likely to result in a consequent growth of interest in it in Canada. Unlike hockey, it needs no costly establishment of ice. Every school in city and town has a basketball court ready made. Any number of existing assembly halls, dance pavilions, recreation centres of various kinds, can be rigged up for basketball, at a most moderate cost, whereas the preparation of a hockey rink is often a problem far larger than groups of ardent players can negotiate.

Besides, basketball offers a future for a type of young man that has been able to find no future in hockey, rugby or baseball, to wit, those lean youngsters six and a half feet tall.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NUMBER ONE PROBLEM

Habit!

Try lacing your shoes in a manner different from your ordinary procedure and see how awkward you are. Try a new method of tying your necktie. Take a new route to the train tomorrow, move your wallet from one pocket to another, move the furniture about in your living room. A veritable revolution takes place as a result of these changes. Why? The answer is "habit."

The parent who does not realize how indelibly habit is being formed in the body, nervous system and mind of the growing child, is so appallingly ignorant that anything may happen in later years. The young person who does not check up on himself and observe where youthful customs, associates, and habitual actions are leading, may someday find himself standing at the edge of a precipice. Recently I moved the desk at which I am accustomed to work and the physical and mental patterns of the past seven years were so violently disturbed that it took me weeks to get used to the change.

We are bundles of habits. To say this is to say something everybody knows, but something that very few people pay any attention to. Ninety-five per cent of our life is based on habit patterns. Habit formation is life's Number One problem.

Victor Moore Star of Broadway Hit 'On Borrowed Time' Will Be 76 Years Old on Tuesday

By MARK BARON

NEW YORK (AP)—Next Tuesday a beloved comedian now winning garlands for his triumphant performance in a serious role on Broadway will be 76 years old.

Victor Moore, star of the hit revival of Paul Osborn's play "On Borrowed Time," says he hasn't the slightest intention of retiring just because he is having another birthday.

This year is also his 60th anniversary in show business.

Moore seemed indignant that anyone should even think he was going to retire.

"I don't think 76 years is so old," he said. "I used to play the horses and I've aged more than that in one race when by bankroll was growing thin and the horses were going slower.

"I really don't have to work. I make a few bucks (about $2,500 a week) playing on broadway and in the movies. I also own a bus terminal on Long Island which brings me in about $75,000 a year. But I wouldn't think of retiring because I am having the happiest time of my life playing in On Borrowed Time.' If I quit working I would only go to the race track and pretty soon I would have to go back to work again."

Not First Time

The current revival of the 1938 hit isn't the first time Moore has played the role of Gramps, an old man who refuses to die and continues to defy Death, who hovers above him in a tree. The only reason Gramps refuses to come to terms with Death is that he will not leave his young grandson to the mercy of a spinster aunt who doesn't understand the youngster.

Moore had no early ambition for the theatre, he said, until he started reading advertisements in the newspapers.

I used to be a cashier in the restaurant during the day, so I didn't have any play time until the restaurant closed at night," he recalled. "Naturally there was no place to play at those hours except around the theatres.

"I saw an advertisement in a newspaper asking for tall men to play 'supers' in a production of 'Babes in the Wood.' I was far from being tall, but I climbed on a stone so I would be as high as the other fellows, and the stage manager didn't notice the stone in the dark stage alleyway.

Played in Vaudeville

"The trouble was that they issued us costumes of armor made for tall men. I suppose I am the only actor who ever played in a suit of armor and used a makeshift periscope to get by."

After playing in vaudeville with his wife, Emma Littlefield, for many years in a skit called "Change Your Act," or "Back to the Woods," Moore got his first opportunity on Broadway. That was when George M. Cohan wrote the role of Kid Burns, the prize fighter, for him in "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway."

This happened in 1905 and Moore says Broadway was really booming then.

"There were five openings on the night we opened," Moore said, and other Broadway theatres were crowded with established hits. Maude Adams in 'Peter Pan,' David Warfield in 'The Music Master' and all three Barrymores—Ethel, Lionel and John—were playing in rival shows.

"So if I should think it tough competition in the theatre now that I am 76, I feel better when I think of the competition I had when I first started on broadway."

Hospital Keeps Reminding Doctors Patients, Physicians are Human

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

DENVER (AP)—A hospital here keeps reminding its doctors that patients are human, and that doctors are human too.

As humans, unhappy patients may rant at the doctor, call him names. Happy ones may worship the doctor as a god.

As humans, doctors could easily get angry at patients who cuss them, relax the rules for the patients they like best.

This type of psychological hazard is dealt with consciously at the National Jewish hospital at Denver, tuberculosis centre which in more than 50 years has provided completely free medical care for some 50,000 men, women and children of all faiths from all parts of the U.S.

"The doctor always reacts to his patients, even though he may not be conscious of his reactions," explains Dr. Sidney Dressler, Medical director. "Unless he understands his own reactions, he may become too easy or too hard toward his patients.

"Either way, he is not doing all that he could or should do for them."

Problem Discussed

This problem is discussed fully at regular staff meetings. A hospital psychiatrist leads the discussion. Psychiatric social workers, who know individual patients, explain why some patient is restless or unhappy or hostile, why another patient is looking for extra sympathy—and perhaps shouldn't have it.

This approach to psychology of sickness—for patients and doctors alike—is just part of the total teamwork approach to medical care of the tuberculosis patient. Other phases include school teachers and play supervisors for youngsters, work therapists to help adults re-train for their jobs or to train for new occupations, and research.

Patients Must Help

The patient's personality, says Dr. Dressler, partly determines how quickly he will recover from TB. The critical point is how he reacts to stress and strain, how well he can bear up under trouble, how much he will help himself get well.

As yet, he adds, there's no evidence that people of some given personality type are more likely than others to develop TB. But a tendency to live a life of stress may aggravate the disease.

The First Step

In most instances, the first step in battling TB is strict rest in bed, so strict that in effect the person must return to infancy. He's told what to do, and that he cannot do many ordinary things for himself. He must obey strict rules to rest his diseased lungs.

This is one of the most difficult phases of TB recovery. A few people unconsciously like this fully dependent life with no responsibilities. But for most it is hard to take. They need encouragement.

The hospital has one strict rule for all non-medical members of the staff.

They are not to gossip with patients about treatment, surgery, length of stay in the hospital or other medical matters.

"The sick person is ill and anxious, eager for information about what may lie ahead for him," Dr. Dressler explains. "He will ask anyone for information, and try to apply it to his own condition.

"Each case is individual, and we do our best to make sure that any information the patient gets about his own condition is accurate. That information must come from trained doctors and nurses."

21 Fatalities In East Canada During Week-End

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A young Toronto girl who died when the car in which she was riding crashed into a police cruiser at Burlington was one of 21 persons to lose their lives in accidents in Eastern Canada during the week-end.

A survey early Monday showed there were 16 deaths in Ontario and five in Quebec. Of the total, nine were traffic fatalities.

Audrey Eastman, 16, was a passenger in a car being chased by a police cruiser. As the police car drew alongside at the end of the 70-mile-an-hour chase, the two autos collided, fatally injuring the girl and injuring three others, including the police driver.

After an intensive search, firemen dragging a pool in an excavation in Montreal recovered the bodies of Charles Rubin, 9, and his five - year - old brother, Stephen, missing since early Sunday.

Crushed to Death

Basil Honeywell, 18, from Dominion, N. S., was crushed to death in Etobicoke township near Toronto Sunday night when a 400-pound office safe toppled over, pinning him to the side of a parked transport. He was assisting a steel company janitor at the time.

Exchequer Court Closes Door On Damage Suits

OTTAWA (CP)—The Exchequer Court of Canada, in a precedent-making judgment, has virtually shut the door on scores of damage suits against the Canadian government for alleged illegal wartime internment.

Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, court president, ruled that the Crown is not responsible for a wrongful act committed by its officers and servants in the course of their duty, except where negligence or carelessness is proven.

The judgment was handed down in the case of Michael Magda, Romanian-born merchant seaman, who in his claim for a petition of right against the Crown told a tale of capture, suffering and imprisonment because he refused to serve aboard an Allied ship.

Asked For Right

He asked the court for the right to sue the government for $157,000 for seven years of alleged illegal imprisonment and internment in Canada. For six months of that time, he said, he lived on only bread and water.

Magda, who said he was imprisoned and interned in Halifax, Fredericton and Hull, Que., claimed $85,000 for loss of liberty, injuries and suffering; $10,000 for mo l suffering; $30,6C0 for monetary loss because of imprisonment; $6,550 for monetary loss since imprisonment; and $25,000 for future monetary loss because of physical and mental weakness.

The question Mr. Justice Thorson had to answer was:

"Assuming the allegations of fact contained in the petition of right to be true, does a petition of right lie against the respondent (the Crown) for any of the relief sought by the suppliant (Magda) on the said petition?"

Mr. Justice Thorson ruled that the claim was "outside the ambit of negligence." There could be no petition of right against the Crown because of tort—wrongful act—by an officer or servant while acting within the scope of his duty, except where the statute permits.

C.A.S. Presents 'Workshop' Reports

Reports of a workshop on "Child Welfare", recently held in Kingston were the features of the monthly board meeting of the Children's Aid Society.

Mrs. McCabe, Miss Corbet and Mrs. Holmes, representing the local society, spoke of the interesting group discussions which were held under the leadership of Professor Klein, of Toronto University.

Miss B. Corbet, in presenting the monthly report, outlined a day's experience in her work. She gave the details of different types of cases involving the comfort and safety of little children; the problems confronting the worker, and the solutions presented.

A committee was appointed to plan the annual meeting to be held in April.

Mr. F. Wilson, the president, welcomed Mr. Sprackett and Mr. Hamn, the new members from the County Council.

'Workshop' Play Much Enjoyed By Guild

Yet another "Workshop" play, bringing wider experience to the actors, director and stage staff concerned, formed the main item of the Belleville Theatre Guild's recent meeting. "The Twelve Pound Look", by Sir James Barrie, has had a long and dignified career, from the days when Ethel Barrymore played it in New York, to its recent revival on television with Margaret Sullavan in the leading role. Under the direction of John Ryan, the Belleville players, Betty Sadler, Winsome Lewis, Cameron Tanner, and John Luscombe, gave a very creditable performance of this clever little comedy, helped behind the scenes by Mary Doyle, Miriam Bishop, Ed Day, Charles McGinnis and Robert Tanner. At the conclusion of the play, Mrs. Doyle, Guild president, called upon Joan Tanner to comment; Mrs. Tanner emphasized that she undertook this task as a friendly and constructive critic, rather than as an adjudicator, a fact which was borne out by her ensuing remarks which proved most helpful to both players and audience.

During the business meeting which preceded the presentation of the play, Catherine Darlington gave a very interesting account of the experiences of the group of members which, under her direction, had entered "Overlaid" in the one-act festival of the Central Drama League, an event already reported in these pages. Mrs. Doyle, reported on the progress of the series of radio plays, which the Guild is currently producing over Station CJBQ, and of "The Happy Time", the three-act Canadian comedy which is to be presented to the public on March 11 and 12. The director of this production, Sid Rose, showed to the meeting a scale model of the set which has been designed for it, and which is nearing completion.

In preparation for the annual general meeting later in the year, a nominating committee was appointed, consisting of Mrs. Doyle, Mrs. Robbins and Everett Fairman. At the conclusion of the meeting, casting sessions were held for two new workshop plays, "The Dear Departed", and "To What Purpose?" to be directed by Muriel Brule and Mac Rice respectively.

History of C.A.S. Work Well Outlined At Holloway W.A.

The regular meeting of the Holloway Street United Church W.A., was held on Thursday afternoon, in the church parlors. The meeting was opened in the usual manner by the president, Mrs. C. Smith. In her brief address she extended a warm welcome to all new members and guests.

The program was prepared by Mrs. O. R. Denyes and her group. Mrs. Coulter had charge of the devotional part of the meeting. Her message was both timely and helpful to all those present.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Mrs. Laura McLauchlin, was introduced by Mrs. James Cordes. Mrs. McLauchlin, Mrs. Cordes remarked, needed little introduction as she has been connected with the local branch of the Children's Aid Society for a number of years.

It was with interest that the history of the society in Ontario was learned. About 60 years ago, a man by the name of Kelso saw the need for such a society and laid the foundation for the work that is being carried on today. Sir John Gibson, with the help of Kelso, really made the laws which the society now follows. It is interesting to note that this constitution has been copied by every province in Canada.

Mrs. McLauchlin explained how the society works with parents to establish better homes; how their work has become intensified by broken homes; how children become wards of the society, and how different organizations help.

A solo, "Just a Whispered Prayer", by Mrs. A. W. Daniels, accompanied by Mrs. E. M. Hubbs, was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. S. Westover extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. McLauchlin and Mrs. Daniels.

After a brief business period, which was conducted by the president, a social half hour was

B.P.W.C. Hears Fine Address On 50 Years Across 50 Centuries

At the February dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club, held at the Y.M.C.A., on Monday. Mrs. Margaret E. Ashdowne, of Toronto, was guest speaker.

In introducing Mrs. Ashdowne, Miss Grace Houston stated that the guest speaker was born in the northern town of Blind River, Ontario, which is noted for the intensity of the cold weather and the inhabitants there like to believe this produces a race of physically rugged individuals. Mrs. Ashdowne is now with the Coleman Lamp Company Limited as secretary and personnel manager. She is also active in Personnel Association in Toronto; Women's Export Association; chairman of committee of United Nations' scholarships in the Business and Professional Club.

50 Years of Progress

Mrs. Ashdowne talked of women's progress over the last 50 years, her top being "Fifty Years Across Fifty Centuries".

"Every right entails a duty. Thinking of privileges we enjoy we must not forget that men have records dating back to 2900 B.C. But, the last 50 years have played a tremendous part in raising the status of women around the world.

"Since the early typewriter was invented in 1868, woman has excelled here in exactitude, fingering and speed. Many changes have come about.

"In the early 1900's, society frowned upon girls, from middle class families who worked. At this time girls were unable to find lodging and board. From 100 families, 75 girls were refused room and board. Women took their places in the many types of work during the First World War and by the end of 1920 industries were being made, silk industries, cosmetics, hosiery. Women's magazines were being published, all as a result of women working."

Mrs. Ashdowne claims she has not yet found a woman occupying the position of railway locomotive engineer, conductor or fireman. Men have granted full equality to women in many things, but not always with adequate remuneration. They think of women as helpers but not as executives.

"However, brain power has no sex. As working women," Mrs. Ashdowne said, "we should check up on ourselves for knowledge, appearance, courage and ambition. We should encourage higher education, health, energy and personality."

Miss Joy Nichols graciously thanked the guest speaker.

During the business meeting, material and wool was handed out by convener, Muriel Jobson, to be made up for the Children's Aid. President Norma Arkles was chosen as club delegate, to go to New York at Easter for the United Nations sessions. Plans for other members to attend were also made.

Irene Raney gave a short report on the recent visit to the Campbellford Club on their charter night.

A solo by Muriel Jobson was enjoyed by members.

Formal Dance Celebrates 'Probies' Capping Service

In contrast to the solemn proceedings of the evening before, the "Capping Formal" sponsored by the Student Nurses' Association of the Belleville General Hospital held Friday night at Tobe's County Gardens, was one of gay celebration.

Orchestrations, under the expert baton of Cam Walsh and his Modernaires, kept the dancers on the floor with selections of fox trots, waltzs and tangos. The Modernaires played at the "farewell formal", also sponsored by the association, held last September.

Dancing got under way at 9:00 p.m., and lasted through until 1:00. A buffet luncheon was served at intermission.

The dance was held to celebrate the graduation of the 19 "probies" into the ranks of junior nurses-in-training. The girls received their caps in the Ritchie Memorial Residence on Thursday evening.

CARR TOPPLES OVER CLIFF

MERRITT, B.C. (CP)—Two women were killed early Friday when a car carrying four persons toppled over a 50-foot cliff on the highway near here. Dead are Mrs. Edward Thomas and Mrs. Malcolm Quinn, both of Lytton, B.C.

V.O.N. to Spread Knowledge Of Its Activities

TORONTO (CP)—The Victorian Order of Nurses, with a year-round offer to enter the homes of sick Canadians and nurse them to health, is holding its annual VON week Feb. 22-29 to spread knowledge of the organization's work.

Those visited by the nurses pay only what they can afford—in many cases nothing—for care. Included are nursing mothers, cripples, the elderly and others who are unable to move outside their homes.

Fifty-seven per cent of the 1,000,000 calls made by the order's nurses to Canadians last year were not paid for. About 18 per cent were paid in full, and others partly paid. The only payment required is for the nurse's time and materials.

Many sick persons who otherwise would be in hospitals are able to live at home with their families because of the daily or weekly visits of the VON nurse. The country's shortage of hospital space is relieved and sick persons are often happier at home.

280,000 Calls

VON nurses made about 280,000 of their calls last year for maternity cases. Another 600,000 were medical and surgical and 90,000 for health supervision.

About 135,000 persons are cared for annually, and 55 per cent are mothers and babies.

The area wherein the order works has expanded year by year since its origin in 1897. It now has 113 branches and 534 nurses. Last year it began services in Newfoundland.

Any sick person is entitled to VON help. The biggest part of the work—maternity care—includes instruction for expectant mothers in baby care and in assistance at child birth.

The order also sponsors child health conferences and clinics in many centres. Nurses enter industry for service to injured workers. Toxoid, vaccine and other serums are administered to school-children.

100 Girl Guides, Brownies, C.G.I.T. Hold Special Service

On Friday afternoon 100 Girl Guides, Brownies and C.G.I.T. members assembled in Tabernacle United Church for a special World Day of Prayer service.

Mrs. H. R. Varcoe was pianist.

Those of the Girl Guides taking part included Marilyn Elliott, Beverley Faulkner, Sheila Shier, Mary O'Neill and Barbara Payne. Those of the C.G.I.T. were, Mary Anne Cowles, Deanne Smith, Linda Peoples, Lois Williamson and Shirley Ackerman.

Women's Activities

HALLOWAY W.A.

The February meeting of the Halloway W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Coleman and Mrs. Herb. Townsend.

The following plans for the new year, which were drawn up at the January executive meeting, were brought before the meeting by the president, Mrs. D. Rose: two dates in May to be devoted to the beautifying of the church; one a gardening date, and the other spring cleaning.

A strawberry festival is to be held in June or July, depending on the strawberry season.

It was planned that two sales of homecooking be held at Oak Lake, one in July and one in August. The proceeds of these sales, along with the proceeds of the talent money given to each member, is to be used in the purchase of a new communion table.

A date in September has been reserved for the fall cleaning of the church in preparation for anniversary Sunday, which will be September 20, and the anniversary supper which will follow on September 21.

A bazaar and tea are slated for November.

Mrs. Blake McMullen, as a committee of one, has been delegated to purchase a new potato kettle and extra utility pans.

HALLOWAY W.M.S.

The February meeting of the Halloway Woman's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. H. and C. Townsend on Wednesday afternoon, in charge of Mrs. K. McMullen, the president, who gave the call to worship, theme of the month being, "The Sacrament of The Lord's Supper".

Scripture readings were chosen from Mark 14:12-26 and John 13: 1-17, and were read by Mrs. E. Snider. Meditations based on this theme were given by Miss B. McMullen and Mrs. C. Townsend.

It was decided the W.M.S. would continue holding the W.M.S. and W.A. meetings on the same afternoon. The next meeting is to be held on the evening of March 18, at the home of Mrs. E. Emerson. Collection amounted to $1.50.

COLLEGE HILL W.A.

The regular meeting of College Hill W.A. was held in Church parlor on Wednesday with president Mrs. Annis Dickens presiding.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Nina Walker and Mrs. Jen. Smith. "The Home" was the topic used for this part of the meeting.

Each member was to bring a tea towel to help build up the kitchen supplies. There were 27 tea towels turned in. Several members paid their birthday money and dues.

For the March meeting each member is to bring two articles for fish pond.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Doris Dickens, Mrs. Audrey Flunder and Mrs. Leila Cook.

'Tired Christians' Responsible For Liquor Industry's Advances

The February meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the "Y", with the president, Mrs. E. Farnsworth in the chair.

After extending a welcome to all, she quoted Dr. Gordon Bell, of Shadowbrook Health Foundation (from MacLean's, Dec. 1st., 1952), "Alcoholism costs the country at least $100,000,000 a year in accidents, absenteeism and lowered efficiency, alone."

Tired Christians

The liquor industry is making enormous advances, because of tired Christians, who have retired from the fight against alcohol because — what can we do anyway so why rave against it? But one woman found a way to do something when all others sat back and kept quiet.

The editor of a local Philadelphia paper announced a series of articles on "How to use beer and wine in cooking." This woman called ten other church women, who in turn called others, and their protests to the editor, stopped the articles from being printed.

The Montreal Daily Star reported that the regulations ruling intoxicating liquors in and around McGill University were that "No intoxicating liquors may be served or sold at any student functions in any university building on the campus other than the armoury.

At campus - wide functions held in the McGill Union which are open to both men and women students, no form of alcoholic beverages may be served, sold or consumed."

"National Health Week," has recently been observed. Dr. N. an Adler, social worker in San Quentin state prison, says "Alcoholism is our greatest single public health problem, that is not receiving systematic consideration. Prevention and treatment are the two edges of the same sword. As citizens, in our civic activities, we must awaken the community to use both edges of the weapon, with which we fight for a happy, healthy world."

Greatest Advances

George B. Cullen, president of Colgate University, said: "the discontinuance of the use of alcohol as a beverage would be the greatest advance in public health since the application of the bacteriological origin of disease. The insidiousness of its attack makes alcohol the more dangerous, and when 30 per cent of the drinkers become addicts, we cannot afford to trifle with it."

A short study on the life of Frances Willard was given by Mrs. F. Cook, and a clip sheet by four ladies, great honors have been paid to this clever woman but the greatest and most lasting is the world-wide union of over a million women. This was her greatest achievement. Its scope is the broadest; its aims are the kindest, and its history the most heroic of any society ever founded in this latter day civilization.

Good Companions' Club Enjoys Lively Crokinole Party

Nimble fingers and flying checkers were the fashion of the evening at the crokinole party, sponsored by the Good Companions' Club of Tabernacle United Church, last Tuesday.

Mrs. E. Christopher, with quiet determination, moved from table to table to finish with ladies' high score. Mr. W. Woinacott captured the men's high.

It was an occasion of much merriment and everyone, whether or not their score was worth boasting about, had a most enjoyable time.

Celebrate Their 25th Anniversary

Wedding bells chimed again on Friday for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daley, 200 North Front Street, on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary, when many friends gathered for the evening, bringing congratulations, and lovely gifts of silver, for which the recipients most graciously expressed their appreciation.

The evening was spent in dancing and several games.

Refreshments were served.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Wife Makes It Easy for Her Husband to Misbehave

One thing that seems clear and certain to me is that many unhappy marital situations would be sooner adjusted if they were brought to a head by the taking of some definite step on the part of husband or wife, as the case may be. Most wives or husbands, however, seem to prefer to let a miserable situation drag agonizingly along, month after month, year after year, because they are too timid to take decisive action of some kind.

Here is a wife whose husband has gone to live openly with another woman, yet she allows him repeatedly to return home to cry on her shoulder — "weep like a child", is the way she puts it — and tell her she is the woman he really loves.

In her letter, this wife wails over and over again that it is "no sort of life for me or our three children"; that she doesn't know "who should do what towards solving the problem"; that "it's so hard to go on day by day, getting closer and closer to a breakdown," and so forth. Yet it has either never occurred to her to do the obvious thing, or else she is too weak to do it. I am not talking about divorce, either—a step she says she will never take because her husband has made her promise that "no matter what happens, never let me go" and told her that he would fight a divorce anyhow.

Her story, condensed from a long letter, is that she and her husband have been married for ten years, and that they have three children, 10, 6 and 3 years old. Their marriage, she says, was a very happy one, with her husband steadily rising in business and in the community until we got to the top step in social and business life."

The Other Woman

Then "the other woman" came along; a woman who, as the wife puts it, "was loose since her teen-age", while she quotes the mother of the interloper herself as characterising her daughter's behavior as "a weakness towards the opposite sex". In other words, it appears that this "other woman" has long had a reputation for being over-generous with her favors.

The husband, his wife says, has no intention of marrying this woman and is very unhappy. But he refuses to break with her, declaring that he is "obligated to her for her reputation," whatever that means.

On her side, the woman declares that she will never let him go, and that she can make him happier than his wife and children can. Then she turns around and says that whenever he wants her to go, she will. She doesn't know of his periodic trips home to "weep like a child" and beg his wife not to divorce him. She wears a ring he bought her, and the wife wants to know: "What does that ring signify to him or her?" She adds that she knows the ring is not paid for because letters have come dunning her husband for payment. Yet he has bought his mistress furs and jewels, lives with her in a hotel and takes her out to expensive places for good times.

And then the letter ends with the familiar cry of all betrayed wives everywhere: "What can this woman give him that I didn't? If only I knew where and how I have failed him!"

Where this wife is making her big mistake must be perfectly plain to anyone who hears her story. It is, of course, in allowing her husband to keep coming back for these intolerable emotional scenes with her, thru' which, apparently, he seeks to hold on to her while holding on to his mistress, too.

That obvious step she should take, referred to above, is this: Once and for all she should put her foot down on these visits of his and refuse either to allow him in the house, or to see or communicate with him in any way unless and until he makes up his mind to end his affair and become a normal, decent husband to her and father to his children. Just so long as she permits him the freedom to come and go as he pleases, she gives him no incentive to change his conduct. If she makes him understand what he must do before he can enter the house again, it may well bring the whole thing to a head. Certainly it does not appear that anything else will do it.

'There Are Just Two of Us...'

By Mary Moore

Since we had such a landslide of stories from girls who are showing us how they manage on low incomes, it has sparked letters from other counties.

Today I'm answering the readers who want menus for two people. These include Lucille, Jeanette and Marie and some others. Some of them are career girls who have to prepare meals on the run. All of them find leftovers a problem.

Note on Salads

Since most families of two seem to want greater and more tempting varieties than large hungry families, I think a well-stocked vegetable crisper is a great comfort and asset. Buy 1 cucumber, 1 head each cabbage and lettuce, 2 bunches radishes, 1 bunch celery, 1 lb. tomatoes, 1 bunch parsley. These will provide plenty of variety for your salads for every day in one week — especially if you keep two or three kinds of salad dressings on hand. I like French dressing, mayonnaise and Russian dressing. To the French dressing you can add a slice of garlic for one meal, and some crumbled Roquefort at another time.

Number One Menu for Two

Individual chicken pies. Individual salads of sliced head lettuce, radishes and cucumber with French dressing. Peach Spanish cream. Cookies. Coffee.

Individual Chicken Pies
(for 2 people)

One cup leftover cooked roast or boiled chicken in chunky bits. 1 10-oz. tin undiluted chicken noodle soup, 1½ tablespoon flour, ½ cup fresh or frozen peas. (Some cooks in small families chop or saw a box of frozen vegetables in half—so second half is not prematurely defrosted). ¼ cup sliced cooked or canned mushrooms, ¼ cup diced cooked carrots, pie pastry made from 2-3 cup flour, 3½ tablespoons shortening, shake of salt and water to moisten. Stir the flour into a little bit of the cold undiluted soup until smooth, then add remainder of soup and stir over heat until thickened. Add peas, mushrooms, carrots. Place half of the chicken in each of two individual casseroles about 4½ inches in diameter and 2 inches deep. Pour the soup mixture over. Divide the pastry into 2 rounds to fit tops of casseroles and cover top. Pastry should be slashed to allow steam to escape. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes.

Peach Spanish Cream
(enough for two)

You need 1 5-oz. can strained Baby-food peaches for this and 2 teaspoons plain gelatin, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, yolk and white separated, 1 tablespoon sugar, shake of salt, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon sugar. Soak the gelatin in ¼ cup of the milk 5 minutes. Scald remaining milk and add soft gelatin and stir until dissolved. Beat egg yolk and mix with sugar, salt and vanilla. Slowly stir in the gelatin mixture until sugar is dissolved. Cool, beat whites stiff but not dry. Fold into custard mixture. Chill until it begins to thicken. Now with rotary beater beat until fluffy. Allow to set. Mix together the peach puree, lemon juice and sugar. Place custard and peach sauce in alternate layers in tall parfait glasses.

Number Two Menu for Two

Swiss or hamburg steak with mushrooms. Baked squash halves. Beet and celery salad with sour cream dressing. Velvet cocoa cake. Coffee.

Swiss or Hamburg Steak with Mushrooms

Sear 2 pieces of steak (preferably round from baby beef) or 2 large ground beef cakes until brown. Mix together ½ can mushroom cream soup (undiluted) and ¼ cup milk. Pour over steak. Cover. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. until steak is tender and while squash is baking (about 1½ hours).

Velvet Cocoa Cake (Small)

Sift together 1½ cups sifted cake flour, ¾ teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup cocoa. Cream 1-3 cup butter and add ½ teaspoon vanilla to it. Beat in 1 cup sugar then 1 egg. Add dry ingredients alternately with 1 cup sour milk, beating until just smooth. Bake in 8 x 8-in. pan, paper lined and greased at 350 deg. Fahr. 50 minutes.

RHEUMATIC PAIN
Can Be Costly!

"This winter I had to quit work because of rheumatic pain," writes Mr. T. Glofcheskie, Wilno, Ont. "I became fearful of being laid up as on a previous occasion with rheumatic pain. My pain became increasingly severe and spread from hip to ankle. Out of bed, the leg felt cold as though in cold water, so I stayed in bed. A friend persuaded me to take T-R-C's and I'm glad I did. In a short while I was relieved of my pain and was soon on the job again."

Don't suffer from Rheumatic or Arthritic pain. Take Templeton's T-R-C's—Canada's LARGEST-SELLING proprietary medicine to bring quick relief from such pain. Only 65c, $1.35 at druggists. T-848

Fashion Flashes

PALE SHADES of beige are receiving the endorsement of store-buyers as they place orders for Spring merchandise. Beige pongee silk, with an Egyptian print in avocado green, makes a sleeveless sheath with a low, square neckline. With it is a full-length, loose, narrow coat of avocado green jersey lined in the print. The ensemble looks very new.

CHILLY MORTALS can't get enough of the felt skirt, one of the most popular Winter fashions and continuing on into early Spring. Black felt makes a handsome skirt that has a wide black Satin sash looped through the hipline and bowed at the side. A heavy, jewel-encrusted satin belt marks the waistline. With it is a scoop-necked jersey top, or one of satin bordered in jersey.

BEAUTY

by
Keeping the hair clean

As dust falls on your furniture, so it falls upon the crown of your head. If your hair is oily, it seems to have its little tendrils reaching out for atmospheric dust. Within a week it is usually ready for a soapy overhauling; certainly the periods between shampoos should not exceed a fortnight. Time was when women had a notion that frequent latherings were harmful. We know better now. Cleanliness is the first law in all beautifying projects. An unclean scalp is susceptible to skin disorders.

Beauticians tell us that some home shampooers who find their hair stringy and horrid, and who come to them for professional treatment, have the shafts so heavy with accumulations of soap scum that cleaning fluids have to be applied to dislodge it. These are the girls who fancy they can dunk their heads in the washbowl, rub the bar of soap over their hair and rinse it in the bowl. That system is not only ineffective, but can be a menace to the growth, dimmining the color and causing the delicate shafts to break at the touch of the comb.

If the hair is oily, you are dealing with a combination of dirt and grease that puts up considerable resistance. A bath spray is necessary; it is more effective than the shower.

Here is the right way to renovate, according to expert operators. Start with a brushing. The brush should be narrow, wih stiff bristles of different lengths set in groups. Brush from the crown forward and toward the sides, then groom from the nape to the crown. After that, treat strand by strand, holding the hair away from the head, using a rolling motion of the brush. See that it touches the scalp at every sweep.

Follow with a three-minute massage of the scalp to loosen dead skin scales. Then use the spray, with a strong current of water, to remove surface dust.

When buying a shampoo medium, note whether it is for dry or oily hair. A liquid soap should be diluted one half with hot water. Pour some over the top of your head and distribute it with your fingers, rubbing the scalp briskly. This first application may not foam readily. Use the spray and make a second application. This time the lather will be like beaten egg white. The final spraying should be prolonged.

When combing out the snarls, start at the back of the head, along the nap, working upward, then front and side and, lastly, the crown.

Procedure for a Large Tea Given by Her Auxiliary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am president of an Auxiliary, and in April we are planning to sponsor a tea, an open house. We expect a large number of guests and of course we want very much to have this occasion a very nice one. I have a silver hostess service, and we are going to use this. It consists of: coffee pot, teapot, tea kettle, waste bowl, sugar bowl and a cream pitcher. Will you please give me a set of suggestions as to correct hospitality, what to serve and the proper time.

— M.B.

Hour: Your invitations may invite to tea, 4-6 or 4-7, or for a definite beginning hour, say 4 or 4.30.

Table setting: Table covered with a cloth, white or pastel, sometimes a deep color. Your silver tea service at one end of table, the tea kettle kept boiling, if possible. Coffee service at the other end; your coffee pot, with tray and other equipment perhaps borrowed from member. Cups and saucers (each cup on its saucer, and a teaspoon placed on the saucer to the right of the handle) are arranged within easy reach of the co-hostess pouring: on both sides of both service-trays. On tea tray: teapot, tea kettle, sugar bowl (with tongs), cream pitcher, plate with lemon and small serving-fork, and waste bowl. On coffee tray: coffee pot, sugar bowl (with tongs), cream pitcher. If the table is of good size, have a low, long, and lovely flower counterpiece, flanked (if shades are drawn) by candelabra or candlesticks with candles "glowing with hospitality." You will need stacks of small plates; rows of tea napkins (today often of paper) and rows of dessert forks or tea forks if you are going to serve cakes that need forks. There will be plates or platters for sandwiches; plates for cookies and/or cake. Arrange these items artistically, to balance the table-picture, and conveniently.

Menu: Two basic necessities: (1) sandwiches; and (2) a sweet course, cake and/or cookies. The sandwiches should be small (about two bites apiece); fillings usually quite simple, for example cream cheese and chopped olives; watercress (rolled sandwiches); pate of some kind, minced ham, minced chicken, and so forth; and some sandwiches of plain bread and butter; often made of various kinds of bread, the crusts cut off; and of various shapes, oblong very often preferred. Sometimes a hot item very small. hot, toasted-cheese rolled sandwiches; tiny biscuits or beaten biscuits, opened, filled with sliver of ham or marmalade, and toasted; rusks halved or quartered, buttered, heated or toasted; English muffins, buttered, toasted, then quartered; cinnamon toast; raisin bread or soda bread, toasted. The sweet course: petits fours or other small cakes, plain pound cake, angel cake, brownies; a rich, special cake, such as chocolate or cocoanut, devil's food (if these are served, small plates and small forks must be provided); and/or interesting and really delicious cookies, such as nut cookies, lace cookies, spice cookies, thin sugar cookies.

Procedure: Ask two decorative looking and gracious and efficient members to preside over the tea-table for each hour of the party, one to pour tea, the other to pour coffee. Guests go to the person pouring, telling her how they like their tea (whether strong, weak or medium, with lemon or cream, and if with sugar, how many lumps) or coffee (whether black or with cream, with or without sugar). The guest takes the cup and saucer and plate, then serves herself to sandwiches, and later to cake or cookies.

Too long under a bushel

● Here's a man who does a great deal to benefit his fellow-citizens and his community. Yet for a long time he's been "hiding his light under a bushel".

Anyone looking up Main Street, for instance, might never guess that he had a hand in establishing some of its fine new stores, hotels, office or apartment buildings. But he has.

Nor would many people realize that they may have him to thank in part for their homes. Or for the pure water that flows from the faucets. Or the electricity that serves them so many ways at the flick of a switch.

Every week workers take home pay from industries that this man helped to develop. But they're unaware of his connection with their jobs.

He even has an influence on his fellow-citizens' health and the length of their lives!

Who is he?

He's the typical life insurance policyholder — a man who might be any one of millions of Canadians. And it is through investments of his premium money that he helps create public works, homes and industries in their communities. Life insurance money is also contributed to medical research projects seeking to banish deadly diseases.

So, if you own life insurance, get out from under that bushel — and take a bow!

JOSEPH AND THE ANGEL

An interpretation of Daniele Crespi's painting.

Chapter 6

JOSEPH DREAMS A DREAM

Mary was standing before the door, and the lambent yellow flames of the candles inside showed Joseph how much Mary had changed; she looked like a phantom of the girl he remembered.

She was so pale now that she might have been a specter, not of the dead but the living. She whose cheeks had been ripe orchard red with the warmth of health; whose strong arms could swing the household baskets, heavily burdened, and take pleasure in her own strength; whose stride was young and free and full of the energy of earth, was now a wraith of her former self, yet she had grown taller. There was a primrose pallor in her skin. Especially the enlarged glow of her eyes startled Joseph—it summed up the mystical, frightening change in her.

"Mary!"

"Joseph!"

"Peace be with you!"

"And the Lord be with you."

"Beloved, are you ill?"

"Beloved, don't come nearer to me. Not—just yet. There is something I have to tell you."

He stood, straight and tall, twisting his cap nervously in knotty fingers, his brow heavily creased.

"Say it at once, Mary, beloved, whatever it is. I am listening."

"Then, Joseph, beloved . . ."

"Yes?"

"I am with child."

A New Dignity

If the world had broken into two parts and dropped away into bottomless space, her words could not have sounded more unlikely. She had spoken softly; all her talk was soft, but with a new and singular dignity in her voice.

Mary with child!

Joseph stood, unmoving; the fingers stopped playing with the cap. Mary running off. Mary staying away. Mary coming back. Mary with child.

"Joseph!" she faltered. "Speak to me."

"But you have not known me," he spoke in a far-off whisper.

"I have not known man."

"But you say you are with child!" he cried and in his wounded tone was the pain of a man who cannot believe his own anguish.

"Yes, Joseph."

"Whose child?" he groaned.

"Not the child of any man," she answered, her pale face clear before him.

"What is this you say?"

And he mumbled her words, repeating them twice over, trying to grasp the incomprehensible.

"Handmaid of the Lord"

"It is from God," she insisted. "It is not from man but from God. The angel Gabriel, who came to Zachary, came also to me. Elizabeth's child is born and he is a man-child and his name is John, just as the angel declared. And now I am the handmaid of the Lord and shall be the mother of the Promised One!"

"Mary! Do you know what you are saying?"

"Yes."

"If the elders hear you, they will have you put to death."

"Still it is true, Joseph."

He threw his cap to the ground and flung himself after it on a pile of chips and sawdust.

"Tell me this strange thing," he invited glumly. "I shall listen and no more interruptions."

Step by step Mary rehearsed for him the incredible proceedings. And then there was a long silence. At last Mary said:

"You are thinking deep thoughts, Joseph."

"I am thinking," muttered Joseph, slowly scrambling to his feet, "it is a curious thing that no angel came to me."

He exhaled a vast and hopeless sigh.

Only Her Word

"Surely I have a right to be shown the truth of this matter!" he cried. "Am I expected to take this shocking story casually? I have no wish to quarrel. The Lord knows that I loved you, Mary, with all my mind and all my heart and all my soul. I have no eyes for any other — only you. But if this thing has happened, why is it that no angel reassured me? Don't I count at all?"

She wept. It had not occurred to her that he had been neglected by the angel. But it was true. Joseph had only her word for what had happened. And that was a great deal to ask of any man.

"Have you told your mother?"

"No; nor father, either. I felt I must tell you first."

Joseph went to her slowly and she noticed how his shoulders were bowed, how sagging the line of his small golden beard, how stricken his eyes. A wave of mothering pity went through her; she wanted to gather him in her arms and croon to him.

"I must think," said Joseph. "Tomorrow we will talk more."

"Then peace be with you, Joseph."

"And the Lord be unto you, Mary."

That was a dark night for Joseph. Sleepless he lay with misery darkening his soul; he tossed back and forth on the straw pallet, groaning in disappointment and grief, beating his fists against the rough walls. Tearfully he recited old psalms and prayers, hoping to quiet the storm in his heart. What was it his lovely betrothed asked him to believe? That a virgin was to have a child; that she was still as pure and innocent as he had known her to be the day they promised each other to be husband and wife. She asked him to accept God as the sole Father of her son. Then she was asking him to believe something even more irrational — that their son, no! not his son, but hers—was to be the Deliverer for which the people had been waiting for thousands of years: that Mary was bringing into the world the Messiah. With a shudder he remembered the Roman songs of the travellers around the camp fire.

Lord, God of Hosts, bring peace to my soul!

He admonished himself: he must be wise and calm in the disaster. He would not raise a scandal. There must be no disgrace. Joseph was minded to put away Mary privately. Somehow things could be managed without gossip. There was always a way to manage that, in Nazareth as everywhere else in the world.

When she came home, he would marry her. He would ask no more questions, raise no more doubts, accept the situation and stand by her; he still wanted her.

His face was wet when at last he fell asleep.

A Dream

Like his great ancestor, Joseph, son of Jacob, the young carpenter of Nazareth dreamed a dream.

It was not a vivid, waking experience, such as Zachary and Mary had known, it was a man's dream in his sleep, but it was so real, co complete that on him it had all the effect of reality. In the dream the angel of the Lord came to Joseph too; spoke kindly to him, almost paternally, and told him not to be afraid to make Mary his wife; that the child had been in truth conceived of the Holy Spirit, that the name of the child was to be Jesus, and that he was to save the people from their sins. Then the dream ended.

Slowly Joseph wakened. Eyes open, Joseph found himself muttering a prophecy from old Scripture—the words of the great Isaiah:

"Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign. Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son."

And then Joseph turned a little cold at a new thought that rushed upon him. He would marry Mary, yes, and help bring up her supernatural son.

Joseph did not know it, but even as Mary changed, so he was changing now; changing into a great man. He could do that because he possessed what is called the gift of faith. He would marry Mary. And he would be her most chaste spouse! Lying there in the immeasurable dark, Joseph renewed his betrothal vows.

Perfect Companionship

It had been a very simple wedding in Mary's house; afterward, Joseph, arm around his bride, led her down the long and muddy street and proudly thru' the open door.

From their first moment along together they knew perfect companionship. Theirs was a marriage based on the yearning of soul for soul, unbound to the earth; they were profoundly in love, so that they felt closer than any union possible to mere bodies; knowing a richness of delight that lay beyond the reach of flesh.

How very curious, Joseph sometimes found himself thinking. While all Israel was in trouble, the people hoping and praying for the promised Deliverer, Mary was carrying in her womb a miraculous child.

"Ah, if it should really be so, Mary—"

"God will show," she whispered, hushed and scared. "We must wait!"

Herod Schemes Anew

Only that afternoon new tales had come from Jerusalem of the scheming of Herod to lay new taxes on the backs of the people.

"How can we pay?" a traveller railed. "We are starving already. Our herdsmen tend lambs that they cannot eat. We are all undernourished. More, now, this Arab king is thinking about."

Not long afterward Joseph learned that this visitor had known what he was talking about—the news came just when Joseph had begun to worry about Mary's condition. The village midwife and Anna both agreed that the time was not far off for her child to be born.

It was then that the word spread through every street in Nazareth of a new fiat from Rome: there was to be an empire-wide census. The word had an ominous sound in Israel; the people had an ancient, almost superstitious aversion to being counted.

But the orders for this colossal undertaking came down straight from the Emperor himself; an imperial command from Caesar Augustus: every one of his subjects was to be enumerated.

"And for what?" asked the little dyer in his shop down the street from Joseph. "Why? Because they are going to increase the taxes and no one must get out of paying."

A Long Journey

The most disturbing fact to Joseph was that it meant a long journey for him when he felt he was needed at Mary's side. To remain in Nazareth and be counted was impossible, because under the ruling each person must be registered in the city headquarters of the tribe to which he belonged.

They must leave at once to be in Bethlehem on the appointed day!

"This journey to Bethlehem! Oh, Mary, I am afraid . . ."

But Mary smiled confidently.

"Joseph, my beloved," she said, "remember what the angel said to me?"

"'Do not be afraid, Mary'!" he quoted.

"And what did he say to you in that dream?"

"The very same words."

"Then we should not be afraid. And there is something else. I have been listening to the Scriptures in the synagogue; the rabbi does not know how eagerly, Joseph. There are prophecies."

"About the Messiah, Mary?"

"Yes. That he was to be born in Bethlehem. Had you forgotten, Joseph?"

He gasped.

"No, Mary — I had not forgotten. It confounds me now to realize . . ."

"Should we be afraid, Joseph?"

"No, Mary, my beloved. We shall go to Bethlehem."

The next morning they began their journey.
